He thought of Margaret even now, while he watched Jeanne, but not with longing. Far off and beautiful, he felt her radiance as he would that of a star. He knew that had he possessed the right to love her, and had he won her love, she could never have given him the unquestioning devotion that this little girl could. There was something much more human about his feeling for Jeanne than there ever had been in his worship for Margaret. The beauty of Margaret's hand had been felt by him, and the calm splendor of her famous eyes had moved him as they had many other men, but he had never dreamed of touching that hand, or of looking with loving familiarity into those eyes. It was different with Jeanne. He longed to call her to him and wrap his arms about her. It seemed to him that earth could hold no greater comfort than to have her odd little head lying on his shoulder. Moved by an impulse stronger than his will he stretched out his arms to her.

"You are my little wife," he said with swimming eyes. "Is it not so?"

Ah! it was so; it was indeed. His forever, by every motion that dedicates the heart, the reason, and the life of woman to that of man. His to cherish, to cheer, to crush, to kill—his to do with as he liked.

"This is the most remarkable meal of my life," he said a little later. "I can hardly realize that I am the Bohemian devoted to crabs and beer, eaten in the company of a lot of homeless fellows like myself." He wiped his moustache carefully and elaborately, by passing one arm around her waist.

"I used to eat half my supper standing up," he went on when this operation had been successfully performed. "I usually have supper at 12, you know. I have been to the same place for several months, and it was that I might watch a certain person." He stopped to take a bite of doughnut.

"Who was she?" cried Jeanne flushing.

Pond regarded her with delighted eyes. Her remark struck him as being one of the most piquant compliments he had ever received.

"It was a man with a cello."

"Why did you watch him?"

"To see if he would miss coming. He did. So I found it dreary. The object in life—and it was all I have—was hardly large enough for my needs."

"You concluded to amuse yourself in other ways?" interrogated a small voice.

"I did. I have come here for selfish reasons only."

"That makes no difference to me," burst out Jeanne, "so long as——" Then she stopped and turned scarlet.

"So long as what? No mystery! So long as what!"

"So long as you are here," faltered Jeanne.

Doughnuts and kisses are a queer combination, but any one who has tried them will find that they are not so bad.

"What were you doing to-night when I came?"

"Thinking of you. I have not been able to sleep much lately—for thinking of you."

"So? Well, to tell the truth, I haven't been sleeping particularly well myself. I tried to think it was indigestion, but it wasn't."

"I am so glad it wasn't," said Jeanne.

"I say, little girl," broke in Pond suddenly, "I hope you are not thinking that I am an angel or a hero, or anything of that sort. I have not been true to my best ideals. I am not worthy of the least of your regards, if the truth were told. Perhaps you may realize it some day—and that would be terrible, after you had believed in me so. I had rather tell you now."

"I do not know what you are talking about," said Jeanne, lifting up trusting eyes. "I only know that I can never be happy away from you again, and that as you came I was just thinking that I had better be dead, since I was not to see you again."

"God help me, Jeanne, God help me! Put your arms around my neck and look in my eyes without blushing, while I call you my wife. So! Good night. In the morning we will see if I am to be welcomed."

Never before in his life had he slept in a room so bare, so cheerless and so chilly as the one that Jeanne took him to; and yet, oddly enough, never before had he slept with such a sense of perfect happiness and joy. Peace he had felt before; but peace may be a dull thing. It is far from being gladness.

The next morning as Mrs. Whitfield was placidly getting breakfast she was not a little startled by the apparition of a young man in elegant garments—or what seemed to Mrs. Whitfield to be so—who opened the stairway door and greeted her with a broad smile. Mrs. Whitfield, with a pancake turner raised in air, regarded him in speechless astonishment.

"I dare say," he began in a hearty voice, "that you are not accustomed to having young men walk unannounced from your upper apartments, Mrs. Whitfield, especially young men whom you have never seen before. Under ordinary circumstances I would myself think that such an occurrence would call for an apology. But at present I have an offence so much larger to apologize for that I do not care to use up any credit I may have on small matters. Madam, I am Dennis Pond."

"You don't say," said Mrs. Whitfield with ready cordiality. "Well, you are welcome. I have heard Jeanne speak of you often. Did you come out in the rain last night?"

"To the best of my belief, I did. And the reason that I came in such a storm, Mrs. Whitfield, was because I came after your daughter."

"Not after Jeanne?"

"After Jeanne. I know that you have several other daughters, but they are all too small as yet to pay any attention to me."

"What did Jeanne say?" asked her mother, with the ring of nameless jealousy in it that a mother's voice can assume on such occasions.

"Jeanne said, madam—just what I would have her say. She will tell you herself. Where is she?"

"Dressing the children. That is her job mornings. Sit down, Mr. Pond. Pa will be in after a bit. He is out at the barn."

"Supposing I go to the barn," said Pond. "I might find—pa—there."

"Just so," said Jeanne's mother, with a sympathetic smile. But, after Pond was gone, the tears trickled into the pancake dough.

(To be Continued).

WOMEN WHO WHINE.

They, Unconsciously Make Life an Intolerable burden to Husbands.

If there is anything I am profoundly grateful for it is that I have not in my portion a woman who whines. If I had, I fear my name would some time be numbered with those who have mysteriously disappeared and have never been heard of again, for, with no small amount of good humor and the gift of being able to adapt myself to most of the circumstances of life, I cannot endure a whining woman. I know of one such woman, and her husband has my profound sympathy poor fellow! If it rains, his wife whines because the sun doesn't shine. If the sun shines she whines because it doesn't rain. If she is sick, she whines because she isn't well; and if she is well, she whines because she has so much to do. She has one of those fretful, droning voices peculiarly exasperating to most people—a voice that would drive some men to deeds of desperation.

She was at our house one day—whining, as usual: "The fruit season's all over with and I didn't get to can half I wanted to, and I feel so put out about it. I'm so rushed all the time I never get to do half I want to. Some days I just sit down and cry. My baby has a dreadful cold; seems to me he always has something or other. What a sight of trouble children are, anyhow; dear, dear! You're all through house cleaning, aren't you? And I've hardly begun. I don't know as I'll ever get it finished, I do hate it so! What a handsome new chair you have! I'd like one like it, but I don't see how we can get anything new this fall, Henry's business is so poor. I just worry over it all the time. There's nothing but fuss and worry in this world, anyhow; dear me, dear me!"

That is a specimen of how she goes on for hours at a time. That is what her husband comes home to at night. That is what he hears day in and day out at his table. That is what must ring in the poor fellow's ears all day long, depressing and disheartening him, and taking from him all the joy and gladness of life.

I read lately of a bank president who positively refused to have men in positions of trust in his bank whose home life was known to be unhappy. He regarded such men as peculiarly liable to temptation, and one cannot help thinking that he was correct in his estimate of the dangers surrounding such a man.

Now you need not tell me that the woman of whom I write cannot help whining, that it is a constitutional failing or a tendency against which she has no power to strive. I don't believe it. She is a perfectly healthy and robust woman, and she simply needs to brace up—to come to a realizing sense of what she owes to herself, her husband, her children and society in general.—Zenas Dane.

Good, Pure Seed.

Deal only with respectable seedsmen whose reputation is at stake and who cannot afford to run any risks in the matter. Wherever and whenever possible also, ask for a guarantee, although in the case of such seedsmen as those described it would seem almost superfluous. Another thing: when seeds have to be mixed, buy them separately and do the mixing yourself. A London (Eng.) firm recently sold a great deal of red clover seed which they advertised would yield 98 per cent—a very high average. It failed, however, to yield half or even a tenth of that amount, and when submitted to expert analysis, the reason was obvious. It contained but 10 per cent. of red clover seed, the remainder being made up of rib grass and pounded stone, both dyed beautifully to resemble the real seed. This was a case of pure fraud, punishable by law. Fortunately Ontario is not infested with firms of the London sort to any great extent, but, nevertheless, buy your own seeds, get the guarantee if possible, and do your own mixing.

Bill, Dad.

MORRIS PARK.

Opening of the Season—Fast Time Made—Garrison Rides Three Winners.

NEW YORK, May 30.—The racing season at Morris Park opened to-day. The best of the stables sent their fastest cracks and in two races the time was especially good and close to the best records of the American turf. The big event was the Club Handicap worth about $10,000 to the winner, and Tenny with Garrison up captured the pot. Garrison had a lucky day, riding the winners in three of the six events. When the races started there were over 40,000 people on the grounds.

First race 1-5 mile, sweepstakes for all ages, $750 added—(Fordham made the distance within half a second of the record.) Fordham 1, Civil Service 2, Timothy 3. Time 59½.

Second race, ½ mile, Galliard's stakes for two year olds, $1500 added—Russell won in .46½, within ¾ of a second of the record: Capt. Wagner 2, St. Charles 3. Time .46½.

Third race, 1 mile, The Withers Stakes, for 2-year-olds, $2000 added—Cyclone colt (Garrison) 1, Magnate 2, Cayuga 3. Time 1.41.

Fourth race, 1½ miles, The New York Jockey Club Handicap, $5000 added, 11 started; worth about $10,000 to winner—Tenny (Garrison) 1, Tristan 2, Cynosure 3. Time 2.07½.

Fifth race, ⅝ mile, sweepstake for 2-year-olds, $750 added—Parolina 1, Lady May 2, Woodcutter 3. Time 1.03½.

Sixth race, 1 mile, for 3-year-olds and upwards, $750 added—Flitter and Sam Wood dead heat, Manola 3. Time 1.42. The run off—Sam Wood 1, Flitter 2. Time 1.44½.

At West Side Park.

CHICAGO, May 30.—12,000 people witnessed the races at the West Side track to-day.

First race, 2-year-olds, ⅝ mile—Pasarra 1, Joe Carter 2, Bob L. 3. Time 1.16½.

Second race, 3-year-olds, ½ mile—Davidson 1, Amosa 2, Maggie B. 3. Time 1.29.

Third race, 3-year-olds, Speculation Handicap, 1½ miles—Riley 1, Red Light 2, Pilgrim 3. Time 1.57.

Fourth race, 3-year-olds, ¾ mile—Steve Jerome 1, Passion 2, Lulu Gelb 3. Time 1.17.

Fifth race, selling, 1½ miles—Bonnie King 1, Lizzie B 2, St. Alban's 3. Time 1.58½.

Racing at Latonia.

LATONIA, May 30.—First race, 1 mile and 70 yards—Rollin Hawley 1, Salute 2, Germanic 3. Time 1.45½.

Second race, 1 1-16 miles—Gunshot 1, Mt. Lebanon 2, Brookful 3. Time 1.50.

Third race, 1 1-16 miles—Bonita 1, Newcastle 2, Catalpa 3. Time 1.49½.

Fourth race, 1½ miles—Teuton 1, King Regent 2, Glockner 3. Time 2.12½.

Fifth race, ⅝ mile—Woodbena 1, Leonard 2, Jeannette 3. Time 1.03½.

A Horse Killed and Two Jockeys Injured.

NEW YORK, May 30.—Fair weather, a good track and a holiday crowd augured well for the opening day of the preliminary meeting at Brighton Beach to-day. But these auspicious features were discounted before the first race had been completed by a serious accident which resulted in the death of one of the horses and the serious injury of two jockeys. Twenty-three horses started in the first race on a track hardly wide enough for 15 to run abreast, and as might have been expected when the upper turn was reached a collision occurred. Gyda ridden by Barton, Gallus Dan with Cullen up and Hearst with Jockey Owen up came together at that point, and all went down. Hearst's back was broken in the fall and he died shortly afterwards. Jockeys Owen and Cullen were quite seriously injured. Summary:

First race, ⅝ mile—Long Branch 1, Insignia Call 2, Little Jake 3. Time 1.15½.

Second race, ½ mile—Kitty T. 1, Leonavia 2, Cascade 3. Time .56.

Third race, 1 1-16 miles—W. Daly Jr. 1, Tanner 2, Little Jim 3. Time 1.49.

Fourth race, 1 mile—Faustina 1, Centaur 2, John Atwood 3. Time 1.29½.

ANXIOUS TO ENTER A MONASTERY.

A Welsh Baron Who Wants to Pass His Remaining Days as a Monk.

DUBUQUE, Ia., May 30.—Benjamin Evans, a Welsh Baron, has appeared at the Trappist monastery in this county and desires to become a member of the order. He is the eldest son of an aristocratic family in Wales and has permitted his younger brother to live on the ancestral estate and enjoy the title. He has a large income, which he has used in traveling about the world, but he has become disgusted with life and is anxious to pass the remainder of his days in monastic retirement and the service of God.

DOMINION DOINGS.

PRINCE ARTHUR'S DAY IN THE QUEEN CITY.

Eighty Thousand People Line the Streets of Toronto to See the Ducal Party—Suicide of a Hamilton Septuagenarian.

TORONTO, May 31.—The Duke of Connaught, the Duchess and suite had a busy day yesterday. They visited Osgoode Hall, the Normal School, the Hospital, the Ontario Society of Artists' exhibition, and the Royal Canadian Yacht Club House on the Island. Crowds of enthusiastic citizens lined the streets all along the route and the Prince constantly exposed his shining head as he gracefully lifted his hat to the applauding multitude. In the evening there was an immense throng about the Queen's, from the balcony of which H.R.H. reviewed the city corps and the army and navy veterans. The ducal party left for the Falls at 9 o'clock this morning.

DOMINION W.C.T.U.

Close of the Third Annual Convention—Superintendents Appointed.

MONTREAL, May 30.—To-day concluded the third annual convention of the Dominion Woman's Christian Temperance Union. In the morning Miss Willard gave an address. These superintendents were appointed at the Executive Committee meeting:

Conference with influential bodies—Mrs. McDonnell, Toronto.
Scientific temperance instruction—Mrs. Noyes, Waterloo.
Heredity and health—Mrs. Lucas, Toronto.
Social purity—Mrs. Turnbull, St. John, N. B.
Evangelistic—Miss Barber, Montreal.
Foreign work—Mrs. Tait, B. C.
Exhibition and fairs—Mrs. Rugg, Stanstead.
Sabbath observance and unfermented wine—Mrs. Fawcett, Toronto.
Sailors, raftsmen and lumbermen—Mrs. Randolph.
Legislation petition—Mrs. Rockwell.
Franchise—Mrs. Parker, Toronto.
Flower mission—Mrs. G. T. Williams, Montreal.

Mrs. Tilton of Toronto was elected President for the coming year.

LICENSE LEGISLATION.

Justice Belanger Makes a Decision Favoring Federal Rights.

MONTREAL, May 30.—Mr. Justice Belanger of Beauharnois has decided that the article of the Quebec statutes giving municipal councils the power to pass bylaws prohibiting the retailing of liquor within their jurisdiction is beyond the power of the provincial legislature, the B.N.A. Act having reserved that right to the Parliament of Canada. The Court therefore declared the bylaw of the municipality of Huntingdon prohibiting retailing of liquor null and void. The Privy Council in 1878 decided, on the contrary, that the provinces have the right to pass license acts and the Supreme Court of Canada in 1885 held that the license act of 1883 was beyond the powers of the Federal Parliament but appertained to the provinces.

The Third Party at the Case.

MONTREAL, May 30.—The Montreal Herald this morning appeared only half its usual size. The shrinkage is due to a strike among the compositors last night. The members of the editorial staff who possessed typographical skill set to work at the cases and, what with intellectual and manual work, they made a very fair showing.

Two Barns Burnt.

WINDSOR, May 30.—Two barns, together with their contents, belonging to Patrick McNeily, a farmer of Maidstone township, were destroyed by fire yesterday. Loss, about $2000. Cause, incendiarism.

COLORED AND WHITE MEN FIGHT.

Three Negro Girls Were Flogged and Their Friends Are Mad.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 30.—A fight between colored and white men occurred today at Six Mile, a small town 50 miles from this city. No lives were lost, but the trouble is not ended and a bloody conflict is expected. Four young ladies were walking along a street in the town when they met three negro women. The sidewalk was narrow and the two parties collided. The negro women threw the white girls into the street by force, at the same time applying abusive epithets to them. That night the three negro women were dragged out of bed by a large party of white men, tied to trees, and flogged with cowhide whips until they fainted. This caused great excitement among the negroes of the town, and they began to arm themselves and threaten vengeance on the whites. This resulted in white men attacking the negroes and driving them off the streets by force. The negroes are arming themselves and 200 white men are under arms in the town. As the situation stands there is every indication of a bloody fight before the trouble is ended.

A MURDERER TURNED LOOSE.

John Williams' Story Found to be True in Part.

CHICAGO, May 30.—The police at the central station would be very much obliged if John Williams, the man who confessed to the murder of Sarah Jane Roberts, would come around again and give himself up. This morning Lieut. Kipley received a letter from a carpenter in this city, stating that a brother of the murdered woman worked for him in Manchester, England, when the crime was committed. Williams' story of the murder was that he asked the girl to be his wife, and beat out her brains with a hammer when she refused. The man said he lived in Leeds. The police telegraphed to Leeds, and the police of that city cabled in reply that Williams was not wanted there. On receipt of this information the prisoner was turned loose, and his story termed a fake. It now transpires that the murder was committed in 1879 in Manchester, and not in Leeds.

Drowned.

KINMOUNT, May 30.—This afternoon about 8 o'clock while Robert J. Bryans, nephew of Robert Bryans of Lindsay, was out boating he in some manner upset his canoe and was drowned.

INDIANA BADLY IN NEED OF MONEY.

The Income Too Small to Meet the Hoosier State's Expenses.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30.—Indiana is in a bad way financially. The necessary running expenses are rapidly increasing, while the income is not, owing to inadequate taxation and under appraisement. The State Auditor has figured out a deficiency of $530,609, which the next Legislature must provide for either by increasing the tax levy or making a new loan. The increased levy and higher appraisement are, however, declared to be inevitably necessary.

Bismarck Interviewed.

PARIS, May 30.—The Petit Journal reports that in an interview with Prince Bismarck the latter declared he would return to office if asked; that Germany would never attack France, and that the real enemy of Europe was Russia, who was only friendly to France because it suited her purpose. He expressed surprise, it is said, that Frenchmen failed to appreciate the qualities of Carnot, De Freycinet and Constans. The Prince said he might re-enter the Reichstag, not with a view to hamper Von Caprivi but to uphold his own ideas.

SUICIDE AT HAMILTON.

A Septuagenarian Takes a Fatal Dose of Rough on Rats.

HAMILTON, May 30.—A particularly sad case of suicide occurred yesterday at 90 John-street north. William Walker, an old resident of the city, while suffering from despondency, procured some rough on rats and drank a quantity of the mixture about 1 o'clock in the afternoon. He lingered for nearly five hours and though everything possible was done for him he died about 7 o'clock. The deceased had resided in Hamilton for 38 years, and was a well-known contractor and merchant of the city at the time the Great Western Railway was being built. Later on he kept a store at the corner of James and Barton-streets, but met with business reverses. The deceased was 74 years of age. He leaves a widow and three sons and three daughters. One of the sons is George Walker, the well-known baseball pitcher. Another is foreman of the stores department of the Grand Trunk at London. It is not likely that there will be an inquest.

The projectors of the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo Railway are not making much noise about what they are doing, but they are hustling to acquire the right-of-way so as to have a substantial portion of the work done by July 1. No property has been purchased up to date, but agents of the company have obtained offers on portions of the right of way. The company does not bind itself under the agreement signed to purchase the property at the price named in the document, but the owner is bound to sell.

On Wednesday evening two gentlemen came here from Buffalo. They were R. G. Martin, manager of a storage company, and George Loveridge, a lawyer. They were looking for a man named William Carry, who was alleged to have brought stolen goods into the country. It appears that Carry had trouble with his wife, and a separation was granted by the courts, she to have certain household goods which were stored in Buffalo. Carry went to Martin, the manager of the storage company, alleged that he had lost the receipt for the goods, but swore out a wrongful affidavit and succeeded in getting possession of them. He then skipped to this city and put the goods in store at 27 Macnab-street north. The gentlemen mentioned came to him, but he gave them the slip and returned to Buffalo, where he was arrested last night. The goods are still here.

On Wednesday afternoon a freight train going north on the Hamilton & Northwestern, near Orillia, broke apart on McPhie's grade, and the two sections collided. Conductor James Forman of this city was slammed against the side of the caboose and had his cheek and head severely hurt. He was brought down to his home in Cannon-street.

ORIGINAL PACKAGES.

They Will Hereafter Be Sold in the House Restaurant.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—This was a thirsty day at one end of the Capitol. The House restaurant, which has been doing an active bar-room trade since the opening of Congress, suddenly went dry to-day. Lunches were served at the usual hour and at the usual price of 50 cents for poor members of Congress and any price the restaurant-keeper chose to charge strangers, but there was not a drop to drink. Speaker Reed sent down an order at noon to-day, closing the bar just in time to deprive thirsty members and others of their mid-day "bracer."

The order prohibits the sale of whisky and beer, but the restaurant men construe it to mean that they can sell table wines in "original packages." Original packages will continue to be sold at the table with lunch until another order is issued. There was a largely-increased business in the Senate restaurant, much of which was attributable to the influx of members of the House who had learned of the prohibition in their own wing of the Capitol. The Senate restaurant is supposed to be run under prohibition auspices.

KENNAN REPLIES TO MR. DUNSTON.

He Says the Last-named Gentleman Knows Nothing About Russian Prisons.

BUFFALO, May 30.—Mr. George Kennan, who is now in this city, was asked by a reporter to-day whether he had anything to say with regard to the recently-published interview, in which Mr. Dunston, Vice-Consul-General of the United States in Russia, accused him of making exaggerated and sensational statements concerning Siberian prisons and the exile system. "I have little to say," said Mr. Kennan, "except that Mr. Dunston does not seem to have the most rudimentary knowledge of the subject upon which he talks. He says that he has lived in Russia for thirty years, and it is therefore fair to presume that he reads the Russian language. If he had taken the trouble to look through the official reports of the Russian prison administration for the last decade he would never have made, I think, the reckless and preposterous statements attributed to him. Even Mr. Galkin Vrasskoy, the Chief of the Russian Prison Department, will smile when he reads the assertion so confidently made by an American consular officer that in many respects the Russian prison system is better than our own.

"If Mr. Dunston desires to counteract the pernicious influence that I am supposed to be exerting in the United States he would do well to qualify himself for the task by looking through the published reports of the Russian prison department. As for the Siberian prisons in particular, I do not know what Mr. Dunston can possibly know about them, since he has neither inspected them himself nor read the reports of officers who have inspected them. He thinks that I misrepresent and exaggerate their evils. It is unnecessary to discuss that question, since their condition has been fully and frankly described by the Governor-General of Eastern Siberia in three official reports to the Czar, copies of which are in my possession. In the first of these reports Governor-General Anutchin says:

"During my journey to Irkoutsk I inspected a great number of prison institutions, and I regret to have to say that with the exception of the prison castles in Krasnoyarsk and Irkoutsk they are all—that is circuit prisons, forwarding prisons, and etapes—in a lamentable condition. The etapes are particularly bad.

"Speaking in the same report of the life exiles on the road, the Governor-General says:

"Parties of prisoners under guard of a convoy command go on foot from etape to etape, and are whole months on the way, while the hard labor convicts, who must go to the upper Amoor, do not reach their destination in less than a year from the time when they enter Eastern Siberia. In the etapes the criminals and their families who voluntarily accompany them, are kept, as far as possible, in separate cells, but they spend the greater part of the day together. The scenes of debauchery to be witnessed here cannot possibly be described. All the shame and conscience that a prisoner has left is lost here completely. Here go to ruin also the families that voluntarily accompany criminals into exile without regard to age or sex.

"On the very report from which I have just quoted the present Czar has endorsed in his own handwriting the significant words, 'A melancholy but not a new picture.' Will Mr. Dunston try to maintain that the Czar of all the Russias is also 'a sensationalist given to exaggeration' of the defects of his own system of government?"

RAN THROUGH A DRAW.

TERRIBLE RAILROAD ACCIDENT IN CALIFORNIA.

At Least 25 Persons Lose Their Lives—A Train Plunges Into the Water—Some of the Bodies Identified—Intense Excitement at Frisco—List of the Dead.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—One of the most horrible railway accidents ever known in California occurred at 1.40 p.m., when the local train, connecting at Oakland with the ferry boats from San Francisco, ran through an open drawbridge over the San Antoine Creek at Webster-street, Oakland. The yacht Juanita had just passed through the draw when the train appeared going in the direction of Alameda. The drawbridge keeper tried at once to close the bridge, but it was too late, and the engine with its tender and first car, which was filled with passengers, plunged into the river, which was here quite deep. Engineer Sam Dunn and Fireman O'Brien went down with the engine. The former, when he saw the bridge did not close, reversed the lever but the momentum of the engine was too great to be stopped in time. The weight of the engine and first car broke the coupling and left the other two cars of the train standing on the track. The second car ran a third of the way across the bridge and stopped, but the jar was sufficient to break open the front of the car and many passengers were thrown into the water.

The first car, which had followed the engine to the bottom of the muddy estuary, soon rose and such of the passengers as had escaped were picked up by yachts and boats which gathered at the scene. The trainmen and the rest of the passengers aided in the work of rescuing, and when the wrecking train arrived from Oakland the car was drawn into shallow water and the boats began dragging the creek for bodies. The train was in charge of Conductor Reerath, an extra crew in it, being a holiday.

The conductor stated that probably persons had met their death. The top of the passenger coach was cut open. As soon as it was raised above the water and the work of removing the bodies commenced ten were taken out in quick succession. Engineer Dunn and his fireman were both saved. Three women and three girls were taken from the water alive and removed to the receiving hospital. Another young lady died soon after being taken from the water.

The news of the accident created intense excitement in Oakland and thousands of people flocked to the morgue and to the scene of the wreck. At the morgue the bodies were laid out as soon as received to await identification. The body of E. P. Robinson, which was among those taken from the hole cut in the roof of the car, was among the first removed and was taken in charge by Coroner Evers. The bodies of six men and two women were brought in soon after, some of the bodies being at first left at the receiving hospital, where the injured were also taken. In a short time 13 bodies lay on the floor and on the marble slabs of the Morgue awaiting identification. Many heartrending scenes were witnessed as the friends came forward to claim their dead. The list of the identified is as follows:

MARTIN KELLY of Oakland, Assistant Chief Warfinger for the State.
A. H. AUSTIN of Austin and Phelps, San Francisco.
MISS FLORENCE AUSTIN.
MRS. BRYAN O'CONNOR, widow of the deceased member of O'Connor, Moffat & Co., San Francisco.
J. B. EWING, sewing machine agent, Oakland.
E. ROBINSON, San Francisco.
LINGI MALESTA, San Francisco.
CAPT. JOHN DWYER, Sacramento.
MR. WILLIAMS, San Francisco.
W. W. AULD, (colored) Honolulu.
THE TWO MISSES KENNAN, San Francisco.

The thirteenth body was that of a Japanese boy supposed to be H. Malerta, San Francisco.

Thousands of people flocked to the scene and the street leading to the bridge was crowded with vehicles and hurrying men and women. So great was the crowd on the drawbridge that the police had to drive the people off for fear the great weight would upset the bridge. The wildest rumors regarding the loss of life were circulated and many people from San Francisco went across the bay to look for friends who were supposed to be on the train. The news of the disaster reached Mountain View cemetery where hundreds of Oakland people were decorating the graves. A panic was created and men, women and children rushed into the town leaving their dead and dropping bouquets as they ran. The cars of the narrow gauge road seat about 80 people and as the seats are very close together conservative estimates place the number of people in the cars at about 80, 13 of whom lost their lives. The water over which the bridge is built is an estuary of San Francisco Bay and is called Oakland Creek. A strong current runs in the stream which at the point of the accident is about 300 feet wide and 20 feet deep.

Both sides of the creek are lined with shipping and boatmen from the vessels were of great assistance in rescuing those who escaped from the car. The drawbridge is about 100 feet long and just before the trains from San Francisco get on the bridge they have to come around a sharp curve and usually travel at a high rate of speed. A passenger train crosses the bridge every half hour during the day, and when the bridge is open the keeper is supposed to signal by hoisting a red flag.

Hanged on Guiteau's Gallows.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The gallows on which Guiteau expiated the murder of President Garfield did its terrible work again yesterday. Benjamin Hawkins, the negro wife murderer, was hanged at the city jail at four minutes after noon. His neck was broken and life was extinct in four minutes after the drop fell. Hawkins, who was nearly 30 years old, killed his wife Cora, March 14, 1889, suspecting her of unfaithfulness.

RICH STRIKE IN A COLORADO MINE.

A Solid Streak of Gold Found in Ex-Senator Bowen's Property.

DENVER, Col., May 30.—A report reached here this afternoon from Alamosa that a wonderfully rich strike has been made in the Golconda Mine, which is owned by ex-Senator Tom Bowen. A solid streak of gold an inch thick runs through the mine. Ten days ago a pocket was opened from which $250,000 has been taken. The strike has created great excitement in the southern part of the state.

A Clergyman's Crime.

CHICAGO, May 30.—The jury in Judge Hawes' court yesterday morning returned a verdict of guilty against Fred T. McLeod, a Nova Scotia clergyman, and Maggie McLeod, who were tried for adultery. The woman was recommended to the mercy of the court and sentence was deferred. The statute fixes the limit of the penalty at one year in the bridewell or a fine of $500.

Common Sense

In the treatment of slight ailments would save a vast amount of sickness and misery. One of Ayer's Pills, taken after dinner, will assist Digestion; taken at night, will relieve Constipation; taken at any time, will correct irregularities of the Stomach and Bowels, stimulate the Liver, and cure Sick Headache. Ayer's Pills, as all know who use them, are a mild cathartic, pleasant to take, and always prompt and satisfactory in their results.

"I can recommend Ayer's Pills above all others, having long proved their value as a for myself and family."—J. T. Hess, Leithsville, Pa.

"Ayer's Pills have been in use in my family upwards of twenty years, and have completely verified all that is claimed for them."—Thomas F. Adams, San Diego, Texas.

"I have used Ayer's Pills in my family for seven or eight years. Whenever I have an attack of headache, to which I am very subject, I take a dose of Ayer's Pills and am always promptly relieved. I find them equally beneficial in colds; and, in my family, they are used for bilious complaints and other disturbances with such good effect that we rarely, if ever, have to call a physician."—H. THE NEW PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS.

THE history of the new Parliament buildings, so far as has been written, is very discreditable to the Government. It is a record of broken pledges to the House and broken pledges to the people.

In 1880 the Government asked for and received an appropriation of $500,000, and asked for competitive designs from architects. These designs were submitted to Hon. Alex. Mackenzie and Messrs. W. G. Storm and R. A. Waite, and two were selected, one of which the Government said would be adopted. Next tenders were advertised for. The tenders received showed that the buildings could not be erected for $500,000, and an additional appropriation of $250,000 was made. Speaking in the House when this additional amount was asked for Hon. C. F. Fraser said, as reported in the Globe:—

"After the Act of 1880 competitive designs were asked for. These were remodelled and modified, and tenders were asked for the erection of the buildings according to two of these sets of designs, the first set being the work of Architects Messrs. Gordon & Helliwell, and the second set being the work of Messrs. Darling & Curry. * * * ONE OF THESE TWO DESIGNS WILL BE ACCEPTED. * * * The Government's proposition is to select one of these two designs. We are now in a position to say with sufficient accuracy what the new buildings built according to either of these designs will cost. When the House asked the Government in 1880 to give an estimate of the cost of the proposed buildings the Government was not in a position to give a correct estimate. In the estimates which I am now able to lay before the House precautions have been taken that there should be no extras. We asked for tenders for the erection of buildings according to the two plans which I have mentioned, and I propose to give the House the result of the actual tenders received, so that the House may see that in asking for this sum we are asking FOR A SUM THAT WILL BE AMPLE FOR THE ERECTION OF THESE BUILDINGS UPON EITHER ONE OF THESE PLANS. For the erection of the buildings according to the plans of Messrs. Gordon & Helliwell we received ten different tenders from contractors, all of whom were men of experience and all financially able to undertake this work and willing to undertake it, so that they were in every respect the tenders of first class men.

"Mr. Carnegie—They will be tendered for again of course.

Mr. Fraser—Oh, yes; and there is EVERY REASON TO BELIEVE THAT THE TENDERS WILL BE LESS THAN THESE. Five of these ten were under the sum of $650,000. These five were respectively for $642,000, $650,000, $678,000, $688,000 and $695,000. * * * The other plan received nine tenders, most of which were by the same persons. Three out of the nine exceed $600,000 a very little. They are, respectively, $612,000, $626,000, $628,000. Three others did not exceed $750,000, they were for $706,000, $719,000, and $729,000, so that six out of the nine tenders for the more expensive design did not exceed $750,000. The lowest, $612,000, was by a competent firm, able to carry out the work, which would leave a margin from the sum asked of about $150,000."

Such were the promises made by the Government to the House, and such were the assurances made to the people. During the last election the people were told that the cost would not be more than $750,000.

But the Government deceived the people. The promises were broken and neither of these designs was adopted. Acting on Mr. Waite's opinion alone they were rejected, and then Mr. Waite was given the work of drawing new plans without limit as to the cost of the buildings! On these plans the contract for the foundation and walls alone was let for $752,000—more than the appropriation for the completed buildings.

The total cost instead of being $750,000, will probably run up to $2,000,000. The Premier himself declared he did not know what they would cost. The following is an extract from a discussion on the subject in the House on March 6th last:—

"The Hon. Premier defended the action of the department in the course they had pursued.

"Mr Meredith—What is it going to cost?

"Mr. Mowat—I don't know. It would be an extraordinary thing if I could estimate that."

The Government promised the House to accept one of two plans by Canadian architects, and then rejected them.

It accepted the design of a Buffalo architect who had acted as judge of the Canadian plans.

It promised that the expenditure would not exceed $750,000, and it let the contract for the foundation and walls alone for more than that amount.

And it does not know now what the building will cost.

Such is the record of mismanagement, extravagance and deception on the part of the Government.

THE TORONTO LEADERS.

ATTEMPTS are being made to twist expressions of Mr. E. Douglas Armour, of Toronto, against Mr. Carnegie, as was also most unfairly done with expressions of Dr. Caven. Mr. Armour's words had no reference to members of the Association, but to candidates of other political combinations, and were pointed against a Government candidate in Toronto who has made an effort to square himself with members of the Association. Dr. Caven has warned the Association against party alliances, his view that its members should sever their connection with party being expressed in these words:—

"Let all friends of Equal Rights who are more anxious to have our principles prevail than to secure a party triumph act in concert, with wise forbearance, and with fidelity and honor."

In their official declaration of their views the Council of the Association thus directed the members as to the best way to secure their enforcement:—

"Such are the views of the council on the issues which present themselves at the present election. How are those amongst you whose opinions are reflected in this statement to give them effect? The answer is plain. IN CONSTITUENCIES IN WHICH CANDIDATES HAVE NOT BEEN NOMINATED BY THOSE WHO OWE ALLEGIANCE TO THE ASSOCIATION, the candidates in the field should be approached by our friends in the constituencies, and he who—other things being equal—is found to be MOST IN ACCORD WITH OUR PRINCIPLES should receive their HEARTY AND UNDIVIDED SUPPORT.

"Signed on behalf of the council.
"WM. CAVAN. E. DOUGLAS ARMOUR,
"Chairman. Secretary.
"J. K. MACDONALD.
"DALTON MCCARTHY,
"D. J. MACDONNELL,
"JOHN T. SMALL,
"ALEXANDER FRASER,
"Committee on Address."

Mr. Stratton is not only a follower of the Government, but he has voted against annulling the prima facie clause in the Separate school law, which the Association objects to and which Mr. J. A. Barron said was unjust; he voted against the ballot in Separate school elections, against the compulsory use of authorized text books in the Separate schools, and against requiring all who teach in state-aided schools to have proper certificates, while all these things are part of the Association platform. He has by his votes shown that he was opposed to every plank in the Association platform. And Dr. Caven's advice is to be "more anxious" to have "principles prevail than to secure a party triumph" and to give "hearty and undivided support" to the candidate most in accord with their principles.

An Incipient Blaze.

Shortly before two o'clock this afternoon a silent alarm called the fire brigade out, but fortunately their services were not required and the town alarm was not sounded. A blaze in a shed behind the store of Hall, Innes & Co. was the cause of the alarm being sent out. A lighted cigar carelessly thrown in the yard probably was the cause of the fire, which however, was extinguished before much damage was done.

Well Satisfied.

Mr. J. J. Turner, the well known tent and awning man, has scored another success by turning out, as is usual with him, a piece of work which has given the best of satisfaction. Mr. Turner filled an order for a flag for the County of Victoria. The flag was twenty-four feet long and was very nicely made. A letter was received by Mr. Turner from the County Clerk of Victoria expressing the great satisfaction which the flag had given.

Lighting the Town.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee met last evening for the purpose of considering the question of additional electric lights. It was decided to recommend to the council the changing of forty of the present lights to all-night lamps and the placing of thirty-one additional lights. At present there are forty-four lights, none of which burn later than twelve o'clock. With the additional lights proposed the town would have about seventy-five lights in all, forty of which would burn all night. The Committee are to make a tour of the town in a body on Monday to decide on the location of the new lamps so as to be able to report at the Council meeting on Monday night.

HE FINISHES A YEAR.

A Pleasant and Successful "At Home" Marks the Anniversary of the Advent of Mr. R. J. Colville into Peterborough—A Presentation to the Bandmaster.

It is now just a year since Mr. R. J. Colville took the management of the local Y.M.C.A. as its general secretary. During the twelve months which have winged their rapid course into the past since his advent into Peterborough much successful work has been accomplished in the Association and the affairs have generally prospered. To the energy, zeal and earnestness which Mr. Colville puts into his work coupled with his special ability for it can be traced this success, and the anniversary of his coming to Peterborough was not allowed to pass without something special being chronicled to commemorate the event.

The Ladies Auxiliary and the members of the Association arranged an "At Home" for last evening, at which a very large number of the members and friends of the organization turned out to congratulate the general secretary on his success during his first year and to wish him even better in those which are yet to come. The rooms presented a most attractive appearance. Artistic hands had gaily decorated the hall with flags, bunting, mottoes, etc., and the effect was beautiful, while the reading room had been turned into a refreshment hall where tables were laid and tempting dibles in abundance furnished.

THE EVENING'S PROGRAMME.

As stated the hall was crowded to its fullest capacity. Mr. Geo. J. Early, President of the Association, occupied the chair and after the excellent band of the Association had rendered a pleasing selection, Mr. James Sutherland offered a short opening prayer. A well rendered piano forte duet by the Misses Robinson followed. Mrs. Daly then sang a solo in excellent voice, after which Miss Louise Yokome gave an exceedingly well executed violin solo. Short appropriate speeches, in all of which congratulatory reference was made to Mr. Colville's services during the year and the success which had attended them, were then made by Rev. A. C. Wilson, Rev. F. H. Leitch and Mr. G. M. Roger, past President of the Association.

A PLEASING FEATURE.

Mr. Colville also made an address in which he briefly reviewed the work of the year, spoke of the success which had attended their work and returned thanks to God for His kindness. Upon concluding his remarks Mr. Colville turned and read a kindly worded address to Mr. John Miller, the efficient leader of the Association band, and Mr. Wm. Holland presented Mr. Miller with a handsome silver Imperial "B" flat cornet. The presentation was made by the band and board of directors as a token of appreciation of Mr. Miller's kind and useful services as leader of the band. The address, which speaks for itself, read as follows:—

To Mr. John Miller:

For some time past it has been the earnest desire of the band and Board of Directors of this Association to give some tangible expression of their appreciation of the valuable and self-sacrificing services rendered by you in the leadership of their services of song, and in so instructing the band as to greatly increase their usefulness in the work and materially advance the prosperity of our Association. We rejoice that God has led you to consecrate the talent with which He has so liberally endowed you to His service in connection with the Y. M. C. A., and we trust that you may continue "steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord."

In asking your acceptance of the cornet we thank you for your past efforts in behalf of the Association in general and its band in particular, and we pray that you may long be spared to use it to the glory of God and the advancement of His cause.

Signed on behalf of the band,
WM. HOLLAND, RICHARD SHELTON, and by
GEO. J. EARLY, President. R. J. COLVILLE, General Secretary.
30th May, 1890.

Mr. Miller was taken completely by surprise, the presentation having been kept a strict secret as far as he was concerned. However he made a feeling and appropriate reply.

THE ENTERTAINMENT CONCLUDED.

The programme was then proceeded with. Miss Fawcett sang a pleasing vocal solo with her usual good taste, Mr. H. Dicks gave a flageolette solo, the band rendered another selection and Rev. Mr. Wilson closed the entertainment with prayer.

Refreshments were served in the reading room by the ladies of the Auxiliary and the spread was toothsome and bountiful. The ladies have the thanks of the Association for their magnificent efforts and they merited it. The evening taken as a whole was an exceedingly pleasant one and Mr. Colville can feel flattered.

MORE POLITICAL TALK.

THE ALLEGED LABOR MEETING A CAMPAIGN MEETING.

Mr. Jury did not Speak Under the Auspices of the Labor Council—Some Glaring Misrepresentations—A Stranger Speaks a Short Time.

Mr. A. F. Jury, of Toronto, was billed to address a "workingmen's meeting" in the Opera House last night "under the auspices of the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council." Mr. Jury is well known as an active political stumper for the Mowat Government, and when the meeting was advertised it was suspected at once that the meeting would be purely a political one on Mr. Stratton's behalf, and that suspicion turned out to be well founded, for such the meeting was. Although advertised as coming under the auspices of the Trades and Labor Council, no names were signed to the bill and a further "fishy" sign was that there was no printing office imprint, although printed at the Examiner office, on the bills. The Trades and Labor Council had not passed a resolution asking Mr. Jury to speak here "on the political questions of the day," and members of the Council and Unions were, to say the least, displeased to see the Council thus brought forward as a political agent. But Mr. Jury himself made the matter clearer by stating that he was there as a political speaker and that he did not know until he came here that he was advertised to speak under labor auspices! His expressed hope that it would not be thought he would thus "prostitute his official position" was a severe rebuke to the politicians, or politician, who had thus advertised him to deceive the workingmen, and though this disclaimer very probably was called out by the freely expressed objections of Union men in town, the REVIEW joins him in the hope that the organizations will not be injured, and such a freedom will scarcely again be taken with the name of a labor organization here, as it did not work well this time. Mr. Jury said in his address that he had arranged that discussion would be allowed, but that was not made known here and the bills only announced an address, under labor auspices, without inviting discussion. Further, one of the managers of the meeting, who acted as chairman, was asked if there would be discussion and he said there would not. Under the circumstances no arrangement was made to have any one to represent the other side.

There was a fair attendance at the meeting, though the audience was slow in coming. Mr. R. McGregor, Secretary of Mr. Stratton's campaign committee, presided as chairman.

The CHAIRMAN said the speaker would take up the question of the day from the workingman's standpoint. Both the candidates, he said, had sent letters of regret on account of their inability to be presented.

MR. STRATTON'S ADVOCATE.

Mr. JURY began by saying that lest there might be misapprehension he wished to say when asked to come here under the auspices of the Trades and Labor Council he had replied that he would much rather speak as a politician, without coming under its auspices, but every workingman had a right to his own views as a citizen. He wished it distinctly understood that he spoke more as a politician than as a representative of organized labor. He wished to say this because he would not like friend or foe to think that he would prostitute his official position. He did not know until he got off the train that he was announced to speak under the Trades and Labor Council auspices. While he did not wish to cause dissention in the labor organizations, because in them they should sink political differences. Taking up his subject, he said he believed that the great reform movements of the world had been inaugurated by men actuated by a desire to ameliorate the condition of their fellow-men. He did not understand why there were political Reformers who looked askance at labor reformers. Social and political equality was what they desired, and they should strive to that end. Political equality had been secured, but a great question, the labor problem, remained to be solved. He pleaded with Reformers not to hold aloof from the labor movement. Some of the ablest men of the day were devoting their minds to a solution of the problem and in all the leading magazines pages were devoted to the question. British people were apt to think that they were superior in that respect, but so great was the interest in this question that the despotic Emperor of Germany had called a conference to discuss the question in the heart of his empire, and surely it was not beneath the attention of Ontario Reformers. The political party that gave attention to this question would be the political party of the future, for the working class—all producers—would not submit to be deprived of the products of their labor as they had been in the past. He referred to the introduction of machinery in various kinds of production, and said that it was a gross injustice that any who took part in the great industrial life should be without the necessaries of life that they produced. The day was coming when a man would not build a palace for another and live in four bare walls himself, or make a carriage for another and go on foot himself. They would have a fair share of what they produced, and that would not be anarchy or any other dangerous thing. He then dropped the labor question and began in his capacity as a political campaigner. He would, he said, review some of the legislation of the Mowat Government. The first act he referred to was the act to facilitate agreements between master and workmen with regard to profits. He was sorry that this question had not received more attention, as by a system of division of profits he believed much of their difficulty would be removed, and he referred to Industrial Associations in Europe. He practically admitted that the act had remained a dead letter, but said it was the fault of the people. The next act referred to was the Trades Arbitration Act, which has also laid a dead letter. The next was the Lien Law, which, with all the succeeding amendments, was intended to enable men who work on a building to obtain their wages, but in this connection he gave no credit to Mr. Meredith, who had given a great deal of time to this law and had a great part in the work of trying to make it useful. The next was the law exempting wages to the extent of $25 from being garnisheed, but in praising this good act he neglected to mention that this very act was introduced and piloted through the House

READY TO SPEAK FOR A POLITICAL PARTY,

BY MR. MEREDITH.

An amendment to the Lien Law was briefly mentioned, which, however, was the work of an independent member, though Mr. Jury did say so, and the act to prohibit the goods of lodgers from seizure. The Act to protect railway employees from accidents on railways was next taken up, and like the majority of Mowat Government speakers he attacked the Dominion Government which is not now on trial. He urged agitation to secure amendments to the general railway act. Returning to Ontario politics he referred to the Bureau of Industries, but he mentioned, though in a sneering way, that the Dominion Government had established a Bureau of Labor Statistics and deserved thanks for it. The Free Libraries Act was noticed, and another amendment to the Lien Law—and all these amendments were incorrectly spoken of as though they had all been Government measures. The Act to extend the provisions regarding Masters and Servants was commended, though it was calculated to encourage laborers in other countries making contracts to come to this country. Another amendment to the Lien Law was mentioned.

A TROUBLESOME QUESTION.

Mr. ADAM DAWSON asked why the Government had not amended the law when last asked to do so. He was one of the deputation that waited on the Government and it did not get the reception it should. The amendment was not made, consequently a building could be sold or mortgaged and the workmen would have no redress.

Mr. JURY said the Act had been amended and read the amendments.

Mr. DAWSON said that was not the amendment asked for, and the amendment they asked for had not been given.

Mr. JURY could not say the deputation's request had been granted, and he replied that some change had been made. (A man under the gallery interrupted the speaker and Mr. Jury said he had it understood before coming to Peterborough that discussion would be permitted and he preferred not to be asked questions.) Proceeding, he said he did not claim that the Act was perfect. The law, he claimed, read that the lien had preference over a mortgage, but the judges decided differently, and Mr. Mowat recommended an appeal to the highest courts, though he did not explain why an amendment to make the law clear and avoid the costly litigation was not passed. He referred to the Dominion not passing a Factory Act, but in this connection did not mention the difficulty as to jurisdiction, though a moment later he did mention it to excuse Mr. Mowat for not putting the Ontario Act into operation for two years. The Insolvent law was touched upon. The Franchise Act of 1885 was mentioned, but nothing was said about the efforts of the Conservatives to extend the franchise further at that time. The Act to permit workmen to take time to vote without legal penalty was mentioned. The Employers' Liability Act was taken up and dwelt upon, but again nothing was said about Mr. Meredith having previously introduced a similar bill and the Government throwing it out. He touched lightly on the exemption of the railways for two years, despite Mr. Meredith's protests, and the fact that Mr. Meredith and his followers strove to have a clause inserted making an agreement waiving a workman's claim under the act illegal, but were opposed by the Government and its supporters, was also not mentioned. The exemption of furniture from seizure was noticed. Manhood Suffrage was then taken up, and its importance dwelt upon. Here, again, there was no mention of the fact that as far back as 1873 Mr. Meredith voted in favor of manhood suffrage and that under his lead the Conservatives in the House repeatedly moved for such an extension of the franchise, but were opposed by all the force of the Government. Nor was it mentioned that for years the sons of mechanics were though the sons of farmers could, despite the efforts of the Conservatives to give fair play to all by giving the sons of mechanics votes also. The enfranchisement of women for municipal purposes was commended, though it was opposed by members of the Government, and also the "one man one vote" principle, though he did not have time to tell of the unfair provision that disqualified men, who, for instance, move from town to Ashburnham or vice versa, though Mr. Meredith endeavored to provide against this injustice. Other amendments of the law were noticed. The Mining Act of last session was dwelt upon and its provisions regarding the employment of children highly praised—but nothing was said of the fact that the act as introduced by the Government would have recognized the employment of women and children in mines and that it was owing to Mr. Meredith's watchfulness that the amendment was inserted. He belittled the Separate school and other issues, and when he took up these questions he was more unfair, more unjust to his political oponents, if possible, than when he was dealing with the labor laws.

NOT ALLOWED TO VOTE,

A STRANGER APPEARS.

A gentleman rose to ask a question, but "platform" was shouted so loudly that he could not be heard until he took the platform. When he got there Mr. Jury said he could have thirty minutes to speak. The stranger, who later on said his name was John W. Douglas, said he was a stranger in town and was here on business and had come in to listen to Mr. Jury. He saw the bills announcing a lecture and had risen to ask a question.

Mr. JURY said he had been wrongly announced on the bills.

Mr. DOUGLAS again started, but some men were going out and were hissed and there was considerable confusion. When quiet was restored he said it seemed to him to be a little peculiar that so much was boasted of regarding legislation, but if Mr. Mowat had not done something in eighteen years what use would he be at all? Mr. Jury had referred to the examination of a judgment debtor, but he (the speaker) could not understand how such a law had been allowed to remain on the statute book. A man who lived in style could make a compromise, but a poorer man could be sued and if he did not pay he could be imprisoned. In regard to the lien law he said a man could assign, if he was dishonest, to another man equally dishonest, and by delays do an injustice to workingmen. He denied that Mr. Meredith had raised a religious or race cry. (Interruptions.) He referred to the prima facie clause in the Separate school law. There was a large number of Roman Catholic children attending Public schools, he said, and there had never been a complaint of any attempt at proselytizing, but all studied, played and grew up together in harmony. This was an argument in favor of national schools. Mr. Jury had wished his father had taught him French, but he would not have thanked his parent if he had taught him only French. It was the exclusion of English that was complained of. (Cries of "time.") He was from Manitoba, and though a lawyer—(cries of time and a voice—"We want no lawyer here")—he had employed large numbers of men, and every one of them would speak well of him. He remarked that he had not intended to speak, for he had not for a long time taken part in politics and further was not well. (Laughter). If they enquired into the facts—(hisses and "time")—they would find that owing to the changes Mr. Mowat had made in the law the costs of law suits had been increased, as they would find if they went to Osgoode Hall.

The CHAIRMAN—I must call you to order. This meeting was called to discuss legislation relating to labor.

Mr. DOUGLAS said that was what he was doing and made a couple of observations further when he was informed by the chairman that his time was up and took his seat.

THE CAMPAIGNER AGAIN.

Mr. JURY charged the stranger with untruth, and referred to the Protestant schools in Quebec, the language question and the prima facie clause, and devoted some attention to the Dominion Government. He then turned to the disputed territory and Provincial finances (and was not called to order by the chairman), devoted some more attention to Sir John and closed with an appeal on behalf of the Mowat Government.

The meeting closed with cheers for the Queen.

THE COURT CONCLUDES.

Only One Case Heard—The Others Settled Out of Court.

The Chancery Sittings which opened here yesterday afternoon were of short duration, the Court rising shortly after noon to-day, after having heard only the one case, Stothard vs. Hilliard et al. The other four cases which were down on the docket have been settled out of court. All yesterday afternoon and this morning the court was occupied with the case of STOTHART vs. HILLIARD et al.—This was a suit in which John Stothart brought action against Mr. Geo. Hilliard and the Auburn Woollen Co. for damages for backing water on his farm and for an injunction to restrain the defendants from continuing to back the water as complained of, or in other words, to compel them to remove their dam. The defence was that the water had been backed since 1839, and that the defendants had obtained the prescriptive right to keep the water up to the present head. The reply was that in 1848 and 1866 these lands were leased to Mr. Hilliard and his predecessors in title and that these leases prevent this statute from running. Several of the old grey-haired sires of this district were in court as witnesses in this case, among them being Messrs. John and Thomas Cox who worked on the dam when it was built in 1839 and Mr. Daly, of Smith, who remembered the time well and was familiar with the land and circumstances. His Lordship reserved judgment on the case. Moss, Q.C., and E. E. Wood for the plaintiff, Wallace Nesbitt and R. M. Dennistoun for the Auburn Woollen Co., and Dumble & Leonard for the defendant Hilliard.

Personal.

Rev. C. B. Kenrick is expected to return to his duties this evening, having recovered from his late throat affection.

A New True Blue Lodge.

On Tuesday night next a new True Blue Lodge is to be organized at Norwood. Bro. A. Manning, D.D.G.M., Bro. G. Stone, D.D.G.M. and King William Lodge with its fife and drum band will attend on the occasion. Other visiting brothers from Lindsay and elsewhere are expected.

The Mayor's Contribution.

The Mechanics' Institute yesterday received a handsome addition to the library, being the complete reports and proceedings of the Geological and Natural History Survey of Canada, with accompanying maps, etc. The set comprise 20 handsome volumes tastefully bound in blue, and cases are provided for the maps. The books were procured by Mayor Stevenson when in Ottawa during the winter and have been bound at his expense, the work being executed at the REVIEW bindery.

THE JUDGE!

A little later "Pa" came in with Pond at his heels. His eyes were smiling, though his lips trembled.

"Ma," he said, "I guess this young feller kin take keer of a wife. What d'ye think?"

"I think what you think, pa," said ma.

Pond turned away then, for he saw that they both wanted a chance to wipe their eyes unobserved. His own were full to the brim, but he would not speak, for he felt instinctively how they would dislike any protestations.

"He says he kin turn four thousand a year," went on pa, trying to appear calculating. "That ought to take care of daughter."

Just then the door opened. In it stood Jeanne, leading a child on one side and carrying a tiny boy on the other. Pa and ma looked at her anxiously.

"Has he told you?" she asked, with her old childish way of going to the heart of a matter at once.

"God bless you, daughter," said pa.

"Yes," acquiesced ma, referring to the blessing.

"My Madonna," whispered Pond, taking baby from her arms and kissing it.

The next pancake that was turned missed and fell to the floor.

CHAPTER XXV.

THERE are strange insects that are born to a double life, and to which it is given to know the world under two conditions. Margaret felt now as though she had passed through her new chrysalis and become a new creature. All the conditions that surrounded her former life had been swept entirely away, or they might as well have been for all she knew of them. A sad gray life, filled with duty. Bald, hard and unbeautiful is duty. It brings no peace to the mind. Instead it leaves regret to gnaw fiercely in every unguarded moment—it is like hunger, and consumes the heart with hideous torments. All the sophistries that one has ever learned come back to mock. If life is so short, and death is the end of all, why not enjoy while the sentient body and eager soul hang together? Why go with parched lips when the river of happiness runs clear and tempting within reach, tantalizing with its harmonious music?

There came across Margaret at times a wild restlessness. She could not account for it, and did not even know by what name to call it. It was the same sort of feeling that drives men to sea or into foreign war, or up to the desolate north seas, or to the source of the Nile. But women have no outlets for their suffering, such as these, and there was nothing for her to do but get through the long dead days in patience—and of all the virtues, patience is the most difficult and the least inspiring.

And then, night and day, she watched her father. She never let him from her sight. Every morning she aroused him early, and the two of them with rake and shovel gardened in the back yard till breakfast. Throughout the morning he toiled in the blacksmith shop, and she sat near with her sewing, ready to talk or sing, whenever he grew melancholy or restless. In the afternoon they walked over the quiet country roads together. After dinner—they dined at night, to the astonishment of their neighbors, who had never heard of such a thing—they read together and closed the evening with prayer.

"Keep us from temptation," Margaret would repeat, while on her arm lay the quivering hand of her father. "Keep us from temptation and the devils of our worser selves," he would add.

One day the deep depression he was subject to settled down upon him like a murky cloud. Margaret talked of all the things he was usually most interested in. She begged him to walk out with her, but he refused over and over.

"I will not go," he cried. "Leave me alone! I know what is best for me. I can not go out."

"Not with me?" Margaret pleaded. "We will go down that quiet lane that leads north toward the oak woods. No one will see us."

"I would not go for worlds," he protested, shaking with some emotion that Margaret could not fathom.

"Come out in the garden, then," she urged. "We have not got half those lettuce seeds in yet. We will work there, and the smell of the earth will make you sleepy. You will grow tired, and then you can lie down and rest quietly."

"Macbeth hath murdered sleep," he repeated absently.

"Don't be elocutionary, papa," said Margaret, trying to laugh at him. But he turned a hollow eye on her and sadly shook his head.

"I can not be merry, Margaret," he said. "There is something tugging at my throat and at my heart that makes me think I shall soon be mad."

"Not in the old way, papa? Dear heart, surely not in the old way?"

"How else?" he cried, covering his eyes with his hands. "What other way can there be for me?"

"But, papa, let me prove to you 'tis not the old way. Then, you were anxious to conceal all the workings of your mind; now you confide them to me. So, you see, your mental condition cannot be the same. You are naturally disturbed, you are lonesome and discouraged—but nothing else, papa, nothing else!"

It was almost noon, and the brawny assistant was out. The judge walked back and forth down the long smithy. His face looked cold and still. The look of weakness that Margaret had sometimes noticed in it was quite gone, and it wore an aspect of dignified decision. Looking at him with her love in her eyes, she thought she could see this feeling intensify moment by moment.

"He is conquering," she told herself. "He will be the better for the struggle, and when once he had conquered his mood, he may never be troubled again."

Backward and forward he went, minute after minute. The maid called, in her nasal voice, that dinner was ready; and later, volunteered the information that the steak was growing cold, but the judge did not hear her at all, and Margaret only replied with a gesture commanding silence.

Outside was the soughing of the strong spring wind, and the trees lashed against the sides of the building with impotent frenzy. The forge felt the spasms of wind and responded with sudden spirals of flame, and whiffs of ashes. The dark walls sheltered legions of shadows, and the piles of old iron and the rusty accumulations of years that lay in the corners, took to themselves mysterious shapes. The cob webs swung heavily from the low roof, and the judge, still walking back and forth, occasionally raised his eyes to them, as if there was something in their motion that interested him.

"I feel better," he said suddenly, ceasing in his walk, and turning a set face on Margaret. "I think I will go to my room a while and write. You are a sweet daughter, my girl. I want to assure you now that you must always remember that you did all for me that you could. I hardly think any other woman lives who would have done what you have for a wretch like me. I have thanked Heaven in my miserable prayers a hundred times a day for your tenderness—for your loyal heart. I would like to kiss you, but there are reasons why I will not. I think I shall be able to sleep awhile, but you need not keep the shop still. The noise will not disturb me. Just leave me in peace, and if I do not come out for supper know that I have—have fallen asleep. In the morning I will be better. Send Peter to wake me then in case I am not up for breakfast. God bless you!"

He stood for several moments looking at her irresolutely—not that the aspect of set determination ever left his face, but that a yearning tenderness showed through it, and he appeared to be fighting with himself against leaving her without a caress. Margaret simply sat still and looked at him. There was something so strange about his manner that she hardly dared to reply, lest she should vex him, and bring back that horrible restlessness again. There were times when a word would disturb his mental balance. So she kept still and smiled at him bravely, with an affectation of easiness. As he turned on the steep stairs to look back at her, she thought his glance had more of the frankness of the old happy days in it than she had seen for a long while. The furtive look that had caused her such misery of heart was gone, and the soul looking out of the dark eyes was the soul of a man.

AN OPIUM SMUGGLER CAUGHT.

Northern Railroad Employes are Also Guilty.

PORTLAND, ORE., May 29.—Customs officials last night seized 310 cans of opium valued at $5000 in a Chinese wash-house. United States inspectors saw a man take some of the drug into a wash-house and arrested him. He gave the name of John Mays, and it is learned that he is a brakeman on the Northern Pacific road. Mays confessed that the opium was bought in Victoria, B.C., a few days ago and smuggled into the United States. The customs authorities claim that they have positive proof that a number of the Northern Pacific employes, together with several Chinese, are smuggling large amounts of opium into this city.

ROBBED THE WESTERN UNION.

By a System of Knocking Down, It is Said, the Company Has Lost $20,000.

SIOUX FALLS, S.D., May 29.—For five or six years, it is said, a system of "knocking down" has been followed by a number of managers of Western Union Telegraph offices in the Northwest by which the company has lost $20,000. A dozen stations are said to be involved. It is understood that the company has evidence sufficient to procure the indictment of several managers, but they refuse to make public their information.

A DIREFUL DAY FOR GOPHERS.

Iowa Farmers Gather Thousands of Their Striped Tails.

FORT DODGE, IA., May 29.—Eleven thousand gopher mounds in Lincoln Township, west of here, are tenantless as a result of a grand gopher hunt, planned and executed by the farmers of that vicinity. The gophers, or ground-squirrels, were unusually numerous in Lincoln Township this spring and thousands of mounds dotted the township from one end to the other and great damage to the crops, especially the potato, was feared. The fact that the bounty on gopher scalps was no longer paid by the county left the animals unmolested by their former enemies, the farmers' boys. A grand hunt was finally decided on as the best method of depopulating the mounds. The day was set and every farmer in the county was invited to participate. To add interest to the affair the hunters were divided into sides, and the one that bagged the smaller number was to pay for a big dance and supper to be enjoyed by the whole township.

The territory was divided into two sections and each side went to work. The 200 brawny farmers, of all ages and sizes, wrought great havoc among their striped enemies. They were divided up into parties of three or four and were supplied with shovels, hoes and stout clubs. While one man with a shovel dug into a mound the remainder surrounded it and did the work of death. The battle raged from 8 o'clock in the morning until 6 p.m. After it was over and the returns were all in it was discovered that the winning side had 6020 gopher tails, while the losers were close behind with 5860. The affair wound up with a bountiful supper and a dance in a bower.

Not a Pimple on Baby

Baby one year old. Bad with Eczema. Hair all gone. Scalp covered with eruptions. Cured by Cuticura. Hair splendid and not a pimple on him.

Cured by Cuticura

I cannot say enough in praise of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. My boy, when one year of age, was so bad with eczema that he lost all of his hair. His scalp was covered with eruptions, which the doctors said was scall-head, and that his hair would never grow again. Despairing of a cure from physicians I began the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and, I am happy to say, with the most perfect success. His hair is now splendid and there is not a pimple on him. I recommend the CUTICURA REMEDIES to mothers as the most speedy, economical, and sure cure for all skin diseases of infants and children, and feel that every mother who has an afflicted child will thank me for so doing.

MRS. M. E. WOODSUM, Norway, Me.

Fever Sore Eight Years

I must extend to you the thanks of one of my customers who has been cured by using the CUTICURA REMEDIES, of an old sore, caused by a long spell of sickness or fever eight years ago. He was so bad he was fearful he would have to have his leg amputated, but is happy to say he is now entirely well,—sound as a dollar. He requests me to use his name, which is H. H. CASON, merchant. JOHN V. MINOR, Druggist, Gainsboro, Tenn.

We have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES for years, and have the first complaint yet to receive from a purchaser. One of the worst cases of scrofula I ever saw was cured by them.

Coughs, Colds, Croup.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

THE KIMBER MYSTERY.

JUDGE DUGAS BEGINS AN INVESTIGATION AT MONTREAL.

He Will Sift the Facts Thoroughly—The Jesuits' Answer to The Mail's Plea in the $50,000 Libel Suit—Le Monde Called Mr. Noyes "Orangiste."

MONTREAL, May 31.—Judge Dugas, by instructions received from the Attorney-General, has commenced an investigation into the Kimber mystery. All the witnesses at the inquest and many others are to be examined.

G. Lamothe, attorney for the Society of Jesus in Montreal, filed his answer to The Mail's plea to-day. He asks that the first plea as to the irregularity of incorporation be struck out as it is a matter for a preliminary exception and not for a plea and not sufficiently concise, moreover it has already been adjudged. As to the main plea that The Mail's article against the Jesuits did not refer to the Jesuits as incorporated in this province but to the Jesuit order at large, the replication says that The Mail must either admit that they meant the Jesuits here or refrain from attributing to them doctrines which are imputed to another society.

The Court of Review has reduced the damages granted J. P. Noyes resulting from an article in Le Monde calling Noyes an Orangeman and a Freemason from $500 to $100 because no real damages were proved.

EQUAL RIGHTS IN QUEBEC.

A Manifesto Issued By the Executive at Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 1.—The Equal Rights manifesto referred to in the Associated Press despatches of Thursday was issued yesterday afternoon signed by President L. H. Davidson, Honorary-Secretary James Harper. It affirms these principles:

1. Complete separation of church and state, each to be independent in its own sphere. A free church in a free state, the mutual rights of each to be respected, but neither to invade the prerogative of the other.

2. The abolition of all grants from the public exchequer to ecclesiastical bodies.

3. The abolition of compulsory tithes and other ecclesiastical dues.

4. The abolition of all tax exemptions; as all properties, educational, ecclesiastical and municipal, enjoy the benefits arising from taxation, it is only just that they should share in the burdens.

5. Elementary education for all to be provided by the state, but all schools aided by public funds shall be under public control. No money raised by taxation should be devoted to the propagation of peculiar religions, dogmas or denominational views.

6. The reorganization of the Council of Public Instruction. So long as the present system of administration exists equal representation should be given to Protestants and Roman Catholics on the council, and all members should be appointed the same way, the superintendent of education alone to be entitled to a seat ex officio.

7. The promotion of measures tending to diminish the evils arising from the liquor traffic.

8. The promotion of legislation tending to improve the condition of the working classes.

9. An economical and honest administration of public affairs.

10. Country before party. The Equal Rights Association has not sought and does not now seek to form a new political party; but it would urge upon its members and all who value civil and religious liberty the duty of endeavoring by all lawful means to secure the nomination of candidates, whether Liberal or Conservative, who may be relied upon to maintain the principles hereinbefore enumerated against all demands of party.

Balfour's Criminal Libel Charges.

WINDSOR, May 31.—The preliminary examination in the case of W. D. Balfour against J. M. White of The Essex Review and N. A. Coste of Amherstburg for an alleged criminal libel began this morning before Magistrate Bartlett, but was not completed. Mr. White was bound over till the fall assizes on his own recognizance in the sum of $500. The examination with regard to Mr. Coste was not finished and a postponement until July 30 was made.

Whisky, Jealousy, Murder.

ROCHESTER, June 1.—A special despatch from Addison says: On Friday Emmett Crane shot and fatally wounded Mrs. Jane Perry, a woman of undesirable reputation. Crane was drunk and jealous.

Suicide of a Wisconsin Millionaire.

MARINETTE, Wis., June 1.—O. C. Brown, a millionaire banker of this city, committed suicide to-day by shooting himself. He had been ill and was temporarily insane.

INTERESTING ITEMS BY WIRE.

Col. Thomas G. Jones has been nominated for Governor of Alabama by the Democratic state convention. Col. Jones is a prominent Montgomery lawyer.

John Harry, a farmer living near Petersburg, Pa., died Saturday from hydrophobia after two days' illness. He was bitten by a dog two months ago.

Slavin has challenged McAuliffe to box in London for £500 a side.

Six smugglers and one officer have been killed in a conflict at Rovea de Varzm.

The French Government Labor Bill fixes 10 hours daily as the limit for men's labor.

A despatch from Berne says several of the Nihilists arrested in Paris were expelled from Switzerland a year ago.

Tired Saying Nothing.

Great Jurist's Wife—"What makes you so tired to night?" Judge—"I had to charge a jury in an important case this afternoon." "O, I suppose it is a great strain to recall all the details of a case." "It isn't that. It isn't that. It is being obliged to talk to a jury 30 long minutes without saying anything."—New York Weekly.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

BISMARCK SAYS PEACE FILLS THE PERSPECTIVE.

The Germans Themselves Not Reassured—A Reign of Silent Terror in Berlin—Gladstone's Scottish Church Supporters Desert Their Leader.

LONDON, June 1.—Prince Bismarck declares that there is not a single cloud, not one black spot, on the European horizon. In the perspective there is nothing but peace. That is reassuring, but does not quite reassure the Germans themselves. Accounts from Berlin describe the people of that city as living in a silent terror. Not a man dares to say or write what he thinks, still less print it. But there is a feeling that the peace of Germany and of Europe hangs on a thread, and that that thread is the caprice or impulse of the youthful ruler, who believes himself not only divinely seated on the throne, but divinely inspired.

Gladstone and the Scottish Church.

LONDON, June 1.—The General Assembly of the Established Church of Scotland has spoken out on disestablishment. Naturally, the church does not like being disestablished and resolves against it. What is far more remarkable is the unanimity with which Mr. Gladstone's church supporters declare that they will support him no longer on any question. "He is no longer himself," said Principal Cunningham. One after another the most eminent men in the Scottish Church rose in the crowded Assembly to renounce all connection with the leader who, as they hold, has betrayed them and their church. "Bear in mind," exclaimed Mr. Gladstone the other day, "that the main business now is electioneering." But whether he has won more Radical or lost more Church votes in Scotland seems an open question.

The Newfoundland Fisheries.

PARIS, June 1.—A bill has been deposited in the Chamber of Deputies, backed by the Ministers of Finance, Marine and Commerce, extending the fishing bounty system until June, 1911. The preamble complains of the aggravation of the difficulties of the French fishermen by Newfoundland's restrictive legislation and declares the national interests will be jeopardized unless the present situation is maintained. Deputy De Louce will pass an amendment that the bill ought to be framed in such language as to compel the Newfoundlanders to accept the arrangement between England and France. Deputy De L'Oncle in The Siecle declares France will never renounce her fishery rights on the Great Bank.

Fatal Hurricane at Sofia.

SOFIA, June 1.—The northern part of this city has been wrecked by a hurricane. The loss of life is considerable. Among the soldiers the killed and injured number 11. The loss among the inhabitants has not yet been ascertained. The damage to the palace amounts to $300,000.

Secretary et al. Appeal.

PARIS, June 1.—MM. Secretan, Laveissiere and Hentsch have appealed from the sentences passed against them on account of the questionable operation of the copper syndicate.

De Lesseps' Ditch.

PARIS, June 1.—M. Wyse has sailed from Southampton on a mission connected with the Panama canal. M. Monchicour, the liquidator of the Panama Canal Company, instructed M. Wyse after visiting the canal works at Colon to proceed to Carthagena and Bogota to negotiate with the Colombian Government for a prolongation of the canal concession. It is expected M. Wyse will return to Paris in the autumn.

Cholera in Southern Russia.

LONDON, June 1.—The cholera has appeared in southern Russia and is making its way westward.

Enforced Celibacy.

LONDON, May 31.—The recent decree of the directors of the Provincial Bank of Ireland that none of their clerks is to marry until his salary reaches £150 a year continues to create a considerable comment, owing in a great measure to the fact that the possible maximum of a bank clerk's salary is only £120 in most cases, and the new rule may be viewed as one to enforce celibacy. One of the Provincial Bank clerks, and a would-be benedict, who had out of his £120 per year saved £50 with a view to marriage, has been obliged to break his engagement, owing to the decree, because there is no symptom of increased pay, though the bridegroom expectant has been 18 years in the service. A prominent Dublin attorney now comes forward and offers to institute proceedings against the bank for damages for the young lady in question, and claims that he can make out a good case against the concern. The outcome of the suit is anxiously awaited by many other clerks in a similar predicament.

Nothing Revolutionary.

LONDON, May 31.—The coach-meet in the Park to-day was witnessed by an enormous crowd. All the prominent members of the world of fashion seemed to be in the brilliant throng of riders and drivers. Although their had been gossip to the effect that certain ladies of the haut ton would astonish their acquaintances by sanctioning the idea of riding astride, the baleful rumor proved unfounded and no startling innovations upon the time-honored customs were witnessed.

The Co-Operative Congress.

LONDON, June 1.—The Co-operative Congress at Glasgow, over which Lord Rosebery presided, was described by him as the greatest co-operative congress ever held. The societies who composed it have nothing to do with what are called the co-operative stores in London, which have now become great trading associations, dealing largely with the general public. These are societies engaged in those social experiments with which the names of Mr. Thomas Hughes and Mr. George Jacob Holyoake are connected—genuine associations of working people. They number a million members, with a capital of $50,000,000. Last year's sales were $180,000,000, and the profits $15,000,000. They have existed about a quarter of a century, and during that period they did a business amounting to over $2,000,000,000, in which they reaped $200,000,000 of profit. These figures are from Lord Rosebery's address, which will give anyone interested in the subject a very full and exact account of a very important movement. Its success has nothing to do with Socialism, except as an obstacle to Socialistic enterprises of the more fanatical kind.

Suicide Near Mount Brydges.

MOUNT BRYDGES, May 31.—George Simmons, a farmer living about six miles from here, during a fit of temporary insanity to-day, committed suicide. The deceased was prosperous and highly respected among his friends.

FOUND IN CHICAGO RIVER.

Acrobat Murdock's Body Discovered—Ugly Wounds in the Head.

CHICAGO, June 1.—The dead body of an acrobat named Murdock, who had been missing since Friday, was found to-day in the river. Five ugly wounds on the head indicate murder. Murdock's watch and a large sum of money said to have been in his possession are missing. The disappearance of Murdock was promptly reported by his partner West. The latter left the city saying he was going to Racine. The police have telegraphed to that city asking that West be arrested.

A Desperate Flirtation.

HALIFAX, June 1.—A young girl who was a passenger on the steamer Halifax, from Boston, attempted to jump overboard to-day. She had been flirting with a young man and wanted to sit next to him at dinner. He, however, was seated next to another girl. This made No. 1 so mad that she made a rush for the deck and was about springing over the rail when she was caught by some of the passengers. Then she went into hysterics and it took six men to carry her to her stateroom.

The Louis' Crew Rescued.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The steamer Exeter City, from Swansea, to-night brought to this port the captain and 11 men of the crew of the Norwegian bark Louis, which sprung a leak and sank off the Irish coast May 19. The bark was bound for Quebec. The crew passed three days and three nights at the pumps before they were rescued. The work of rescue was difficult, as a high sea was running. Captain Heffermhoff of the Louis was struck by a wave and injured.

Negotiating for Indian Lands.

SAC AND FOX AGENCY, I.T., June 1.—The Cherokee commission arrived here yesterday from the Iowa reservation, where they recently negotiated successfully for the purchase of the Iowas' lands. The negotiations with the Sacs and Foxes for the purchase of their reservation, 47,000 acres in extent, will be begun Monday.

Struck by Lightning.

CEDAR SPRINGS, Ont., May 31.—During a heavy thunderstorm, which passed over this section last evening, lightning struck the residence of G. E. Smith, fruit and grain dealer, near this place, damaging it to the extent of about $300, covered by insurance in the Western. Considerable damage was done to fruit and other crops by hail, which fell in large quantities in some sections.

Manitoba's Great Crop Outlook.

WINNIPEG, June 1.—Carefully compiled statistics place the acreage under crop in Manitoba and the Northwest at 1,290,000, of which 870,000 acres are wheat and 260,000 oats and other grain. The prospects are better than ever before at this season of the year.

A New Bedford Whaler Lost.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 1.—The whaling bark Lancer of this port, owned by Capt. William Lewis and others, has gone ashore and been condemned at Vladivostock in the province of Amour, Siberia, bordering on the Japan Sea. She was valued at $30,000.

A Very One-sided Game of Billiards.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—The billiard contest between Schaefer and McLeery closed last night. Schaefer scored another run of 1600 points, which made a continuous run of 3000 points for the three nights. McLeery had no opportunity to use his cue after the first night of the contest, when he scored 15 points. Score at close: Schaefer 3004; McLeery 15.

MONTREAL EQUAL RIGHTERS.

They Have Prepared a Mysterious Manifesto Which Is to Do Things.

MONTREAL, May 30.—There is some strange movement in the Equal Rights camp, and those crusaders expect to play an important part in the decision of the coming Quebec elections. Mr. Davidson and other leaders have in hand a manifesto which must be of great importance, judging by the pains taken in its preparation and the careful secrecy with which it is guarded. It is probable that the proclamation will be sent forth early in the week. Mr. Davidson hints that it will contain a resume of the wrongs which his minority suffers and some suggestions as to how they may be set right. Other prominent Equal Righters profess to know nothing about the mysterious document, but they express confidence in the wisdom of their chief.

THE NAME WAS THE SAME.

BUT THE WRONG WOMAN RECEIVED THE LEGACY.

A Peculiar Case of False Pretences at Orillia—Mrs. Fanny Davis of Barrie Personates Mrs. Fanny Davis of Longford Mills—Committed for Trial.

ORILLIA, May 31.—Mrs. Fanny Davis was committed for trial at the Police Court here for obtaining money under false pretences. The circumstances of the case are peculiar. The complaining witness, whose name is identical with that of the prisoner, is a daughter of Henry Chadton of Peel—Isle of Man, who died June 15, 1888. By his will the witness was entitled to about $1100. The prisoner during the month of July last was visiting Longford Mills, where her namesake lived, and the receipt to be signed before the legacy was paid over by mistake was delivered to the wrong Mrs. Davis. She signed with an X, representing that her arm was injured so that she could not write, and subsequently received one-half of the legacy through the Dominion Bank, the other half of the legacy going by agreement between the complainant and her husband, from whom she is separated, to Mr. Davis.

Unaware of this arrangement the prisoner has since made applications to the bank for the balance and Thursday telephoned Manager Scadding from Barrie. Telephoning being unsatisfactory she came and made personal application, walking into the mouth of trouble. In a small grey satchel she carried the letter which Mrs. Davis of Longford had looked for but never received and other papers used in evidence against her.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

The Extradition Treaty—Customs Ports Reduced to Outports.

OTTAWA, June 1.—The official notification of the ratification of the Extradition treaty between Great Britain and the United States reached the Government this week, and copies of the treaty have been forwarded by the Department of Justice to the Attorney-Generals of all the provinces of Canada.

The following customs ports have been reduced to outports: Colborne, placed under the survey of St. Catharines; Oakville, with the outports of Wellington Square and Port Credit, placed under Hamilton; Brighton, placed under the survey of Cobourg; Magdalen islands, placed under the survey of Quebec.

Application is made for incorporation of the Dominion Railway Supply Company, limited, with a capital stock of $100,000; chief place of business, Windsor.

The general meeting for field artillery practice is to be held at Kingston during September.

Licenses have been granted by the Finance Department to the Manchester Assurance Company and the Phœnix Insurance Company of Hartford, to do fire insurance business in Canada.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Both of Them Attempted by People at Windsor.

WINDSOR, May 31.—What will probably result in a murder happened in the Brooker settlement Wednesday night. Two farmers, Jones and Speechley, got into an altercation about a cow, and when Jones started to take the animal off Speechley's farm he was set upon by the latter's wife and son, who used pitchforks. Jones' body and head is frightfully cut, and his physicians have grave doubts of his recovery.

George Cooper, a resident of Windsor, tried to commit suicide last night. He waded into the river at Walkerville, then went back to the shore, and picking up a large stone tried to break his skull. Chief of Police Griffiths saw him, however, and arrested and locked him up.

NEARLY ASPHYXIATED.

But Proprietor Colburn Was Up in Time to Receive the Duke.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 31.—George M. Colburn of the Clifton House had a narrow escape from being asphyxiated yesterday morning. About 10 a.m. one of the porters went to his room to awaken him and smelled escaping gas. He opened the door and found the proprietor in bed in an unconscious condition. He has been confined to his bed since, but with special effort was able to be about to greet his royal guests this afternoon upon their arrival.

Commissions for Canadians.

OTTAWA, June 1.—The War Office has renewed its offer of six commissions annually in the cavalry or infantry of the line to officers of the active militia of Canada. The conditions under which these commissions are granted have been amended by an army order dated April 1, 1890, and applicants for these commissions will be supplied from Ottawa with a copy of that order when applied for through the usual military channel. A candidate must have served at least 15 months as an officer and attended two annual trainings. He must apply for nomination before Jan. 15 each year. He must be between the ages of 19 and 22 on Jan. 1 next preceding the date for examination. He must undergo an inspection by a medical board as ordered, and must pass the literary and military examinations prescribed. The nature and extent of the literary and military examinations are stated in the imperial and general order. The literary examination will take place in Canada on the second Tuesday in April each year, and the examination in military subjects of those who have passed the literary examination will be held in Canada in September each year. No action can therefore be taken on this offer until next April.

Dynamite as an Emancipator.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Mrs. Parsons in a speech to-day at a meeting of the Arbeiter Bund said: "Dynamite is to be the liberator of the human race. Not that people should go around with bombs and destroy human life, but that as gunpowder had abolished the power of the feudal barons so would dynamite in the hands of the working classes render the armies of the capitalists useless in a street fight."

An Alleged Poisoner Arrested.

VINELAND, N.J., June 1.—This town is greatly excited over the fact that the wife of Daniel Lockwood, a well-to-do farmer residing in Vine-road, has been arrested on the charge of trying to poison her husband. Lockwood's two sons and his son-in-law, Mr. Cogswell, preferred the charge. Lockwood has been married to this, his second, wife about a year.

Killed by Lightning.

CHILLICOTHE, O., June 1.—The two sons of Charles Johnson, living three miles south of here, were killed by lightning yesterday.

The Dead.

General Brine, the Channel balloonist, is dead.

Edward Nugent Lee, son of the Earl of Milltown, is dead. He was born in 1855.

Rolla, the parachutist, has been drowned at sea.

Common Sense

In the treatment of slight ailments would save a vast amount of sickness and misery. One of Ayer's Pills, taken after dinner, will assist Digestion; taken at night, will relieve Constipation; taken at any time, will correct irregularities of the Stomach and Bowels, stimulate the Liver, and cure Sick Headache. Ayer's Pills, as all know who use them, are a mild cathartic, pleasant to take, and always prompt and satisfactory in their results.

"I can recommend Ayer's Pills above all others, having long proved their value as a

Cathartic

for myself and family." — J. T. Hess, Leithsville, Pa.

"Ayer's Pills have been in use in my family upwards of twenty years, and have completely verified all that is claimed for them." — Thomas F. Adams, San Diego, Texas.

"I have used Ayer's Pills in my family for seven or eight years. Whenever I have an attack of headache, to which I am very subject, I take a dose of Ayer's Pills and am always promptly relieved. I find them equally beneficial in colds; and, in my family, they are used for bilious complaints and other disturbances with such good effect that we rarely, if ever, have to call a physician." — H. THREE DAYS FOR WORK.

A very short time remains in which to perfect the organization for bringing out the votes on election day. Much has been done in this direction, but in the short time that remains the supporters of Mr. Carnegie, all who believe that his election would be preferable to the election of the candidate who is opposed to every plank in the Equal Rights platform, as well as every plank in the Conservative platform, should go to work with a will to make the organization as complete as possible. The canvass cannot be too thorough nor the organization too complete. Work is now the order of the day, and from now until five o'clock on Thursday evening let nothing be left undone to make victory certain. Mr. Carnegie has been gaining ground every day as the campaign has progressed and as the issues have been better understood, and the reports from different quarters are most encouraging and cheering.

THE BALLOT.

Last session was not the only occasion upon which the Mowat Government voted down a bill to provide that the ballot should be used in the election of trustees for Separate schools. In 1882 Mr. Bell, member for Toronto, introduced a bill for that purpose, and the record on page 111 of the Journals for that year shows that when he moved the second reading of the bill Mr. Fraser moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Hardy,

> "That all the words in the motion after the word 'that' be struck out, and the following inserted in lieu thereof:
>
> 'The bill be not now read the second time, but be read the second time this day six months.'"

Everyone knows that the passage of such an amendment—the six months hoist—is a speedy way of killing a bill. The members of the Government and their supporters voted for the hoist and the division list shows that the following members voted against it:—

Bell,
Boulter,
Brereton,
Creighton,
Lauder,
Meredith,
Merrick.
Monk,
Morgan.
Morris,
Parkill,
Richardson,
Sinclair.

The bill was thus thrown out. The following year Mr. Bell again introduced the bill, and again Mr. Fraser moved the hoist, for which the members of the Government voted while Mr. Meredith and his principal supporters tried in vain to save the measure from being thus killed.

Last year the bill for the ballot in these elections was introduced by Mr. Meredith, but the Government opposed it and killed it in the same manner.

BE ON THE WATCH.

There are reliable reports of underhand and illegal methods being used to defeat Mr. Carnegie. From now untill the close of the poll a sharp lookout should be kept to detect any who attempt in this way to defeat the will of the constituency.

An able clergyman who was favorable to the Mowat Government is Rev. Dr. Laing, of Dundas. But Dr. Laing, the Globe of Saturday says—and it chides him for it—has on the platform supported the Opposition candidate in the constituency in which he resides.

Mr. A. F. Jury tried to show that ever since it took office the Mowat Government had done right. But three years ago the labor organizations of Toronto opposed its nominee with candidates of their own. By the way, the Examiner had nothing to say about "outside interference with our domestic affairs" in connection with Mr. Jury's visit. It makes all the difference, you see, when Mr. Stratton engages the hall for the speaker from the outside.

For some time Mr. Stratton has been declaring that Mr. Carnegie is a Conservative still, though he one week professed to believe that Conservatives should not support him because he had, he said, "done his best to smash" that party. On Saturday night a writer in the Examiner says that Mr. Carnegie has left the Conservative party. These conflicting statements must be confusing to the Examiner's readers. But the Examiner can rest assured that Conservatives will vote for the candidate whose platform, as promulgated by Dr. Caven and other Equal Rights leaders, is in many respects in line with theirs, and against Mr. Stratton, who is diametrically opposed to them on every public question. And very many besides Conservatives will prefer an independent Equal Rights representative to a hide-bound follower of the men at present in office.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Some of the herbs in Hall's Hair Renewer that wonderful preparation for restoring the color and thickening the growth of the hair, grow plentifully in New England.

LOSSES CAUSED BY FLAMES.

A Serious Fire at Lacolle, Que.—Five Dwellings Burnt.

Lacolle, Que., June 1.—A fire broke out in the premises of Mr. Clarkson, occupied by James Stewart, at 3 yesterday. The wind being high it soon spread to the adjacent dwellings and in a short space of time five dwellings, outbuildings and most of the contents were consumed. The losses are: Clarkson $600, insured for $500; Guertin $1200, insurance $800; James Manning $1500, no insurance; W. Harty about $3000, no insurance; James Stewart $800, no insurance. Cause of fire unknown. Stewart and his family escaped with the clothes they had on only.

Middlesborough, Ky., June 1.—At 11 o'clock yesterday morning an incendiary started a fire in the feed store back of Hoyland's grocery in Cumberland-avenue and in a few minutes a raging fire was destroying everything before it. The buildings being mostly frame the flames rapidly spread and in two hours four squares containing the finest buildings in the city were completely burned out. Loss, $300,000; insurance, $125,000. Several citizens were badly burned but not fatally. Two thousand people are homeless and all their effects were burned up.

Fort Worth, Tex., May 31.—So far as now known but one life was lost by the burning of the Spring Palace, A. Haynes, a contractor, being fatally injured. The others injured are: Mrs. Volney Hall, internally; G. Hollingsworth, badly crushed; Judge L. N. Cooper, both legs broken; George Leottler, seriously injured; M. R. Cruse of New Orleans, badly hurt; James Davis, jumped from an upper story window and badly crippled; Bissell Wilson, a railway man of St. Louis burned about the feet. Many others were slightly hurt.

Troy, N.Y., May 31.—The Wells House at Bolton Landing, Lake George, was this morning destroyed by fire. The fire, it is thought, was the work of incendiaries. The hotel was owned by M. O. Brown of the Sagamore and was valued at $15,000.

ALLEGED WIRE-TAPPING.

Crooked Work by Friends of the North Dakota Lottery Scheme.

Minneapolis, May 31.—The Journal prints a sensational story to-day affecting prominent officials of the Northern Pacific Railroad. It charges that on the night of Feb. 4, the Western Union Telegraph wires was cut two miles west of Jamestown, N.D., and that investigation proves that the work was done by Geo. McCabe, chief train despatcher, and two operators, and it is supposed at the instance of A. J. McCabe, superintendent of the Jamestown division of the Northern Pacific Railroad, who, it is claimed, worked the wire himself in Bismarck. At that time a great many telegrams, both for and against the lottery project, were passing over the wires, and young McCabe and his two assistants sidetracked such as were unfavorable to the lottery and rushed the others through with all possible haste.

It is charged that they advised the friends of the lottery of the contents of the messages intended for the anti-lottery in advance of their delivery to those entitled to them, and this put the lottery crowd in possession of the secrets and plans of the anti-lottery people before the opponents of the lottery could communicate with each other in different parts of the state. Long petitions and lists of names in favor of the lottery were, it is said, rushed through without charge, while protests against the lottery were delayed. Supt. McCabe issued passes indiscriminately to friends of the Lottery Bill, written on ordinary note heads, with orders to conductors that they be returned to him when taken up. The Journal prints a facsimile of one of them. The Western Union Telegraph Company has made a careful investigation of all the charges, obtaining satisfactory proof of their truth.

CAN HAVE CANUCK CARPENTERS.

Secretary Windom Believes the Alien Contract Labor Law Should be Enforced.

Washington, May 30.—Secretary Windom has sent a letter to George F. Stitch, Immigrant Inspector at Chicago, in regard to the enforcement of the alien contract labor laws with respect to aliens coming in from Canada in which he says:

"You call my attention to the following advertisement clipped from a Canadian paper: 'Five hundred carpenters wanted—Good, competent men will be given steady work at from 30 cents to 40 cents per hour. Apply at Builders' Exchange, No. 159 La Salle-street, Chicago.

"I assume from your letter that this advertisement was inserted by the Builders' Exchange, an association or corporation doing business in Chicago. If an alien does accept that proposition, does come to the United States and engage in labor for the Builders' Exchange he complies with his part of all that is involved in the proposition. The minds of the offerer and the acceptor meet and thus form one of the prohibited contracts of the statute. In my judgment if the above conditions and facts could be proved in a court it would be held that the Builders' Exchange was liable to the penalties announced by the law.

"I have no doubt of the right of the officers appointed by the Secretary to make the proper investigations necessary to determine whether the incoming alien is here in violation of the law, without reference to the place where the investigation, from the nature of the case, may be required to be made. It is important that immigrant inspectors, particularly those on the borders of Canada, be diligent in using all proper measures to discover violations of the law and report them with the evidence that may be obtained to the Collector of Customs of the proper district."

English Turf News.

London, June 1.—The race for the Whitsuntide Plate of 2700 sovereigns for 2-year-olds, distance ⅝ mile, was run yesterday at Manchester. It was won by Blane's Reverend, Houldsworth's Orvieto second, Milner's St. Cyr third. In the betting the odds were 12 to 1 against Reverend, who won by a neck.

There is no alteration in the betting market for the Derby, but wagering is almost entirely confined to place betting. Surefoot is backed at 2 to 1 on him to win outright, while against Sainfoin 5 to 1 is laid. The Beggar, which a fortnight ago stood at 100 to 1 against him, is now backed at only 4 to 1 against for a place.

Murphy Broke the Record.

Newark, N.J., May 30.—Over 1000 bicyclists swarmed the Irvington-Millburn course to-day. The road was lined with people to witness the annual 25-mile race. William F. Murphy of the King's County wheelmen broke the record, covering the distance in 1 h. 29m. 15s. C. E. Kluge two years ago made the record, 1 h. 30m. There were 64 starters.

Blenheim Thinks It's Gold.

Windsor, May 30.—The people who have been boring for gas near Blenheim yesterday struck what they think is a vein of gold quartz.

Panitza Sentenced to Death.

Sofia, May 30.—The trial of Major Panitza and nine others, charged with conspiring against the Government of Bulgaria, ended to-day. Major Panitza, Capt. Kalobkoff of the Russian army, Majors Amandoff and Rizoff were found guilty. Panitza was sentenced to death. The court, however, intimated that Prince Ferdinand might possibly commute his sentence to imprisonment for 15 years. Kalobkoff was sentenced to nine years' imprisonment. Amandoff and Rizoff were each sentenced to imprisonment for six years. The six other persons charged with complicity the conspiracy were acquitted.

Prof. Dorenwend Coming Again.

You will see by the advertisement elsewhere that Prof. Dorenwend of Toronto, announces another visit. The popularity of his goods is assured and his visit here is an opportunity not to be lost. His bangs are simply grand, are all made of finest quality curled hair. In other styles the Prof's stock is also most complete, it embraces all modern improvements in the way of their goods, crimpiness, wigs, half wigs, switches, etc. It is most pleasing to know that when once hair disappears such goods as made by Prof. Dorenwend can be secured. He will be in Peterborough, Phelan's Hotel on Monday June 2. Be sure you see him. 1w21-2d123

One Phase of Equal Rights.

While many people are disputing as to what Equal Rights really mean for both sides, there can be no misunderstanding as to Equal Rights on the tea question. Some like black, some green tea, some with nuts in it. Put into the teapot half-and-half and you have an Equal Rights beverage. Get these teas at Hawley Bros., George-st. d113

A Railway Map.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has issued a new map of its lines, showing clearly the great stretch of country it covers with its great transcontinental line and the other important lines it controls. The map is a valuable one to travellers and to those who take an interest in the standing of the railways of the country.

Two Lost Children.

The four-year-old child, Brookey Roberts, who was reported as lost in Saturday's REVIEW, was found wandering about the streets Saturday night and was returned to his frantic mother. Yesterday a gentleman who had read the REVIEW found a child wandering about the streets and took him to the police station thinking it was the Roberts boy. It turned out, however, that this second lost child was Herbert Henry, whose parents live on Park-st. The little lad had wandered away and could not tell his name. The police succeeded in finding out his home and restoring him to his parents.

Courtship and Marriage.

Rev. M. L. Pearson preached a sermon which had for its theme "Courtship and Marriage," to a large congregation in the George-st. church last evening. The rev. gentleman took for his text Genesis xxiv, 57-58:—

"And they said we will call the damsel and enquire at her mouth. And they called and said unto her, Wilt thou go with this man? And she said I will go."

The rev. gentleman first narrated the story leading to the text and then addressed himself to the parents and young people of the congregation, urging that marriage, which was often made the object of frivolous thought, should be made a matter of prayer and serious consideration. He gave the young people some good advice and warned them against making acquaintances without proper knowledge of the persons.

BIG FIRE AT OMEMEE.

The Village Visited by a Disastrous Conflagration.

Special to the Review.

OMEMEE, June 2.—About three o'clock this morning a fire was discovered in the Blackwell house on the main street. The destroying element had attained a good hold of the building, which was unoccupied, before it was discovered and the building was entirely destroyed. The fire appliances at command of the village were not sufficient to cope with the flames, which soon spread to the adjoining buildings, and Williamson's saddlery and boot and shoe store, Jury & Sons' general store and Wm. Miller's merchant tailor establishment were also totally destroyed. The Lindsay fire engine was telegraphed for and arrived on the scene about six o'clock and with the assistance of the Lindsay brigade the fire was got under control and the fears of the villagers that the village would be swept were allayed. At noon to-day the fire was about extinguished. The estimated loss has not been ascertained.

Dennis Slattery's Boarding House.

Dennis Slattery, an old boarder at the stone castle on the Court House hill, gained his freedom yesterday after serving six months for vagrancy. This morning Dennis was in search of another ticket for free board in the county institution and was taken before County Magistrate Edmison. He was accommodated with six months in gaol as a vagrant.

Sanitary Precautions.

Some parties who had failed to comply with the sanitary notices served them by the police were to appear before the Magistrate but steps towards the necessary action having been taken the cases were dropped. All parties are notified that the law states that closets shall be cleaned once a year before the 15th of May, and citizens should act accordingly.

A Coming Sale.

We are informed that Mr. C. Stapleton has been instructed to sell by auction at some date next month, of which notice will be given: Lot No. 4, south side of Sherbrooke-st. and Lot No. 7, corner of Sherbrooke and Aylmer-sts., on which is the house and buildings now occupied by Mr. Stetham. This is a very handsome and well situated property, and must attract the buyers who are picking up the few pieces of centrally located property that are not yet taken. 3d128-2w22

Buried with Military Honors.

The remains of the late J. W. Butcher, a young man who was well known around town who died on Thursday last, were interred with military honors at the Little Lake cemetery yesterday afternoon. The deceased young man had been a member of the Peterborough Troop of Cavalry and a detachment of this corps turned out as an escort under command of Lieut.-Col. H. C. Rogers and Lieut. Kent. A company of twenty-six men under Sergt. Irwin of the 57th Battalion formed the firing party, while a large number of the Sons of Canada and True Blues, of which organizations the deceased was a respected member, also turned out to pay a last tribute of respect to the memory of a departed brother. The Y. M. C. A. band furnished the music. The firing party led the procession, followed by the Sons of Canada and True Blues. Then came the hearse escorted by the stalwart cavalry men. The charger of the deceased, with boots reversed in the stirrups, led by two of his comrades in arms, followed the bearers, and then came a long procession of carriages. At the cemetery Rev. J. C. Davidson read the burial service of the church of England, Mr. F. Mason, Chaplain, read the service of the Sons of Canada, and the firing party fired three volleys in the air over the grave of the departed soldier. The procession then reformed and returned to town.

Schneider for their valuable services on the programme and to Mr. J.W. Crosby for the use of piano.

Mrs. G. J. Early has sent us a handsome fuchsia for the parlor. We thank her very much.

The young men's meeting on Saturday evening was addressed by Mr. Albert Hamilton. The orchestra led the singing very acceptably.

The consecration meeting on Sabbath morning was well attended. Mr. John Kennedy led the meeting. It was a season of refreshing.

The personal purity meeting was addressed by Mr. Wm. Wallbrook in his usual impressive manner, and good seed was sown.

The gospel and song service last evening was well attended. Mr. H. S. Griffin gave a very earnest and practical address which made a marked impression on all.

AN EASY VICTORY.

The Toronto University Cricket Eleven Easily Defeated.

Saturday is always a bad day for a cricket match in Peterborough, and being also the last day of the month, which prevented any of the bankers taking part, the home team was anything but representative in the above match. The 'Varsity were also weaker than usual, and the result was a Waterloo for them, beaten by an innings and 22 runs.

The strangers took the first of a good wicket, but Attewell was too much for them, and 37 was the meagre total, of which Freeman and Peterson were responsible for no fewer than 25. Peterborough followed and scored 114. Attewell was top scorer with 39, his leg-hitting being particularly clean and well-timed; Ray was quite in his old form and appeared to be well set when he was given out l.b.w., a misfortune which very seldom befalls him; Hay and Brennan hit with great vim for their respective scores; while one of the youngsters, MacGill, who batted for Scott, got double figures in a style that promises well for future excellence. The bowling of the varsity was very good, while their fielding was excellent.

The strangers did not do much better at their second attempt, 55 being the total. Freeman again "came off," but he was the only double figure scorer. Attewell again bowled splendidly and in the match he took 14 wicket for 25 runs—a great performance. In fielding, the performance of the home team was better than usual, a grand one-hand catch by Rogers off his own bowling deserving special mention.

Campaign Notes.

Mr. Carnegie returned on Saturday night from a trip through Harvey, where he held three meetings. Despite the unfair methods of the Government candidate in the north, threatening the people with injustice unless they supported the Government through him, Mr. Carnegie met with much encouragement and the people of that township will give a vote different from what the Government candidate expects.

On Saturday evening Mr. Carnegie held a meeting at Lakefield which was largely attended. Mr. David Smith presided, and the prospects are bright that Lakefield will do itself credit on Thursday.

Mr. Stratton, with Mr. R. R. Hall, addressed a meeting at Springville last night. Mr. Merrick gave an address from the Equal Rights standpoint. The Government candidate gave evidence that the canvass is a dispiriting one for him.

To the work. Only three more days for work and for preparations to get out the vote. Let the committee meetings these three nights be even larger than they have been. The organization cannot be too complete.

Brevities.

—The Town Council will meet this evening.

—The Board of Education hold a regular meeting to-morrow night.

How old Superstitions Die.

The demand for catseyes and opals set with diamonds still continues in the great European capitals, and though jewellery is not as extensively worn as some years ago all the great leaders of fashion of both sexes wear something of the kind. The fact reported in a London society journal of prominence that the Queen is having made, as an intended wedding present to the Princess of Hesse, a magnificent necklace of opals and diamonds has given another fillip to the already large demand for these stones. One of the consequences will be that opals and catseyes of fine quality will so advance in price that they will be out of the reach of ordinary purses. Apropos of the supposed qualities of the opal as an unlucky stone, the same journal tells us an amusing incident in connection with the Prince of Wales who, as is well known, owns several race horses. It appears that at one of the great meetings last autumn the Prince had a horse entered which he was particularly anxious to win, and rumour stated that he also had a pot of money on the event. Entering the paddock just before the bell was about to be rung, Colonel K——, quite an intimate friend of the Prince, came up with a very worried expression, begged him to take off his scarf pin, which was an opal set in some way with diamonds, as he knew if he (the Prince) wore it the horse, which they had both backed heavily, would not win. His Royal Highness, however, was proof against the old superstition, and as events turned out the horse he was interested in got first place, after which the Prince, who was greatly elated at winning, meeting Colonel K., presented him with his opal pin, wishing him no worse luck every time he wore it. Needless to say, the Colonel was quite converted.

BURLEIGH.

Correspondence of the Review.

OBITUARY.—"The old must die, the young may." A few weeks ago Master Julius, aged 12 years, son of Mr. Thomas McIlmoyle, of Burleigh, was called to his long home. Over a year before his death, while skating, he fell on the ice and hurt his head, though apparently not seriously. He took intermitting fever which, together with the old wound, in four weeks proved fatal. His pastor in his visits being attracted by the manly bearing of the boy, questioned him on the subject of religion and found his knowledge of sin and the plan of salvation clear. But better, this did not remain in the intellect alone to be destroyed by disease, it had gone down into his heart and he was living for God. Last fall he wanted to earn some money himself to give to the cause of Christ. Youthful reader, mark! He employed his spare time hunting partridge with this end in view. Not finding any, he became discouraged and said it was no use trying any more. His mother said to him, "Did you ask God and tell Him what you wanted it for?" "Not particularly," said he. He then went and asked particularly and promised God a definite share in the proceeds. As if confident of Divine assent, he off with his gun and soon returned with four partridge. It pays to do business in partnership with God. (Matt. vi. 33.) In the early part of his illness in answer to queries, he said he was not afraid to die. His faith in God was established. As the fever increased he wandered in mind, raving at times, until his Master called him home. His remains were interred in the Apsley cemetery with full assurance that the family, if faithful, shall meet him in heaven. His parents have our warmest sympathy.

REVIEWS.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE for June is a Stanley number, containing the only article which he will contribute to any periodical, and the first authoritative word from him on many of the most important features of his great expedition for the relief of Emin Pasha. The larger part of the article is a detailed account of the wonderful journey through the forest in search of food, and the relief of Nelson's starvation camp. The illustrations are unique—presenting the first results of modern photographic methods as applied in places never before seen by a white man, as well as drawings from sketches made by Mr. Stanley himself. One of the most striking pictures shows a group of the "Wambutti Pigmies—a new race discovered by Stanley. The City House (the East and South), by Russell Sturgis, is the second article in the series of Homes. It is very fully illustrated with pictures of typical houses in New York, Boston, [illegible], and the south. The first instalment is published of an anonymous novel, entitled Jerry, which will run through the year. It is confidently believed that this is one of the most remarkable stories of recent years. President Seth Low, of Columbia College, writes of The Rights of the Citizen as a User of Public Conveyance (the third article of the Citizen's Rights Series). President Low's experience as Mayor of Brooklyn makes his utterance on these questions of particular value to practical men. Amateur Track and Field Athletics, by Charles P. Sawyer, should be of great interest to the 100,000 or more young men who are members of athletic associations. In a brief compass he shows the present condition of these sports, the special qualities which adopt men for each, the best records, and the leading athletes; and gives a review of last season's significant events, and a forecast of the present season. Barbizon and Jean-Francois Millet is finished with a most interesting selection from the unpublished letters of Millet to his friend Sensier, which give an intimate, personal view of his life at Barbizon. This issue also contains The Magic House (poem), by Duncan Campbell Scott, the last instalment but one of Harold Frederic's serial In the Valley, and the Point of View, with its bright discussion of The Travel Habit, The Origin of Antipathies, Treatment for a Defective Sense, and Genius and Estates.

ST. NICHOLAS.—The June number of this excellent Magazine has an exciting and interesting story, With Stick and Thread, by L. Clarke Davis, relating a boy-fisherman's triumph in capturing a red drum with rod and reel. No angler can read it without a desire to start at once for the fishing grounds. It is illustrated by M. J. Burns. Another striking story is A Divided Duty, by M. A. Cassidy, telling of a little boy who and his brother in the Federal and one in the Confederate army. Being unwilling to decide against either, he compromises by having a parti-colored suit, one side gray and one side blue. Hurding is described and analysed by Herbert Mapes, intercollegiate champion, and the article is illustrated both from photographs and by H. A. Ogden. Oriole, by Florence A. Merriam, is a pretty story of a pet Baltimore oriole. It is illustrated by Nugent. A novel feature is A Living Chain from Adam to Abraham Lincoln, or a list of historic personages, each of whom has been seen by the next in order, since the beginning of the world. The number is rich in continued articles: Crowded out of Crofield for the boys; Lady Jane and Marjorie and her Papa for older and younger girls; Bat, Ball and Diamond, the valuable base-ball series, by Walter Camp; Six Years in the Wilds of Central Africa, by Stanley's officer, E. J. Glave. Besides all these, nearly every one of which is profusely illustrated, there are the departments, and other features of interest.

THE METHODIST MAGAZINE for June.—This popular Monthly closes its 31st volume with an excellent number. It has four illustrated articles—The Canadian Tourist Party in Italy, Lady Brassey's remarkable adventures in Borneo, Rev. Geo. Bond's Vignettes of Travel in Northern Palestine, and a graphic account of the Forward Movement in London. A Diamond in the Rough is a clever Newfoundland character sketch by a minister's daughter. The First Methodist Society takes us back to the beginnings of that remarkable church which has belted the world with its missions. Sam Hobart is a graphic sketch of railway life. A touching East End story and Mrs. Barr's Yorkshire tale are very racy reading. The editor gives A Calm View of Federation, arguing strongly in its favor. The article on Ministers' Institutes will be of much interest to both ministers and the laity. The third volume announces a strong programme.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.—The American and Canadian public is happy in having the first laugh over Alphonse Daudet's new Tartarin story. A translation usually appears either simultaneously with, or subsequently to, the publication of the original work; but in the case of Port Tarascon: The Last Adventures of the Illustrious Tartarin, the translation by Henry James, beginning as a serial in the June Number of Harper's Magazine, will be published complete before the French public can share in enjoying the immense drolleries of the original. This unique literary transaction signalizes the beginning of the fifth decade of Harper's Magazine. Another distinguished Frenchman, the Vicomte Eugene Melchior de Vogue, member of the French Academy and author of the vivid papers on Russian life in this Magazine last year, contributes to the same Number an account of what he saw during a trip Through the Caucasus. The short stories are by the bright new American writers George A. Hibbard and Matt Crim, and the clever artist and author F. Hopkinson Smith. Among the other contents are: The Enemy's Distance, by Park Benjamin, Ph. D., explaining Lieutenant Bradley A. Fiske's important invention for range-finding at sea by electricity; The American Burlesque, by Laurence Hutton, richly illustrated with portraits of leading actors of the past and present; Furst Bismarck, by George Moritz Wahl, with plate portrait of the ex-Chancellor; The Best-governed City in the World, a striking paper upon municipal polity, by Julian Ralph; The Young Whistplayer's Novitiate, by Professor F. B. Goodrich, with diagrams, illustrating some practical points for beginners; and Chapbook Heroes, a picturesque article on Claude Duval, Jack Sheppard, and Dick Turpin, by Howard Pyle, with illustrations drawn by the author. The subjects treated in the Editorial Departments are well handled.—For sale by the publishers, Harper Bros., New York, and by all booksellers.

Friday Night's Meeting.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR;—A correspondent of the Examiner in Saturday night's issue of that paper complains because the police were not present at Mr. Stratton's second meeting on Friday night and points out that two constables were present at Mr. Carnegie's meeting. He might also have said that the police were present at Mr. Stratton's first meeting and exerted themselves at that meeting to preserve order. The police are ready to give protection at any public meeting if it is desired, and when asked to attend Mr. Stratton's first meeting they did so. They were not asked to go to the Friday night meeting.

The writer of the letter referred to thinks the police were over officious when they arrested Mr. Cavanagh for interrupting Mr. Weir, but he is very probably aware of the fact that Mr. Cavanagh's arrest was for using abusive language to the police. If an officer allowed any man to use to them such language as Mr. Cavanagh did his usefulness would soon be gone as a preserver of peace and order.

Mr. Weir is grossly misrepresented in the letter in the Examiner. I had just come into the meeting a few moments before the alleged interruption and seeing Mr. Weir beckoned for him, as I wished to speak to him. As he was coming out a number in the crowd, who are naturally displeased with his course in this campaign, hissed him loudly and that was what caused the interruption. Besides Mr. Jury was not speaking when Mr. Weir got up, for the stranger, Mr. Douglas, was then on the platform and Mr. Weir's rising or going out could not have been to interrupt Mr. Jury.

It suits the writer in the Examiner to call the meeting a workingman's meeting, but all know it was a campaign meeting and even Mr. Jury said he spoke as a politician. It also suits him to sneer at the Mayor and Council (by the way, the writer of that letter, unless I am greatly mistaken, is a member of the Council), but he cannot point to an occasion when police protection was refused. The Council and the Police Supervision Committee are always willing and anxious to give every public meeting all the protection desired. It suits that writer also to say he is a Conservative, and he probably is in Dominion matters when he has a particular reason for it, but in Provincial politics he may call himself what he likes—his position in that regard is best shown by the direction his support goes.

Yours, &c.,
JAS. KENDRY.

ODDS AND ENDS IN JEWELRY.

A miniature gold and platinum shepherd's crook forms a new glove buttoner.

Two horseshoes, one of diamonds and the other of emeralds, constitute a very pretty setting for a gentleman's ring.

A plain gold egg shaped bonbon box of recent production has a fine diamond set in the knob by which the receptacle is opened.

Five precious stones irregularly set in a band ring engraved with eccentric flower work constitute a novelty that is worn by both sexes.

The fair sex are becomming partial to gold bonbon boxes, with a repository on the top for a miniature painting or portrait of some friend.

A mermaid, the upper part of which is of carved diamonds, forms a lace pin that inspires much admiration.

The most recent ornamentation for ladies' gold watch cases represents a cushion tufted with diamonds. This novelty produces a very attractive effect.

Among the betting books introduced this season is one with a cover of oxidized silver representing a series of riveted boiler plates. The plates are engraved with appropriate figures and characters.

Almost perfect in every detail is a lace pin of gold backed enamel simulating the beautiful orchid Miltonia, which grows on the island of Madagascar. The demand for enameled flowers, which reached such large proportions last season, promises to continue. —Jeweler's Weekly.

A Beautiful Canadian Story.

The Graphic, Chicago's popular illustrated weekly, is publishing a beautiful story of Canadian life, by Mrs. Mary Hartwell Catherwood, author of the famous "Romance of Dollard," the "Story of Tonty" and other charming chapters of Canadian history and tradition. The Graphic story is entitled the "Children of Ha Ha Bay," the scene being laid successively near St. Alexis, Chicoutimi and Tadousac. Marie, a fair orphan girl; her grandfather, a hermit, at Chicoutimi; Ignace, a brave young forester, and Justine, her sister, are the well-drawn characters in this, the best of Mrs. Catherwood's shorter stories. The three issues containing this beautiful sketch, (finely illustrated by Mr. A. B. Davies), may be obtained of most newsdealers or they will be mailed by the publishers on receipt of 30 cents.

The Daily Review.

MONDAY, JUNE 2, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

She threw him a kiss from the tips of her fingers, and when he had closed his room door she went up to her solitary dinner. She spent the afternoon beside Peter before the forge. That amiable giant worked away with a will, making a show of his great arms, and adding many unnecessary flourishes to his work. Every now and again he paused to express his views upon some matter and to receive Margaret's in return. He was as full of opinions as a mangy cur of fleas, and he had no hesitation in airing them.

"Now, it's well enough to talk about civil service reform," he said, leaning on his anvil and wiping his brow with his sleeve, "but I hold, an' I know others as holds, that it ain't safe for the good of the American people."

Margaret was hemming some red napkins, and she was much more intent on pulling the evening thread than on enquiring into the state of the civil service.

"Now, I come of a line of fighters. My grandfathers was fighters from way back. We was in the revolution, an' an uncle of mine went over to Algiers an' helped to fix things up there, an' one of us was down to Texas an' over the border—many time that—an' we hev bin in the rebellion by dozens. What I want to know is, air men what has a few superior advantages to go ahead of men what has bin too busy fightin' to git learnin'? When you git 'em in there, owing to edication, they air in there to stay, eh? They bin stay fur years. That's another thing I think out of keepin' with democratic institootions. It will make an aristocracy, don't ye see."

Then he spat on his hands and worked for five minutes with an exhibition of energy that the circumstances hardly called for.

"In my opinion," he said, after one of his spells of work, "a man that has views is worth ten of a man that hasn't. If I was a woman and was a-lookin' aroun' fur a good husband, I would say, giv me one as has views."

"Most husbands have too many, I have heard," objected Margaret.

"Some husbands is bulldosers," said Peter, deprecatingly. "I think hangin' is too good fur a man as is a bulldoser. I like a man as speaks soft to the wimmen folk, myself. But what I mean is, no woman don't want to be married to a cabbage-head."

"That's so," said Margaret, with perfect gravity, "she doesn't."

"Nur yet to a man as homely as the muddy side of a hedge."

"No," said Margaret.

"A good-lookin' man stands a chance that a homely one don't of holdin' a woman arter he gits 'er. If I was as homely as some I could mention, I wouldn't think of marryin'."

"No," said Margaret. "Then you are thinking of it, are you, Peter?"

"Well, in a way, I be. Of course I don't want to be in no rush. I ain't goin' to marry the purtiest girl in the world without bein' sure what she is good fur. Look ain't much after all—though I do like a tidy face. But I want a woman as has capabilities."

"You are right, Peter," Margaret returned, with a motherly accent.

"I don't know as I ever heard you say whether you was a cook or not?"

"Dear me!" cried she, "didn't I ever tell you? How strange!"

There was a long silence. Peter looked at Margaret, but she worked on at the napkins persistently, without looking up.

"Ye ain't told me yit," he said at length.

"Haven't I? Why, so I haven't! No, I can not cook a thing."

Peter's jaw fell, and he went at work again with something like viciousness.

"After all," he sighed when another resting spell came, "if a man has money, an' kin afford to keep help fur his wife, it don't so much matter. There's different ways uf lookin' at matrimony. Some wants a woman fur the work she kin do, an' others want a lady to go home to an' sort a play with. I don't want no woman to drudge fur me."

"That's nice," Margaret answered.

"I ain't got much, but I guess I could keep a wife as well as any goin'. I ain't got no objections to puttin' on a little style."

There was another pause.

"If I could find a girl with an extra penny of her own, that could be put out at interest, an' made to bring enough to buy her ribbons with, she could have every durn cent uf it, so fur as I was concerned."

Another silence.

"I suppose your pa has a bit laid by—not that I am curious."

"Yes," returned Margaret, "he has a little."

"Well, the poor ole soul can't take it to his grave with him."

Just then there was a fall that shook the old structure. Margaret started up with a terrible fear in her face.

"It is father," she cried. "Run, Peter, and take your hammer with you. You may have to break in the door. Quick, for God's sake!"

Her ringing voice inspired Peter with alacrity. He dashed up the stairs, down the long, bare halls above, tried the door of the judge's room, found it bolted, raised the hammer with a mighty swing and crashed the frail wood to fragments.

Close behind was Margaret. When the door fell she started aside and hid her eyes.

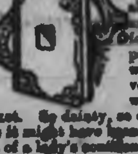
"You look in, Peter," she whispered. "Look, and tell me what you see."

But Peter did not reply. He looked, indeed, then he reeled, caught himself, and staggered to an open window, making, meanwhile, wild motions for Margaret to come away, but unable to get a sound out of his throat. Margaret paid no attention to his importunities. She clasped her hands behind her, put her teeth together and entered the room. The sight that met her expectant look was what she thought it would be. On the floor lay her father, and from his throat gushed a stream of blood. It stained his clothes and white beard, and formed tiny pools on the matting. But death was not yet in that room; there was something much worse there—madness. Like a maniac the old man tore at his throat and raised his bloody fingers where he could see them. The muffled choking that issued from his throat contained an inarticulate note that sounded like exultation. And as a miser dies with his hands in the precious gold he has sold his soul to get, so his hands died with his hands dabbling in the blood, which was none the less a gratification to his hideous caprice because it was his own.

To be sure, Margaret seized those hands and tried to hold them free of the envelopson, but she could not withstand his frenzied strength. She called to Peter to go for aid, but the giant had a failing that even giants are not always exempt from. He could not stand the sight of blood, and he sat on the window ledge, trying in vain to overcome the deadly sickness at his heart.

A few horrible gasps—noisy gasps—a few [illegible], and [illegible], and gestures, frightfully animal in their nature, and Judge [illegible], the most distinguished judge upon the western bench, lay dead by his own hand.

CHAPTER XXVI.



CAREFULLY bound [illegible], with cover of Egyptian leather, and fashionable double pages, and a series of bands for the pencil. The point of the pencil was incased in a silver case to protect it when carried in the pocket. So dainty, so conventional was it, that it might have been taken for the receptacle of a lady's confidences. One would expect to find some memoranda in it, a few quotations of the elusive sort, a list of addresses, and some critical remarks about intimate friends.

Margaret, who sat alone in her room by a flickering light, found none of these things in it. It had laid over her father's heart. All that was left of her father now was out in the bare little grave-yard on the hill, along with a hundred simple folk, who had lived stupidly and died in comparative innocence. It was two days since Margaret had stood by the open grave and listened to the fall of the dirt on the coffin. These two days had been spent pacing the long silent smithy, the doors of which were fast barred now.

Something had told her when she found the note book to put it where strange eyes would not encounter it. It had fallen from her father's pocket to the floor when—when he fell. She opened it without dread, however, and as the silent evening deepened read its closely written pages.

It bore the date of the first day of the new year.

A NICE POINT OF LAW.

Is Natural Gas a Mineral?—That's What the Lawyers are Trying to Solve.

TORONTO, June 2.—An interesting case was argued before Mr. Justice Street at Osgoode Hall on Saturday in which the question as to whether natural gas is a mineral or not was fully argued. The plaintiff, the Ontario Natural Gas Company, is an incorporated company, holding 21,000 acres of land under leasehold and doing business in the township of Gosfield, County of Essex. Mr. Robinson, Q.C. and Mr. H. S. Osler appeared on behalf of this company and moved to continue an interim injunction restraining James H. Smart, George Grenville and S. H. King, trading as the Kingsville Citizens' Natural Gas Company, from extracting gas from lands owned by the Ontario Natural Gas Company by means of sinking a well in the highway adjoining such lands and also to quash a bylaw of the township of South Gosfield, passed under R.S.O., ch. 184, sec. 565, whereby the reeve and council were authorized to lease to the defendants a portion of the road allowance, 100x20 feet, adjoining the lands of the plaintiff. Mr. A. B. Aylesworth appeared for the defendants, other than Walker & Co., who were represented by Mr. W. H. Blake.

Mr. Aylesworth argued that natural gas was a mineral within the meaning of the act, citing numerous authorities both English and American, a judge going so far in one of the cases cited as to hold that a pre-historic boat which was found buried in the ground, but not petrified, was a mineral. Judgment was reserved.

Hearld Knocked Him Silly in 2.10.

EL PASO, TEX., June 1.—The sporting fraternity have been in fever heat for the past three weeks over the battle between Charles Hearld of St. Paul and Tom Standard (colored), the hard hitter of the southwest, for $250 a side and gate receipts. A chartered train left this morning at 4.30 with the pugilists and hundreds of eager spectators. Time was called at 5.15. Standard led with a righthander on Hearld's side, made two clever ducks, when Hearld caught him in the neck with a swinging righthand blow and knocked him silly. The battle lasted two minutes and ten seconds.

Impaled on a Fence.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Benjamin Baumann, aged 6, while feeding a pet canary at his home here to-day, fell from the top of a stepladder out of a third story window and was impaled on an iron picket of the fence in front of the area way. The iron ran through his arm close to the shoulder and the weight of his body tore the mangled member from its place and left it hanging quivering and bleeding from the picket. The boy was picked up unconscious and is not expected to live.

BISMARCK TO BE MUZZLED

THE KAISER WARNS HIM THAT HE MUST STOP TALKING.

Minor German Officials Threatened With Dismissal for Aiding Son Herbert to Thwart the Emperor's Purposes—English Speculation in Wildcat Lands.

BERLIN, June 2.—The Emperor has informed Prince Bismarck that if he does not stop his press utterings the result will be serious.

LONDON, June 2.—A Paris correspondent says a number of officials at minor German courts are threatened with dismissal for intriguing at the instance of Count Herbert Bismarck to obstruct the Emperor's policy.

A Timely Warning.

LONDON, June 2.—There is great speculation going on here in the lands of Kentucky and Tennessee land [illegible]. In some cases the shares have risen from 200 to 300 per cent. premium. The Economist warns speculators that their ventures are being greatly overdone and predicts that the inflated prices cannot be maintained.

Betting Restrictions in France.

PARIS, June 2.—The Minister of the Interior has prohibited the sale of the Paris Mutuel pool tickets outside of race courses and also prohibited all intermediary betting agencies.

THE GREAT RUSSIAN RAILWAY.

American Capitalists Want to Open Up the North of Asia.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 2.—General Butterfield has been in St. Petersburg for some days. He is acting as the representative of a syndicate of American capitalists who wish to enter into negotiations with the Russian Government in regard to the building of the great Siberian railway from European Russia to the Pacific Ocean. General Butterfield has had several interviews with General Annekoff, the builder of the Trans-Asiatic road. The press and officials are opposed to the idea of the road being built by foreign capitalists. The Czar himself is said to be favorable to it. Annekoff is soon to visit Paris, and it is said that he will also go to the United States on a mission connected with the projected railroad. The English newspapers are at present engaged in pooh-poohing the scheme, but there is no doubt that if the railroad is once built across from the Urals to the Pacific the development and prosperity of Siberia and Northern and Central Asia will be immensely advanced.

Corrigan Received by the Pope.

ROME, June 2.—Archbishop Corrigan of New York was received by the Pope to-day.

Kalobkoff's Sentence Commuted.

SOFIA, June 2.—The sentence of Kalobkoff, who was found guilty in the Panitza conspiracy trial and condemned to nine years' imprisonment, has been commuted to exile.

Singers Disbanded and Scattered.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 2.—The singers who came here to appear at the May festival have gone east—Perotti to Europe, Mlle. DeVere to Pittsburg and Miss Emma Juch, Herr Fischer and Mr. Herbert to New York. Some of them received orders for their money, but Manager McLaughlin says they cannot collect it, because in refusing to sing at the Saturday afternoon and evening performances they broke their contracts. The loss on the festival is much greater than at first reported. The receipts from the sale of seats amounted to but $700 a day, while the expenses aggregated $750. The guarantee fund footed up only $300, and this the guarantors refuse to pay because the management did not fulfil its promises.

The U.S. Senate and the Tariff.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Two hours were spent by the Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee to-day considering the tariff bill. The time was devoted to wood and the manufactures thereof. Progress was slow, considerable difference of opinion being shown over the rates of duty on timber.

Bolan Knocks Out Burke.

NEW ORLEANS, June 2.—Jack Bolan of Cincinnati defeated Tommy Burke of Boston in a fight to a finish with five-ounce gloves before the Audubon Athletic Club to-night for a purse of $800. Bolan weighed 123 and Burke 119. The fight lasted 11 rounds and was from the first in Bolan's favor. The last round was a series of knock-downs. Bolan knocked Burke out with a blow on the neck.

Thirty Families Homeless.

MONTREAL, June 2.—News has just reached here of an extensive conflagration in the village of St. Jacques Lachigan, about 45 miles from here, by which 28 houses were burned, rendering that number of families homeless. Some sheds in which large quantities of tobacco were being cured were also burnt. The losses will aggregate about $100,000, on which there was but a comparatively small insurance. Owing to the conflagration having interrupted telegraph communication no further particulars can be obtained.

Fire in a Shipyard.

NEW HAVEN, June 2.—Tucker & Barry's shipyard at Madison and two four-masted schooners on the stocks were burned to-day. There was no fire apparatus. The vessels were owned by New London parties. Loss $95,000.

Whitby's Foundry By-Law Defeated.

WHITBY, June 2.—The foundry by-law voted on to-day was defeated. Only 182 voted for it, not quite the requisite two-fifths.

UNCLE SAM'S INQUISITION

LIVELY TIMES OVER THE TAKING OF THE ELEVENTH CENSUS.

One New York Enumerator Assaulted With Beer Bottles and Another Commits Suicide—Some Queries that Are Not Relished.

NEW YORK, June 2.—The census enumerators began their work this forenoon, one of them—Louis Marks—meeting with a very warm reception in a liquor store in Forty-fifth-street. He was unceremoniously hustled out amidst a volley of beer bottles, which were thrown at him. Marks then returned to the place under police escort, but was unable to obtain the information he desired. He reported the matter at the main office and was told to write out his story, which will be forwarded to Washington. Of the 900 and odd men who have been commissioned to take the census, 8 failed to report for duty to-day. Their places were filled and their defection will be reported to the Attorney-General at Washington. The delinquents are liable to fine and imprisonment.

This Enumerator Suicided.

NEW YORK, June 2.—Frank Lorgue, aged 30, recently appointed as census enumerator, had been out of work for a long time. Rejoicing over his appointment he got drunk on Saturday and did not sober up until to-night. Realizing that he was liable to fine and imprisonment because he did not show up this morning at the supervisor's office he became desperate and committed suicide by taking rough on rats.

Some Obnoxious Questions.

These are the questions propounded by the United States census enumerators. Nos. 22, 23, 24, 27 and 30 are likely to make trouble for the inquisitors:

1. Christian name in full and initial of middle name. Surname.
2. Whether a soldier, sailor or marine during the civil war (United States or Confederate, or widow of such person.
3. Relationship to head of family.
4. Whether white, black, mulatto, quadroon, octoroon, Chinese, Japanese or Indian.
5. Sex.
6. Age at nearest birthday. If under one year give age in months.
7. Whether single, married, widowed or divorced.
8. Whether married during the census year (June 1, 1889, to May 31, 1890).
9. Mother of how many children and number of these children living.
10. Place of birth.
11. Place of birth of father.
12. Place of birth of mother.
13. Number of years in the United States.
14. Whether naturalized.
15. Whether naturalization papers have been taken out.
16. Profession, trade or occupation.
17. Months unemployed during the census year (June 1, 1889, to May 31, 1890).
18. Attendance at school (in months) during the census year (June 1, 1889, to May 31, 1890).
19. Able to read.
20. Able to write.
21. Able to speak English. If not, the language or dialect spoken.
22. Whether suffering from acute or chronic disease, with name of disease and length of time afflicted.
23. Whether defective in mind, sight, hearing or speech, or whether crippled, maimed [illegible] with name of [illegible].
24. Whether a prisoner, convict, homeless child, or pauper.
25. Supplemental schedule and page.
26. Is the home you live in hired or is it owned by the head or a member of the family?
27. If owned by head or member of the family, is the home free from mortgage encumbrance?
28. If the head of family is a farmer, is the farm which he cultivates hired, or is it owned by him or by a member of his family?
29. If owned by head or member of family, is the farm free from mortgage incumbrance?
30. If the home or farm is owned by head or member of family and mortgaged, give the postoffice address of owner.

THE PEACH CROP A FAILURE.

That's the Report Sent from the Maryland and Delaware Peninsula.

BALTIMORE, June 2.—The peach outlook on the Maryland and the Delaware Peninsula is a gloomy one. Last year it was a failure and this season the most hopeful estimates of the growers indicate about one-fourth of an average crop. Continued bad seasons are telling seriously upon the finances of the farmers and upon the property of that section of Maryland and Delaware.

It is said that several large growers have determined to abandon the business. Kent county is one of the greatest peach sections of the country. John Bell, an extensive grower of this county, says that he will have less than 100 baskets.

The rot has also affected the apples, pears and damsons in the same section. In one orchard of 8000 pear trees in Kent county, the crop will be less than one-tenth. More encouraging reports come from the new peach section of Maryland on the mountain side, in Washington county.

Last year there was a good crop from the orchards planted some years ago. This season they promise to produce a fine crop. The fruit is larger and more succulent than the Eastern Shore peach. Some of the peninsula growers are investing in mountain orchards, with the ultimate intention of abandoning the lower counties.

The Prolific Quebecers.

QUEBEC, June 2.—Very nearly 1000 applications have already been made to the Provincial Government for the bounty of 100 acres of land to families of twelve or more living children. The act of the Legislature authorising these grants was only sanctioned on April 6 last. Up to May 1 547 applications for hundred acre lots, accompanied by satisfactory proofs of the existence of so many families of patriarchal size, had been addressed to the Provincial Secretary. On May 15 the number of applications had been increased to 730, and since that date others have been filed at the rate of ten to twenty-five per day, so that up to the present time the Government has been placed in possession of proof establishing the existence and whereabouts of nearly a thousand Canadian families in the Province of Quebec alone in which the husbandman and his fruitful vine have a dozen and upward of olive branches round about their table.

A Quake in Peru.

LIMA, June 2.—An earthquake occurred here this morning at 1.50. It was the severest shock experienced for many years and was followed later by two others, which though much milder, were of much more than average strength.

A Complaisant District Attorney.

NEW YORK, June 2.—The indictment against ex-Alderman Patrick Farley was dismissed to-day on recommendation of District Attorney Fellows.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Big Batch of Sentences at the General Sessions—Ridgeway Remembered.

TORONTO, June 2.—Judge McDougall yesterday passed sentence on the prisoners convicted at the General Sessions. The list was larger than has been before the court for years; F. H. Collins, larceny and receiving, two previous convictions, five years in the penitentiary; Thomas Congreve, larceny, three previous convictions, one year in Central Prison. He asked for three years in Kingston, but was refused. Maurice Rogers, [illegible], stabbing, three years in the penitentiary; Henry Hayes, boy, larceny, several previous convictions, three years at Kingston; John Scott, wounding, 18 months in Central Prison; William Thompson, larceny, year at Central; John Mc[illegible], receiving stolen property, several previous convictions, five years at Kingston; Matthew Carr, youth, prior convictions, larceny, year at Central; William Boyd, larceny, previous convictions, two years at Central; Jim Frawley, hotelkeeper, assault, two months in the Central. There were several commitments for short terms.

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning a number of survivors of the Ridgeway affair of 1866, headed by Gilmor, one of the officers on the occasion, assembled in Queen's Park and proceeded to the monument erected to the memory of those who fell at Ridgeway. Mayor Clarke, Col. Otter, Major Dixon, Major Bennett, ex-Lieut.-Gov. Robinson and others were present and made speeches, and abundance of flowers were laid on the monument. A large crowd of citizens was about the spot.

James Lynch's appeal from a commitment under the Vagrancy Act on the ground that Assistant Magistrate Baxter's appointment was illegal was decided against the prisoner at Osgoode Hall yesterday, the court refusing to enter into that question on account of the evil character of the appellant.

CONNAUGHT AT MONTREAL.

Welcomed By a Big Crowd—The Guests of Sir George Stephen.

MONTREAL, June 2.—The special train bearing the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and party arrived at the Windsor-street station at 10.37 this morning. At a few stations on route slight stops were made, large crowds gathering at each and cheering the Duke. There was an enormous throng at the station here. Acting-Mayor Stephens welcomed the visitors on behalf of the city and after a reply by His Royal Highness the party drove to Sir George Stephen's residence, where they will remain during their visit.

After lunch the party made a tour of the city. From the windows of the city hall they viewed a parade of the fire brigade, the Duchess sounding the alarm. They then drove through the Mountain Park to the grounds of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, where the cadets, consisting of the High School, Montreal and Royal Scots, were drawn up to receive them, and afterwards went through various manoeuvres. The grounds were then cleared and teams of Caughnawaga Indians and Montrealers filed onto the ground and played a lacrosse match.

The Duke's response to the acting Mayor's address was of course like the latter, both in French and English, and His Royal Highness' Parisian accent delighted the listeners.

AMBITIOUS CITY NEWS.

Fatal Accident—The Weavers' Strike—Arrested on a Serious Charge.

HAMILTON, June 2.—Harman House, a well-known farmer, while driving from Hamilton to his home near Alberton on Saturday night, was thrown from his wagon and killed by a team of colts he was driving.

At the usual hour this morning the Ontario Cotton Mill opened up again, the officers believing that some of the strikers were tired of the fight and that if the mill opened up they would only be too willing to return to work. In this they were disappointed, for only one weaver, a woman, deserted the strikers and returned to work. Some of the looms were run by the repairers.

Michael Ryan, aged 19, is in jail awaiting trial on a charge of indecent assault on a married woman named McKernan, aged 65. Ryan and two companions, who have not yet been arrested, are said to have gone to McKernan's house, sent him out for whisky, and during his absence the trio assaulted the woman.

R. Ralston's commission office, corner of Main and Catharine-streets, was broken into on Sunday night, and seven boxes of cigars, some stamps and blacking stolen.

This evening at 8 o'clock Dr. James White was married to Miss Frances Hodgins, eldest daughter of Mrs. Hodgins of Murray-street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Mungo Fraser of Knox Church.

The inland revenue receipts last month were $40,987, an increase of $8869 over May, 1889.

Exports from this consular district to the United States during May were $38,703.

HIS MOUTH CLOSED BY DEATH.

Fatal Accident to an Important Witness in the Benwell Case.

WINDSOR, June 2.—George Hayes, Grand Trunk passenger train brakeman, was instantly killed this morning in the freight yard in Windsor while coupling cars. Hayes dropped the coupling pin and was stooping to pick it up when his head was caught between the bumpers of two cars. He leaves a widow. He was about 24 years old.

Hayes was one of the principal witnesses in the Birchall-Benwell murder case, and his sudden death robs the Crown of one witness who saw Birchall and his victim on the train.

Sam Small a College President.

OGDEN, Utah, June 2.—Rev. Sam Small, the noted Southern evangelist, has been elected to and accepted the presidency of the Methodist Episcopal University here. In conversation with friends he said that his election would prevent him from taking any part in Georgia politics.

He declares that $1,000,000 shall be spent on the university buildings before he settles down finally to its educational branches. He also claims to see in this call greater opportunities for reaching the apex of man's glory on earth than could possibly be afforded him elsewhere. Particular stress is laid by him on the fact that the big educational institutions of the country are nestled together in the east, while in the west climatic surroundings tend to strengthen mind and body. The new president hopes to conduct an institution calculated to furnish the greatest minds to the next generation.

The Harvard Vandals.

CAMBRIDGE, June 2.—A large gathering of Harvard students to-night passed resolutions denouncing the outrage committed on the statue of John Harvard and the college buildings Sunday morning, and tendering the college money to repair the damage. It was decided to employ a detective to ferret out the vandals.

Threw His Wife Down Stairs.

WASHINGTON, N.J., June 2.—Intense excitement has been caused by an assault on his wife by Cashier L. J. Mann of the National Bank. Mann and his wife quarrelled and he choked her and threw her down stairs. Her [illegible].

AN ALARMIST RUMOR.

WHICH PROBABLY HAS NO FOUNDATION IN FACT.

London Papers Report That the North American Squadron, the West Riding Regiment and Two Batteries Have Been Ordered to Newfoundland.

HALIFAX, June 2.—London papers this morning published a story that the North American squadron under the command of Admiral Watson, the West Riding Regiment under Col. [illegible] and two batteries of artillery under Major Wills had been ordered to immediately proceed to Newfoundland. When the report was cabled here it caused much amusement in official circles. The North American squadron only arrived from its winter quarters in the West Indies at 6 o'clock this morning and has not had any orders from England for some weeks. Admiral Watson's only information regarding the French outrages in Bay St. George was from the local papers.

Your correspondent interviewed General Sir John Ross this morning. When asked if the report was true the veteran smiled and answered: "It may be, but I have not heard a whisper of it, and if it were true I think I should have been informed quite as early as the London papers. You can put it down as a pure canard."

Notwithstanding the high handed proceedings of the commanders of the French warships there is not the slightest probability of any collision between the forces of England and France. The only source of serious trouble would be from a collision between the local fishermen and the French marines. The Newfoundland fishermen may regard themselves as so outraged as to be unable to restrain their feelings and may shoot a few [illegible] from French warships if found ashore.

The arrival of the French warship Bisson from the French West Indies lends additional interest to the situation in Newfoundland.

Appealed to the Commander.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 2.—Her Majesty's ship Emerald, the senior ship of the Newfoundland station, has arrived at St. George's harbor. A deputation of inhabitants interviewed the commander of the ship and demanded protection to their property and to be allowed to pursue their ordinary legitimate avocations. Prefect Apostolic Howley acted as spokesman. The result of the interview is not yet known.

The local Government have no force to cope with the French, and are entirely dependent upon Great Britain for protection. Unless prompt steps are taken by the British Government England is in a fair way of losing her oldest colony. This question never before assumed such a serious aspect in the history of the colony. The Newfoundland delegates now in London are putting the matter strongly before the British Government.

CUSTOMS REGULATIONS.

Harrison Sends a Letter to Congress Anent the Pan-American Recommendations.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The President to-day sent to Congress a letter of the Secretary of State relative to the recommendations of the Pan-American Conference regarding customs regulations. The President in transmitting the letter states that the conference recommended a uniform system of customs regulations for the classification and valuation of imported merchandise, a uniform nomenclature for the description of articles of merchandise imported and exported and the establishment of an international bureau of information at Washington. The conference also decided to establish in Washington a Latin-American library, to be formed by contributions from the several nations, of historical, geographical and literary works, maps, manuscripts and official documents relating to the history and civilization of America, and expressed a desire that the government of the United States should provide a suitable building for the library, to be dedicated upon the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America.

CRAZED BY HER WRONGS.

A Handsome Emigrant Girl Shockingly Treated in New York.

NEW YORK, June 2.—A handsome young emigrant was to-day brought to the barge office by a police officer who found her wandering in the streets. The girl's name is Sarah Marion and she landed here two weeks ago. She was rushed through the barge office in a great hurry, as many emigrants arrived that day. After being turned upon the streets utterly ignorant of how to find her friends she wandered about Battery Park. Here a man got into conversation with her. He told her he would take her to a boarding-house where she could remain till her friends came. She accompanied him to the house and it is alleged she was drugged and kept confined in the house for several days. She was found wandering in the streets insane from the ordeal she had passed through.

AN AWFUL COUNTRY.

The Weekly Cloudburst with Fatal Results—In Ohio This Time.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, June 2.—The village of Loveland was nearly totally destroyed by a huge waterspout yesterday. Loveland is located in the Boyer Valley in a gully. A terrible storm amounting to a cloudburst passed over the valley, breaking about a mile above town, sweeping down the street and leaving hardly a house in the town. The loss of life as far as has been heard from includes Mrs. Sayles, an aged lady, and son and others whose names are now unknown. One family was taken off the tree tops this morning, where they had been swept by the flood. One of the family was swept past and drowned. The search for missing bodies is so far unsuccessful.

"Ayer's Pills have been in use in my family upwards of twenty years, and have completely verified all that is claimed for them."—Thomas F. Adams, San Diego, Texas.

"I have used Ayer's Pills in my family for seven or eight years. Whenever I have an attack of headache, to which I am very subject, I take a dose of Ayer's Pills and am always promptly relieved. I find them equally beneficial in colds; and, in my family, they are used for bilious complaints and other disturbances with such good effect that we rarely, if ever, have to call a physician."—H. Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

The Daily Review.

TUESDAY, JUNE 3, 1890.

CASES CITED.

The Examiner challenges a case to be cited where any ratepayers has been forced to support a Separate school against his wishes." That challenge is easily met. Mr. Angus McIntosh, of Dundas, never gave a notice to the municipal clerk that he desired to support the Separate school; he never sent his children to that school, and did not know that he had been rated as a Separate school supporter, and when he found that he had been so rated he appealed to the court of revision to have the error corrected. That court threw out his appeal. He then appealed to the county judge and again the appeal was dismissed because the assessors had followed the law as laid down in the prima facie clause. Although he had never given notice asking to be rated as a Separate school supporter, the judge decided that he had no remedy because he had not given notice that he did not desire to be so rated on or before the second Wednesday in January. Mr. Wm. Lund of the same place never gave the notice referred to in sec. 40 of the Separate school act and also appealed, but the decisions were the same in his case.

Here are two cases cited.

THE PREMIER THEN AND NOW.

In another column we give an extract from the Toronto Mail containing portions of speeches delivered by Hon. Oliver Mowat before he ascended to his present position in office. Mr. Mowat's inconsistency—his betrayal of the principles he so strongly advocated—are made clear, and the chief arguments, if such they can be called, that are now used in this and other counties in his behalf are answered out of Mr. Mowat's own mouth.

MR. MOWAT'S PLEA.

In a letter of great length published in the Globe Mr. Mowat makes an appeal to the electors. One thing must have forcibly struck all who read it, and that is that the Premier does not oppose one principles advocated by either the Conservative Opposition or the Equal Rights Association. The principles advocated by the Conservatives are so plainly just, so clearly right, that Mr. Mowat does not deny their righteousness, although Mr. Hardy did do so in Peterborough earlier in the campaign or just as the campaign was opening. The Government has been forced to see that to continue Mr. Hardy's line of defence would not avail, and Mr. Mowat, to use a sporting phrase, "hedges."

But these principles having been voted down in the Legislature by Mr. Mowat and his followers, and as the Premier yet opposes putting them into practice, he conjures up excuses for his peculiar position. On the question regarding the prima facie clause in the Assessment Act his excuses for voting down Mr. Meredith's bill are that Mr. Ross' bill was preferable, although it reaffirms the objectionable clause, and that Mr. Meredith's made no provision for rectifying any errors a clerk might make, but the latter excuse is as feeble and as misleading as the former, for any clerk's error regarding the rating of school supporters could be rectified in the same way as any other error he might make in preparing the collector's roll. Mr. Mowat again professes to quote the decision of the judges, but that decision was that a ratepayer, being a Roman Catholic, might be assessed as a Separate school supporter and be exempt from Public school rates, "though he MAY NOT by himself or his agent give notice in writing pursuant to sec. 40 of the Separate Schools Act." The excuses are invalid, and the Government and its supporters stand convicted of having voted against correct principles without reason.

Mr. Mowat's excuses for having opposed and for still opposing the kindred propositions are equally fallacious and unavailing.

In Peterborough the Government candidate has tried to conjure with the names of the leaders of the Equal Rights movement, but Mr. Mowat finds the statements of Dr. Caven and Mr. E. Douglas Armour to be so unfavorable to his untenable position that he accuses them of signing their names to "erroneous and misleading" statements. Dr. Caven, Rev. D. J. Macdonnell and the other gentleman whom Mr. Mowat thus attacks can afford to smile at such feeble shafts, for such special pleading as the Premier indulges in will not injure them or any opponent of the policy of the Government on the school questions.

The Premier dwells on the finances and timber interests of the Province, but he is not able, he cannot show that the policy of his opponents in regard to these questions is in any way inimical to the interests of the Province. In regard to the finances his opponents advocate greater economy and prudence in order that the day of direct taxation may be warded off, and in respect to the timber they have asked that measures be taken to protect this source of wealth and that none be sold without the sanction of the Legislature. In these points of difference the advantage to the people would be in the policy of the Premier's opponents.

FORSOOK HIS PRINCIPLES.

Extracts from Speeches by Hon. O. Mowat Before he Became Premier.
(From the Toronto Mail.)

Every great cause has its originator. That of Equal Rights to all commenced, not, as some may think, within a year or two, but as far back as 1857; and its promoter was not, as students of recent history may suppose, Principal CAVEN or Mr. DALTON McCARTHY, but the present Premier of Ontario—Mr. MOWAT. In the year mentioned Mr. MOWAT, then a rising politician, made his first political venture, selecting for the experiment that famous hunting ground for statesmen—South Ontario. Those who invited Mr. MOWAT to seek his fortunes in the constituency presented him with a requisition, in the course of which they indicated their preference for a distinctly national school system. The reply Mr. MOWAT made contained the following paragraph:

> "I rejoice to learn that the inhabitants of this riding are in favor of non-sectarian schools. I am of opinion that no religious denomination should have power to tax its people for the support of Separate schools, and that the general good requires that every fair inducement should be held out to the adherents of all denominations to have their children educated together. I believe that mutual respect and good will would be thereby promoted among all classes of the community; and at the same time that a better education would be afforded than can generally be expected from Separate schools."

Unfortunately history has not handed down the orations the young politician delivered throughout the riding; he was elected by a majority of 779, and after his return he made in various parts of the province speeches echoing no doubt the sentiments of which the people of South Ontario had just approved. The leading features of these speeches were, first, antagonism to Separate schools, and secondly, a demand for equal rights. Listen to the hon. gentleman in Dundas on January 12th, 1858:

> "It has been said that the Protestant feeling has been aroused in Upper Canada, and that the past election has been largely influenced by it. No wonder that the Protestant feeling has been aroused, because Protestants feel that there have been encroachments upon their equal rights. (Hear, hear.)"

And again, note his declaration at Belleville on January 21st, 1858:

> "I wholly repudiate the charge that it is Protestant bigotry which impels us. All we are asking for, so far as the matter concerns ourselves, is equal rights!"

The arguments offered in behalf of Equal Rights are extremely strong. They read to-day as if they might have been delivered by Mr. McCARTHY or Mr. E. DOUGLAS ARMOUR. This is what Mr. MOWAT said in his Dundas speech (Globe, Jan. 14th, 1858):

> "In regard to non-sectarian schools, we go for nothing which intelligent Roman Catholics may not consistently seek to obtain. (Hear, hear.) Indeed we are fighting the battle of Roman Catholics themselves in asking that there should be no sectarian schools. There is no question but a better education is given in the Public schools than in most, if not all, the Separate schools which are already established; and in demanding the removal of the sectarian clauses from our school law we are really demanding that Roman Catholic children should be better educated than they otherwise would be. (Hear, hear.) Surely this is a consideration of which Roman Catholics may feel the force, and of which, let me add, many Roman Catholics do feel the force. But there is a higher principle than this upon which we may also meet upon common ground. I mean that in this country there should be no connection between Church and State. Protestants elsewhere have differed about this, but in regard to this country they unite in maintaining it. But is it an exclusively Protestant principle? We all know that there have been Roman Catholics in different countries, and at different times, who have expressed their strong approbation of it. But is it not as wrong, and as much a violation of that principle, to allow taxation to pay a school master for teaching the dogmas of his Church to children, as to allow taxation to pay a clergyman for teaching them to children and grown-up people too? (Hear, hear.) We all agree, of whatever shade of politics we may be, that there should be no connection between Church and State amongst us; and, yet, what are we asked to do, when we are desired to allow sectarian legislation to go on and the existing statute to remain unrepealed? We are asked not only to disregard what we believe to be a principle whomsoever it affects, but we are desired to disregard it on behalf of a Church which, as Protestants, we believe has erred greatly from the sound faith. We are asked to do what we believe to be politically wrong, and to do it in favour of a Church which, as Protestants, we condemn. Is there to be respect only for Roman Catholic feelings? I say, respect all equally, the feelings of Protestants and Roman Catholics alike. Treat all equally; and the only way to do so is for all denominations to agree in saying that there shall be no sectarian legislation whatever; no exclusive privileges to any; no connection between Church and State in any form, whether as regards the religious teaching of children or the religious teaching of grown up people. (Cheers.) And large as is the influence of Roman Catholics in the Legislature, and large as is the influence of Lower Canada there, I have no fears as to the result of our contest. It is too just to fail."

Here we have a vigorous denunciation of exclusively Roman Catholic schools, from the point of view of an opponent of union in any shape between Church and State. At Belleville Mr. Mowat discussed the matter in a different light. He showed that the Separate system was destructive of the best and most approved form of education, and that its continuance was as injurious to Roman Catholics themselves as to the other members of the community. This is what he said (Globe, Jan. 25, 1858):

> "Those of our opponents to whom I allude frankly tell us they would very much rather have no system of public education at all than that which now exists, and which we value so highly. They would substitute for it a thoroughly denominational system, of which the Separate schools we have now are an illustration. Such a change would be destructive, and so far from yielding to it, for my own part I go so far in regard to sectarian schools as to assert that we should not have even such as the law now sanctions, but they should be swept away altogether! (Loud cheers.) The permitting of Separate Schools to exist has not accomplished the object of saving our common school system from attacks, and, this being so, there are many reasons why we should oppose them out and out, not as Protestants merely, but as Canadians—not as Protestants but as citizens—not as Protestants but as lovers of sound education and anxious for its future diffusion. (Cheers.) There never can be a perfectly free where there is not an intelligent community. Education is necessary for the developement and security of our liberties as well as for the developement of all the resources of the country. Now, these Separate schools are institutions in which an education is given to those who attend them far inferior, as you all know, to what is given in the Public schools; and the consequence is that so long as we permit them, so long we deprive our Roman Catholic fellow citizens of the privileges of an education such as our own children receive. (Hear, hear.) And it is of too much importance to us as citizens that all our children, those of Roman Catholics and Protestants alike, should be well educated, to allow us to sanction a system which would prevent one class from receiving the education which the other obtains. (Cheers.) It is said that the Roman Catholics are against us in this contest; I reply that it is not the first time in which an army has been found fighting against its own liberties. (Hear, hear.) I wholly repudiate the charge that it is Protestant bigotry which impels us. All we are asking for, so far as the matter concerns ourselves, is Equal Rights! All we demand as far as regards others is an abolition of exclusive privileges. And if a Protestant feeling has arisen on this question, it has not been directed to the obtaining of privileges which are not to be given to others nor to the securing of Protestant supremacy. We simply desire that Roman Catholics should enjoy the same advantages as we do and no greater."

This is precisely the Equal Rights view. It appears, however, that the enemy had been denouncing it as fanaticism, and that the Roman Catholic had been called upon to oppose it with the solid vote. Mr. Mowat dealt with these points both at Dundas and at Belleville. In the former town he said:

> "It has been said that the Protestant feeling has been aroused in Upper Canada and that the past election has been largely influenced by it. No wonder that the Protestant feeling has been aroused, because Protestants feel that there have been encroachments made upon their equal rights. (Hear, hear.) There has been much legislation in disregard of Protestant feeling; but what we ask for now is no exclusive privileges. We stand in the proud position that while every feeling of our hearts as Protestants has been excited, still we have asked or desired nothing more than perfect equality with our Roman Catholic fellow-citizens—nothing more than the abolition exclusive privileges." (Hear, hear.)

At Belleville Mr. Mowat thus referred to them:

> "It is certainly unfortunate that we should have to introduce religious differences into our political controversies; but in the present instance we have been driven to do so. (Hear, hear.) There are some who speak of a Protestant 'howl' as having influenced the elections in Upper Canada. While I repudiate the term I ask those who employ it whether there has not been in those elections any such thing as a Roman Catholic 'howl?' If we are to speak of 'howls,' I must say we have had a great deal of a Catholic 'howl' in this contest, particularly in Lower Canada, where it has exerted a very improper influence on the elections. And in Upper Canada how happens it that the Roman Catholics have everywhere been found voting on one side?"

It is scarcely necessary to say that the original Equal Righter has deviated somewhat from his programme. The recent Separate school legislation, favorable to the Church and unfavorable to the laity, was an unfortunate lapse. But Mr. Mowat's present attitude does not weaken the position he formerly held. Men may change, but sound principles never. There need be no timidity on the part of the Equal Righters of to-day. Their policy is righteous, loudly though the politicians may thunder against it. Do they want proof of this? It is to be found at the conclusion of Mr. Mowat's address to the South Ontario electors, wherein, having denounced Separate schools, he declared that he was acting "in the spirit and with the views which become a Christian politician."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Much distress and sickness in children is caused by worms. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator gives relief by removing the cause. Give it a trial and be convinced.

Grand Lodge 'Prentice Boys.

The Grand Lodge of 'Prentice Boys meet at Brockville on Tuesday next, June 10. From Peterborough will attend W. M. Bro W. J. Sloan, W. J. Sanders, Secy., and M. Jamieson, P. M., and B. M. Wylie, Grand Secy. The Grand Lodge will sit during three days.

The Destination Changed.

It was announced some time ago that the Oddfellows of Peterborough intended running an excursion to Belleville and Massassauga Point. The joint committee met last night and, owing to circumstances that have arisen in the meantime, decided to change the destination of the trip and run the excursion and picnic to Jacob's Island. The date is the 17th of June.

The delicious thirst-quenching "Montserrat" Lime-Fruit Juice is an admirable and wholesome hot weather beverage.

The Result on the 5th.

Politicians of both sides are working zealously for success. It is generally admitted that a large vote will be polled. The majority it is believed will not nearly be as large as the majority would be if the voting were taken on the quality of Hawley Bros. Teas. They carry an election every time. The poll is never closed and returns can be learned every day. Give Hawley's teas a trial. d120

Footing It on the 5th.

A veracious authority says that half the voters who go to the polls on Thursday will stand up and vote in Kidd's boots. This may apply more fully to the East Riding where Kidd is the candidate; but the fact remains that Kidd's boots (R. J's), that is, the boots Kidd sells, are a quality that will serve the electorate in and out of season. Give Kidd of Peterborough a call and try his Equal Right Shoes—every toe gets an equal right to its sole. d120

Fishing and Hunting.

A neat little book has been published by the Grand Trunk Railway Co., "Hunting and Fishing Resorts." It gives a list, and it is a long one, of the hunting and fishing resorts reached by the Grand Trunk and branches. The class of game and fish to be found at each place, the names of and rates at hotels, the livery stable rates and information as to guides are given in regard to each place. The book also contains the game laws epitomized, and it must prove a handy little volume for sportsmen.

Sent Up for Six Months.

Mrs. Mary Johnston, relict of the late Jas. Johnston, was sent up to gaol for six months last evening by His Worship Mayor Stevenson. The unfortunate woman, who has been living on town charity lately, succeeded in getting intoxicated yesterday, and while in an hilarious state went into a neighbor's house, drove the children out and smashed things in a most approved style. The police were notified and Chief Roszel started for the scene but met Mrs. Johnston on George-st. surrounded by a crowd of people whom she was entertaining. The Chief locked her up and Mayor Stevenson held court and sent her up for six months.

REPAIRING AND LIGHTING

THE TWO LEADING THEMES OF THE COUNCILL'S DISCUSSION.

A Lengthy Session of the Town Council—An Understanding in Reference to the Leases of the New Town Building—A Number of Applicants for the Position of Tax Collector—The Committee's Recommended Repairs to the Streets—The Location of the New Electric Lights—Some All-Night Lamps—Miss Cumming Appointed to Collect the Balance of this Year's Taxes—A Proposition for the Town to Purchase the Water and Electric Light Plants.

The municipal legislators held a regular meeting last evening, and a long session it was, full of wordy and in many cases unfruitful discussion. Mayor Stevenson presided, and the ward representatives present were Councillors Cahill, Davidson, Winch, Kelly, E. H. D. Hall, A. Hall, Dawson, Moore, Rutherford, Langford, Kendry and Hartley.

Town Clerk Macdonald read the minutes of the last meeting.

AN UNDERSTANDING WANTED.

At the last meeting of the Council it will be remembered that a resolution was introduced in reference to the leasing of the shops in the new market building. There was a clause in this resolution which said that no shop should be leased to any person who sold intoxicating liquors and that all lessees should be required to make a covenant not to sell any intoxicating liquor while he remained a tenant in the buildings. This resolution appeared on the minutes as having been moved by Councillor E. H. D. Hall and seconded by Councillor Cahill, was carried and referred to the committee of the whole Council to fill in the rentals for the different shops.

Councillor KENDRY, before the minutes had been confirmed, rose to ask for information in regard to this matter. He wanted to know if it was understood that no liquor was to be sold in the town buildings. He said he had a reason for asking and wanted to be clear on the matter before the minutes passed. Was he to understand that the lessees were not to sell any intoxicating liquor?

SEVERAL COUNCILLORS—Certainly.

Councillor CAHILL said he wanted to say he did not second that resolution.

Councillor KENDRY said that was a point he wanted made clear, and asked if the resolution would be void if Mr. Cahill had not seconded it. If it was in order he would second the resolution then and avoid any doubt.

The MAYOR said it was not in order.

Councillor E. H. D. HALL said he knew the resolution was carried and he thought Mr. Cahill seconded it, but if that gentleman said he did not he supposed he was right.

Councillor CAHILL said he was not opposed to the resolution, but he would not second it or vote for it.

Councillor E. H. D. HALL said if the minutes were confirmed he thought it would be binding.

Councillor KENDRY said he did not want to raise any discussion, but he had heard it said outside that this was a buncombe resolution.

The resolution was produced and Councillor HALL said it appeared to be moved and carried in the regular way.

Finally the minutes were confirmed with Councillor Cahill's name remaining as seconder.

The following communications were then read:—

THE NEW TELEPHONE COMPANY.

From Messrs. Dennistoun & Stevenson on behalf of the Peterborough Telephone Co. asking for permission to erect poles on streets. They did not propose to use George-st.

In disposing of this request considerable discussion arose.

Councillors Dawson, Rutherford and Kendry spoke in favor of giving the new telephone company the same privileges as the Bell Telephone Co., but all agreed that the Council should have something to say as to where these poles should be erected.

Councillor DAVIDSON moved that the Peterborough Telephone Co. be asked to submit a plan of the streets where they intended to place these poles and that the Street and Bridge Committee have power to act in the matter if plan is satisfactory.

Councillor CAHILL moved in amendment, seconded by Councillor DAWSON,—That the request of the Peterborough Telephone Co. be granted, subject to the supervision of the Street and Bridge Committee.

Councillor E. H. D. HALL favored Mr. Davidson's resolution and he seconded it.

After some discussion the original resolution carried.

PETITIONS AND APPLICATIONS.

From David Jones et al asking for street improvements on Parnell-st.—Street and Bridge Committee.

Messrs. Daniel Hilliard, S. F. Desautels, W. J. Stocker, and Chas. Storms made application for the position of public scavenger.—Committee on Appointments with power to act.

From Alfred Parker and others asking that Park and Wolfe-sts. be cribbed.—Street and Bridge Committee.

From H. Carveth offering to do the filling in of the crib work.—Street and Bridge Committee.

From Geo. I. Roszel, Chief of Police, asking for an increase of salary.—Finance Committee.

Messrs. F. Brownscombe, Wm. Aldridge, G. H. Howson, D. H. Burritt, Wm. H. White, H. B. Meharry, Thos. McKee, Henry Denne, H. B. Merrick and Miss Bessie Cumming made application for the position of tax collector.—Committee on Appointments.

John Conroy and eleven other butchers asked that a by-law be passed that their shops be closed at seven o'clock.—Received.

From John Gamble drawing attention of the Council to the condition of Smith-st.—Street and Bridge Committee.

From Mr. E. A. Peck on behalf of Mr. Wm. Whitehair asking for remission of taxes.—Court of Revision.

From Richard Parnell, jr., and J. C. Smith, asking for remission of taxes.—Court of Revision.

NOTICE OF BY-LAW.

Councillor MOORE, during the discussion on the telephone matter, said he would give notice that he would at the next meeting of the Council introduce a by-law for supervision of the work of telephone, telegraph and electric light companies in the putting up of their poles on the streets of the town.

THE COURT HOUSE PARK.

Mr. J. H. ROPER, President of the Horticultural Society, was allowed to address the Council and in a brief speech he presented the request and claims of the Society for the annual grant of $50 for the maintenance of the Court House park.

On motion of Councillor LANGFORD, seconded by Councillor DAVIDSON, the matter of the grant was referred to the Finance Committee to report.

THE FINANCE REPORT.

Councillor DAVIDSON, Chairman of the Finance Committee, presented the report of his committee as follows:—

THE STREET REPAIRS.

Councillor LANGFORD presented the report of the Street and Bridge Committee as follows:—

To the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—Your Street and Bridge Committee beg leave to report that they have examined the various streets of the town and would recommend that the following work be done:—

Smith-st., bridge to be repaired and straightened at each end, and roads leading from the east to be drained and gravelled.

Boundary between Auburn and Douro to be gravelled where required.

Culvert to be put down at the southern boundary of Water-st. Water-st. to be water-tabled and gravelled from Smith-st. north where required.

Victoria-st.—Sidewalk from end of present walk to houses on north side.

Conger-st.—Sidewalk (four feet) on west side as far as built upon.

Hill in front of North Ward School to be cut down.

Dennistoun-Ave. and Inverlea-st. to be graded and gravelled and sidewalk on one side, four feet.

Benson-Ave.—Sidewalk on east side about 100 feet, four feet wide.

Harvey-st.—Railway embankment to be removed and placed where required.

George-st.—Sidewalk to be repaired and renewed from London to Antrim.

Smith-st. from George to Water-st. to be gravelled.

Reid, Downie and Stewart-sts. to be renewed and repaired one block south.

Culvert across Aylmer on Antrim.

McDonnell-st. sidewalk on South side between Stewart and Reid and to be repaired westward.

Weller-st. sidewalk to be repaired where necessary and to be water-tabled near Park.

Cross-st. new sidewalk on the west side.

Gilmour-st. east end to be graded and sidewalk to be repaired.

Charlotte-st. west of Park to be repaired and sidewalk to be continued on north side 200 feet.

King-st graded from Rubidge to Park.

Stewart-st. graded from Sherbrooke to Charlotte and sidewalk on east side from Sherbrooke to King. Rubidge-st. sidewalk from Charlotte to King.

Culvert across Park-st. at Dalhousie.

Paterson-st. to be water-tabled and new sidewalk on west end.

Lake-st. from the railway to Park to be graded. Sidewalk to be put on boundary line from Chamberlain-st. to C. P. R. crossing.

Parnell-st. to be graded and sidewalk on west side.

Sidewalk on Rubidge-st. from Scott to Simcoe and from King to Dalhousie.

Sidewalk from Gilchrist-st. to Park-st.

Crossing on London to Gilchrist.

Sidewalk from London to Bonaccord.

Crossing on Murray-st. at Gilchrist.

Sidewalk on west side Stewart-st. from Hunter to Brock.

The crib work on Water-st. be raised three sticks.

That a sidewalk be placed on the north side of Dublin-st. from Bethune to Stewart.

Your Committee would also call the attention of the Council to the fact that we are without a gravel bed and steps should be taken to provide one or to substitute broken stone.

Your Committee are pleased to note that notwithstanding the severe winter and unusual amount of rain this spring, that the streets are in a satisfactory condition.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WM. LANGFORD,
Chairman.

THE REPORT DISCUSSED.

Councillor MOORE called the attention of the Committee to the cutting of the crown of the hill on Reid-st. at crossing of London-st. There was a crown on the hill which should be taken off and could be used to good advantage elsewhere.

Councillor LANGFORD said that this was only a partial report and another report of additional matters would be presented.

MAYOR STEVENSON said nothing was said in the report about block paving George-st., which was a piece of work which he considered should be done at once.

Councillor E. H. D. HALL said work was recommended on streets, Victoria and Conger-sts., for instance which were not in the town, and on other streets such as Dennistoun Ave. and Inverlea where there were no houses at all. He thought the report should be allowed to lay over.

Councillor LANGFORD thought Mr. Hall was speaking of some things he knew nothing about. On Dennistoun Ave. there were six houses which were assessed for about twenty-five thousand dollars. On Conger-st. there were seven houses, and Mr. Hall should not speak unless he had been over the ground to see.

Councillor DAWSON favored the report.

Councillor CAHILL put in a claim for an addition to the sidewalk on King-st. and Councillor Winch wanted the sidewalk on Ware-st. extended.

PAVING GEORGE ST.

Councillor E. H. D. HALL moved that the report be amended to provide for the water-tabling of George-st. on both sides between Brock and Charlotte-sts., the water-tabling to be laid with block or cobble stone.

Councillors Rutherford, Kendry, Hartley and Dawson did not object to the work being done, but wanted the matter referred to the Street and Bridge Committee to ascertain the cost and best material for doing the work.

Councillor MOORE thought the chairman of the committee should bring in an estimate of the cost of the work.

Finally Councillor E. H. D. Hall withdrew his amendment with the understanding that it be referred to the Street and Bridge Committee to report upon, and the report was adopted.

THE NEW ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

Councillor A. HALL, Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, presented the report of his committee as follows:—

To the Mayor and Town Council:—

GENTLEMEN:—Your Fire, Water and Light Committee beg leave to report and recommend that the Council take from the Peterborough Electric Light and Power Co. twenty-nine additional lamps at sixty dollars ($60) per annum to burn 300 nights in the year, and 40 lamps to burn all night 300 nights in the year at an additional cost of thirty dollars ($30) each. Also two lamps in the Court House Park to burn from May 23rd, 1890, to October 1, 1890, at 20 cents per night each. Also that the gas lamps on the streets be cut off and that the same take effect not later that the 15th September, 1890. The electric lamps to be placed in the following places:—One at the Corner of Dixon and Murray, Sheridan and Brock, College and McDonnel, Harvey and London, Water and McDonnel, Water and Simcoe, Water and Charlotte, Aylmer and King, Bethune and Sherbrooke, Aylmer and Dalhousie, Aylmer and Smith, Bethune and Wolf, Stewart and London, Bethune and McDonnel, Stewart and King, Simcoe and Stewart, Park and Paterson, Simcoe and Reid, George and Spaldings Bay, Aylmer and London, Reid and McDonnel, Park and McDonnel, Park and Bonaccord, Park and Elm, Park and Weller, Park and Gilmour, Bethune and Charlotte, one half way between George and Aylmer on Simcoe, one half way between George and Aylmer on Hunter-st.

The lamps now on the corner of George and Dublin to be moved to the corner of Dublin and Division. The lamp now on the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte to be moved to the corner of Charlotte and Louis.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ADAM HALL,
Chairman.

A LIGHT DISCUSSION.

This report also gave rise to a prolonged discussion.

Councillor KENDRY put in a claim for two lights in the North Ward—one on Barnardo ave. and the other near Hilliard's mill. If these were added he would support the report. He thought it was understood that these lights were on the list and he would like to know why they had been left out.

Councillor A. HALL said the committee had gone around and thought that the lamp on Barnardo-st was not necessary, but the other lamp at Mr. Hilliard's he thought was necessary and would be well placed.

Councillor KENDRY pressed his claim and moved that these two lamps be added to the report.

Councillor HARTLEY wanted a light at the corner of Aylmer and Dublin-sts and thought it was a mistake to move the lamp from Dublin and George-sts.

Councillor HALL explained that with the proposed change he thought that the adjacent lights would give all the necessary light at the corner of Aylmer and Dublin.

TO BUY THEM OUT.

Councillor CAHILL was sorry the south-west corner of the town had not been visited, but he did not think he would favor the report as a whole. He moved in amendment to the amendment, seconded by Councillor LANGFORD, "That in view of the large expenditure incurred and [illegible] for water and light, the Council is of opinion that it would be [illegible] to have the [illegible] purchase the works of the Waterworks Co. and the Electric Light Co., and that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee to report at the next meeting." In support of this Councillor Cahill said they were incurring an expense of ten thousand dollars for water and light if they carried out these improvements. This represented one fifth of the taxes. If they purchased the works of these Companies they would, he believed, be making a saving to the town every year. This question should be considered he thought before the Council went into this large expenditure.

Councillor RUTHERFORD said some time ago he had been in favor of the scheme Mr. Cahill proposed, but it was a gigantic undertaking. He believed that it might be a good move, and thought it was worth considering, but did not think the resolution should be moved as an amendment. After going around with the Committee he would support the report, but would favor Mr. Cahill's resolution if it was brought up afterwards.

Mr. Cahill's amendment was lost only the mover and seconder voting for it.

STILL AFTER LIGHT.

Councillor CAHILL then moved, seconded by Councillor WINCH,—That the report be further amended to provide for lamps on Chamberlain and also one on the west end of Wescott-sts.

Councillor HARTLEY moved, seconded by Councillor KENDRY,—That the lamp at the corner of George and Dublin-sts. be allowed to remain and that a lamp be placed at the corner of Dublin and Aylmer-sts.

A vote was first taken on the original report, and the report was adopted. The amendments then were dropped.

THE COLLECTING OF THE TAXES.

Councillor MOORE said there was the question to be settled by the Council as to who was to collect the balance of the taxes of the town. He moved, seconded by Councillor RUTHERFORD,—That this Council appoint Miss Bessie Cumming, the clerk of the town's late collector, Mr. Wm. Cumming, its collector of the balance of the taxes of the year 1889, she entering into a contract with the town and giving the proper security therefor to be prepared by the Town Solicitor and that she be paid the sum of $100 for her services in this behalf and that the corporate seal be attached to this resolution to give it the power and effect of a by-law.

The resolution carried.

IN MEMORY OF THE DEPARTED.

Councillor MOORE moved, seconded by Councillor KELLY and resolved, That the members of the Town Council of the town of Peterborough express their deep sorrow upon the death of Wm. Cumming, late collector of taxes, who had been officially connected with this town ever since its incorporation, fifty years ago, who always proved a faithful and efficient officer and one in whom the Council and citizens had ever the most complete confidence and that the Council place on record an expression of their sense of the severe loss that has been sustained by his death.

Councillor MOORE supported the resolution with a eulogistic reference to Mr. Cumming's faithful and long service to the town and the Mayor also spoke in a similar strain of his pleasant and long relations with the deceased gentleman and regret at his demise.

The resolution was then carried by a standing vote.

AFTER THE RAILWAYS.

Councillor DAVIDSON moved, seconded by Councillor WINCH,—That the Clerk communicate with the Railway Committee of the Privy Council and arrange for an interview with a view of compelling the railways to place gates on certain streets.—Carried.

NOTICES OF MOTION.

Councillor KENDRY gave notice of a motion to place an electric light on Barnardo-Ave. and on George-st. near Hilliard's.

Councillor CAHILL also gave notice of a motion to put a light on Chamberlain-st. and one on Wescott-st.

BY-LAWS.

Councillor LANGFORD introduced a by-law to assume Barnardo and other streets.

The by-law was given its first reading.

Councillor A. HALL introduced a by-law to prevent the erection of wooden buildings, etc. This was also read the first time.

The Council then adjourned.

Campaign Notes.

Friends of Mr. Carnegie who will volunteer the use of teams to assist in bringing out the vote on Thursday are asked to kindly hand in their names to the committee.

Mr. Carnegie addressed a meeting in South Monaghan last night.

Mr. Stratton held a meeting in Lakefield last night, at which Mr. E. B. Hall also spoke and Mr. Stone gave an address from the Equal Rights point of view. At the close of Mr. Stratton's speech Mr. Charles Stapleton asked for permission to explain a personal matter. Mr. Stratton had attacked him at a meeting in Smith as having been dismissed from the bailiffship for cause and at South Monaghan said it was done on the complaint of Mr. R. E. Wood. This was what Mr. Stapleton wanted to explain, but Mr. Stratton refused him a hearing, and by calling for cheers and keeping up a continual shouting for some time he and some of his friends prevented Mr. Stapleton from defending himself. Mr. Stapleton held in his hand at the time a letter from Mr. R. E. Wood that would have contradicted Mr. Stratton's statement, but Mr. Stratton did not want the people to hear it and that was the reason Mr. Stapleton was refused permission to explain the matter.

Brevities.

—There was a blank at the Police Court this morning.

—The Board of Education meets this evening.

—The spectators gallery was well filled at the Council meeting last night, some fun evidently being expected.

—The Douro annual picnic is being held to-day and a good number went down from town to enjoy the outing.

—A full attendance of the members of Peterborough Council No. 97, R. T. of T., is requested at the regular meeting to-night, when the election of officers will take place.

Savages expect to imbibe bravery by drinking the blood of their brave enemies. A more enlightened method of vitalizing the blood is by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It braces up the nerves and gives strength and fortitude to endure the trials of life.

A $25,000 FIRE AT OMEMEE.

The Blackwell House and Several Stores and Dwellings Burnt.

OMEMEE, June 2.—About 4 o'clock this morning fire was discovered in the Blackwell House, an unoccupied brick hotel, and despite the efforts put forth by the local firemen assisted by the Lindsay brigade the flames rapidly spread and before they were brought under control had devoured the four adjoining residences and stores. The cause of the fire is a mystery, but it is generally believed to be the work of an incendiary.

The losses and insurances are: Blackwell House, loss $6000, insurance $3000; Williamson's boot and shoe store and harness shop, loss $6000, insurance $1500; T. Ivory & Sons, general merchants, loss $10,000, insurance $7000; Miller's tailor shop, loss $3000, insurance $1500; Mrs. Marr, store occupied by W. H. Spence, implement agent, loss $1000, insurance $500; Dr. Thompson, drugs, partial loss, $1000, no insurance. The companies interested are the Royal, Western and Gore District.

To Unite the Pulpit and the Stage.

SAN ANTONIO, June 2.—A sensation has been created throughout the South by the announcement from Rev. Virgil Maxey, a noted revivalist and Baptist minister, that he will go on the stage in September. Maxey stated his object was to unite the pulpit and the stage. He will be on the stage six days in the week and preach on Sunday. He is a nephew of United States Senator Maxey.

The Oregon Election.

PORTLAND, Ogn., June 2.—An election was held in this state to-day for state officers and members of the Legislature. Meagre returns seem favorable to Pennoyer (Dem.) for governor. The Republicans will probably have a majority in the Legislature on joint ballot.

Mrs. Edson's Benevolence.

NEW YORK, June 2.—The will of the late Mary A. Edson bequeathes about $210,000 for religious and charitable objects.

To Watch the Yankee Fishermen.

HALIFAX, June 2.—The fisheries protection cruiser Vigilant, Captain Knowlton, sailed this afternoon to the eastward to look after American fishermen.

The Daily Review.

TUESDAY, JUNE 3, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

"There is no throb in time because of the birth of a new year," it began. "The years glide with perfect smoothness, as though the flight of time signified nothing. And, indeed, I believe that it amounts to little enough. Time, space, man, are trifles. Each year I am more persuaded of that. It matters little what man does.

"If it were not for Margaret I think I should not care to live this year out. The very expansion of life is a pain to me. I think I understand, in the dim way that it is given to man to understand, a hundred things that I was once ignorant of. But this only brings additional suffering. I think I envy God. I think I should like to be a creator. There is nothing very proud in being a mere discoverer or imitator, or elaborator. If I had made men I should not suffer as I do now in trying to understand them. What a panorama of misery has passed before me, since I was young. The last few years have brought nothing but a succession of tragedies to my notice. Each day has its new misery. Murder, deceit, despair, anguish, hate, malice, revenge! What a carnival of passions, en masque, go tramping by me, hideously gambolling and never recognizing their own villanies. The secret of these crimes still defies me—baffles me, perplexes and piques.

"Did Judas want money? I think he did not care for money. What made the deep treachery in his soul? He had no reason for hatred. Was vice born in him? He had never given any previous demonstration of it. Was his crime to an extent experimental? More likely—far more likely.

"I cannot help noticing at times how easily a man will endure the word murderer when applied to himself. He would start at the word 'thief.' He would leap at the throat of a man who called him a 'liar.' Men do not seem to be ashamed of blood shedding as of other crimes. Another thing that I have noticed is that many of the worst murders committed seem to have no reason for being. But I have said all this to myself and written it in this book about a thousand times—I should say, in the books finished and put away. I forgot that this is a new year and a new record. If this record is as puerile as the last two I shall have reason to be ashamed of it. I am a very amateurish writer, and I often think my thoughts lose not a little by being transmitted to paper.

"I keep thinking of that little grey headed woman who is up for having butchered her husband. She looks as though her eyes were bent on heaven, her knees bent for the children to pray at, her lips for wifely kisses and motherly prayers. Yet she cut off her husband's head with an ax! What is stranger still, she suffers no apparent remorse. I asked her why she did it. She said they differed about the new minister! I asked her then what she had been doing all the morning before. (The crime was committed about noon.) She told me she had been out helping to attend to the hogs. They had had a hog killing that morning, and a butcher from town came to stick the animals. I have thought a great deal about this. Every one knows how brutal butchers look, and what dangerous men they are, having passions of the greatest fierceness. But I really think it is foolish to write all this down. My last book was full of it, and the subject ought to begin to grow tedious. I do not remember ever having been interested in a subject so long before. My library upon diseases of the will is becoming unique. I may be wrong to put so much money in it. I am anxious not to exhaust Margaret's little legacy. To be sure, there is plenty now, but—I am always afraid of trouble for Margaret. Dear girl! She is as tender as a fresh lily."

Several days passed with comfort. The next instalment of ideas seemed to have been prompted by those that had gone before.

"One thing is certain. That woman would never had killed her husband if it had not been for the pig-sticking. There must be a distinct pleasure in the shedding of blood. The woman had never felt that pleasure before, and it intoxicated her. She killed her husband because her affection ceased to operate when her dementia began. Still, I may be wrong in considering her demented. But I cannot understand why she was not remorseful except by that hypothesis. The crime seemed a thing apart from herself. She regarded it from the standpoint of the contemplator. I could not make her out. But I was not surprised that she was convicted.

"What is the secret of war, patriotism, or love of bloodshed?

"I have been consulting several doctors about this terrible insomnia. Sleep has come to seem the most precious thing of life to me. But I do not like to have Margaret know. Poor Margaret! She knows nothing of the wickedness of this world. I think she hardly knows there is such a thing as crime. I think she is beginning to love Harry Leiter. He is a magnificent lad, but I cannot say that I want him or any one else to have Margaret. I often wonder why she looks at me so sharply. She must be trying to read my thoughts. I have grown very suspicious of her. As a child she showed no such tendency. I saw a terrible accident on the street to-day. A man was crushed by a sheet of ice that fell from a ten-story building and was picked up in bleeding fragments. I looked at him a long time. It is odd, but I seemed to felt happier the rest of the afternoon. The destiny of man appeared so inevitable to me that I concluded that I might as well take the first path that offered itself to us. We can only go as Fate would have us go. Then why not yield to our inclinations, even those we would not willingly put in words?

"Sometimes I wish Margaret would go to Europe to study for a while. She is certainly growing very inquisitive. I can see she is trying to find out what I am thinking about. I have been reading in one of my recently purchased books of a girl of gentle and amiable disposition who was given to the killing of animals. She was accounted sane by the physicians. Evidently she would not have killed them if she had not derived pleasure from it. Judgments should be very lenient when such criminals are brought up. I think the best prescription for them would be continuous and diverting work. They have to fight a natural tendency; they are not criminals, but unfortunates.

"I wonder if life were not meant to be accented by strange events. This placid continuity seems unnatural to me. My days are so much alike, that I hardly know when Sunday comes and Saturday goes. If my dear wife had not died, I think I should not have found it so difficult. I am moved at times to wonder if I might not find some new love that would give me pleasure. I sometimes attempt to understand [illegible] I have a [illegible] of thought [illegible] action. There is no doubt a great attraction in the lighter loves of men in the world. But they are not for me. I should be successful—I have an idea that I should also be applauded. Of course, if [illegible] one is not so reckless. I have a [illegible] desire at times to see a noble war in this country. If I could fight in a noble cause, I am sure life would become majestic again. War makes murder holy.

"The long days at the court are becoming almost unendurable. At night my brain is so fatigued that I can do nothing but read. I fear my thoughts [illegible] from the bench are [illegible]. I imagine the clerk regards me with curiosity. He is a shallow fellow and I am sure he cannot understand half he hears. I am thinking of letting Margaret go away for a time. She is certainly in love with Leiter. I am glad of it—he is a dear lad. But he is very ill-bred in some ways. He scrutinizes every one too closely.

"It is six nights since I have slept quietly. Once I fell asleep for a time, but it was only to feverishly dream. I dreamed I was in Texas in a strange building far from other habitations. With me were three men, chance travellers like myself, who had stopped there for shelter from the beating sun. The plains stretched out before my dry, sweltering, under a yellow sky. The sun seemed to spread over the whole heaven; its palpable radiations reached to the horizon on every side. Not a tree or a pool of water, or a hollow that could cause a shadow appeared. Every one of us in that room hated each other without knowing why. I looked at them with eyes of insolence and loathing, and they returned these glances. Suddenly one of them said the room was too small for us all. I agreed with him. But I told him that I was the one that should remain. Then we flew at each other's throats. But they fought together—there were three against one. I was glad of it. I rejoiced that I should have just so much more cause for hatred—though hatred needs no cause. At first I felt only the fierce joy of fighting, but at a lucky turn my knife slit up the heart of one of them. Then came an intoxication such as I had never dreamed of. A red mist swam before my eyes—no, not a mist—a beautiful flame that rolled in sheets. My veins were thrilled. I felt a passionate thirst. It seemed to me as if my happiness would be complete if I could only lay my parched lips at the dripping throat of one of them and drink the hot gush that came from it. I slew another of them, and then the third, and just as I was about to kneel and gratify my consuming desire I awoke.

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

Leading Features of the Grain and Produce Markets at Home and Abroad.

TORONTO, June 2.—The egg market is firmer, all dealers asking 12c.

Butter is unchanged. Large rolls rule at 10c to 12c.

Other country produce shows no change.

BREADSTUFFS.

The flour market is dull and there is no material change in values. Straight rollers are quoted $4.50, and Ontario patents $4.80 to $5.

Wheat is quiet and unchanged. White is held outside at $1.03 and No. 2 spring at $1.

There is little doing in oats. Offerings are light and there is not much demand, but some transactions are being made, billed to Montreal for export. Mixed are held here at 49c, with not many buyers.

Peas are steady at 5.c to 60c outside.

Bran is firm at $13.50 and $13 for cars on track.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

Liverpool reports: Wheat, steady; demand improving; holders offer sparingly. Corn, steady; demand fair. Spring wheat, 7s 3d; red winter, 7s; No. 1 Cal, 7s 1½d. Corn, 3s 5⅝d. Peas, 5s 5d. Pork, 54s 9d. Bacon, long clear, heavy, 30s and light 31s; short clear, 30s. Tallow, 24s 9d. Cheese, old white, 53s and new 48s; old colored, 53s, and new 46s.

BEERBOHM'S REPORT.

Beerbohm reports: Floating cargoes—Wheat steady, corn steadier. Cargoes on passage—Wheat quiet, corn steady. Mark Lane—English wheat firm and foreign steady; American corn turn easier and Danube quiet; English flour steady and American turn easier; spot good Danube corn 19s 9d, was 20s; prompt 18s 6d, was 18s 9d. Liverpool spot wheat and corn steadier; corn 3s 5⅝d, ½d cheaper. India shipments of wheat the past week—To United Kingdom 60,000 qrs, to Continent 20,000 qrs. Stocks in Liverpool—Wheat 170,000 to 180,000 qrs, corn 170,000 to 180,000 qrs, flour 250,000 to 260,000 bbls; comparison with May 1—wheat was 20,000 qrs more, corn was 30,000 less and flour was 40,000 bbls less.

THE CHEESE MARKETS.

Buffalo reports: 3630 boxes of cheese consisting of 1500 Cloverfield, 1350 Marshfield and 1600 Springfield were sold at 8⅛c. The market was quiet and buyers were not anxious to take hold owing to the condition of foreign trade and the low prices prevailing at export points.

Utica reports: The market recorded a decline of ⅛c. The ruling price was established at 8½c, against 8⅝c one week ago. An effort was made to place it at 8¼c, but it was unsuccessful. The cheese offered was half and half grass. Next week full fresh cheese it is expected will be placed on the market. The transactions were: 97 lots, 7248 boxes, at 8½c; 41 lots, 711 boxes, 8¼c; 9 lots, 323 boxes, 8⅝c; 3 lots, 250 boxes, 8⅜c; 26 lots, 1852 boxes, commission. Total, 169 lots, 10,384 boxes, ruling price 8½c.

Little Falls reports: Notwithstanding the fact that there was a sprinkling of grass cheese in the offerings the prices show a decline of about ½ cent and the market is in a condition far from satisfactory to either salesmen or buyers. White stock is preferred by ⅛c to ¼c; 79 lots, 8c; 5 lots, 8⅛c; 10 lots, commission. Total 5533 boxes. The sales of farm dairy cheese amounted to 1159 boxes and the prices are from 8c to 8½c, with the bulk at 8¼c.

Butter—The condition of the butter market is extremely discouraging and the finest quality of dairy made sold for 16 cents, but fortunately for the dairymen the bulk of the milk is made into cheese and only 18 packages of farm dairy butter were sold. Prices 15c to 16c. Thirty packages of creamery made sold at 15c.

TO MEET C.P.R. COMPETITION.

Reduction in Grain and Dressed Beef Rates Between Chicago and the East.

CHICAGO, June 2.—The Chicago Freight Committee of the Central Traffic Association to-day decided to reduce the rate on wheat, barley, rye and their products to the basis of 22½ per 100 pounds, Chicago to New York, taking effect June 9. The present rate on these articles is 25 cents, while that on oats and corn is 20 cents. The Lake Shore road took the initiative in this movement, and also gave notice of an intention to reduce the rate on dressed beef from 46 to 43 cents per 100 pounds to Boston and New England points. The reason given for this last move is that the new Canadian Pacific-Wabash line has secured so large a share of the dressed tonnage as to leave no doubt that it is cutting the rates. The Lake Shore's action in regard to dressed beef has not been followed by the other lines and an effort will be made to induce it to withdraw its notice.

EDMUND YATES' GOSSIP.

THE DUKE OF PORTLAND'S SENSIBLE SPEECH.

Her Majesty's Health Undergoes a Marvelous Change for the Better—Absurd Stories in Separatist Papers—A Bankrupt Prince—The Newfoundland Difficulty.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Edmund Yates cables The Tribune from London: The Duke of Portland made an extremely sensible speech a few days ago. The occasion was the turning of the first sod of the new coal pit at Whitwell, near Welbeck, and actually within sight of the duke's house. Instead, however, of discouraging the undertaking, the duke has leased the site to the Shore Oaks Company at highly favorable terms, and went down expressly to assist at the beginning, [illegible] property. He hoped the sinking of the shaft would secure good wages and regular employment for those who had pluck enough to go down 6000 yards and earn them.

Balmoral never looked more beautiful than when bathed in the glorious sunshine which welcomed the return of the Queen [illegible] Scotch [illegible] rooms hung with many-colored tartans. Her Majesty was in excellent spirits at her birthday luncheon, and since her arrival in Scotland her health has undergone a marvelous change for the better. She was delighted with King Leopold's flying visit, and at once ordered his gigantic bouquet of mauve orchids to be placed in a gilt basket in the centre of the luncheon table. Prince Henry of Prussia much pleased his grandmother by appearing in full Highland costume.

No stories seem to be so manifestly false [illegible] the separatist papers. They [illegible] farrago of fiction about the Queen's stay at Montreux, where, it is alleged, Sir Henry Ponsonby requested the police to watch the doings of Sexton and O'Brien, who were staying at the Railway hotel which overlooked the royal villa. This is all a stupid fabrication, for the Queen never stayed at Montreux in her life, and even if Sexton and O'Brien had been residing in the same town as Her Majesty, it is quite certain that neither Sir Henry Ponsonby nor any other member of the royal entourage would have been in the least degree concerned about their locating.

Prince Henry of Prussia would gladly have stayed in London for a week and wished to go to the Derby, but Emperor William is a perfect despot in his family and required that his brother and sister-in-law should return to Germany in time to attend the christening of the infant daughter of Prince Leopold of Prussia.

The financial collapse of Prince William of Saxe-Weimar has caused an immense sensation both in [illegible] and Dusseldorf, where, as lieutenant of hussars, he belonged to the garrison. His debts amount to nearly a quarter of a million dollars and his adjudication as bankrupt will be speedily followed by the removal of his name from the army list.

The Newfoundland difficulty is giving the foreign office no little anxiety. The demands of the colonists are hardly considered compatible with the rights of France under the treaty of Utrecht, and it is impossible for the English minister to ignore these rights. Probably the Newfoundlanders are asking more than they expect to obtain, and I believe would be satisfied if the French are prevented from carrying on the lobster fishing on the Newfoundland coast. This Lord Salisbury might insist upon, but beyond that he could scarcely go without offering compensation in some form or other. The idea on the front Opposition bench, I believe, is that France should receive one of the English settlements in West Africa in exchange for her rights in Newfoundland.

The Browning manuscripts which are to be on view at Southeby's next week, are interesting. The first in the series are three long letters of Mrs. Barrett Browning, in which she promulgates her confession of faith as a Congregational Christian. The next is a batch of autograph poems written by Robert Browning in early youth. Then there are the original proofsheets of Colombe's Birthday, Pippa Passes, King Victor and King Charles and the first proofs of Dramatic Lyrics. Besides these there is a [illegible] of the Pied Piper, as told in 300 lines by the poet's father and written amid the bustle of a consul's office in 1843. The latter manuscript is [illegible] highly [illegible] unique link in the poetical genealogy of the Browning family, and hence of Browning societies.

An Act of Friendship.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 3.—The activity of the French officials in arresting the Nihilists conspiring against the Czar in France has made a favorable impression in political circles here and is likely to remove the last vestige of opposition to an entente between Russia and that country.

For the Suppression of Anarchists.

BERLIN, June 3.—Germany, France, Russia and Switzerland have signed a treaty for the suppression of anarchists. England is still unwilling to join.

Orleans Pardoned.

PARIS, June 3.—President Carnot has granted a pardon to the Duke of Orleans, who was sent to prison in February last for violating the decree of exile issued against the members of his family. The Duke will be conducted to the frontier during the night.

DOMINION NEWS NOTES.

AN EXPENSIVE BLAZE AT THE CAPITAL.

Weavers in the Ontario Cotton Mills Treated to a Hostile Demonstration by Strikers—An Ontario Artist Wins Laurels at the Paris Salon.

OTTAWA, June 3.—A rubbish-clearing fire in the yard of Henry, the saddler, [illegible] Sparks-street, this morning extended to the fence dividing Henry's yard from Shore's cartridge factory, Queen-street, and Thackray's planing mill. These were brick houses and the flames spread like lightning to the inflammable material in the mill yard. The whole brigade turned out, but it was evident no human power could save the mill or factory, and all that could be done was to try and confine the limits of destruction. In a short time, however, the whole of Brennan's block in Sparks-street, including Mills & Son's marble works, the sanitary plumbing establishment of O. Higman, Henry & Co., a vacant store formerly occupied as the Dominion gas inspection office, and the Ottawa manufacturing company's stores were on fire. Part of Parker's dyeing establishment, formerly [illegible] caught. The lower part of [illegible] of Parker's establishment, except a small dwelling attached, were saved. Of the mill and factory nothing is left but [illegible].

The losses were as follows: Thackray's mill, $17,000, no insurance; Parker & Co., $1,000, insured; Shore & Co., $10,000, insured [illegible] $1,200; C. J. Brennan, on building about $1,000.

RAN INTO A TRAP.

Decoyed to the States and Arrested for a Two-Year-Old Vermont Robbery.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June 3.—Jerome Converse, who, with two others, forcibly entered the house of G. C. Allen at Chester Depot, Vt., in August, 1888, and at the muzzle of a revolver took $1200, besides gold watches and other valuables, was arrested to-day at Eastport, Me., having been decoyed there from this city, where he has been for some time. He was known here as J. K. Flagg, under which name he also lived for some time at Eastport. He lived high here, and ran an employment agency. He wanted to lease the Hotel Stanley, but the proprietor, who lives at Eastport, de[illegible] got [illegible] Eastport owner to enter into a plot with them. Flagg was approached and allowed the lease of the hotel [illegible] he would have to go to [illegible] and see Mr. Prescott, the owner, so as to get the lease transferred. He took the boat and went by steamer to Eastport to-day. When he stepped on the wharf there Sheriff Kilby took him in custody. He could not be arrested in St. John, because his was a non-extraditable offence [illegible] the county in force [illegible] the crime was committed. Flagg lived in Stanley, Ont., for some time under the name of J. O. Hawkins.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Stonecutters' Strike Ended—A Convict's Escape.

TORONTO, June 4.—The stonecutters' strike is ended. They were getting 38 cents per hour and struck for 47 cents. The masters compromise to give them 42 cents per hour.

It is not often that a convict escapes from the Central Prison, and very seldom that one succeeds in riding off with a fine democrat wagon and a rattling span of horses attached, one an Arab, pure white, the other a splendid grey-coated roadster. Yet this is the feat performed in Dunedin, Simcoe County, on Sunday night, by Charles Richmond, a middle-aged man of fresh complexion, about 44 years of age, who recently made his escape from the Central. Charles the Bold is supposed to be on his way to cross the border, and as a liberal reward is offered for his apprehension, it is hoped that he will be captured soon.

ARRESTED FOR CHARIVARING.

A Hostile Demonstration by Strikers at the Ontario Cotton Mills.

HAMILTON, June 3.—There was considerable excitement in the vicinity of the Ontario Cotton Mills last evening when the workmen came out. A number of men and women hostile to the weavers who returned to their looms were on hand and demonstrated their disapproval of their conduct by charivaring them. When Mrs. Tope and another woman came out they were followed by a noisy mob, the leaders of which were armed with fish horns and kazoos, which they blew vigorously. The two women were followed along the street and were afraid they would be roughly handled, but they were not injured. Mrs. Tope had summonses issued against a man named Car[illegible] and Mrs. Wright and [illegible] for trying to intimidate her. One of the women laid a contra charge of [illegible] Mrs. Tope. The cases were continued in the Police Court this morning on account of Mrs. Tope's illness caused by nervous prostration.

Patrick Boquett and James Ennis, two young men, were arrested last night on suspicion of being implicated in the indecent assault alleged to have been committed on Mrs. Ellen McKenna on Sunday last. At the request of the Chief the case was laid over until to-morrow morning, so that Michael Ryan, the third party, can be brought up from jail and the three prisoners tried at once.

An Ontario Artist's Laurels.

LONDON, Ont., June 3.—For the first time in the history of the French Salon the gold medal for special excellence has been awarded to a native of the American continent. The proud possessor of the great honor is a Canadian and a native of London named Peel, a son of John R. Peel, stonecutter of Richmond-street. Mr. Peel is not yet 30 years old.

Mr. Peel's picture, which has secured for the young artist this much-coveted honor, is entitled Apres le Bain (after the bath), and represents two children undraped standing on a rich carpet in the warm firelight, which glows upon their shapely little bodies. It was selected by the judges from 10,000 paintings executed by the best artists of both continents.

Infanticide at Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, June 3.—The body of a male infant confined in a starch box was found yesterday afternoon in the Roman Catholic cemetery. At an inquest to-day it was testified by Dr. Elliott that the child had apparently come to its death by violence. The inquest was adjourned until to-morrow.

Crushed Between Two Saw Logs.

PICTON, June 3.—One of A. W. Hepburn's teamsters, named John Irvine, was instantly killed this forenoon by being crushed between two saw logs he was unloading from a truck.

Petitions to the Powers are being circulated for signatures in Crete, demanding that a Governor almost independent of the Porte be appointed; that all fiscal revenues be ceded to the Cretan administration; that the native police be re-established; that the Turkish troops be withdrawn, and that the tribunals be reformed.

A MAIL ROBBER SHOT.

Futile Attempt in the Northwest Territories—Smoked His Pipe in Church.

WINNIPEG, June 3.—An attempt was made to rob the Battleford mail while lying up at Otter [illegible], N.W.T., Saturday night. The would-be robber [illegible] two cans of [illegible] and demanded that Courier E. Woodcock open up the registered and other letters which were inside. Woodcock shot through the door and the robber fled shrieking with pain. The registered and other mail is believed to be all right.

I. H. Shaw, proprietor of the woolen mills at Fish Creek, was arraigned before Superintendent McGibbon, Calgary, charged with disturbing public worship in the Church of England, Fish Creek, by smoking his pipe. Shaw claimed he did not smoke while the service was going on, but when the benediction was being pronounced. He was sentenced to pay $10 and costs or 14 days in jail. He took the latter.

THE NIAGARA CENTRAL ROUTE.

A Line [illegible] for the Extension from St. Catharines to Hamilton.

ST. CATHARINES, June 3.—The line of the St. Catharines and Niagara Central Railway on its extension toward Hamilton will pass from its present station down Welland-street at the north end of the park and span the old canal with a fine steel bridge. Passing a short distance south of A. Pay's farm on the west side, it will run almost parallel with the Grand Trunk Railway to Jordan, where a divergence towards the escarpment will be made, and the Twenty-mile creek there crossed by a heavy embankment of the finest work, and a substantial bridge over the water course. The railway line will then be carried through the [illegible] village of [illegible], and on nearing Grimsby will likely take a small slice off the camp ground there and proceed towards Hamilton over a comparatively level country, working as near the lakeside as possible.

The probabilities are that the present village of Winona will become the junction and an important stopping place for trains, which will diverge over the beach at Hamilton, or when the T., H. & B. road is built [illegible] through Hamilton [illegible]'s hollow with a tunnel under the hill near the Desjardins canal and then onward through Milton to West Toronto Junction, about half a mile west of Parkdale. There may be some changes from the foregoing, but they will be slight. The company is already negotiating about the bridges and other important matters.

Bud Lindsay's Second Murder.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 3.—Reports received here state that Bud Lindsay, deputy-marshal, shot and killed Kitts, a distiller, in Campbell county. Lindsay is a desperate character. This is his second murder.

ST. JOHN'S CRIME RECORD.

Murder, Attempted Murder, Assaults, Attempted Suicide and Swindling.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June 3.—Criminal business appears to be booming to an almost unprecedented extent lately. Two men are now on trial for murder, one for adultery and one for stabbing with intent to kill.

On Saturday night a man named Tucker nearly killed his brother-in-law, named McGonell, by striking him on the head with a bottle. The latter is in the hospital, the former is locked up.

Allan Morgan was arrested last night charged with attempted criminal assault on a girl named Logan.

Bella Shaw, who attempted suicide with carbolic acid but recovered, is under arrest and will be tried for the crime of attempted self-murder, the first time such a case was ever tried here.

A girl named Hattie Kingston, alias Emma Wilson, was arrested on a charge of swindling by the confidence game an old lady out of a lot of jewelry and cash.

A Ball Player in Trouble.

LONDON, Ont., June 3.—Two former members of the Tecumseh baseball team, Catcher Rooney Sweeney and Pitcher Maguire, figured in the Police Court to-day. Sweeney had been arrested for drunkenness, but Maguire laid information against him for larceny. It appears that Maguire drew $50 from the Bank of Toronto last week and had $40 in his pocket on Sunday evening when he retired to his room in the Grand House. On waking on Monday morning his money was gone. He informed the police. Detectives Phair and Ryder arrested Sweeny last night in a maudlin condition, and a search revealed $37.40 on his person, tied up in a handkerchief. The prisoner stated that he only took the money to take care of it until Maguire was sober. Maguire denies that he was intoxicated, and says he only took ten small glasses of lager during Sunday night. Sweeney decided to be tried by the judge. Maguire was ready to withdraw the charge, but this was not allowed. Maguire has signed the total abstinence pledge, and says he won't be found in such a "box" again.

An Exeter Man's Suicide.

LEXINGTON, Mich., June 3—John Douglas came to Croswell Friday to work for Pasput, the tailor. He was under the influence of liquor all the time he was there. About 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon he went to Dandie's drug store for laudanum, but was refused. He then went to Graham's drug store and said he had a sore leg which pained him considerably, and wanted a small quantity of laudanum to bathe it. They gave it to him. He then went to the Franklin House and sat writing and scribbling until bed time. About nine o'clock next morning the proprietor rapped at his door, but got no reply. He then broke in the door and found Douglas dead. The bottle, with a few drops of laudanum left, was found in his room. He left a letter addressed to his wife, Elsie Douglas, Exeter, Ont., saying: "I am going to another land. Farewell. I am dying among strangers.—JOHN A. DOUGLAS."

A Great Case Settled.

MONTREAL, June 3.—The case celebre of John Ross against the Canadian Pacific Railway Company was settled this morning. Mr. Ross sued the company for $60,000, balance of an account for the construction of the Lake Superior section of the C.P.R. The company met that suit by a counter demand of $2,000,000 for alleged mismanagement and damages resulting from it. The case was to be argued this morning, but counsel on both sides announced that the case had been settled, Mr. Ross accepting the $60,000 offered to him by the company who also agree to drop their incidental demand for two million dollars and further bind themselves to publicly withdraw the charges of mismanagement.

The Royal Party at Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 3.—The Duke and Duchess of Connaught have spent the day seeing the sights in and around Montreal, and in the afternoon shot the Lachine Rapids on the steamer Sovereign. To-night there is a reception at Sir George Stephen's. They go to Ottawa in the morning and return to dine with Sir Donald Smith and be present at a reception given by Lady Smith.

MURDER AT THE CAPITAL.

AN ITALIAN SLAIN BY A FELLOW-COUNTRYMAN.

The Crime Taking Place in the Street—The Victim Stabbed and Dies from Loss of Blood—The Murderer Escapes Arrest.

OTTAWA, June 3.—An Italian named Vincenzo Ginnelli was deliberately murdered by a fellow-countryman while walking in Preston-street about 6 o'clock this evening.

A whole gang quarrelled during the afternoon and then the two set out together for Dorion's Hotel.

On the way Ginnelli was stabbed in the leg from behind, the femoral artery being severed.

The murderer escaped.

WHEAT FROM THE FAR NORTHWEST.

Secretary Rusk Receives [illegible] of the Ladoga Variety.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Secretary of Agriculture Rusk has just received specimens of wheat of the Ladoga variety, the seed of which was purchased in the Province of Archangel, [illegible] miles northwest of St. Paul. This wheat ripens [illegible] earlier than red Fife, which has heretofore been considered the best variety of spring wheat for so high latitude. Next year the Secretary intends purchasing specimens of the Ladoga variety 800 miles still further north. The wheat mentioned weighs sixty pounds to the bushel.

Secretary Rusk also received at the same time samples of oats and barley raised by Bishop Bompas at Fort Simpson, on McKenzie River, 2000 miles northwest of St. Paul, which territory, in the opinion of experts, promises in the near future to become the greatest wheat growing belt in the world and which, when put under perfect cultivation, will, they prophesy, revolutionize and overturn all past calculations of the world's wheat supply.

THE WORLD OF SPORT.

The Buffalo Internationals Transferred to Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 4.—The Buffalo International team has been transferred to this city and all games scheduled in Buffalo will hereafter take place on the Shamrock lacrosse grounds here. Toronto opens here Monday. Baseball is something of an experiment here but all lovers of sport hope for the success of the scheme.

Morris' Stable's Sensational Success.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The sensation of the season in racing circles is the great success of the Morris stable, especially in relation to the two-year-olds. Their success has aroused a desire to know just how much this great stable won at the Brooklyn meeting as compared with the other stables. The remarkable fact is developed that one-fourth of the total amount of money competed for at the meeting was won by Mr. Morris, all but $600 of which fell to his two-year-olds. Mr. Morris' total winnings were $43,280 out of $172,312. Of this amount Russell won $21,905, Chatham $7290, Correction $[illegible], Terrifier $[illegible], Ambulance $[illegible], Woodcutter $[illegible], Dr. Helmuth $450, Reckon $200, King's Own $150. Of the other stables Walbaum won $15,200, the Beverwyck stable (including Castaway's Suburban) $[illegible], Mr. Withers won $9880, Hough Brothers $8105, Belmont $8070, Green Morris $6995, Father Bill Daly $6338, Dwyer Brothers $5519, the Hon. W. L. Scott $5440, Lakeland (including Exile) $5695.

International Billiard Tourney Off.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The billiard tourney that it was thought probable might be held in Paris this summer is now off. It was believed at one time that it would be a profitable venture for Americans to cross the ocean and engage in cue battles with French experts with an understanding that the foreigners would agree to a return tourney in this country next winter. The matter was under consideration by a Chicago company, and George Slosson was ardently in favor of it. The capitalists of the company have decided that it would be inexpedient to go into the undertaking. As a result Slosson will not take his anticipated trip to Europe, but will stay in town all summer.

Off Hand Rifle Shoot.

ORILLIA, June 3.—At the monthly shoot of the Off Hand Rifle Association Orillia's total score was as follows at 100 yards and 200 yards: F. J. Delany 97, G. R. Whiten 94, A. Harvie 95, H. Bingham 79, W. McDonald 73, J. D. Fortier 78, C. Fortier 86, F. Wood 97, W. W. Wood 97, W. Hammond 65; grand total 860.

The Epsom Meeting Opened.

LONDON, June 3.—The Epsom meeting opened to-day. The race for the Woodcote stake of 1000 sovereigns was won by Blake's Melody, North's Simonian 2, Nixon's Hildebert 3.

Hotel Boy Out-trots Maud B.

BARRIE, June 3.—A matched race between McGowan's Hotel Boy and Brodrick's Maud B. for $100 a side came off to-day over the Barrie track which resulted in favor of Hotel Boy in straight heats.

Sunday Observance in Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 3.—Cardinal Taschereau has opened war on the use of Sunday for political meetings, excursions and public performances, etc. It is understood that he will shortly issue a pastoral on the subject.

Common Sense

In the treatment of slight ailments would save a vast amount of sickness and misery. One of Ayer's Pills, taken after dinner, will assist Digestion; taken at night, will relieve Constipation; taken at any time, will correct irregularities of the Stomach and Bowels, stimulate the Liver, and cure Sick Headache. Ayer's Pills, as all know who use them, are a mild cathartic, pleasant to take, and always prompt and satisfactory in their results.

"I can recommend Ayer's Pills above all others, having long proved their value as a

Cathartic

for myself and family."—J. T. Hess, Leithsville, Pa.

"Ayer's Pills have been in use in my family upwards of twenty years, and have completely verified all that is claimed for them."—Thomas F. Adams, San Diego, Texas.

"I have used Ayer's Pills in my family for seven or eight years. Whenever I have an attack of headache, to which I am very subject, I take a dose of Ayer's Pills and am always promptly relieved. I find them equally beneficial in colds; and, in my family, they are used for bilious complaints and other disturbances with such good effect that we rarely, if ever, have to call a physician."—H. Voullieme, Hotel Voullieme, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4, 1890

RALLY TO-NIGHT.

THE time for discussion is almost entirely gone. Work is now to be done. There should be a large rally at Mr. Carnegie's committee rooms to-night to make final preparations for the election to-morrow.

POLL THE VOTE.

AT nine o'clock to-morrow the polls will be opened, and the great requisite then will be to see that every vote is polled. Let the election not be endangered by any oversight in this regard, but let every elector as promptly as possible mark his ballot. Those who would have an elector believe that one vote does not matter much are setting a snare, for if many took this view good government would be impossible of attainment. See that every vote is polled.

Vote for CARNEGIE and Equal Rights for all.

THE ISSUE IS CLEARLY DEFINED.

TO-MORROW evening the electors will have cast their ballots and the election will be over. The issues in this campaign have been freely and fairly placed before the people by one side, while on the side of the Government candidate they have been met only by quibbling, by misrepresentation and by personal attacks. A defence of the refusal of the Government candidate to vote for the measures introduced into the House to give equal rights to all has not been made.

He voted against the bill to make every ratepayer a presumptive supporter of the Public schools;

Against the bill to provide for the ballot in all school elections;

Against the bill requiring all teachers in state-aided schools to have proper certificates;

Against the bill abolishing religious representation on the High School Boards;

Against the motion declaring that the schools belong to the ratepayers and should be governed by them, untrammelled by clerical control;

Against the motion declaring that the Separate schools were subject to legislative control;

Against the motion maintaining the right of the Legislature to prescribe the text books to be used in all schools receiving Government funds;

And he is opposed to every plank in the Equal Rights platform as well as opposed to every plank in Mr. Meredith's platform.

For his votes in the House on these questions no defence that the electors can consider has been made, and the record stands against Mr. Stratton, a record that cannot be disregarded by the electors and one that merits condemnation at their hands. Upon all these question Mr. Carnegie has taken his stand on the side of equal rights and no exclusive privileges. The dividing line is clearly marked, and each voter is called upon to do his part in deciding which platform is in the interest of this great and growing Province—whether the policy of extending and enlarging class legislation shall be continued, or whether a halt shall be called and a policy of equal rights shall take the place of special privileges in the affairs of Ontario. We are confident that a large majority of the electors of this constituency will not be found on the side of special privileges; we are confident that a majority will declare, by the only effective course open to them, the exercise of the franchise, that by his acts and votes Mr. Stratton has forfeited their confidence, and that a majority will Vote for Mr. Carnegie.

LABOR AND LEGISLATION.

MR. CARNEGIE's organ complains that the Examiner did not denounce Mr. Jury as it did Mr. McCarthy for "interfering in domestic affairs." Simply because Mr. Jury had a right, being a member of a labor organization himself, to accept the invitation of a local organization to speak here. The REVIEW denies the labor party the equal right of having their views presented on a public platform.—Examiner.

That paragraph is as cowardly, as mean and as untruthful as Mr. Stratton's attempt to drag the labor organizations into party politics. Mr. Jury himself said from the platform that he did not speak as a representative of organized labor and the labor organization did not invite Mr. Jury to come here to give a political speech. The meeting was entirely a political one, but as it was in Mr. Stratton's interest, as it was his meeting and not an Equal Rights, Conservative or labor meeting, the Examiner did not object to "outside interference," as it impertinently called Mr. McCarthy's address. The Examiner repeats the insult and injury to the labor organizations of trying to mislead the people into believing that they are party agents.

Mr. Jury, who was Mr. Stratton's advocate, had so little that he could truthfully say to the workingmen on behalf of the Mowat Government or its candidate that he had to quote measures introduced by private members and by the leader of the Opposition as if they had been Government measures!

He praised manhood suffrage, for which Mr. Meredith voted in 1873 and for which the Opposition pressed at different times, while the Government strongly opposed it. The credit for that measure does not belong to the Government.

He pointed to the act by which a workingman was entitled to three months' pay in the event of the assignment of an employer. This measure was framed and introduced by Mr. Meredith.

He pointed to the act exempting wages to the extent of $25 from being garnished. And that was another measure introduced by Mr. Meredith.

He praised the employers' liability act. Again that was a measure introduced by Mr. Meredith. But the Government threw it out and next year introduced it themselves, but they left out the clause providing that an agreement waiving the right of a workman under the act would be illegal and reducing the term to which damages were limited to three years instead of five. They re-introduced the bill, but in a less favorable shape for workmen.

When the franchise was extended to farmers' sons the Opposition tried to give the same privilege to sons of mechanics and others in towns and cities, but the Government refused.

And last session, when the bill regarding exemptions was before the House, Messrs. Ingram and Graham moved that "the annual income of any person derived from his personal earnings to the amount of $700" be exempt, and against this the members of the Government and Mr. Stratton voted, while Mr. Meredith voted for the motion and with the labor men, Messrs. Ingram and Garson.

The act to regulate mining operations, which Mr. Jury mentioned, as introduced by Hon. Mr. Hardy recognized the employment of women and children of any age at mines (section 6 as introduced), and it was owing to the watchfulness and objections of Mr. Meredith that it was amended.

The Government and its candidate have no claims upon the workingmen, and they, as others with the welfare of their country at heart, should vote against the Government candidate.

Vote against the opponent of honest Government and for CARNEGIE and civil equality.

THE candidate who voted against every measure and motion calculated to give equal rights is unmistakably an enemy of equal rights.

A CLAIM of having a surplus by a Government that has expended millions over its revenue is no answer to the argument that there should be no special privileges in Ontario.

THE Examiner says that the Mowat Government is supported by Principal Caven. That is not true. Dr. Caven is a supporter of the Equal Rights candidates in Toronto, one of whom at any rate has been a Conservative.

"As to the working of the Separate School Act while it remains in force, I can only repeat what I lately said, that except in so far as the British North America Act or the special character of Separate schools necessarily determines otherwise, these schools should be under the same regulations which apply to the common schools." —Rev. Dr. Caven in a letter read at an Equal Rights meeting in Toronto on Monday night.

"There are Equal Rights men who, like myself, are in general sympathy with the Reform party, there are those whose sympathies are with the other side; but what should prevent us from combining to promote a principle vital, as we believe, to the public life of Canada? I can imagine no reason except the strange morality which requires that you should make your party the keeper of your conscience. If political combination is of such a character that it must be so, the sooner the individual intelligence and conscience assert their rights in politics the better."—Rev. Dr. Caven.

IT is said that the Separate school amendments now condemned were not opposed in the House. That is incorrect. Mr. Meredith objected to the appointment of special inspectors for the Separate schools, objected to the special representation on the High School Boards, he objected to the principle that the Government could not control the text books used in Separate schools, and in 1882 he voted against Mr. Fraser's motion to kill a bill providing for the ballot in school elections.

Vote for CARNEGIE and no exclusive privileges.

A DOSE OF HER OWN MEDICINE.

Inconsistency of a Woman Who Wore a Big Hat to the Theatre.

"Talk about a woman's inconsistency! Well, I had an example of it to-night that fairly took my breath away," and the speaker took a puff at his cigar. "I was at the theatre, and of course my seat was directly behind one which contained a woman with a high hat. The hat was not only high, but it was topped off with waving plumes, and it soon started in to spoil the evening for me. The woman bobbed her head from side to side in a way that played the deuce with my nerves, because I was kept jumping from side to side in my efforts to catch glimpses of the actors. At first I didn't know what was the cause of her activity, but finally I discovered that the woman in front of her had on even a bigger hat than she wore herself. Well, I gave up trying to see the stage the rest of the first act and devoted myself to enjoying the plight of my tormentor, as she dodged on this side and on that to avoid the big hat in front of her.

"At the end of the act I got another seat, where I could see both the stage and the woman who had sat before me. She wasn't young or pretty (women who wear big hats at the theatre seldom are), and I confess I took great glee in seeing her go through the contortions through which she had recently put me, she became furious, and dropped remarks to her husband which I was sure were by no means complimentary to the woman in front."

"After the play I managed to get alongside the woman and walk out of the theatre at her elbow. If she wasn't muttering all the spiteful things imaginable to her husband about the poor creature whose hat had put her in such a temper, and bless you, it probably never occurred to her that she had been doing the same self-same thing which she thought so mean in her guilty sister. I hope that her experience taught her to look for the beam in her own eye first, but I've no idea it did. Some more of the same, please."—N. Y. Tribune.

If manure is thoroughly composted with rakings, sod or other refuse, it will be of better quality than if heaped and allowed to decompose rapidly. There is sometimes quite a loss of ammonia from manure that is exposed, or that is too closely packed, and the addition of substances which absorb the gases and prevent overheating not only prevents loss but improves the whole.

A sow that tenderly cares for her pigs is more valuable as a breeder than one of better breeding but careless. The number of pigs annually lost by careless sows is very large, and it is important to observe the disposition of a sow with her first litter.

Personal.

The Newcastle Musical Society is to give a band concert on Monday next, June 9th, and Mr. Thos. Dunn, Peterborough's popular baritone, is down on the programme to contribute.

Bought by a Bellevillian.

The bankrupt stock of M. Sullivan & Co. was sold in Toronto yesterday, and was purchased by Mr. J. W. Dunnett, of Belleville, at [illegible] cents on the dollar. Mr. G. H. Miller, of Belleville, is here in charge of the stock to-day and the store will be opened in a few days, when the stock will be run off at very close prices.

The Result on the 5th.

Politicians of both sides are working zealously for success. It is generally admitted that a large vote will be polled. The majority it is believed will not nearly be as large as the majority would be if the voting were taken on the quality of Hawley Bros. Teas. They carry an election every time. The poll is never closed and returns can be learned every day. Give Hawley's teas a trial. d120

Footing it on the 5th.

A veracious authority says that half the voters who go to the polls on Thursday will stand up and vote in Kidd's boots. This may apply more fully to the East Riding where Kidd is the candidate, but the fact remains that Kidd's boots (R. J's), that is, the boots Kidd sells, are a quality that will serve the electorate in and out of season. Give Kidd of Peterborough a call and try his Equal Right Shoes—every toe gets an equal right to its sole. d120

Two of One Name.

Two stalwart men graced the prisoners' box at the Police Court this morning, and strange to say both of them had the same cognomen. James Welsh, of Douro, who has been there before, was charged with drunkenness. He was fined two dollars or ten days, and not having the necessary wherewithal to pay the fine he went up. The other prisoner gave his name as Jim Welsh. He was a vagrant and not having any visible means of support he was sent to gaol for one month.

The Douro Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Douro R. C. church was held yesterday and was a great success. There was a large attendance, many citizens from town being present. Rev. Father Keilty had superintended the arrangements and guaranteed a good time to the vast crowd which turned out. Sports and games afforded amusement for a large number, while others enjoyed themselves at the dancing pavilion. Football and baseball also came in on the programme. Prof. Doucet's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing, while Mr. J. Coughlin was master of ceremonies on the platform. A pleasant open air concert was rendered, and which among other music Miss Annie Dunn sang and Messrs R. Tierney and D. Simons gave several inimitable songs and dances. The ladies had provided a most bountiful spread of good things, which were appreciated by the picnickers. Altogether the outing was a most enjoyable one.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL.

The Assessment of St. Joseph's Hospital Struck off—The New Market Building.

The Ashburnham Council met in regular session on Monday night. Mr. John Burnham, Reeve, presided, and present were Councillors Calcutt, Adams, Wand and Throop.

Before proceeding with business as a Council the members met as a Court of Revision to consider the assessment of St. Joseph's hospital, a matter which was left over from former meeting. After consideration it was moved by Councillor Calcutt, seconded by Councillor Wand,—That the assessment of the St. Joseph's hospital be struck off. The rolls were then finally adopted as amended.

GENERAL BUSINESS.

The Council then took up regular business and ordered the payment of a number of accounts.

Councillor ADAMS moved, seconded by Councillor THROOP,—That a sidewalk be laid on the west side of Concession-st. from the C.P.R. to F. Hee's house; also on the west side of Stewart-st. from Andrew Fawcett's to the C.P.R.—Carried.

In regard to the village uniting with the town in underdraining Smith-st., Councillor Adams moved a resolution, which was seconded by Councillor Calcutt, expressing the Council's willingness to unite with Peterborough in this work. The resolution carried.

Councillor CALCUTT introduced a by-law authorizing the borrowing of $1,000 for current expenditure. The by-law was given its readings and passed.

WORK WELL DONE.

At a former Council meeting some dissatisfaction with the manner in which the contract of the new village market building had been carried out was expressed and the architect, Mr. W. Blackwell, was asked to report. This report was received and reported the building had been finished, with the exception of one lock-up, and the architect considered the work well done.

Councillor CALCUTT moved, seconded by Councillor ADAMS,—That this Council, while accepting Mr. Blackwell's certificate as to the comp of Mr. Fitzgerald's contract re the town hall, as entitling Mr. Fitzgerald to payment for his contract, do not admit that the building is according to the directions of the Council and they hold the architect responsible for any work not properly done.

This resolution was carried and the Council adjourned.

Born, Married and Dead.

The vital statistics for the month of May as registered with Town Clerk Macdonald were as follows:—

Births	26
Marriages	19
Deaths	15

It might just be noted that there were four pair of twins among the 2? births registered.

Battalion Orders.

Among the regimental orders read at the parade of the 57th Battalion last evening were the following:—Corp. Foote, of "D" Company, was appointed Sergeant, vice Foster discharged; the examinations for corporal's certificates will take place tomorrow night; a march out of the battalion with the band will be held on Tuesday night next.

A Coming Entertainment.

The close of the term in the Collegiate Institute will be celebrated with an exhibition of physical exercises by the pupils in the drill shed on the evening of Thursday, June 12th. The exercises will be entirely new to the public and will consist of the latest exercises in physical training and the performance will be a varied one. Mr. Ketchum's Institute class will render choruses. The admission will be 10 cents; proceeds to pay for uniforms. d103-4t

Canadian Jubilee Singers.

Remember the entertainments to be given in the George-st. Methodist church on Thursday and Friday evening, June 5th and 6th, by the Canadian Jubilee Singers. The programme is varied and interesting and the selections are artistically rendered. The company have given very highly successful performances in many of the larger Canadian towns. Silver collection at the door. To begin at 8 p.m.

Dominion Day Celebration at Port Hope.

This year's programme for the celebration of Dominion Day in Port Hope is the best ever presented by that town. It comprises Aquatic Sports, Athletic Sports, Grand Horse Races, Baseball Match and other sports during the day. In the evening there will be a Magnificent Display of Fireworks, Balloon Ascensions, &c. We would strongly advise our readers to make their arrangements to spend Dominion in Port Hope. The programme there is always fully carried out. Any information desired can be obtained by writing W. R. BRAMHAM, Secretary of Committee. d120

Notice to License Holders.

Chief Rennel has received the following communication to which the attention of all license holders is directed:—

No sale or other disposal of liquor shall take place in any licensed premises within the limits of a polling sub-division on any polling day for or at any Parliamentary election or election of a member for the Legislative Assembly, or any municipal election, or on any day on which a vote in accordance with the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act is being taken, from or after the time of six o'clock in the morning of the second day until the following lawful day at six o'clock in the morning—47 Vic., chap. 34, sec. 14.

You will please govern yourself accordingly.

GEORGE COCHRANE,

New Lodge at Norwood.

King William Lodge, L.T.B., went to Norwood last evening where a new lodge of True Blues was organized. Bro. A. Manning, D.D.G.M., officiated, assisted by Bro. Geo. Sloan, D.D.G.M., and about thirty brethren from Peterborough, including the band. The new lodge will be known as Brittannia Lodge and the officers elected were as follows:—

Geo. Williams	W.M.
Hugh Hill	D.M.
F. Becket	Treas.
N. Reynolds	Sec.
Jas. Becket	D. of C.
R. Weese	Chaplain
F. Woods	I.G.

COMMITTEE.—John Weese, Jas. Robertson, Robert Hill, A. Anderson, J. McKelvie.

After organization the brethren adjourned to Drain's hotel were an elaborate spread was partaken of and a good time enjoyed.

Vote against the opponent of honest Government and for CARNEGIE and civil equality.

A SHORT SESSION.

The Regular Meeting of the Board of Education—The Business Done.

Despite the excitement of the election contest all the members were present a few minutes after eight o'clock at the regular meeting of the Board of Education last evening. The gentlemen present were Messrs. Dunne, Ferguson, Hamilton, Rudburn, Rutherford, Hill, Corkery, Wrighton, McKee, Dumble, Kendry, Dr. Burnham and Dr. Boucher. Mr. Jas. Stevenson, M. P., Chairman, presided.

Secretary Morrow read the minutes of the last meeting and then read the following reports and communications:—

THE ATTENDANCE.

The report of attendance for May was received as follows:—

	On Roll.	Avg.
Collegiate Institute	139	120
Central School	[illegible]	[illegible]
North Ward	137	122
West Ward	126	1[illegible]

THE FEES FOR MAY.

The fees for the month of May were reported as follows:—

Collegiate Institute	[illegible]
Kindergarten classes	[illegible]
Public schools	[illegible]

A LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Miss Annie Patace asked that she be granted a leave of absence for four months to allow her to attend the Normal school at Ottawa.—Received but no action could be taken.

THE ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were received:—

Taylor & Macdonald	$21 29
Gas Co.	[illegible]
Wm. Chapman, irons	12 [illegible]
Canada School Furnishing Co.	[illegible]
C. P. R. freight	1 [illegible]
Rathbun Co.	[illegible]
Jas. Montgomery, putting in desks	4 65

These accounts were referred to the Finance Committee.

THE FINANCE REPORT.

Dr. Burnham, Chairman of the Finance Committee, presented the report of that Committee recommending the payment of the following accounts:—

John McKee	$40 22
H. S. Macdonald	16 71
Water Co.	3 50
E. Green	14 47
P. C. Allen	34 50
T. E. Fitzgerald	8 16
Thos. Milburn	5 00

The report was adopted.

THE JANITOR AND TEACHERS.

Mr. Dunne read the report from the Supervision Committee to which was referred the complaints against the janitor, in which it was stated that his conduct has not been quite as courteous toward some of the teachers as it should have been, and respectfully suggested that he should be reprimanded.

The report was adopted.

NO HURRIED PROMOTIONS.

Mr. DUMBLE said that from the report of the attendance that had been received it was shown that in the highest rooms the average attendance was very large. To prevent pupils being promoted who were not qualified to be advanced but were pushed ahead on account of the want of room, he moved, seconded by Dr. Boucher,—That in the opinion of this Board best results could be obtained if promotions were only made when pupils were thoroughly fitted for promotion, and this Board suggest that this course be observed particularly in regard to the more advanced classes.

The motion carried.

THE NEXT MEETING.

It was pointed out that the next regular meeting night fell on July 1st and Mr Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Hill,—That the next meeting be held on the second Tuesday in July, 8th July.

OTHER BUSINESS.

Mr. ROBERTS moved, seconded by Mr WRIGHTON,—That the Chairman of the Property Committee be authorized to give orders on the treasurer for the payment of men employed in grading the school grounds.

Mr. DUMBLE moved, seconded by Mr. KENDRY,—That the Property Committe be authorized to build a shed at the North Ward school.—Carried.

The Board then adjourned.

Vote for CARNEGIE and no exclusive privileges.

The Police and Public Meetings.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—The writer in the Examiner who signs himself "Equal Rights" returns to the subject of the interruption at the meeting on Friday night, but he does not, for he cannot, dispute anything I said, and in view of the explanation given any doubt, if any existed, in regard to the impartiality of the police in the discharge of their duty, and of the Council or Supervision Committee, has been dispelled. Every public meeting is entitled to and receives police protection when it is asked for. That writer may not have heard that Mr. Cavanagh used abusive language to the officers, but it is a fact, nevertheless, and it was the immediate cause of his arrest, which I am in a position to prove. There was no editorial paragraph in the REVIEW of the 26th ult. referring to that arrest, as alleged by the Examiner correspondent, though there was one which referred to the interruption that grew from Mr. Weir his exposure of the way public offices are used to influence electors in favor of the Government candidate. As to the interruption at the Friday night meeting, the reports in all the papers show that it occurred at the time I referred to, when I beckoned to Mr. Weir, and it occurred because Mr. Weir was hissed and shouted at by a number in the hall who are, of course, displeased with his course, but Mr. Jury was not speaking then, for the stranger had taken the platform, and Mr. Weir had not said a word when the noise began. "Equal Rights" may be a convenient mask for the Examiner correspondent to hide behind, but it fits so badly and is so thin that it will not mislead anyone as to the writer, whose reference to Donnybrook comes quite naturally from him. Why does he not sign his own name?

Yours, &c.,
JAS. KENDRY.

Title and Family Now Extinct.

The death of Edmund Hammond, the first Baron Hammond, removes a potent figure from the ranks of British diplomats. From 1854 until the day of his demise he held the position of under secretary of state for foreign affairs, and, while not so prominent, was really a greater power than the various politicians who had charge of the foreign office, and of whom he was the nominal subordinate. His father, George Hammond, was the first minister from Great Britain to the United States. As the baron had no descendants or immediate relatives, the title now becomes extinct.

Double Wedding at a Death Bed.

At Rockford Ills., recently a double wedding was solemnized under peculiarly painful circumstances. Mary L. and Allie D. Williams were married beside their mother's death bed to C. E. Smith, of Chicago, and Walter D. Williams, of Rockford. The mother of the young women had been seriously ill for some weeks. When she realized that the end was near she asked that her daughters should be married. The young men were sent for and upon their arrival the ceremony was performed. The mother soon after lost consciousness.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

MRS. WINSLOW'S Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

The Daily Review.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

"To-morrow we—Margaret and I—dine with dear old Henry Leiter. I look forward to the visit with pleasure. Like a brook of pure water in an arid place, is he to my soul. How far from thoughts of strife and misery is that serene spirit! Living apart from the rest of the world as he does, with his beloved instruments, his boy and his books, he seems to me almost like a saint, cloistered in peaceful quietude. I am glad he does not know how hot my head is these days. He would feel worried, and I am hardly worth his anxiety. I have a thirst, a thirst consuming me. I cannot [illegible] it. Liquor adds to it, and the water that I pour over my hot throat does not affect it at all. It is a comfort to know that Leiter has a good dinner as a matter of faith."

If it had not been for the stiletto it might not have happened. But how contented I have felt since. And how I have slept! The parrot was a foolish toy. I know no one would mind if it was gone. But, really, I should never have thought of it if she had not played with the knife so near it. Who can help the association of ideas?

It felt very much as I thought it would. There was the warm throbbing, the crimson outpouring that I expected. It gave me a feeling of power. True, I could not create, like God, but I could kill and undo the work of God. No one knows how strange I felt—how full of life. I was strong enough to conquer anything, and I could hardly keep from calling out. I should have done so for the pleasure of it, if I had not been afraid of bringing Margaret. She watches me in a way that is impertinent for a child.

Then there was the rabbit. He had a great deal more blood in him, and he was harder to kill. But what was the use of letting such a joy grow cold? Why not repeat it often? The rake tore through him with a straining sound. He lived wonderfully long. I thought he would never die—but I was glad he was long about it.

They never guessed what I stole back to the conservatory for, I am persuaded. Of course they were a prying set, but I outwitted them. The house was horribly hot when I got home. The sleeplessness had come back—though I was happy, and that made it easier. Margaret said some strange things when we were coming home. The remembrance of them took me to her room. She was sound asleep, and she looked perfectly innocent. I have an idea that she [illegible] Harry's wife that night. If I [illegible] with suspicions, I—but I was sick. The restlessness was returning and I tried to conquer it at any price. I found a saloon still open, and I got a drink. It is a cursed infirmity that I can drink no more than a girl. It did not help my thirst, either. When I first looked up, I found myself in front of Leiter's. What if they had already found the rabbit? I determined to find out if I could. I crept to the veranda, and tried the windows. One was tight, but the other lifted easily. Once inside I closed it again and fastened it, for I was afraid that they might suspect I had been in to see about the rabbit. The gas was burning, but I did not see till I was well in the room, that Harry Leiter was watching me in his large leather chair. He had sat up to watch me. I saw that in his eyes, which were filled with fear as he looked at me, and his face that was so pale at having been found out. There had to be an end to his surveillance. Harry's knife was there; I knew it was Harry's and I determined that he ought to be punished for the way he looked at me when I came out of the conservatory. So I used it. It was a pity that Leiter had to be sacrificed! We had been good friends—but I could not have him spying. It did not take long to do all I wanted. He was as easy to manage as a child, and I never saw such red blood. It was beautiful. For the sake of our old friendship, I marked it with that glowing liquid. He looked like a victor crowned for death. Death! He is dead, sure enough. It is hard for me to remember it; but I would not have him babbling. At the next hour! Shall I ever forget how long, how full it was! As I walked the streets I felt as if I was born to be mighty. Laws there might be for other men, but for me there was nothing but to do as I wished. Some men must pierce the secrets of life, and take stand with infinitude. I saw a thousand visions in different lands, and I seemed to be floating while I saw them in a cloud of scarlet glory above earth. Yet in a way I participated in these visions, and knew the joy there was in life. I felt the joy of the Turk, the Arab, the Spaniard, the Italian, the mystic, the worshipper, the women of all times, the joy of little children—I knew at last how to estimate the accumulated happiness of earth. But it suddenly occurred to me that Margaret might have been watching, and that she was feigning sleep when I was in her room. If that was so, there was only one thing for it. It was a pity again, and I might miss her terribly, for Margaret is a sweet thing. Still, I did not much doubt what I should have to do. I did not like to enter by the door, for fear that some one would see me. The trellis work above the porte cochere is easy to climb, and I did it like a schoolboy. Yet it took me too long. She had not locked her window, foolish girl. Those who spy ought to take precautions. I got in without trouble. I knew where she lay, and there would have been no need of lighting the gas if I had not been unarmed. But I had dropped Harry's knife outside in the snow after I had left the front door, and so I had to light the gas. When I did I could find nothing. Margaret slept, or pretended to sleep, softly. I stood above her for a long time. I wanted to kiss her—my dear! Her brown hair framed her tender face. It was not the face of one given to spying. I concluded to let the matter go till I had better proof—besides, I should be so lonely without my little daughter. So I turned down the gas and went to my room. Then I slept that night like the dead. I am much nearer my goal than I was before.

"I have read the last few pages with incredulity. Have I been the victim of some terrible illusion? I dared not inquire. I made my way to the office of the Daily Chronicle and examined the files. It is certain that my old friend had been killed. It is certain that the manner of his killing coincides with the description written by me in this book. The more I think about it the more positive I am that all written here is accurate. But I find no expressions of horror or fear. In my heart, to tell the truth, I feel little horror now. My old friend dead! I know that such intelligence should fill me with unspeakable sorrow. At this moment I should be suffering the wildest remorse. Yet it is not so. I feel nothing but astonishment. I think I should be glad, though, if I belonged to the Catholic church, or if I knew some great physician. I am growing sleepless again. As for the thirst, I am never free from it. How odd it is that the most peculiar events will seem familiar and natural when they really come. I wonder if it would not be better—safer—if Margaret would go away.

"There is a reporter on the Chronicle, who is a prying, impertinent fellow. It is very curious if I cannot even visit my own dog kennel without having him at my heel. I could tell him something that would make him more cautious. If it is necessary I will illustrate my remarks. He is trying to get acquainted with my daughter Margaret. He may be sorry for it yet. I want no conspiracies about me.

"I find no comfort in writing now. I have discovered some curious things. If the world were not so miserable—if there were not so much law—What am I trying to say? There were great days that the cave-dwellers lived in. Then a man who knew how to kill was given his proper place. He was a leader.

"Peace again! And at a small price. He was a miserable creature. I saw starvation and fear in his face. He was barefoot and half naked. Now he will not feel the cold any more. He is at rest. And I can sleep again. I shall be very merciful in the future to all who come before me charged with crime. Crime does not mean what men think it does. It is often disguised philanthropy.

"That reporter has been up here again. He is the most impertinent knave I have ever seen. And he came much nearer than he knew to meeting with me in a way that would not have pleased him. Oh, God! Oh, God! Curse him! Hide me safely! Curse him! Or let me tear out his tongue and his eyes. I wonder why people suffer so? I have seen so many suffer. My heart has bled for years, and now I am suffering for my own troubles, and not for those of others.

DEATH FROM THE CLOUDS.

Lightning Explodes 5000 Pounds of Powder at Mansfield, O.

MANSFIELD, O., June 3.—This afternoon during a thunderstorm lightning struck the powder house one mile east of here owned by Tracy & Beaver, which contained over 5000 pounds of powder. A terrific explosion followed that was felt in all parts of the city. The dwelling of Henry Roost across the road, in which were his wife and three children, was shivered to atoms. One child was crushed and hurled 20 feet away lifeless. Another was fatally injured and the mother is yet unconscious.

GLENWOOD, Ia., June 3.—A terrific thunderstorm passed over this city last night. A huge smokestack fell and tore its way through the roof of the State institute for the feeble-minded, crushing almost to pulp two boys and injuring five others, two probably fatally.

A WORLD'S FAIR ATTRACTION.

Negotiating for Cleopatra's Bones—Price 800,000 f.o.b. at Alexandria.

CHICAGO, June 3.—Alex. Tagliaferro of Alexandria, Egypt, writes to the directors of the World's Fair that he is in a position to furnish them an interesting exhibit. He has sent the officials a photograph of a sarcophagus which he believes and claims is that of Cleopatra. It was recently discovered in Cæsar's camp near Alexandria. After paying the Egyptian Government its dues, the writer says, he sold it to a friend for a speculation. When the sarcophagus was opened the contents were in ashes with the exception of the skeleton, which is still preserved. Tagliaferro says he is prompted to negotiate with the exposition authorities from notices which he has seen in newspapers from the United States announcing that the Khedive of Egypt has been asked by the directors of the exposition for the mummy of Rameses. His price is 800,000 free on board at Alexandria.

NAP WAS INSANE.

Trial of "Prince" Bonaparte for Attempt to Murder at Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 3.—Louis Albert Napoleon Bonaparte, self styled Prince of Denmark, Crown Prince of Hanover, Imperial pretender to the throne of France, was tried by a jury in the Court of Queen's Bench this morning for having attempted to kill Special Constable Randall Cole at the Windsor Hotel on April 15 last, by firing a revolver at him, the bullet missing Cole's [illegible]. [illegible] the accused is [illegible] to be detained [illegible] Lieutenant-Governor [illegible] to an insane asylum.

Wedding Bells at Woodstock.

WOODSTOCK, June 3.—Miss Maggie Gordon, daughter of the late Adam Gordon, Wellington-street, and one of the best known society ladies of Woodstock, was married this afternoon to Mr. Herbert Montague Padden, of Chicago. The marriage was performed in New St. Paul's by the rector, Rev. J. C. Farthing, in the presence of an immense congregation of spectators. The bride looked charming in a costume of white brocaded silk, with silk lace petticoat and white tulle veil, caught up by natural white heather. There were five bridesmaids: Miss Fisher, Toronto; Miss Walker, Hamilton; Miss Forrest, Chicago; Miss Maggie Ward, Chicago, and Miss Maggie Fallis, Woodstock. The maids wore primrose cashmere trimmed with silver armure, with silk crepe de chene. Mr. Robert Ristani, of Chicago, acted as groomsman. The young couple left by the 5.20 train for the East to spend their honeymoon.

Scaly Skin Diseases

Psoriasis 5 years, covering face, head and entire body with white scabs. Skin red, itchy and bleeding. Hair all gone. Spent hundreds of dollars. Pronounced incurable. Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

Cured by Cuticura

My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed; it then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head, and shoulders being the worst. The white scabs fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using two bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT and one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I thought the disease would leave a very deep scar, but the CUTICURA REMEDIES cured it without any scars. I cannot express with a pen what I suffered before using the CUTICURA REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recommend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight. I know of others who have received great benefit from their use.
MRS. ROSA KELLY, Rockwell City, Iowa.

SARSAPARILLA

Coughs, Colds, Croup.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

SLAIN BY AN ANGRY BLOW

A QUARREL WHICH TERMINATED IN A MURDER.

George Houghton Killed by Edward Rumford While the Men Were Logging Near Mitchell—The Victim Lives Only a Few Hours.

MITCHELL, June 4.—George Houghton was murdered yesterday afternoon by Edward Rumford.

The men were engaged in logging on lot 2, concession 14, of Logan, about 12 miles north of here.

Houghton's wife, who was on the ground where they were working, was having a dispute with Rumford when the husband interfered.

Rumford struck Houghton a blow on the head with a handspike, splintering the skull.

Realising what he had done, Rumford came to town for Dr. Murray and told him what had happened.

Dr. Murray at once started for the scene of the tragedy, but on his arrival he found Houghton dead, the blow having proved fatal in a few hours.

Rumford, who is related to the Houghtons, had been living with them.

The victim was a young man and bore a good reputation.

Rumford is said to be on his way to town to give himself up to the authorities.

She Planned to Murder a Banker.

PITTSBURG, June 4.—Mrs. Sarah Randolph, aged 65, has been arrested at Newcastle, Lawrence county, for trying to induce Samuel Kissinger to kill William S. Foltz, president of the First National Bank at that place, for $1500. The woman has served a term in the penitentiary for an unnatural crime. Kissinger also served in the same prison for robbery. Kissinger revealed the woman's plan to Foltz, and detectives shadowed her for three weeks, hoping to discover a mysterious third party who was to furnish the money. Kissinger in the meantime pretended to carry out the plot. Foltz grew nervous and had the woman arrested before the third party was located. It was a cold blooded scheme on the part of the woman, who says she had no grievance against Foltz. Her counsel will enter a plea of insanity.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

The Duke of Orleans Issues a Manifesto—Blaine Censured.

PARIS, June 4.—Upon his release from prison at Clairvau the Duke of Orleans said he regretted having to leave France. The Duke of Luynes accompanied the exiled Prince to Basle, whence the latter started for England. The Socialists in the Chamber of Deputies intend to propose that the Government declare a complete amnesty. The Duke of Orleans, in a manifesto to French conscripts, says the sorrows of exile are a mere exchange for captivity. His ardent desire to serve the country is unchanged. He asks his dear comrades to keep a place for him and he will come and take it for God and France.

The Thunderer Censures Blaine.

LONDON, June 4.—The Times declares that the order to despatch American cruisers to Behring Sea smacks too much of the methods of the first Napoleon in dealing with weak statesmen and that if the order is executed British men-of-war must follow. "We can only imagine," The Times continues, "that pressure from Irish-Americans has induced Mr. Blaine to withdraw from his apparent desire for a diplomatic settlement. We believe England will agree to a close time for seals in the open sea, but such an arrangement must be international and cannot be imposed upon the world by American gunboats at the bidding of Mr. Blaine."

Losses Caused by Flames.

GUELPH, June 4.—The stables of the Victoria Hotel, owned by Thomas Ward of Toronto, were badly damaged by fire last night. The loss is between $400 and $500.

Expediting the Kemmler Case.

BUFFALO, June 4.—In the General Term of the Supreme Court to-day the decision of Judge Underwood of Auburn in the Kemmler habeas corpus case was affirmed. This allows the case to go at once to the Court of Appeals. The only question at issue is whether or not Kemmler can be legally executed by the Warden of Auburn Prison.

TUPPER COMING HOME

TO ASSIST IN SETTLING THE NEWFOUNDLAND DISPUTE.

The French Commander Talks—A New Version of the St. George's Bay Affair—His Story Contradicted—Indignation at White Heats at St. Johns.

LONDON, June 4.—Sir Charles Tupper, Canadian High Commissioner in England, will leave for Canada to-morrow to assist in the settlement of the Newfoundland fisheries trouble by advice and counsel.

THE FRENCH SIDE OF THE CASE.

Commander Marquis of the Warship Indre Interviewed.

SYDNEY, C.B., June 4.—The French war ship Indre, Commander Marquis, which was recently reported to have created consternation on the so-called French shore of Newfoundland, is now here, and The Island Reporter interviewed the commander, who said:

"The rights of our people on the French shore have been established by treaty and indisputably recognised for 300 years. These rights include the first privilege of taking fish by our people in the bays and harbors of that coast. When the British fishermen are there at the same time as our people, they must make room for the French and accord us the first chance. That has always been our recognised right, and when a British war ship is on the station her commander always sees to it that this is respected. All we have to do is to draw the attention of the British commander on the station to any complaints that we have and the cause is removed.

"But this spring there happened to be no British warships on the coast, none having arrived when I was there, and consequently I had to request the British fishermen myself in a few instances to make room for our people. There were at the time probably 500 nets set in Bay St. George, but I found it necessary only to request the removal of about a dozen of them in order to give the French fishermen a fair chance. My request was promptly complied with as usual, and the reports in such paragraphs as appear in the Halifax papers are extraordinarily exaggerated for political or trade purposes.

"Our fishermen are only on the shore and exert their privilege for a short time each year; last year about a month, this year only about 15 days; never longer than two months; only for that time do we interfere with the British residents fishing in every spot of the waters.

"What might be the political or trade purpose to which you referred as the cause of these exaggerated reports?" asked the reporter.

"Well, I observe in one report that as an alleged consequence of the action of the French authorities, the merchants of the coast are refusing to pay duties on the goods landed there now, that they set the Newfoundland customs authorities at defiance, and even demand a refund of duties paid by them for many years past. That accounts for the milk in the cocoanut, I think. The merchants of that shore are not in hearty accord with the Colonial Government at St. John's, and wish to incite the people to extremes. These merchants are comparatively few, and the people, though very good-hearted and genial themselves, are mostly ignorant and excitable, while they are entirely dependent upon these merchants, who have grown wealthy from their labors, and whose influence with them is almost supreme."

"Do you anticipate anything like serious trouble with the English on account of this or the establishment of the French canneries on the shore?" asked the reporter.

"None, whatever," replied the commander. "Our relations with the English residents of the coast in question and the people at St. John's have been and are the most amicable. All we ask is our fair rights, which have been freely accorded us in the past. There is really nothing to make a fuss about."

It may be added, however, that the French are not held in the greatest confidence by the English authorities here. This is the nearest Canadian port to Newfoundland, and much interest is felt in the events on the French shore of the island. This is also the chief victualling station for the French squadron in North American waters, and the men of their ships have frequently conducted themselves with arrogance ashore here, even landing with arms and drilling on British soil, until this was put a stop to by the British Admiralty, who sent a war ship down to look after them.

English officers here seem inclined to regard the French encroachments with distrust, and hint that under an English Cabinet which did not follow the "peace at any price" policy the French would long since have been warned off and taught a lesson. These officials hope, however, that the representations of the Newfoundland people in England will have the effect of waking up the home authorities to the importance of the occasion and effecting a final settlement with France by arbitration, and perhaps granting them a concession elsewhere in consideration of the total relinquishment of claims on the Newfoundland coast. The merchants of Sydney, however, acknowledge large ground for truth in the statement of disaffection between the French shore traders and the Newfoundland Government, these traders having held the local fishermen in bondage for generations without such a thing as an adjustment of accounts between master and man ever being thought of. The trading steamer Harlaw, which brought the news of disaffection from the French shore, would get all her accounts from the merchants there.

More Denunciations.

HALIFAX, June 4.—Newfoundland papers received by the steamer Miranda to-night are filled with fierce articles on the St. George's Bay affair, denouncing the attitude of the Imperial authorities and the British naval commanders in the most savage terms.

The St. John's Herald declares that the abduction of a British constable by a French fishing vessel and leaving him on the lonely Red Island was only the beginning of outrages. It asserts there was not a French fishermen within 200 miles of Sandy Point, Bay St. George, the spot where the Britishers were compelled to take up their nets on May 23. This seems to be a complete answer to the statement of Commodore Marquis.

The Herald declares that this outrage upon Imperial and Colonial rights was aggravated in the highest degree by the circumstances of insolence and violence which attended its perpetration.

The Herald goes on to declare that the people must fish, that they will defend themselves, and any further interference must result in bloodshed. On the events of the next few days hang the issue of life and death in the colony. If the blood of Newfoundland's sons is spilt and Britain looks on at the sacrifice The Herald fears that the long affection of the two countries may be quenched in the bosom of the people.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

The Storm Does Great Damage in Various Parts of Ontario.

MOUNT BRYDGES, June 4.—During last night's storm lightning struck the house of Richard Veal, doing over $800 damage.

WESTON, June 4.—Last night the barns and stables owned by W. Chalo were struck by lightning and burned to the ground. He managed by the assistance of neighbors to save the stock, but implements and grain were all lost.

BROOKLIN, June 4.—A heavy thunderstorm passed over this village last night and immediately following an unusually brilliant flash of lightning flames were seen issuing from the large tannery owned by William Murray & Co. The bucket brigade was promptly formed and succeeded in confining the flames to the burning building. Loss about $20,000, insurance about $10,000. Twenty-five men are thus thrown out of employment.

DELHI, June 4.—The thunderstorm of last night was the most disastrous known in these parts for years. Three barns with contents, as far as heard from, were destroyed. One was owned by Mathew Buchner, another by W. W. Clinton, the third by Peter Klump.

A Washout on the N. & N. W.

HAMILTON, June 4.—The heavy rainstorm of last night washed away the ballast under the N. & N. W. railway track for a considerable distance at Jarvis cut, near Jarvis. So serious was the washout that a ballast train was sent out from Hamilton this morning to repair the damage. Not much delay to traffic occurred. The train from the south, due here at 9.20 a.m., arrived at 1.20 p.m.

A Village Wrecked.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 4.—From a passenger who arrived from Bradshaw this morning it is learned only one person was killed by the cyclone, a child. Two houses only are left standing in the village.

This Bolt Was Fatal.

PARRY SOUND, June 4.—During a thunderstorm which passed over this place this evening the house of Joseph McGee was struck by lightning and his little daughter Josie instantly killed. Another child close by escaped although some little time afterwards affected by the shock. The lightning tore a hole through the roof and smashed the partition.

A Valuable Trotter Killed.

PLAINFIELD, N.J., June 4.—During a thunderstorm here this evening a tree was blown down across the roadway. It carried down a live electric wire. John Chandler's $3000 trotter Rambo while being driven back from the race track by his trainer, George Sadler, shied at the tree, ran into the wire and was killed. Rambo had a record of 2.20.

It Was Hot in New York.

NEW YORK, June 4.—This was the hottest June 4 for 20 years. The mercury reached 93 degrees. A remarkable but short lived electric storm to-night somewhat cooled the air.

An Iowa Cyclone.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 4.—A special to The Tribune from Chester, Ia., says a cyclone passed near this place at 3½ this afternoon. A schoolhouse was struck and completely demolished. Several pupils were fatally injured.

CHARGED WITH BURGLARY.

Suspicious Characters Placed Under Surveillance at Enterprise.

ENTERPRISE, June 4.—On Saturday night last the general store of A. Walker was entered by burglars and about $200 worth of stuff consisting of suits of clothes, watches, jewelry, shirts, ties, socks and other haberdashery was carried off. No trace was found of the offenders, but yesterday three suspicious characters were arrested about a mile from Enterprise and are held awaiting developments. They are young, between 21 and 25 years and slouchily dressed. On them was found a complete burglar's outfit, powder, jimmies, etc., and one of the youths carried a bag of jewelry, rings, brooches, etc., including a ladies' gold watch with a black guard with clasps of gold. The youths are thought to be Americans, as they seemed not to understand the mode of trials in this province.

Suspicion rests on them as persons like them were seen about the village for some days before the robbery. None of Walker's goods were found on them, but socks were found on the railway near Moscow evidently dropped by them. A reward of $50 is offered for the recovery of the goods. The trials of the fellows will probably occur to-morrow.

AN OLD MAN ADRIFT.

His Money Wheedled from Him—His Mind also Affected.

KINGSTON, June 4.—A poor old man named C. Jutt was before the Police Magistrate to-day, charged with having stolen a coat from Joseph Stephenson and selling it to H. Mackay. This is the second time Jutt has been charged with stealing. He is nearly 80 years of age and told a pitiful story. He said that when he was in the United States he became sick, being afflicted with rheumatism. According to a doctor's orders he took whisky and opium and this affected his mind. He was unable to remember what he did with his clothes and had lost nearly the whole of them. He was liable to take things while under the influence of liquor and opium that did not belong to him. When a young man he went into the western states and conducted a sheep ranche. This was a profitable scheme and he acquired $40,000. This money was wheedled out of him by a son-in-law, who induced him to sign papers that called for his funds. He is now poor, adrift upon the world, and without friends. The magistrate allowed him to go and ordered him to leave the city. The mayor gave the old man a railroad pass.

A TEST CASE DECIDED.

The Insurance Companies Must Pay the London Asylum Losses.

OTTAWA, June 3.—The appeal to the Supreme Court of the Ætna Insurance Company against paying insurance on a portion of the London Asylum building, burned a couple of years ago, has been dismissed with costs. The dispute arose in this way: The Ontario Government had the main building insured in a number of companies. Running back from the main building and connected with it by a covered passageway were the laundry, bakery and kitchen. These latter were burned and the Government demanded proportionate insurance. The Queen City and Hand-in-Hand insurance companies promptly paid up without objection, but the others refused to do so and were sued, the Government winning the case. The Ætna Company appealed from court to court, but has been finally beaten in all, the Supreme Court confirming the judgment of the courts below that the words "main building" covered them all.

AMBOY, Ill., June 4.—Grace Ridley, the 19-year-old daughter of a prominent business man, has been sleeping soundly for nearly two months. Her cheeks are rosy and her breathing regular and her sleep is seemingly as normal as that of an infant. All attempts to arouse her are fruitless. She is fed regularly with liquids.

SAINFOIN'S DERBY.

HOW THE GREAT RACE WAS WON AND LOST.

The Favorite's Evil Temper Brought Him in Fourth—The Pedigree of the Winner—Bred by the Queen—The Confident Betters Hard Hit.

LONDON, June 4.—The one hundred and eleventh Derby run at Epsom downs to-day was as surprising in its results as any one of its predecessors. Possibly not in any of the similar events in recent years has the favorite been regarded as so sure a winner, and it is not recorded that any favorite has been so ignominiously beaten. Comparatively speaking nobody thought of Sainfoin as a winner, though the bookmakers and the knowing ones believed he would run second and backed him accordingly.

Throughout the race and before it Surefoot displayed a vicious temper. When nearing the finish he became so intractable that he almost threw his rider and made two attempts to bite the rider of Rathbeal, and the consequent hulling up contributed largely to the distance by which he was beaten.

The rain which prevailed in the earlier part of the day militated against the attendance, though it was fair as compared with previous Derbys. At an early hour in the morning the road was filled with vehicles of every kind from a hand barrow to a four-in-hand and everybody was in holiday humor. The rough element took especial delight as usual in bespattering their exquisitely dressed betters with mud, flour, etc., but on the whole there was less horse play than is customary on the occasion. The heavy downpour of rain coincident with the first race of the day destroyed the usual vivacity of the scene at the course, and the occupants of the splendidly appointed carriages were compelled to take their luncheon under the shelter of umbrellas. The rain also curtailed the amount of visiting from one carriage to another which is a prominent feature of the Derby, and consequently much of the good feeling characteristic of the occasion was absent. As a rule, however everybody made the best of the situation and the sheltered ones indulged in quiet merriment at the expense of those less favored. It is a noteworthy fact from which the backers of Surefoot extract a spark of consolation that of the 110 previous Derbys only 39 of them have been won by the favorites.

Orwell led to the distance post. Here Sainfoin drew to the front and coming on won by three-quarters of a length. There was a neck between Le Nord and Orwell. Surefoot, the favorite, came in fourth. The result of the race created the most tremendous excitement. Surefoot had been backed to win to the extent of hundreds of thousands of pounds. Among his backers were large numbers of the aristocratic classes and they suffered severely. The time of the race was 2.49 4-5. The race for the Stanley Stakes was won by Rothschild's Bumptious, Lord Randolph Churchill's Invernem 2, Milner's March Past 3.

THE DERBY STAKES.

of 5000 sovereigns for the winner, 500 sovereigns for the nominator of the winner, 200 sovereigns for the owner of the second, and 20 sovereigns for the owner of the third. For colts 9 stone, and fillies 8 stone 9 pounds for 3-year-old by subscription of 50 sovereigns each, half forfeit if declared by the first Tuesday in January, 1890, and 10 sovereigns only if declared by the first Tuesday in January, 1889; any surplus to be paid to the winner. Betting: 4½ to 1 Sainfoin, 13 to 1 Le Nord, 100 to 1 Orwell, 1 to 2 Surefoot, 40 to 1 Rathbeal, Martagon and Golden Gate, 100 to 1 Kirkham.

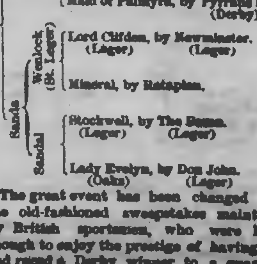
This well-named colt was bred by the Queen, and sold with Her Majesty's yearlings at the annual sale of 1888. Sainfoin (the first "i" is not pronounced), the name of a famous clover grass much grown in England, and a son of Springfield, whose dam was Viridis, is therefore well named Sainfoin. A glance at his pedigree will show that he is royally bred, exclusive of the fact that he was foaled in Her Majesty's paddocks. Perhaps no horse ever showed in his escutcheon the names of so many classic winners.



The great event has been changed from the old-fashioned sweepstakes maintained by British sportsmen, who were happy enough to enjoy the prestige of having bred and raised a Derby winner, to a guarantee stake worth 5000 sovereigns, and yesterday was run as such.

The stake closed with 238 entries of which 68 were declared at 10 sovereigns each and 106 at 25 sovereigns each; 64 were then eligible and the stake was worth 5459 sovereigns to the winner.

Le Nord, the colt that in the winter betting was rated close to Surefoot, is the property of the French sportsman M. Lefevre, and is by Tristan, dam La Noce. As a two year-old he started six times and won four. He is trained in Baron de Rothschild's stable and carried the Rothschild blue and yellow. He made his first appearance this year in the Two Thousand Guineas, and, ridden by Fred Barrett, was second to Surefoot.

Orwell is a brother to Ormonde, started six times but won only once as a two-year old.

The recent winners were: 1885—Lord Hastings' Melton. 1886—Duke of Westminster's Ormonde. 1887—Mr. "Abington's" Merry Hampton. 1888—Duke of Portland's Ayrshire. 1889—Duke of Portland's Donovan.

A Robber's Haul in Sarnia Township.

SARNIA, June 4.—A stranger entered the residence of George Menzie in Sarnia township to-day and stole $150. He was pursued to the woods by Menzie and his neighbors, but has not been captured. Menzie had received the money yesterday for cattle.

REASONS

Why Ayer's Sarsaparilla is preferable to any other for the cure of Blood Diseases.

Because no poisonous or deleterious ingredients enter into the composition of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla contains only the purest and most effective remedial properties.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla is prepared with extreme care, skill, and cleanliness.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla is prescribed by leading physicians.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla is for sale everywhere, and recommended by all first-class druggists.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a medicine, and not a beverage in disguise.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla never fails to effect a cure, when persistently used, according to directions.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a highly concentrated extract, and therefore the most economical Blood Medicine in the market.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla has had a successful career of nearly half a century, and was never so popular as at present.

—Thousands of testimonials are on file from those benefited by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Fooling With the Marriage Ceremony.

People who accept "dares" generally get into trouble of one kind or another. The silliest of all are those who "get married for fun" and find out after the performance of the ceremony that nothing but a court decree can make them single again. A case in point is that of two Brooklyn young folks who, five years ago, added zest to a dance by inducing a clergyman to unite them. They never lived together, but now that one of the parties to the contract wishes to wed in earnest, the old tie must be legally severed to prevent future liability for bigamy.

TALK OF THE DAY.

Never place so much confidence in your minister as to sleep during the sermon.—Harvard Lampoon.

Jersey banks may break, but there's no discounting the bill of the native mosquito.—Philadelphia Times.

Snooper—"How does your new son-in-law strike you, Fangle?" Fangle—"For $10, usually."—Harper's Bazar.

Talk about word painting! Where do you find the poet or novelist who can compare with the sign writer?—Whiteside Herald.

Never ask anyone to give you his word of honor. If you are talking to an honest man it is superfluous; if to a rascal, useless.—Judge.

You never see a man who dozes in church going to sleep at a base ball match. But then there is quite a difference in the style of delivery.—Yonkers Statesman.

In a street car just before 6 o'clock.—He—"I am very sorry to crowd you, Miss De Witt, but—" Miss DeWitt—"Don't speak of it. There is really no room for apology."—Boston Post.

Callowton—"Your wife was a perfect picture at church this morning." Ben. E. Dicke(married a year and cynical—"In a modern sense I agree with you, dear boy. The Frame cost me just $127."—[Dry Goods Chronicle.

Mr. Adams—"You don't mean to say that you have to carry all your letters into town from the college!" Miss Poughkeepsie—"Yes indeed; they are so strict at Vassar that they won't even allow a mail box on the grounds."—[Munsey's Weekly.

The Law: "Hold on, my friend, don't shoot; I'm a judge." "Wall s'posin' ye are! judges ain't no more count than de law is nowadays. Ye can't hang a feller, ye can't 'lectrify him, and my lawyer kin appeal's fast as you kin sentence. Shell out!"—[Harper's Weekly.

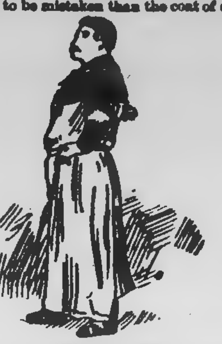
THE APRON A TRADE MARK

WHAT IT SIGNIFIES IN THE DAILY LIFE OF A GREAT CITY.

Odd Traditions of Old Paris—The Blooming Butcher—The Girl Who Serves Cream—The Oft-Times Haughty Concierge and the Cook.

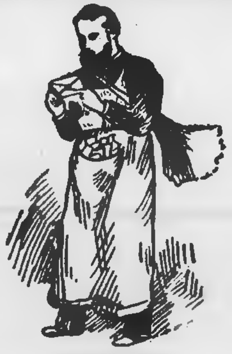
Aprons have been in style and favor since that historic moment when, in the Garden of Eden, Mother Eve converted the fig leaf into an article of apparel; but it has remained for Wideawake to do them up in print. Here is the article condensed into cream.

In France the apron is a sort of trade mark, no more to be mistaken than the coat of arms emblazoned on the panels of a grand duke's carriage. How this was brought about might be traced by reference to the archives of a country at once as volatile and sparkling as an Emperor butterfly, and as a methodical and as painstaking as a grub-worm. The Gallic fig leaves have developed by slow degrees into a valuable series of pinafores, suitable for the infant in arms and the man and woman to whom labor is but the natural sequence of having come into existence. By what force of circumstances this has been accomplished does not concern us now. We simply realize, in traversing the boulevards and threading our way through the infinite streets of Paris, that aprons attain to distinctive prominence.



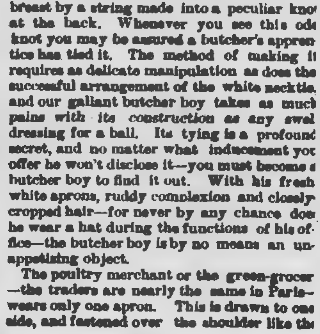
A PARIS BUTCHER BOY.

From the dimmest era now lost in obscurity the Paris butcher boy has worn a uniform betokening the trade of which he is invariably a cheerful ornament. The apron he wears is a most curious affair, and he himself must be regarded as the aristocrat of the apron-wearers, for he sports no less than three aprons at once. Two of these aprons are apparently superfluous, as they are rolled up, and fastened at each side; the third is worn in front and held in place across the breast by a string made into a peculiar knot at the back. Whenever you see this odd knot you may be assured a butcher's apprentice has tied it. The method of making it requires as delicate manipulation as does the successful arrangement of the white necktie, and our gallant butcher boy takes as much pains with its construction as any swell dressing for a ball. Its tying is a profound secret, and no matter what inducement you offer he won't disclose it—you must become a butcher boy to find it out. With his fresh white aprons, ruddy complexion and closely-cropped hair—for never by any chance does he wear a hat during the functions of his office—the butcher boy is by no means an unappetizing object.



THE CONCIERGE.

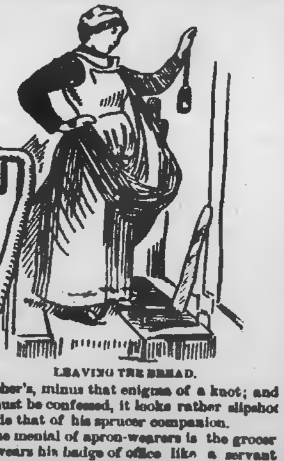
The poultry merchant or the green-grocer—the traders are nearly the same in Paris—wears only one apron. This is drawn to one side, and fastened over the shoulder like the butcher's, minus that enigma of a knot; and it must be confessed, it looks rather slipshod beside that of his sprucer companion.



LEAVING THE BREAD.

The menial of apron-wearers is the grocer He wears his badge of office like a servant straight in front, and is not distinguished from the regular "in-door man" save by a long white blouse that he also wears beneath his apron.

The man-servant, corresponding to our butler, in Parisian households, has always a white apron, and one of the same description is worn by the "helper," who mounts the box with the coachman and becomes for the nonce a footman in livery, precisely as it often happens in this country.

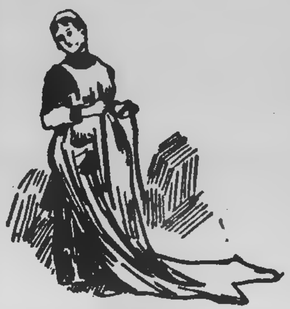


LE CREMIERE.

The concierge, or janitor, who is always an autocrat in France whether it be empire or republic, wears a dark blue apron, with a capacious pocket across the front. In this pocket are stowed away the various tenants' letters and newspapers that have come by post, his dusting-brush, a handful of coin, and maybe a pipe. In the morning when he goes upstairs for his cleaning and sweeping, or when he lights or turns out the gas on the landings, he delivers the mail, and at the same time drops into that pocket such treasure as careless visitors may have scattered in their wake.

The aprons worn by the breadwomen of Paris are often the property of the baker, and are always made of dark blue linen. As they cost twenty francs or $5 apiece, a poor working woman is not expected to supply them any more than she is expected to furnish the baker's shop.

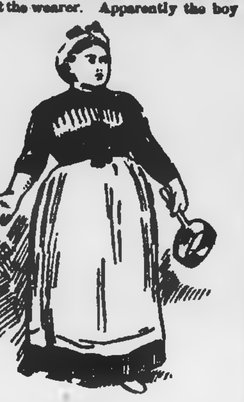
The soubrette among apron-wearers is the cremiere, the ideal milk-girl of Paris. She is young and pretty, and as sweet as one of her own pats of unsalted butter. This young person "goes out in her hair," as they say, never wearing a bonnet even in these modern days. On the contrary, her tresses are done up in the very latest fashion and there is never a spot on her well-fitting dress, not a pin lacking, not a stitch wanting to make her eminently attractive. Her apron is made with a "bavette," and she takes special pains to have it immaculate, also the full white sleeves which are held in place on the arms by elastics.



THE MILLINER.

The French cook wears a fresh white apron. Her calling is unmistakable; no one would dream of her being other than the genius presiding over pots and pans, because beneath that white apron, hastily donned, peeps out the dark blue check of her working one.

Each trade has its working apron, and you may know the carpenter's apprentice by the ragged green cotton secured in place by a peculiar brass hook. The singularity of this apron consists in its perennial antiquity. It is forever old and ragged, no matter how adolescent the wearer. Apparently the boy would be unable to drive a nail were his apron of any color than green and the brass hook not just so.



THE COOK.

A Reviewer Squelched.

"In a novel by my friend Payn," says William Black, "I came upon a striking passage, in which the heroine was described as being buffeted about by a terrible gale, insomuch that her raven black hair streamed out to windward. With the light heart of an amateur reviewer, I wrote to Mr. Payn and drew his attention to the fact that, as a general rule, anything blown by a gale would stream out, not to windward, but to leeward. But the answer came sharp and prompt. The description was perfectly correct; the heroine (said the author of her being) had been taking a great deal of iron tonic, her hair had become electrically charged, and had floated out toward the north, irrespective of the wind currents of the storm. So I object no more."

Montreal Methodist Conference.

OTTAWA, June 4.—The Methodist Conference for the Montreal district opened here in the Dominion Methodist Church to-day. Rev. Dr. Carman occupied the chair. After half an hour spent in devotional exercises balloting for the president was proceeded with. The result was in favor of Rev. T. G. Williams of Montreal. Rev. Mr. Crowthers of Ottawa, after several ballots were taken, was elected secretary, but he declined to act, so that it will be necessary to elect another.

Probable Fatality at Fonthill.

FONTHILL, June 4.—While workmen were tearing out the front of the large brick building known as the registry office the roof suddenly parted and the east half of the structure fell with an awful crash, burying Alonzo T. Smith under the debris. Young Smith made a desperate leap for his life by jumping from a ladder against the north wall, but unfortunately could not leap far enough. He is thought to be fatally hurt.

FALL OF AN EX-JUDGE.

Henry S. Austin of Chicago Sent to Jail for Misappropriating Trust Funds.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Ex-Judge Henry S. Austin, a venerable old settler of 70 years, was sent to jail by Judge Kohlsaat until he pays $6,954.04 belonging to the estate of Henry L. Hall, of whose estate the ex-judge was made administrator in 1876.

Mr. Hall did business in Chicago and accumulated $25,000. He went back to his home in Oswego, N.Y., to marry. He and his wife perished in the Ashtabula (Ohio) railroad wreck. Austin's shortage was not discovered until 1886, when he was removed by Judge Knickerbocker.

On a petition by the Hall heirs to have Austin punished for contempt a hearing was had this morning. Austin admitted the deficiency, but claimed to be unable to pay it. He said that $1500 of the money was stolen from his safe and he had used other sums to fight a lawsuit for the heirs in Missouri. The heirs claimed that this story was untrue. It is said that Austin owns 20,000 acres of land in the south. He will seek to get out of jail by habeas corpus.

The Election To-day.

To-day the battle at the polls is being fought with energy and earnestness. From the time the polls opened at nine o'clock the friends of both the candidates were out with every available conveyance, and from that time until the evening there was no rest for the horses. The day was oppressively hot, but the workers wiped off the prespiration and thought of victory. The result, which will be anxiously awaited, will be known to-night.

Ask for "Montserrat" Lime-Fruit Juice and take no other.

The Result on the 5th.

Politicians of both sides are working zealously for success. It is generally admitted that a large vote will be polled. The majority it is believed will not nearly be as large as the majority would be if the voting were taken on the quality of Hawley Bros. Teas. They carry an election every time. The poll is never closed and returns can be learned every day. Give Hawley's teas a trial. d129

Footing it on the 5th.

A veracious authority says that half the voters who go to the polls on Thursday will stand up and vote in Kidd's boots. This may apply more fully to the East Riding where Kidd is the candidate; but the fact remains that Kidd's boots (R. J's), that is, the boots Kidd sells, are a quality that will serve the electorate in and out of season. Give Kidd of Peterborough a call and try his Equal Right Shoes—every toe gets an equal right to its sole. d129

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The board of directors met last evening, Mr. Early, the President, occupied the chair. There was a good attendance. A spirit of thankfulness and praise to God for the great things He has done for us whereof we are glad. Our spiritual work is very encouraging and notwithstanding the election, military parades, etc., the meetings have kept up well and there is a deep work of grace going on among the young men.

Owing to the business depression that prevails the finance committee is finding it more difficult to raise the necessary funds than in previous years. It is earnestly hoped that subscribers will do all in their power to help the committee. Members can assist very materially by paying their dues promptly and urging their friends to contribute. We are extremely anxious to secure enough to pay off our debt at once, friends will confer a favor by remitting to Mr. J. W. Bennet or the General Secretary. "The God of heaven He will prosper us."

A number of new members were elected last evening.

A Coming Sale.

We are informed that Mr. C. Stapleton has been instructed to sell by auction at some date next month, of which notice will be given: Lot No. 4, south side of Sherbrooke-st. and Lot No. 7, corner of Sherbrooke and Aylmer-sts., on which is the house and buildings now occupied by Mr. Stethem. This is a very handsome and well situated property, and must attract the buyers who are picking up the few pieces of centrally located property that are not yet taken. 8d123-2w22

A Coming Entertainment.

The close of the term in the Collegiate Institute will be celebrated with an exhibition of physical exercises by the pupils in the drill shed on the evening of Thursday, June 12th. The exercises will be entirely new to the public and will consist of the latest exercises in physical training and the performance will be a varied one. Mr. Ketchum's Institute class will render choruses. The admission will be 10 cents; proceeds to pay for uniforms. d103 4t

The Doings of Lightning.

One of the heaviest rain storms that has passed over this section for some time visited us last night. The rain which fell in torrents was accompanied by lightning and thunder. There was no serous damage reported, although the electric fire alarm wire was struck just where it entered the shed. The electric light wire running into the Oriental bar was also struck. The electric current passed into the bar and exploded with a report like a rifle, to the consternation of the crowd of imbibers who were present at the time.

Dominion Day Celebration at Port Hope.

This year's programme for the celebration of Dominion Day in Port Hope is the best ever presented by that town. It comprises Aquatic Sports, Athletic Sports, Grand Horse Races, Baseball Match and other sports during the day. In the evening there will be a Magnificant Display of Fireworks, Balloon Ascensions, &c. We would strongly advise our readers to make their arrangements to spend Dominion in Port Hope. The programme there is always fully carried out. Any information desired can be obtained by writing W. E. BRAMISH, Secretary of Committee. d130

Killed by Lightning.

Miss Celia McGee, a young lady who has been attending the Collegiate Institute here and who boarded with Mrs. Garlick on Water-st., received the sad intelligence over the wires this morning that her sister had been killed last night by being struck by lightning during the storm. The young lady lived in Parry Sound. The Empire has a despatch to-day from Parry Sound referring to the sad event as follows:—"During a thunderstorm which passed over this place this evening the house of Joseph McGee was struck by lightning, and his little daughter, Josie, instantly killed. Another child close by escaped, although for some little time afterwards affected by the shock. The lightning tore a hole through the roof and smashed the partition."

Brevities.

—It was a quiet day for business.

—There was a blank at the Police Court this morning.

—Last night was unusually quiet on the streets for the night before an election.

—The storm last night disabled about fifty telephones of the local service, but Manager Kent had them all in working order by noon to-day.

THE CHRONICLES OF CANADENSIS.

(Contributed to the Review.)

And it came to pass during the region of the Good Queen—over the Great Empire when Jo-Na-Ma-Don-Ald was the chief man of the Province of Canadensis that a tumult arose among the people, and among the men of the Chief Council, about the conduct of one of the men of the Chief Council, called C. J. R. and much indignation was expressed thereabout.

At this time the men of the Chief Council were divided into two camps called the Camp To-Ry which was the camp of the chief man Jo-No-Ma-Don-Ald and the Camp of Gri-Ty chief men were Le-Ra-A Bla-Ke and Car-Tri-Hit.

And when it became known among the men of the Chief Council the thing which C. J. R. had done, there was much talk, but there was also much joy among the men of the Camp Gri-Ty for the man C. J. R. belonged to the Camp To-Ry.

So when the chief men of the Camp Gri-Ty met, they laughed with glee and said, go to war. See how this man C. J. R. has delivered the men of the Camp To-Ry into our hands. Let us smite them hip and thigh and make their names to stink in the nostrils of all the people because of this heinous thing which has been done by one of them.

It came to pass therefor on a set day when the men of the Chief Council were all assembled in their places in the council room that the Gri-Ty Chief Car-Tri-Hit arose and said: "Hearken unto me men of the Chief Council, and give ear, especially ye men of the Camp To-Ry, and let the words of my mouth be strong in your ears, when I recite all the evil and iniquity of this man C. J. R., whereof he has been guilty and in which ye his friends do all equally participate."

So he set forth in the hearing of all the men of the Chief Council with many hard and bitter words, all the evil which had been done, and made the ears of all the people to tingle with shame, for that one of the men who had been trusted with a place in the Chief Council had done this thing.

And when he had ended all his parable, behold one of the men of the Camp To-Ry arose and said: "Ye do not well to taunt us, oh, Car-Tri-Hit, as you have done with this man's evil, for we abominate it even as ye yourselves do, and we will cast out this son of Belial, who, by his iniquities, yea, by his crime of crimes, has put a stumbling block in the way of the great To-Ry camp and has befouled them in the eyes of the people."

Then the men of the To-Ry camp spoke and said to the men of the Gri-Ty camp: "Ye do well to be angry about this. Come now therefor, let some of you great men go aside with some of our great ones and enquire and see what shall be done to this Son of Belial, peradventure he shall be cast out from among us so shall we be pure and upright before all the people."

Therefore it was that the chief men appointed by the two camps did meet and did ask C J R. what he had to say for himself, and C.J.R. waxed wroth and said "Ye do err, ye cannot judge me, for lo, I have done nothing evil, verily I have only made a provision for my old age,"—and much more did he say, also the wise men talked a great deal but at last did decide to tell the men of the Chief Council and all the people, that this C.J.R. had been guilty of conduct which was "discreditable, corrupt and scandalous."

But when it was noised abroad that this thing was to be done, C.J.R. stood up in his place in the great Council and with brazen front did say, "Ye are but as blind and know nothing. Is it so that ye have resolved to do this thing, then I shall shake off the dust from my feet as a testimony against you, and shall leave my place vacant amongst you, and shall go to the men of my Commune and ye shall see whether they do not return me once more, and ye shall be made fools of in the eyes of all the people," so did this man of brass.

Then did C.J. R. return to his Commune, and the chief officer of the Chief Council did notify the men of the Commune that they should appoint a man to the Chief Council in the room of C. J. R. who had made his place vacant.

When this was known to C.J. R he spake in the ears of the men of his Commune words of justification of his conduct, and asked them to send him back again to the Chief Council.

But the honest men of the camp To-ry in the Commune assembled themselves together and declared that this thing ought not to be, and spake hotly one to another about the evil which this man had done, how that he had made the name of the great To-ry camp to stink in the nostrils of all the people, and had caused the eyes of the nation to look askance at their Commune and how they should cast out the man C J.R.

Then one of the strong men of the To-Ry people called P-Tit, stood up and said: "To war ye people, behold I will stand in the breach in this matter and will fight against this Philistine, for our good name peradventure I may overcome him that he be not a hissing and reproach amongst our kinsfolk and countrymen."

And this saying pleased the people and they shouted with a great shout, and said: "Go ye forth as our champion and we will follow close behind thee and strengthen thee."

Now the rest of the people supposed that the battle would be left to the people of the To-Ry camp in the Cummne, seeing there were much people of that camp residing there, more by many hundreds than the people of the Gri-Ty camp, and the honest and upright men of the Gri-Ty camp were willing for the sake of the honor of their Commune and their country that the fight should be so left.

But the Chief of the Gri-Ty camp said; "Not so," and they chuckled with glee. "See ye not, said they to the men of their camp in the Commune, that these To-Ry men have delivered themselves into our hands, for lo, very many will vote for P-Tit but a goodly number will also vote for C. J. R. and thus they will be split in two, and our Standard Bearer will rush in between and capture the vacant place in the Chief Council and we shall have great gain."

Many however of the honest and upright men of the Gri-Ty Camp waxed wrath and said ye do wrong to counsel so, ye yourselves are no better than men of Belial to urge this thing for this is a washing of To-Ry dirty linen with which we have naught to do.

Likewise said they if ye do this thing it may fall out that the man C. J. R. will be again sent to the Chief Council and he will be a laughing stock and a by-word amongst all the people of the Empire, but rather do ye wait until the next Chief Council has to be chosen and we will fight valiently and it mayhap be victorious.

It was so, however, that the Chief of the Camp Gri-Ty would not hearken to this wise advice, but put a standard bearer in the field.

Now this thing greatly disconcerted the men of the Camp To-Ry, who had not looked for it and they were wrath, and their leader P-Tit, spake unto the men of the Gri-Ty camp and said "Ye be dogs and base" in that ye have done this thing now therefor I will no longer fight and ye may war against the man C.J.R. as ye list."

So he went and returned to his tent and all the honest and upright men who were his returned from following after him, and went every man to his tent, and all the honest and upright men of the Camp Gri-Ty stayed in their tents, so it came to pass that the man C.J.R. was again selected to take the place of the Commune in the great Council.

And the honest and upright men of the Camp Gri-Ty were wrath and their anger against the chief men who had caused this evil to happen waxed hot and the people of the land were amazed that such a thing should happen in their land, and bowed their heads with shame in the eyes of all the people of the great Empire.

Report of the Township Council Meeting—Wedding Bells—Other Notes.

Correspondence of the Review.

COURT OF REVISION.—The Court of Revision was held in the Town Hall on Saturday, 31st May. All the members of the court were present. After being duly sworn they took into consideration the various applications, there being no appeals from the assessment. On motion of Mr. Scott, seconded by Mr. Anderson, the roll was adopted as revised.

COUNCIL MEETING.—This body met for business immediately on close of the Court of Revision. Minutes were read and confirmed. The taxes on lot 25, con. 10, Chandos, were ordered to be struck off and an order given for the amount, on motion of Mr. Anderson, seconded by Mr. Langford. On motion of Mr. Anderson, seconded by Mr. Langford, A. Doxies received $10, being claim in full for crosswaying. A communication from the Reeve of Wolkston was read. It referred to the drowning of a cow at Mink Creek bridge, and Reeve Elmhurst was instructed to defend the municipality in case an action for damages be brought against it. Applications for aid on roads were received and granted to R. Gerrard, Jos. Roberts, G. W. Coones, C. R. D. Booth. An application from Jno. Hastie for aid on road was laid over, and also one from Jas. Hubble. An application from Joe. Trotter to work out the amount of his taxes was granted to the amount of the township rate. N. Hawley was remitted all back taxes on Lot 24, con. 10, Chandos, up to the year 1887. In connection with aid granted G. W. Coones on bridge it was moved by Mr. Langford, seconded by Mr. Tucker,—That Mr. Coones see that no person draw logs across the bridge on a chain. Violation of this will be punished. The Clerk was instructed to notify all parties having logs on the road allowance at Apsley mills to remove them.

WEDDING BELLS.—St. George's church, Apsley, was comfortably filled on Monday, 2nd inst., with a mingled assembly of friends and acquaintances to witness the marriage of Miss Elmhirst, daughter of our worthy Reeve, and Mr. Chas. Webster. The trying ordeal was bravely faced and successfully overcome by the contracting parties and their supporters. Miss Anne Elmhirst, sister of the bride was bridesmaid and Mr. Jno. Elmhirst, her brother, was groomsman. Rev. Carson Harding officiated. It being his first experience in this line we must congratulate Reeve Elmhirst on his collected bearing when giving away the bride. After the ceremony the happy couple drove to the bride's father's to receive the congratulations of their friends and partake of the wedding feast. The presents were numerous, and we noticed one feature not always present, viz., the desire that the article should be useful as well as ornamental and there were no duplicates. We extend our congratulations and wish for them a long and happy wedded life.

LOSSES.—Mr. John Ansell lost a valuable horse by death lately, cause unknown. Messrs. W. H. Hales and A. Brown lost an ox apiece. Both were running at large and had been dead some time when found.

NO REPORT.—No report of Mr. Kidd's meeting here appearing in the "happenings" is causing comment. That a report of it was posted to the REVIEW is the only explanation that can be given.

MISSIONS.—Mr. Nickel was called on by the chairman of Madoc district to fill the work on his circuit last Sunday. Mr. Brooks, of Marmora, occupied Mr. Nickel's place here. Mr. N. is en route to attend Conference.

As an Emergency Medicine, for sudden colds, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral takes the lead of all remedies, a dose or two generally sufficing to stop ordinary coughs and ease the worst. For the cure of throat and lung disorders, this preparation is unequalled.

REVIEWS.

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE.—The June number opens with another article by Albert Shaw, whose paper on Glasgow recently attracted so much attention. This time Mr. Shaw treats of London Polytechnics and People's Palaces, a subject which is particularly timely, as similar institutions are springing up in different parts of the world. John La Farge, who is writing An Artist's Letters from Japan, this month describes the very beautiful temple of Iyemitsu, and makes some general remarks on Japanese architecture. This being the first summer number of The Century, Walter Camp's illustrated paper on Track Athletics in America is particularly timely. Perhaps the most striking feature of this number is the beginning of another anonymous novel called The Anglomaniacs. The scene is laid in New York, and the story is evidently written by one who knows well the situation. The pictures are furnished by C. D. Gibson, who knows how, to give charm to his heroines. The second of Mrs. Mason's very strikingly illustrated papers on The Women of the French Salons, treats of the literary influence of the Salons in the Seventeenth Century. Charles de Kay has another paper in his series on Ireland, this one being entitled Irish Kings and Brehons. Mr. De Kay gives new derivations of the names of the five Irish provinces. The pictures accompanying this article are very curious and instructive, including a landscape by Alexander of Reginald's Tower. An extremely timely paper is Edward Atkinson's on Comparative Taxation, which will be found to bear directly upon current discussions of tariff revision. The fiction in this number, besides The Anglomaniacs, consists of the eighth installment of Mrs. Barr's Friend Olivia and illustrated short stories by Arlo Bates and Octave Thanet. What's the News? is a fresh and interesting statement by Eugene M. Camp, of the cost of gathering news, with other matters germane to the subject. He publishes, by permission, some striking figures in this connection. The Topics of the Time treat of the following subjects: The Outlook for Wood Engraving, Journalism and Newsmongers, Nine Thousand Manuscripts (received in one year by The Century Magazine,) and the Influence of Athletics. In addition to the above many other articles of great interest are included in the number.

Killed on the C.P.R.

OTTAWA, June 3.—Royal Roy of Tetreauville was killed on the Canadian Pacific Railway track between Hull and Aylmer last night. He was walking along the track and, it is believed, tried to board the Aylmer train and slipped. When found he had terrible gashes in the head and his right leg was broken.

A Remarkable Product.

Eggs are the most remarkable product that the farm yields. They are ready for the market the minute they are laid, and the sooner they are gotten to market the better. Nothing else that the farm produces comes in as handy as a good supply of eggs. They require no cultivation, no hoeing, pruning or churning, but are in a salable condition as soon as laid. With plenty of eggs on the farm there is a host of good things in the kitchen, and money in the family purse. Gathering eggs is like picking up cents. They are as good as cash and can quickly be turned into dollars and cents.

The groceryman wants eggs, the hotel man wants eggs, the private family wants eggs, every body in town are hungry for eggs.

Twenty-five good hens are more valuable than a cow, and much less trouble. A cow costs as much as a hundred hens and eats more. We would not deride the family cow, but we make a plea for the domestic hen. Give her a place worthy of her valuable product.

Let's look after the small things and pay more attention to poultry. Fix up the hen house, and make good water-proof coops, and separate runs for the little chickens. Let's read up more on poultry, and try and improv the laying qualities of our fowls.

The women love to have a fine looking lot of chickens about the place, and so do the children. Its mighty nice too, to take a good large basket of eggs to town to bring home the family groceries in exchange for them. We should think about these things, and give the fowls on the farm more attention.—Rural World.

A Princely Mansion.

The largest and costliest private mansion in the world is said to be that belonging to Lord Bute, called "Monstuart," and situated near Rothesay. It covers nearly two acres, and is built in Gothic style, the walls, turrets and balconies being of stone. The immense tower in the centre of the building is 120 feet high, with a balcony around the top. The halls are constructed entirely of marble and alabaster; all the rooms are finished in mahogany, rosewood and walnut; the fireplaces are all carved marbles of antique designs. The exact cost of this palace is not known, but it has never been estimated at less than $9,000,000. This proves the greater purchasing power of money in Europe, since the New York Court House cost about that sum, and is a mere shanty by comparison.—Chatter.

The Daily Review.

THURSDAY, JUNE 5, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

"That was a queer freak that Margaret took—to go to Tillingham Marshes. Yet I was not unwilling. I had a terrible scare just before—but if she had suffered it would have been her own fault. It seems that I cannot even quietly sharpen a knife without having her bounce in on me. I was very angry at first. But she is so sweet I could not do without her—no, I could not. The house is very lonely now. It does not seem like the same place since she is gone. I miss her singing so. That was so beautiful always. I spent part of last night walking the streets. There is no use in staying in the house when the servants allow such strange people to get behind the curtains in the bed-room. They are there every night, and they carry knives. But after I got on the street I heard the cry of a poor mother whose boy I once sent to the penitentiary. It moaned in my ears like the wind. That was almost as bad as the strangers in the bed-room.

"My feet stuck in the cold, yielding mud of the road. The wind was bitter, and played sorry tricks. But I went where destiny took me. Oh, but the thirst was terrible! I broke the ice on a muddy pool and drank from it. I never realized before how long it took to reach the marshes. It was a fierce walk. I did not mind the cold. But what a disappointment awaited me! I have but the courage to recount the finding of the empty bed, the flash of light, and the wild fear that took possession of me. I thought at first that those strange creatures who lurk behind the curtains at home had followed me. So I ran through those solitary marshes for hours. When the whistles blew I was not far from the town. I went to the station and waited. On the train was the reporter! If he had thrown a glove in my face he could not have challenged me more directly to mortal combat. He or I must fall soon. I think he will be the one. It has occurred to me that he may know where Margaret is.

"For days I have been looking for Margaret. Day and night I have searched for her. Yet I dare tell no one she is missing—my poor girl. The fever and the thirst are gone now. I think only of my poor child, whom I have driven from home—which was yet not a protection for her. How am I accursed! I am afraid to pray. In what danger is she now? She is as innocent as a child.

"I have not had the courage to write for many days. But I have found Margaret. I wish to merely record that glad fact.

"There is no doubt now but that Harry will be tried. I have dreaded to put the word in writing before me here. I attached comparatively little importance to his arrest. Yet I could not bear to let Margaret see or hear of him, for fear they might do too much investigating. I thought it would be much better for our safety at present if she would listen to McCook, who has been anxious to pay his addresses to her for a long time. But if he is really to be tried, I must play the farce through to the end. Some help will come to him no doubt, however. I shall perhaps warn the jury against circumstantial evidence. But in the eye of the law I am not obliged to say anything to criminate myself. So I can do nothing but wait. I cannot get at the secret of Harry's indifference. There is something in it that I do not understand. I suspect at times that the reporter is at the bottom of it.

"My brain is giving way! Harry is so patient and so pale. Margaret comes and looks like a maid of Arc at the stake. Had I better turn the knife against myself? I could not do the other thing that is in my mind—I could not. Margaret! My poor love! You cannot guess how my heart is bleeding. The stupid fools those jurors are! If one of them took the trouble to look in my face he could see the truth. The speech for the defence was very weak. God help us all.

"It is ended. I am here with Margaret in this solitude. I see myself now with sane eyes. Something seems to have given way in my brain. The thirst has gone, too. I know myself for what I am. Oh! God! That this should be I! I will pray day and night. It is all I can do. But if my reason is spared, I may yet make reparation. Heaven keep Margaret from all evil—protect her from ill—from Me!

"This work acts like a sorporific"

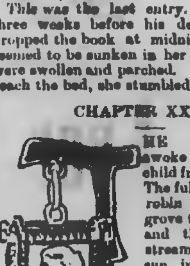
"I think I felt a touch of the old feeling. Dear God, not that!"

This was the last entry. It was made three weeks before his death. Margaret dropped the book at midnight. Her eyes seemed to be sunken in her head, her lips were swollen and parched. As she tried to reach the bed, she stumbled and fell.

CHAPTER XXVII.



THE May morning awoke as rosy as a child from perfect sleep. The full whistle of the robin in the popular grove thrilled the air, and the slow prairie streamlet sang to the sun in gladness of spirit. The purple east was sprinkled with fleeting cloudlets of fiery red; and above the purple shone a blue, intensely deep, until the midst of the plains absorbed it near the western horizon.

It was not the morning to lie in a death-like stupor on the floor; not the morning for a maid to die of grief. Yet Margaret lay where she had fallen, one cold hand reaching the counterpane on the bed above her, the other stretched out on the floor. The ill-smelling lamp burned low, the curtains hid the glorious day, the fast-shut window kept out every perfume of the morning.

The purple had not faded from the sky, when the bony servant who performed the tasks of the house was awakened by a knock at the smithy door. Having an attack of "nerves," consequent upon the happenings of the last few days, she was afraid to venture to the door alone, and in a negligee more modest than graceful, made her way to the door of that modern Vulcan, Peter, who slept in the house to impart reassurance to the "females," as he designated them. Peter arose—literally—to the occasion, and with the bony servant close behind, to fortify him with her encouraging ejaculations, made his way to the great cross-barred door below stairs.

"Who's there?" bawled Peter, while the "female" clutched one dangling suspender that he had not had time to fasten.

"A gentleman to see Miss Bar— the smith's daughter," was the reply from the outside, in a voice that betrayed some impatience.

"Don't think she's ris yet," said Peter, resenting the impatience and making no effort to undo the bars.

"That is no reason why I should not be let in," said the voice with arrogant intonation, or what Peter considered such.

"Who be yeh?" cautiously inquired Peter. "We ain't lettin' folks see the missus these days."

"I am a relative of hers, man. I have come from Chicago. For heaven's sake let me in. What do you think I am going to do? Rob the house?"

"Now, neighbor, now neighbor," reiterated Peter soothingly, "don't ye git riled. But if ye will excuse my sayin' so, I don't think ye air acquainted none too well with the name of the missus."

"If you do not let me in soon to this old shanty I will break the door in," intemperately cried the voice, the owner of which realized that he was baffled at this point.

At this point the bony servant saw fit to scream a little, and to give such a spasmodic clutch to the suspender that it nearly overthrew the unprepared smith.

"Tell me her name," demanded Peter, determined to stand upon his rights.

"Well, then," said the voice outside, "she is known in the city by the name of Margaret Barthwait. That is her true name. If she has taken another here, I do not know what it is. But whatever her name may be, I want to see her, and she wants to see me."

"Really," sneered Peter, smelling a rival, while the bony servant summoned her wits sufficiently to send out a sneering laugh as an accompaniment.

The reply to this was a blow against the door with a crow-bar, which had stood since time immemorial beside the bench without. The point of it pierced the wood at the first blow. At the second, three boards were splintered from end to end. But before a third had time to fall Peter swung the bar in token of capitulation. He had an eye to the smithy himself, if all prospered, and he did not care to have it ruined by a presumptuous "dude," as the voice indicated the assailant to be, judging from the standpoint of Peter. The sudden opening of the door was not expected by the young man outside, who had raised the bar for another onslaught, and consequently was precipitated into the smithy head first, while the bar flew from his hands across the dim apartment.

Peter and his associate greeted this entertainment with the appreciative jibes that they thought it deserved. The young man, with a somewhat shamed faced expression, resumed his equilibrium and looked around.

"I presume the young lady has other apartments," said he. Peter took him in with a critical eye. He thought an honest man would hardly wear such good fitting clothes. But he was obliged to own that there was nothing jaunty about the visitor. Indeed, he was very pale, now that his flush of mortification was subsiding, and his eyes looked like those of a man in great trouble.

"The livin' rooms are upstairs," vouchsafed Peter. His eye indicated the stairway, and, before he could add more, the extraordinary visitor had sprung up them and down the hall to the first open door. The amazed servants heard him opening door after door, now knocking, now calling on "Margaret," and now——

Now there was silence! Then a call! Peter rushed upstairs, followed by the affrighted maid. He found the mysterious visitor trying to lift the lifeless form of his mistress to the bed, but, though he had shown such strength before, he was trembling now, so that he could hardly endure that slight weight.

EASIER SAID THAN DONE.

To Keep Out that Alleged Scurrilous New York Paper.

OTTAWA, June 4.—During the last session of Parliament Hon. John Haggart, in answer to a question put by an Opposition member, said that the attention of the Government had been called to a newspaper published in New York, The Mercury, and circulated in Canada, with the view of excluding the same. A correspondent called at the customs and postoffice departments to-day and learned that so far no decision had been arrived at by the administration.

"It is all very good for aggrieved persons to ask the prohibition of this publication," said Col. White, deputy postmaster-general, "but this is easier said than done. I have looked into some copies of this newspaper and discovered that the news was of a somewhat personal character, but it is not for the department to say whether it was libellous or not. This is a matter for the courts to decide. This publication is not like The Police Gazette, which anybody can tell at a glance contains immoral literature and obscene pictures, and the propriety of excluding which no one can doubt.

"One thing the department has done," continued Col. White, "and that is to put a stop to packages coming from New York to Canada as mail matter outside the mails without passing through the customs. It appears that Mr. Kelly, the Montreal dealer, against whom a suit was taken for libel, was getting his papers in this way and taking possession of them at the railway station without either passing through the postoffice or custom house there. These packages might have contained most objectionable matter and the authorities not become aware of it. In future all such packages must pass through the postoffice and custom house."

AMBITIOUS CITY NOTES.

Methodist Laymen's Rights—Opening of the Niagara Conference.

HAMILTON, June 4.—At a representative meeting of laymen of the Niagara Conference of the Methodist Church this morning resolutions were passed declaring that the stationing committee, all conference committees and church courts should be composed of clergymen and laymen in equal numbers; that the right of quarterly boards to invite, and of ministers to accept provisionally such invitations be fully recognized, subject in all cases to the final decision of the stationing committee and the conference; that ministers and accredited representatives of quarterly boards should have the right to a personal hearing before the stationing committee in reference to their own cases; that appointment or election to office in all church courts, boards and committees be by ballot and without nomination.

The annual meeting of the Niagara Conference of the Methodist Church opened at 2 p.m. to-day in Centenary Church. There was a large attendance of delegates; Rev. J. S. Williams of Paris, president, occupying the chair.

The Presbytery of Hamilton met last evening in St. John Presbyterian Church at 7 o'clock, and was constituted in the usual form, the occasion being the induction, as pastor of the church, of Hon. and Rev. B. Moreton.

Miss Frances J. Harrison, daughter of the late F. L. Harrison, and Mr. W. R. Mosey of Toronto were married in All Saints' Church this afternoon, Rev. G. R. Forneret officiating.

The store of Walter Woods & Co. was broken into last night and about $30 worth of goods removed.

THE PECAND-WHELAN SCANDAL.

A Formal Opening Sitting of the Royal Commission at Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 4.—The royal commission appointed by the Local Government to investigate the $10,000 Pacaud-Whelan scandal opened their proceedings at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The only persons present were the two commissioners, Messrs. Beique and Malouin; their secretary, Mr. Charles Langelier; Hon. Mr. Lacoste, representing Her Majesty's Opposition, and a few newspaper men. After a few formalities the commission adjourned till next Tuesday.

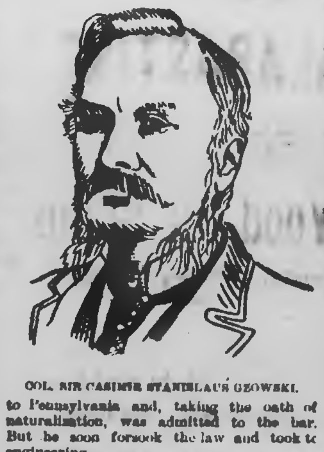
OUR NEW KNIGHT.

COL. SIR CASIMIR STANISLAUS GZOWSKI.

A Sketch of the Varied Life of a Gentleman Widely Known—One of Canada's Most Noted Engineers.

A dispatch from London announces that the Queen's birthday honors this year included the making of Col. Gzowski, of Toronto, a Knight commander of St. Michael and St. George.

Colonel Casimir Stanislaus Gzowski, aide-de-camp to her Majesty Queen Victoria was born March 5, 1813, at St. Petersburg, Russia and is descended from an ancient Polish family which was ennobled in the sixteenth century. His father was Stanislaus, Count (Hrabia) Gzowski, an officer in the Imperial Guard. His childhood was spent in preparing for a military career, and when nine years old he entered a military college, which in 1830, he graduated as an engineer. He then entered the army, and during the insurrection in Poland he played a conspicuous part trying to overthrow the tyrannical rule of Constantine. From the first he staked his lot with his co-patriots, and was at the expulsion of Constantine from Warsaw, in November 1830. After the battle of Boremel, the division to which he was attached retreated into Austria and surrendered, the officers being exiled to America. They reached New York in 1833, without knowing a word of English, but those who have heard the colonel speak know that his English is now of the best, with a pleasant foreign accent. In New York he taught French and German for a living and in a few months moved to Pittsfield, Mass., where he studied law and mastered the English language. In 1837 young Gzowski went to Pennsylvania and, taking the oath of naturalization, was admitted to the bar. But he soon forsook the law and took to engineering.



COL. SIR CASIMIR STANISLAUS GZOWSKI.

It was in 1841 that Col. Gzowski came to Toronto. His ability was at once recognized, and he was given an appointment in the Public Works Department. Then his name became associated with many works of public construction and, as has been aptly said, "nearly every county in Upper Canada bears upon its surface the impress of his industry and engineering skill." His greatest work was the International Bridge between Buffalo and Fort Erie. He was chief engineer of the St. Lawrence and Atlantic Railway Company, devoting himself entirely to railway building, and in 1853 obtained the contract for building the G. T. R. line from Toronto to Sarnia. In 1857 he and his partner, now Sir David Macpherson, started the Toronto Rolling Mills, which they ran for 12 years.

Col. Gzowski has always had a deep interest in Canadian military affairs. He has been president of the Dominion Rifle Association and was instrumental in sending the first Canadian team to Wimbledon in 1870. In 1872 he attained the rank of colonel and in 1879 he was appointed an aide-de-camp to the Queen. The colonel, whose handsome face and stalwart figure are well known in Toronto, is still in partnership with Sir David Macpherson, but takes time now to attend to many social duties.

A Bit of Extravagance.

Employe—No, sir; it was a wasted day.

ON SCIENCE AND HEALTH

ELECTRICAL STRUCTURES AND MACHINERY OF VARIOUS KINDS.

The Electric Railway as a Sanitary Measure—Where to Catch Asiatic Cholera The Day of Big Things—The Wood Pulp Industry—Items on Health and Science.

There is a notable tendency in industrial enterprises in recent times not only to concentrate capital into large concerns, but to have structures and machinery of the largest possible kind, and to drive it with extreme rapidity. This is pre-eminently the day of big things, using the word in its ordinary sense to mean large, massive, heavy, and bulky. Ocean steamships are growing larger and more powerful. Locomotives, cars, railway tracks, bridges, are all made heavier Blast furnaces have increased in size, and their output has increased enormously, so that a product of 300 tons a day is no more uncommon than one of 300 tons a week was twenty years ago. A Bessemer steel works has recently made the record of 30,000 tons of steel in one month. Open hearth furnaces are now erected with a capacity of 30 tons, or three times the capacity of those of ten years ago. In rolling mills the same progress has been shown. A plate was rolled in Pittsburgh 30 inches wide by 85 feet long, ½ inch thick, weighing 7,480 pounds.

In steam and electric engineering the same tendency is seen. At the Homestead Steel Works, Pittsburgh, there is about to be placed one of the largest Corliss engines in the world, with a horizontal cylinder 54 by 72 inches. The fly wheel will weigh 200,000 pounds. The whole weight of the engine will be over 500,000 pounds, and it is expected to develop 3,500 horse power. The Corliss engine, the largest in the world, was built at the Soho Iron Works, Bolton, England. It is of 5,000 horse power, of the vertical type, and stands 40 feet high. It is designed to drive the Farranti dynamos, 45 feet in diameter, mentioned below. The West End electric railway station in Boston is to have thirteen engines of 1,000 horse power each. They are to be triple compound, with cylinders 21, 36, and 52 inches in diameter. The power is transmitted by two belts for each engine, each belt five feet wide. Steam will be furnished by twenty-four water tube boilers, each rated at 500 horse power. The new cable railway station of the West Side Cable Railway, in Chicago, has two Greene engines, each 36 inches by 72 inches; each engine weighs 288,000 pounds, and has a capacity of 1,200 horse power. We recently described the large Belpaire boilers and Leavitt hoisting engines at the Calumet and Hecla mine, and now we have a description of a new water-tube boiler designed by T. F. Morrin of Jersey City, which is located at the Westinghouse electric light station in twenty-fourth street, New York city. It contains 600 3-inch water tubes of a peculiar bent shape, expanded at each end into an internal cylinder 48 inches in diameter. The aggregate length of the tubes is 7,200 feet, or about a mile and a half, and the boiler has 6,000 feet of heating surface, and is said to be capable of developing 1,000 horse power.

In foreign countries the same tendency toward bigness is shown, and in electrical engineering they have even surpassed us. The Farranti dynamos used in the Deptford lighting stations near London weigh 500 tons each, stand 45 feet high, run at 60 revolutions per minute, and can each supply about 200,000 incandescent lights.

Two dynamos of 10,000 lamp capacity are being made for Berlin, each of which will require about 1,000 horse power.

There are no data now existing which will enable any one to predict what will be the size of boilers, engines, dynamos, steamships, bridges, cars, locomotives, office buildings, and other structures ten years hence. Everything in the engineering line seems to be changing at a more rapid rate than at any previous period. Certainly the limit to increase of size does not yet appear. When the single engine reached its limit in shipbuilding, the compound engine came in. When shafts and screws seemed to have grown as large as they could be made, twin screws and shafts were used, and at the same time facilities for making still larger shafts and screws were perfected. So it is in every branch of engineering; as soon as a limit is fixed some one finds a way of overleaping it, and the limit is placed further ahead —Engineering Journal.

Electric Railway as a Sanitary Measure.

Joseph Wetzler, in Scribner's magazine for April says: The rapid extension of the electric street car system whis has taken place (especially in this country), naturally leads to the question of the cause thereof. To have gained such pre-eminence it must be able to do not only what other systems can do, but, still more, it must be able to do it at a decreased cost. Again, removal of thousands of horses from the streets of a city, involving, as it does, the doing away with the noise and dirt, is another distinct gain to its residents. But if one goes still further, and contemplates the difference between a stable housing thousands of horses, and an electric-car station of sufficient size to operate a road with the same efficiency, one is at once struck with the advantages on the side of the electric system, which, indeed, are incontrovertible. Instead of a large, ill-smelling building whose odors are wafted for many blocks (making the tenancy of houses within half a mile almost unbearable, and involving a large depreciation of property in the neighborhood), there is a neat substantial building equipped with a stream plant and dynamos, and occupying hardly one-tenth the space required for an equivalent number of horses. Therefore, not only only is there effected a removal of the nuisances attached to a stable, but a large saving in the cost of real estate, and the far greater amount involved in the known depreciation of the surrounding property. Besides this, the stables are of necessity required to be in close proximity to the track, whereas the electric power station, which furnishes current to the cars, may be situated a mile from the track in some suitable place, as for instance, beside a river, where, with condensing engines, power may be generated at a minimum of cost.

The Wood-Pulp Industry.

"The great wood-pulp industry of this country," said Dr. J. C. Austin, the chemist, "is due to the accidental discovery that when wood chips or shavings are boiled with water and bisulphite of lime they lose nearly all their fibrous character, and become soft almost to pulpiness. Besides this, the powerful chemical bleaches the wood to a certain extent, and destroys nearly all foreign matter. The discovery was made by a German, and the first factories were built in the land of the Kaiser. The process was introduced into this country and utilized, but in a short period was so much improved upon by our native inventive talent that it no longer bears any resemblance to the German system. The output of wood pulp and wood fiber is now up in the hundreds of thousands of tons per annum.

"Our Canadian cousins," continued Dr. Austin, "have also gone into the business on a large scale and are beginning to compete with us. At a little town called Mille Vaches, about thirty-five miles above the Saguenay, a British company has started the largest saw mill and pulp factory in Canada, and one of the largest in the world. The works are on the edge of a vast forest, and can deliver their product straight from their rooms to the deck of a ship or steamer. Nearly all the wood pulp made is consumed by paper-makers, who are enabled by its use to produce paper at less than two-thirds of what it formerly cost. The extent of the business can be easily imagined from the fact that at least ten manufacturers are millionaires, and that each one made his fortune from wood pulp. The best wood for the manufacture is the white birch, which produces the finest grade of paper, but nearly all ordinary trees are more or less available."—N. Y. Star.

Where to Catch Asiatic Cholera.

About the best place in the world to run up against Asiatic cholera is Calcutta. The city has a population of 450,000, or with its suburbs 700,000, of which 14,000 are Europeans. The poorer classes live like Chinamen, in illy ventilated tenement houses, without draining or sewerage. The city is surrounded by a cordon of cesspools—tanks of stagnant water or artificial ponds, the surfaces which are covered with a green slime. In these the natives bathe and wash their clothing, and from them obtain water for drinking, and culinary purposes.—N. Y. Herald.

WOMEN WHO WHINE.

They Unconsciously Make Life an Intolerable burden to Husbands.

If there is anything I am profoundly grateful for it is that I have not in my portion a woman who whines. If I had, I fear my name would some time be numbered with those who have mysteriously disappeared and have never been heard of again, for, with no small amount of good humor and the gift of being able to adapt myself to most of the circumstances of life, I cannot endure a whining woman. I know of one such woman, and her husband has my profound sympathy poor fellow! If it rains, his wife whines because the sun doesn't shine. If the sun shines she whines because it doesn't rain. If she is sick, she whines because she isn't well; and if she is well, she whines because she has so much to do. She has one of those fretful, droning voices peculiarly exasperating to most people—a voice that would drive some men to deeds of desperation.

She was at our house one day—whining, as usual: "The fruit season's all over with and I didn't get to can half I wanted to, and I feel so put out about it. I'm so rushed all the time I never get to do half I want to. Some days I just sit down and cry. My baby has a dreadful cold; seems to me he always has something or other. What a sight of trouble children are, anyhow; dear, dear! You're all through house cleaning, aren't you? And I've hardly begun. I don't know as I'll ever get it finished, I do hate it so! What a handsome new chair you have! I'd like one like it, but I don't see how we can get anything new this fall, Henry's business is so poor. I just worry over it all the time. There's nothing but fuss and worry in this world, anyhow; dear me, dear me!"

That is a specimen of how she goes on for hours at a time. That's what her husband comes home to at night. That is what he hears day in and day out at his table. That is what must ring in the poor fellow's ears all day long, depressing and disheartening him, and taking from him all the joy and gladness of life.

I read lately of a bank president who positively refused to have men in positions of trust in his bank whose home life was known to be unhappy. He regarded such men as peculiarly liable to temptation, and one cannot help thinking that he was correct in his estimate of the dangers surrounding such a man.

Now you need not tell me that the woman of whom I write cannot help whining, that it is a constitutional failing or a tendency against which she has no power to strive. I don't believe it. She is a perfectly healthy and robust woman, and she simply needs to brace up—to come to a realizing sense of what she owes to herself, her husband, her children and society in general.—Zenas Dane.

Good, Pure Seed.

Deal only with respectable seedsmen whose reputation is at stake and who cannot afford to run any risks in the matter. Wherever and whenever possible also, ask for a guarantee, although in the case of such seedsmen as those described it would seem almost superfluous. Another thing; when seeds have to be mixed, buy them separately and do the mixing yourself. A London (Eng.) firm recently sold a great deal of red clover seed which they advertised would yield 98 per cent—a very high average. It failed, however, to yield half or even a tenth of that amount, and when submitted to expert analysis, the reason was obvious. It contained but 10 per cent. of red clover seed, the remainder being made up of rib grass and pounded stone, both dyed beautifully to resemble the real seed. This was a case of pure fraud, punishable by law. Fortunately Ontario is not infested with firms of the London sort to any great extent, but, nevertheless, buy your own seeds, get the guarantee if possible, and do your own mixing.

Lime on the Pastures.

In a letter from a subscriber he says: "My pastures need fertilizing. I must do something or keep less stock. What do you think of lime as a top dressing?" It is often used as a top dressing, we would say, and is usually one of the cheapest and best. It aids the decomposition of vegetable and mineral matters in the soil. It increases the temperature of cold, wet lands. It is destructive of coarse herbage that may be in the pastures, and the common result of its application is to cause clover and other grasses to come in thicker. Mr. Flint, in his work on grasses, says that lime produces a more marked effect on the grasses than on any other crop. It seems, very frequently, to increase the nutritive quality of the grasses, as well as to increase their quantity, by assisting them to elaborate the juices, the albuminous substances, and the sugar in which their value as food for stock largely consists. But he wisely suggests that lime can never supply the place of other manures. There are properties which it cannot supply, which plaster can; others which it cannot supply bones can; and others which it cannot supply, like ashes, and manures that contain salts. There are situations, however, in which it is invaluable. On reclaimed meadow lands, after thorough draining, and a covering of three or four inches of gravel, a top dressing of lime has a beneficial effect. Crops of grass of two or three tons to the acre have been taken after such a dressing of lime. In many cases the first crop will repay the expense of bringing such land into cultivation. In these situations, then, as well as on many pastures, it may be called one of the most useful applications that can be made. Such lands will bear an abundant supply of lime without exhaustion. But on poor sandy soil it should never be used. It will soon exhaust and may render them completely barren. When it meets with clay in lands to which it is applied, it forms a kind of marl, and greatly improves the texture of the soil; but, when it comes in contact with sand, it forms rather a sort of mortar. Hence it is thought to be injurious on sandy soils.

FAVORABLE FARMING

USEFUL HINTS AND ADVICE FOR FARMERS TO READ.

Millet or Hungarian Grass an Excellent Summer Crop—Current Farm Notes—Milk from Cows—Lime on the Pastures Hints on Horse-Shoeing.

AN excellent summer crop is either millet or Hungarian grass, if the farmers prospects for a hay crop are not favorable or the season becomes too late for grass to be seeded down. These two grasses are very similar in many respects, and require the same kind of soil and treatment. If the seed is sown in May (or even as late as June) the rapid growth of the plants permits of a crop of nutritious hay at a season of the year when no other crop can be grown with equal advantage, and for such reason millet and Hungarian grass fill a place on the farm that enables the farmer to recover what he has lost in the early spring. It is seldom that millet or Hungarian grass fail if the soil has been properly prepared, and both crops will grow on heavy land or light sandy soil.

MILLET AS STOCK FOOD.

In those sections where clover cannot be profitably grown millet hay has been found to be highly relished by both horses and cattle, and they come out in the spring in excellent condition. If cut and mixed with bran or ground grain cows can be kept in full flow of milk with it, and no other hay will be necessary. It should be cut when in its best stage of growth, which is just as the seed heads are forming, as the nutritious matter is then arrested in the stalks and leaves. It is cured the same as ordinary hay and stored in the loft. As it grows very tall and luxuriantly on well manured soil the yield of hay is very large. Millet is seldom cut until nearly matured, but Hungarian grass can be grown, stooling out and growing rapidly after each mowing until frost. When seeding sow broadcast, using rather too much seeding than too little.

No crops hold their own against weeds better than millet or Hungarian grass, and especially the latter, the frequent mowings benefiting the crop and lessening the weeds. As the seeds soon germinate and the plants grow rapidly, especially during the warm days, they soon take full possession of the ground and crowd down the weeds. A crop of Hungarian grass will clean a piece of land of weeds as well as though cultivation had been given, and if, after the final mowing the crop be turned under and a dressing of lime applied to the plowed soil the labor of cultivating the land the following season will be materially lessened, while the land will be fit for almost any kind of crop.

Current Farm Notes.

When flies swarm around the stable or hog-pen it is a sure sign that cleaning is necessary.

It is a mistake to suppose that peas, beans and corn should be covered heavily. A slight covering is better.

Keep the land intended for turnips well stirred with the cultivator so as to kill the weeds before the seed goes in.

Many animals appear sick and refuse food, when the cause may be due to the toothache. They often suffer in that respect.

The soil affects the quality of the plants grown thereon to a certain extent. A crop of wheat from rich soil contains more gluten than one from poor soil.

Until farmers discard the feeding of their hogs with sour, rotten swill, and resort to clover and more wholesome food, their herds will be affected with disease.

A Rhode Island farmer raises veal calves to weigh 190 pounds when four weeks old by allowing them warmed skim-milk and oatmeal gruel. Such calves should pay well.

One way to save transportation is to raise everything needed than can be grown on a farm. There are many kinds of fruit and vegetables that are seldom grown by farmers.

The more frequently the grass is cut the the greater the tax on the land. Use plenty of manure on all land intended for grass next season. First kill out the weeds by cultivating the land with a crop requiring the use of the cultivator.

Manure often contains seeds that sprout. When spreading manure work it into the soil well, and allow time for the seeds to germinate. Then go over the field with a harrow from time to time until ready to seed in the crop desired.

Sweet potatoes brought good prices last year, the wet wether being unfavorable to such a crop. This season has been excellent for setting out plants, and a large crop will be the result, unless very dry weather or disease prevents later in the season.

Of the new varieties of cantaloupe the Emerald gem is one of the best. It is of medium size, and drops away from the vine as soon as ripe. Though not as attractive in appearance as some varieties, it is unexcelled for uniformity of fruit and quality of flesh.

Breeding from immature stock every year will sooner or later tend to deterioration. It is better to use animals in their prime than to replace them with young stock. If a change is desired reserve the younger stock until each is matured and fully developed.

Old strawberry beds that have borne well soon begin to give place to weeds, and the ground should be plowed as soon as the crop is harvested, and planted to late potatoes or Hungarian grass, which destroys the weeds and cleans the ground for next season.

Melons should be well hoed and cultivated until they begin to run. The very young plants may be hoed with advantage, but after that time all cultivation should be done without disturbing the hills. Melon-growers hoe in front of the vines, not among them, as they soon cover the ground.

The milk from cows fed on wholesome grain and good pasturage is of better quality for food than that from stall-fed animals that are permitted to eat refuse from granaries and factories without regard to breed. Choice breeds to produce a choice article must be provided with food of the best quality for that purpose.

The bush lima bean that has been introduced quite extensively is . . the Sewee family and is rather small in size. It requires a longer season than we have in this latitude to permit it to fully mature its crop, though it will afford a supply for use. A large bush lima is now being introduced, but the seed is scarce as yet. Next season it will be given a trial in many sections.

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, JUNE 6, 1890.

WEST PETERBOROUGH.

It would be a foolish affectation to say that the result of the election in West Peterborough was not considerable of a surprise. That Mr. Carnegie should have been defeated, considering the unscrupulous means used against him, might not have been surprising, but no one, unless it were those of his opponents who understood the full extent to which such means were being carried, could have had any idea that such a majority would have been polled for the Government candidate.

There were several causes that contributed to the result. In the first place there was no organization to start with, and while the Government party had their old organization to work with the Equal Rights party had to build up a new organization. Complete organization means a great deal in an election contest. This, however, important as it was, would not account for the surprising result. Mr. Carnegie and those who worked with him were met with all sorts of misrepresentations and falsehoods, and while every means, no matter how unfair, were adopted to prejudice the electors, illegal methods were also used.

The Government candidate had all the influence of the Government at his back. His chief workers were Government officers, and public money, instead of being properly used for the benefit of the people alone, was used to influence voters in favor of the Government candidate. The vicious system of the numbered ballot, the public patronage, the control of the liquor licenses, were all used to influence and coerce, and with all these unjust advantages illegal methods were resorted to. The result of the various influences is seen in the returns.

There is comfort for the man with a prematurely gray beard in Buckingham's Dye, because it never fails to color an even brown or black as may be desired.

FOSTER AND FINANCES.

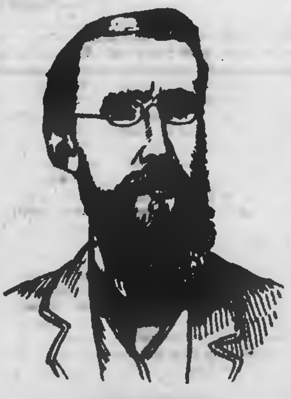
AN ABLE SKETCH OF HON. GEO. E. FOSTER'S LIFE.

Schoolteacher, Professor, Temperance Lecturer and Cabinet Minister—A Man Whose Name is Well-Known all Over America—He was One of the "Chestnut Combination."

The word "professor" has come to mean more indefinitely here than probably any other in the English language. Its unqualified use has subjected it to capture by corn-doctors, hair-tonic vendors, jugglers, white-washers, barbers, fortune-tellers, quack-doctors and all other classes and conditions of coloured and plain frauds. Unless a man's own name enjoys a wide-spread celebrity, his reputation is placed in actual jeopardy by prefixing to it "professor." For many years the present minister of finance ran the gauntlet of this danger and the fact that he has escaped its blighting influence speaks in pretty decided terms that there was something substantial behind the disreputable ornament worth preserving. To the majority of the people of the western part of old Canada he was first introduced as Professor Foster. Those were the days when he was battling against the rum-demon and his remarks in that campaign were given approving space in papers that now appear to find in the remuneration which he received for his lectures subject for severe disapproval. Taking his fee and his name and combining them they evolve the sobriquet "Ten-dollar-a-night Foster." It has never been made clear whether these journals consider the embryo minister overcharged his employers or worked for non-union wages.

Be that as it may we will not curiously enquire. Certain it is that the tour then taken must have improved the young New Brunswicker's natural aptitude for speaking and moreover afforded him an opportunity of seeing a part of the Dominion which he had not previously visited. In the year 1882 he found himself sufficiently callous in facing public audiences to bethink himself of entering the political world. That year witnessed a general election for the federal parliament, and the budding politician chose the county where he was born, Kings, New Brunswick, as the theatre wherein he should put his suitability for public life to the test.

In the musically named village of Apohaqui in that county he had been born 35 years before. Educated in the preparatory schools he took his B. A. degree at the University of New Brunswick. Seeking still wider culture, he journeyed to Edinburgh and Heidelberg where he attended lectures in his favorite studies. He returned to Canada and engaged in teaching, his career in this direction being brought to a fitting close by his holding for six years a professor's chair in his alma mater. Then followed the total abstinence and prohibition lecturing tour which has been alluded to already.



HON. GEORGE FOSTER.

His native county of Kings had been represented in the parliament that had just been dissolved by Capt. James Domville, a person whom it required no ordinary courage to face. He traced his lineage back to the Conquest, some of his ancestors having been English baronets. But that was not so much his strength as the fact that he was connected in his province with almost everything that could give a man strength and popularity. He was the head of great business enterprises, president of a bank, one of the big guns of the militia associations, director in rolling mills, warehousing companies, and chairman of various boards of Trade. To cut it short he had his hand in everything within sight. He had represented the county for ten years, and was mainly a Conservative. I say mainly because Captain Domville occasionally kicked over the traces, a performance for which the party managers have no particular admiration. In this may be found the explanation of the fact that the young gentleman who essayed to do battle with this local Goliath, was like him in his political faith. There was no Liberal in the field. Mr. Foster was elected by a small majority, and on the 8th Feb. 1883, took his place in the Dominion parliament. Less than three years thereafter he was called to the cabinet as minister of Marine and Fisheries, and subsequently assumed the important portfolio of Finance.

One could hardly hope for more rapid advancement than that even though joined to unusual abilities. Owing to the plan on which the government of our country is conducted the councils of the nation do not always get the benefit of the best talent that is available even in the dominant party. It is deemed necessary that each of the provinces should be represented in the cabinet by a stated number of members. In the present cabinet Ontario is represented by five ministers, Quebec by five, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia by two each, while recently the uncounted leagues that lie between the Albany River and the Pacific Ocean have received one representative in the cabinet. This gentleman deserves sympathy, for there are few of us who would not feel oppressed at the thought of representing so much. This proportion is usually observed. But besides the plan of representing the provinces, these again are sub-divided not so much with a view to their geographical area as to their social and religious divisions. So that a man must belong to organizations of very inferior numbers indeed if he can't discover some member of the cabinet who represents his particular ology or ism. If the Swedenborgians or to go to the opposite pole, the Mormons are not now represented all they have to do is to become a little more numerous, control a constituency or two and this will be removed.

Under this system if a province or an "interest" is represented only by mediocrities, then of course mediocrities drift into the grand council of the nation. The cabinet is not always then the flower of even one party in Parliament. In the case of Mr. Foster, however, it can be said that he was not only the ablest man holding a seat from his own province, but that he was also the equal of any man in his own party in everything that contributes to parliamentary success except perhaps in the matter of experience. This then was one case in which despite the system the knight legitimately won his spurs.

He was one of the stars of that brilliant galaxy irreverently dubbed the Chestnut combination called so not because of the ancient and fish-like smell of the tales told by the orators, but rather because Chestnut Hall, the residence of [illegible] was probably supposed to be the headquarters and stronghold of these political borderers. The labours of defence, were definitely apportioned. The late Mr. White had for his subject "the administration of the North-West." Sir John Thompson dealt with Riel, and cognate topics, while to Mr. Foster was assigned the financial part of the programme. Finance was not a concern of the department over which Mr. Foster presided. He made it plain, however, that he did not confine his attention or studies solely to "bulls and codfish." His financial speeches were really interesting even to the heterogeneous gatherings that assemble at political meetings, and throughout this extended tour Mr. Foster displayed what is perhaps his chief merit as a popular speaker, namely the power to make abstruse or abstract [illegible] the easy comprehension [illegible] ordinary [illegible] school-[illegible] er. His [illegible] fellow-tourists were as much surprised as pleased at the expository and argumentative powers that their new colleague displayed on the stump.

Mr. Foster had journied through life's vale for forty-two years apparently unconscious of or impervious to the "love that lies in woman's eyes." He was long the object of much sympathy for his wretched state of bachelorhood, but when in 1889 he removed this reproach by marrying Mrs. Chisholm, a lady noted throughout the Dominion for her interest in social reforms and in all good works, he still seems to have been unable to please his critics.

Mr. Foster is as studious in appearance as he is in his habits and like the student he is spare of habit and suffers from that throe of the sedentary—dyspepsia. He is not a visionary or mere theorist as a man of books is apt to be. Those who have had the opportunity of discussing business matters with him have found him eminently business-like and practical.

Mr. Foster has in all human probability many years of useful public life before him.

JOHN A. EWAN.

The Last of the Light Brigade.

There were thirty million English who talked of England's might,
There were twenty broken troopers who lacked a bed for the night;
They had neither food nor money, they had neither service nor trade;
They were only shiftless soldiers, the last of the Light Brigade.

They felt that life was fleeting; they knew not art was long,
That though they were dying of famine, they lived in deathless song.
They asked for a little money, to keep the wolf from the door;
And the thirty million English sent twenty pounds and four.

They laid their heads together that were scarred and lined and gray;
Keen were the Russian sabres, but want was keener than they:
And an old troop sergeant muttered, "Let's go to the man who writes
"The things on Balaclava the kiddies at school recites."

They went without band or colors a regiment ten-file strong,
To look for the Master Singer who had crowned them all in his song;
And waiting his servant's order, by the garden gate they stayed,
A desolate little cluster, the last of the Light Brigade.

They strove to stand to attention, to straighten the toil-bowed back,
They drilled on an empty stomach, the loose knit files fell slack;
With stooping of weary shoulders, in garments tattered and frayed,
They shambled into his presence, the last of the Light Brigade.

The old troop sergeant was spokesman, and "Beggin' your pardon," he said.
"You wrote o' the Light Brigade, sir. Here's all that isn't dead,
An' it's all come true what you wrote, sir regardin' the mouth of hell;
For we're all of us nigh to the workhouse, an we thought we'd call an' tell.

"No, thank you, we don't want food, sir; but couldn't you take and write
A sort of 'to be continued' and 'see next page o' the fight?
We think that some one has blundered, an couldn't you tell 'em how?
You wrote we were heroes once, sir. Please write we are starving now."

The poor little army departed, limping and lean and forlorn,
And the heart of the Master Singer grew hot with "the scorn of scorn;"
And he wrote for them wondrous verses that swept the land like a flame,
Till the fatted souls of the English were scourged with the thing called shame.

They sent a check to the felon that sprang from an Irish bog,
They healed the spavined cab horse, they housed the homeless dog;
And they sent (you may call me a liar), when rebel and beast were paid,
A check for—enough to live on, to the last of the Light Brigade.

O thirty million English that babble of England's might,
Behold, there are twenty heroes who lack their food to-night;
Our children's children are lisping to "honor the charge they made,"
And we leave to the streets and the workhouse the charge of the Light Brigade.

RUDYARD KIPLING

Hints on Horseshoeing.

Never fit the foot to the shoe, but fit the shoe to the foot.

Never put a hot shoe to the hoof; many good hoofs have been ruined by burning.

Never pare the frog.

Never twist off the nails; use nippers for cutting them off.

Never drive the nails too high in the wall of the hoof.

Never trim the hoof more than is necessary.

The art of shoeing is important and should be understood by the owner of the horse. More good hoofs have been spoiled by hot shoes than in any other way.

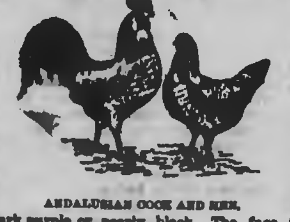
Rasping stops up the pores of the hoof wall and makes it brittle and the horse tender footed.

Andalusian Fowls.

A Spanish breed of fowls that is becoming very popular is the Andalusian, also known as the blue Spanish and Blue Andalusian. The points of this breed may be summarized as follows:—

A close, compact, smallish sized body, placed upon legs of good length; the neck rather long, with a fine head; a large upright single comb in the cock, and in the hen also large, but falling at one side; and the cocks have large sickle shaped tails. Of course the colour, plumage, etc., of the Spanish group are different in the several varieties, but the general appearance is as here described.

In Andalusians the plumage is a slaty blue, but on the cock's neck and back it is dark purple or nearly black. The face is bright red. The birds are of good size, are prolific layers of large white eggs, and bear confinement well. They are fair table birds when young, can be kept on fairly dry soils and are non-sitters. They require protection from extreme cold.



ANDALUSIAN COCK AND HEN.

In selecting Andalusians pay attention to erectness of carriage and avoid birds with any white on the face, as this indicates a cross with the black Spanish.

The United States Senate recently passed a bill providing for the inspection of meats for exportation, and forbidding the exportation of adulterated food or drink. The bill also forbids the importation of adulterated or unwholesome food or adulterated wines or liquors, and provides suitable penalties. It authorizes the President to suspend the importation of animals by proclamation when such a step is necessary to prevent infectious or contagious disease.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS.

Piano Tuning.

Mr G. Gumpricht is in town. Orders may be left at Messrs. Taylor & McDonald's or Mr. A. L. Davis' store. 1yd150

Palace Restaurant.

O'Keefe's Pilsener Lager, the best made in Canada, on draught at the Palace Restaurant. d99

Go to M. Sullivan's store for Bankrupt Goods. d131-w28tf

Replace Your Footwear.

Possibly your boots have been half worn out running around doing election work. Good! Now you will need new boots. Get them at Kidd's, The Shoe House. Grits, Tories and Equal Righters can all be well and cheaply shod. Kidd the shoe man boots all comers. d132tf

Four Years More a Member.

The verdict of the polls has been given. Mr. Stratton is a member for 4 years longer. The ballots were marked in his favor by a large majority just as they would have been for Hawley Bros. as the prompt, careful and successful tea merchants, who give a good article at a moderate price. Give Hawley's a trial. d133tf

A Coming Sale.

We are informed that Mr. G. Stapleton has been instructed to sell by auction at some date next month, of which notice will be given: Lot No. 4, south side of Sherbrooke-st. and Lot No. 7, corner of Sherbrooke and Aylmer-sts., on which is the house and buildings now occupied by Mr. Stethem. This is a very handsome and well situated property, and must attract the buyers who are picking up the few pieces of centrally located property that are not yet taken. d3129-3w22

A Coming Entertainment.

The close of the term in the Collegiate Institute will be celebrated with an exhibition of physical exercises by the pupils in the drill shed on the evening of Thursday, June 12th. The exercises will be entirely new to the public and will consist of the latest exercises in physical training and the performance will be a varied one. Mr. Ketchum's Institute class will render choruses. The admission will be 10 cents; proceeds to pay for uniforms. d108-4t

Canker in the mouth can be cured only by expelling the poisonous humor from the system. To do this effectually requires the persistent use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, together with a good, generous diet. One dollar a bottle. Six bottles for $5. Begin at once.

It Might Possibly Be.

Chief Rossel received a telegram last evening from Chief of Police Bell, of Napanee, stating that three tramps, giving the names of E. Burritt, Geo. Bennett and Ed. Malvern, had been arrested there with a burglar's kit and a quantity of jewellery in their possession. The Napanee police thought the three might have been connected with the burglary of Patterson's jewellery store. Mr. Patterson went to Napanee yesterday to identify the goods if possible.

Dominion Day Celebration at Port Hope.

This year's programme for the celebration of Dominion Day in Port Hope is the best ever presented by that town. It comprises Aquatic Sports, Athletic Sports, Grand Horse Races, Baseball Match and other sports during the day. In the evening there will be a Magnificent Display of Fireworks, Balloon Ascensions, &c. We would strongly advise our readers to make their arrangements to spend Dominion in Port Hope. The programme there is always fully carried out. Any information desired can be obtained by writing W. R. Bramish, Secretary of Committee. d120

EQUAL RIGHTS DEFEATED

THE GOVERNMENT CANDIDATE RETURNED FOR THE WEST RIDING.

The Majority a Surprise to All—The Meeting in the Equal Rights Committee Room After the Close.

The result of the election in West Peterborough was a surprise. When the first returns came in it became at once apparent that the Equal Rights candidate was defeated, as nearly every division gave him a smaller vote than was expected. A few divisions held out well, but as the town returns began to be received in full it was seen that the day was lost. There was a large crowd in the committee rooms, where the returns were received, and during the evening several speeches were made. The returns from the East Riding came in slowly, but they were of a more encouraging character, although when the meeting broke up the result then was uncertain. The returns from the Province were also received there, and were read with interest, successes being received with cheers.

When the result in the West was known, various gentlemen who had taken part in the contest were called upon for addresses, and Messrs. Kendry, Stone, McNeil, Merrick, Weir, Poussette and others responded.

When Mr. Carnegie was called upon he was warmly received. He said that there was no disguising the fact that he was disappointed and that the principles they had advocated were at a discount in the riding. He regretted the defeat more on account of the principles they represented than on any personal account. The issues they had raised in the contest would have to be decided sooner or later, for British civil and religious liberty must prevail. It was too soon to trace all the influences that had contributed to their defeat, and it was not wise to jump hastily at conclusions. He had been charged with being insincere in the stand he had taken as being independent of the political parties, but the result showed clearly that he had been sincere and that numbers of both parties had gone against him. He had no regrets on account of the position he took during the contest and for some time before it, for he was convinced it was right.

Mr. Carnegie was again loudly applauded and the crowd dispersed after giving cheers for the Queen.

A Popular Picnic.

On the 17th of June one of the most popular picnics of the season will be held under the auspices of the Oddfellows of Peterborough. Both of the local lodges have combined and the joint committee have decided to spare no efforts to make the event a success. The picnic will be held at Jacob's Island, which is a picturesque and pleasant resort. Arrangements of a most complete character will be made and mentioned hereafter. Don't forget the date, June 17.

THE TRACK OF THE STORM.

Bad Washouts on the C. P. R.—The Midland also Damaged.

The heavy storms of the last few days have made sad havoc on the railway and telegraph lines. The downpour of rain on Wednesday night did a good deal to put things in readiness for a breakup when the rain of yesterday afternoon passed over us.

On the C. P. R. there are several washouts reported and it is not known here how long it will be before the line is in running order. The worst washout is said to be at Cavanville, a short distance west of here. At this place a large portion of the track in the yard, together with a bridge, has been carried away by the deluge of rain. Then farther west at Manvers and between Myrtle and Clairmont another stretch of track has been washed away. At all of these points the washouts have carried the telegraph poles with them and as a result the lines are badly damaged. This crippling of the telegraphic service was badly felt last night, but at the local office every effort was made to send out as full returns as possible. All reports from the west had to be sent around by Ottawa.

The interference with the traffic on the railway was serious. The 6:30 express last evening bound westward had to stop here, while none of the down trains arrived at all. What time it will take to repair the breaches is not known, but all possible effort is being thrown into the work. The expense to the railway will be considerable.

On the Grand Trunk the heavy rains also made their [illegible]. A bad washout at Rennish's lake near Port Hope has prevented all traffic on this section of the Midland since last night. The extent of the damage is not known, but it is considerable. Fortunately the Grand Trunk route via Lindsay remains uninjured or communication would have been cut off with the west.

Not only here but all along the line the telegraph lines have suffered and it was with the greatest difficulty that the election returns were handled last night. The storm could not have struck the lines at a worse time.

THE METHODIST CONFERENCE.

The First Draft of Stations of Ministers in the District.

The Bay of Quinte Conference of the Methodist church opened at Cobourg yesterday morning. After the opening exercises, Rev. W. Burns, of Millbrook, was elected president, and Rev. Mr. Young, Wellington, Secretary.

Another Girl Gone Wrong.

Carrie Robinson, a rather nice looking girl of some eighteen summers, has got entangled in the meshes of the law through her own foolishness. The girl's history is not known, any more than that her father lives in Lakefield and that she worked last summer at Mr. D. H. Burritt's. Carrie's trouble with the police came about in this way. With a desire characteristic to her sex to have nice clothes, she went to Miss Campbell's dress making rooms on Hunter-st. to have a new dress made. The garment was duly put together and Carrie called for it. She had no money, but presented instead what she alleged was an order from Mrs. Burritt for the dress. This order was written in a rather poor handwriting and Miss Campbell was suspicious and refused to accept it or to allow Miss Robinson to have her dress. Sad at heart Carrie went away. The next morning Miss Campbell found upon entering her apartments that the dress, together with two aprons and some underwear, had mysteriously disappeared during the night. The morning was not far advanced before Carrie came around for her dress, and seemed surprised to hear that it had taken wings and flown away. Miss Campbell was suspicious, however, and went to the police. Constable Stewart went up and brought Carrie down and confronted her with the suspicions. At first the girl was bold and finally started with Constable Stewart for Mrs. Burritt's to prove that her story was correct. She led the officer away over into Ashburnham, halting several times on the way to cry. Finally she weakened, and acknowledged she knew where the missing articles were, but told a story about a girl from Toronto giving them to her. She took Constable Stewart to the post office where she had left them. All the missing articles were recovered and the girl was taken to the Police Court, where Mayor Stevenson remanded her to gaol for one week.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

"Montserrat" Lime-Fruit Juice is the standard summer drink throughout England, and is delightfully cool and refreshing.

Chances for Cherries.

The proper condition for fruitfulness [illegible] expect fruit. There are two extremes to be avoided—too rapid growth and diminutive growth. A healthy cherry tree in its normal condition is expected to yield fruit. If the flowers are perfect and well developed they should set young cherries, and these in turn we expect to mature and ripen. When a cherry grows to half its size and then withers and falls, it is usually owing to the puncture of the curculio. On apple trees use Paris green; half a pound to 100 gallons of water will not hurt the foliage. Or into a small cask of water stir half a pint to a pint of coal tar. The odor is very offensive to the curculio. To this mixture, as soon as the young cherries begin to show, add one tablespoonful of white hellebore to each pailful, stir thoroughly and spray the trees thoroughly. There is a possibility that owing to a scarcity of bees the blossoms fail to fertilize well. We are much in these little worries, and honey is not the only thing they care for. My uncle raises choice cherries and most excellent honey. The bees hum about his cherry trees and they are loaded with delicious fruit. Who shall say that there is not a close relation between the two.—N. E. Homestead.

Clover for Summer.

Clover, fed to hens in confinement, is better than grain, especially in the summer. When cut fine (half-inch lengths) and placed in a trough for them, they will apparently eat but little, but if given no grain, the whole of the cut clover will be eaten before night. It should be given in the morning, a trough filled with it, in order that they may eat it whenever [illegible] with a pound of [illegible] given three times a week and a quart of corn or wheat twice a week to the same number, the clover will help the hens in good laying condition, and not permit them to become overfat. If hens are on the range, they can secure all the bulky and insect food necessary, a pint of wheat or corn for twenty hens, once a day, being sufficient.

A Pleasing Concert.

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, JUNE 6, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

"Bring me restoratives," gasped one stranger with white lips; "camphor, ammonia, water—whatever you have, and one of you go for the doctor." Then he fell on his knees by her side, kissing her cold face.

"Between them they have murdered you, my love," he sobbed, losing all presence of mind and lavishing a thousand wild caresses upon her. "I have come too late to save you! I deserved it, I know! My love, my love!" Moaning and muttering he walked about the room, wondering why no one came to his aid and [illegible] certain that she was dead and that she was not.

She might be, but she could open her sad eyes, and looking at him, could let a little light down in them; could reach out feeble arms, and sigh with contentment, and a sense of safety, and slip off again into dreams. Once assured that she still lived, the young man's senses returned to him. He found water and bathed her cold forehead, he chafed her hands, and throwing wide the window, and the curtains, let the sweet morning breeze sweep in, and over her. Under its influence she sat up with a dazed joy in her eyes, and feasted on the face of the man who stood over her, with the tears dropping from it, as he tried to smile. Then she lay back softly on the pillows, while he folded her in his arms, kneeling by the bed, and so stayed with his lips on her forehead.

Then up came the busy servant bearing the [illegible] bottle of champagne, and Peter with a plethoric [illegible]. The [illegible] had to be submitted to in patience. But when they were gone Margaret said:

"A train goes at noon, Harry. Can we take it?"

"Are you able to travel, my dear? Had you not better rest till to-morrow?"

"Rest!" she cried, putting back his arms and standing erect. "Do you think there can be any rest for me here? Not even with you. For weeks I have lived here in torment [illegible]. At night I have feared what the morning would bring forth, and in the morning I have wondered if night would fall without disaster. There has been no one, Harry, no one, to whom I could confide a single misery. I thought I should never see you again. And I was glad, too, for I could not think of having you endure the shame."

"You make me most unhappy, dear. Do not misinterpret your sad experiences. Promise me you will not. Be faithful to your better and happier self. I beg that you will put [illegible] again. What does anything matter now? Are we not together?"

"There are some little business matters to attend to, Harry, before I go. There is the smithy, for instance. Peter, the good lad who let you in—"

"Good lad, indeed," muttered Harry. "Let me in, did he? I should say he did."

"Well, he has a bit of money saved up, so he confided in me. It is about half as much as we paid for this wretched place, but he would not take it, and his pride would be hurt. If he is allowed to think that he has made a good bargain he will be very proud and pleased."

"He shall be permitted to think himself a real estate shark, if you choose."

"Then I have nothing to wear, Harry—nothing but the strange garments I have worn as a disguise."

"Cover yourself with that long cloak. We [illegible] the car, and [illegible] carriage will be protection enough till the dressmakers can be reached."

"Then the things I have here shall be given to Sally—all but papa's things. Tell Peter to burn them, Harry. And, Harry, here is a—a diary. It is written by papa. You can guess what it contains. Shall I keep it?"

"Do as you think best, love."

"Then I will keep it—for a while. It is his defense in a way, for it shows that madness was the source of his crimes. Oh, Harry, he changed so! It has been so terrible!"

But there was comfort now, in the arms of her lover. Not the gay old lover of other days, to be sure, but it was the same true heart, the same true hand-clasp, the same winning smile. And yet, for a time, reunion did not bring to either of them the joy they had imagined it would when they had dreamt of it through the dark days that had passed. Circumstances had made them strangers in a sense, and it needed close communion to perfectly harmonize their hearts.

All was so strange now, so shadowed with terrors, that they dared hardly whisper: "I love you," lest a blight should fall on the love [illegible].

* * *

Ten hours later a carriage drew up in front of a [illegible] hotel, and a lady swathed from head to foot in a long black cape, was assisted up the stairs to a room above. As she lay back in an easy chair, letting the wind that came from the open window cool her hot forehead, her garments made an almost comical contrast with her surroundings. Had she studied to be hideous they could not have been worse in color or cut, or more at variance with her own delicate personality.

"To-morrow," she said softly, smiling down at them, "we must have a dressmaker."

"To-morrow," said he, "we shall have a wedding."

"It sounds horrible," she cried, burying her face in her hands, "but it does not seem to me that any joy can come of our marriage. I do not think I can love you as I used to Harry."

"My dear," he whispered, bending over her, "I do not care whether you love me or not. We will be married to-morrow. Do not love me till you are ready. Take this wine, and do not speak again. I shall leave you now. Ring the bell if you want anything."

"Do not leave the house, Harry," she protested fearfully.

"Hush, dear, I will not. Sleep without fear. I shall be so near that if you cry out I can hear you."

"How did you know where I was, Harry?"

"A strange garbled account came to the office of the Chronicle. An account, I mean of the—the suicide. Pond thought of you at once. He sent for me. I thought as he did, that the mysterious smith and his daughter, whom no one knew, must be you. As I journeyed, I grew to be sure of it, so that when I reached your place, I had no doubt that it was my own and love I would find in that dull old building."

He kissed her gently—without passion—and left her. She wearily took off her clothing, and, lying in the broad, cold bed, slept without fear for the first time in many weeks.

* * *

"Let me in, let me in. It is I, your Mette. [illegible] Unlock the door!" [illegible] voice that seemed [illegible] startled [illegible]. The day was [illegible] and the noon sun poured [illegible] edges of the curtains.

The little damsel looked as dainty as a flower. A breakfast [illegible] in green sat upon her curls, which were as unconventional as ever, and on the breast of her black frock was a bunch of apple blossoms almost as large as the shining face above. But the hat and the flowers and the gloves came off in a hurry, and she returned to her old offices. Margaret must have a bath—then a cup of chocolate first and an orange afterward, and breakfast when she was dressed. And she must not venture out [illegible] till she had something to wear, and must even go into seclusion when the [illegible] appeared.

"If there is anything I do hate," cried Jeanne, "it is having servants get on to things."

"What?" cried Margaret, [illegible] to understand.

"Oh, you know perfectly well what I mean. Goodness, if it isn't nice to get you [illegible] back [illegible]."

"Papa," began Margaret, but Jeanne stopped her.

"That is just as we would have it, too, dear. It could be no other way and be well. His sins are forgiven I am sure, if they were sins."

"It is sweet to be with you," murmured Margaret [illegible].

THE END.

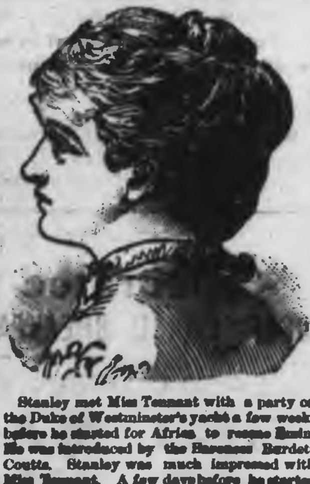
STANLEY'S LOVE AFFAIR.

Miss Dorothy Tennant, Who is to Become the Great Explorer's Bride.

Before very long Miss Dorothy Tennant will write her name "Mrs. H. M. Stanley." There is just a possibility that she may be Lady Stanley, or Henry M. Stanley, Baronetcy. If there is such a thing as a typical woman, Miss Tennant is a typical English-woman. She is tall, largely built, with fine gray eyes and dark brown hair. As an artist she has won mediocre success; she has been hung in the "Academy;" has painted many pictures of a conventional sort; is more or less a social lioness. It would be gross libel to accuse her of being "over young to marry yet." Her best fame was attained in 1869 and 1870. It was a year later Sir John Everett Millais exhibited a pretty picture entitled "Yes or No!" Of this Miss Tennant was model and heroine.

A few years later, Mr. George Frederick Watts, A. R. A., sent another portrait, of Miss Tennant to the Academy. The quiet beauty and feminine strength of Miss Tennant's face are told in these portraits. More than that there is a delicate compliment in the fact that her face should have been chosen by the two best portrait-painters in England for fashioning for their Academy offerings.

One can hardly say that Miss Tennant is in the first flight of women-artists in London; but she has done good work—that is eulogium enough for anyone.



Stanley met Miss Tennant with a party on the Duke of Westminster's yacht a few weeks before he started for Africa to rescue Emin. He was introduced by the Baroness Burdett Coutts. Stanley was much impressed with Miss Tennant. A few days before he started for Africa he proposed marriage. Much to his surprise he was rejected. To the Baroness and one or two other friends Stanley denounced Miss Tennant's conduct in encouraging him to the point of proposal and then jilting him. Miss Tennant said she could not stand a man who dyed his hair. The stories about Stanley sending impassioned love letters from the heart of Africa to his fiancee are all bosh. Stanley went away a rejected suitor. While homeward bound, he arrived at Brindisi. Miss Tennant was not there to meet him as she surely would have been if betrothed, nor did she meet him in Paris or Brussels. From Brussels Stanley wired two intimate friends in London to meet him at Ostend and lunch on the boat while crossing to Dover. These friends were Mrs. French Sheldon, of New York, and Harry Wellcome. Miss Tennant was not among the party to meet Stanley at Dover, but the Baroness Coutts was, and during the journey up she contrived to let Stanley know that if he still loved Dorothy Tennant and would ask her again to marry him this time he would not be refused. The result was that Stanley drove at once from Victoria station to the house of the Baroness Coutts, where Miss Tennant was waiting to meet him. Whether Stanley asked her again there and then, to be his wife cannot be learned, but he did so soon afterward. No date is fixed for the wedding, but it will probably be in July.

Queen Victoria has sent a letter congratulating Henry M. Stanley on his engagement. It is said he will be urged to become a British subject and accept the honor of knighthood. Baroness Burdett-Coutts has started a subscription to purchase him a handsome residence.

Empress Elizabeth's Palace.

The Empress of Austria is building herself a magnificent Pompeian palace at Corfu, which will have cost nearly $2,500,000 by the time it is ready for occupation. It is on a charming site on top of a steep hill, and is being constructed of marble brought from Carrara, while the interior is to be decorated with the rarest woods. The gardens will be laid out in terraces, with fountains, and both the house and grounds are to be illuminated by electricity. Three hundred men are now employed on the building operations.

SOCIAL PHILOSOPHY.

Encourage the modest man too much and he will become vain.

Getting cheated yesterday is what teaches a man to cheat today.

A philosopher is a man who doesn't want the things he can't have.

Don't blame a man for being vain; he is only what others have made him.

If a husband is worth having he is worth taking care of.—Sent in by an abused man.

There are two things a woman is slow to claim—the first is an old garter and the right to an old paper bustle.

There never was a crime committed that did not leave its mark on the face of the man who committed it.

Marriage with a man is like the month of March: If he goes in like a lion he never fails to come out like a lamb.

When the women get together they abuse the men, but it is to the credit of the men that when they get together they do not abuse the women.

There are only two kinds of women; one kind thinks her husband the greatest man in the world, and the other thinks there is no greater man than her husband.

THE PULSE OF TRADE.

A FAIRLY ACTIVE MOVEMENT REPORTED TO BRADSTREET'S.

Speculation in Wall-street—Stocks of Wheat—Sudden Improvement in the Iron Market—The Week's Failures—Dun-Wiman's Favorable Report.

NEW YORK, June 6.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's indicate only a fairly active general trade movement.

Active speculation in Wall-street has enlarged clearings at this city, and the grand total for 37 cities is the largest on record.

Available stocks of wheat declined very slowly during May owing to heavy shipments of wheat by farmers, stimulated by high prices. This, with a large increase in the quantity afloat for Europe, serves to increase stocks in sight for Europe, America and afloat about 2,082,000 bushels as compared with May 1. During January and February these stocks declined 10,000,000 bushels per month. The decreases were smaller in the two following months, while in May stocks piled up in excess of consumptive demand, something quite unusual at this season. Exports of wheat (and of flour as wheat), both coasts, equal 2,382,610 bushels this week against 1,793,064 bushels in the like week a year ago and 1,682,936 bushels last week. Total shipments July 1, 1889, to date equal 109,330,544 bushels against 81,861,433 bushels in a like portion of 1888-89.

Southern pig iron-makers report a sudden improvement in the demand, the continuance of which is problematical, and they are taking advantage of it to book large orders at bottom prices for future delivery on options extended during the past few weeks. In reply to new enquiries they are naming advanced prices. The entire iron trade is gaining in activity and tendency of changes of prices are becoming rarer. Production and consumption are pretty evenly balanced and a more hopeful feeling prevails.

Business failures reported to Bradstreet's number 175 in the United States this week against 140 last week and 201 this week last year. Canada had 25 this week against 12 last week. The total number of failures in the United States Jan. 1 to date is 4943 against 5245 in a like portion of 1889.

An Upward Tendency.

NEW YORK, June 6.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade to-day: All indications regarding business are [illegible] encouraging. At the [illegible] there is no [illegible] on the prospect that a silver bill will speedily pass both Houses and in such form that executive approval can be expected. It is difficult at times to distinguish between the merely speculative and the more substantial improvement, but in this instance there is no room to doubt that conditions are improving for productive industries and for legitimate trade. Crop prospects have brightened wonderfully and those who look for better times are no longer forced to account for a hopeful and confident tone in the face of a short crop outlook. The general average of prices has not been affected much as yet but has turned upward and manufactured products with breadstuffs show a general tendency to advance. The reports from other cities are almost without exception favorable. The great industries show clearly the general tendency towards improvement.

JUMPED THE TRACK.

Fatal Accident on the Galena Division of the Northwestern Road.

ROCKFORD, Ill., June 6.—The Northwestern passenger train from Freeport which reaches Chicago at 9 o'clock jumped the track two miles west of here this forenoon on account of a broken wheel. A gang of section men were working about 20 feet from the point where the engine left the rails and before they could get away the train had run them down and toppled over on them. The entire train was wrecked and the engineer and four section men were killed. The fireman, two section men and some passengers were injured. Engineer Dietrich, who was killed, had been engineer on the Galena division for over 25 years.

A SHOWER OF FLAMES.

Eleven Men Injured, Some Fatally, by a Gasoline Explosion.

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.—While firemen were engaged to-day in extinguishing a fire in a detached building of the Pennsylvania Globe and Gas Light Company the flames reached the storage basin in which were 19 barrels of gasoline. A terrific explosion followed. Eleven men were caught in a shower of burning oil and were badly burned. The men were removed to the hospital and some will probably die. The fire is said to have originated from a spark from the pipe of a careless employe.

Reformed Church Union.

ASBURY PARK, N.J., June 6.—The General Synod of the Reformed Church in America to-day adopted by a very large vote the report of the Committee of Union with the Reformed Church in the United States which recommended federal union with that body. There were only five votes against the report. These united churches will number according to the data of 1889, 289,548 communicants, 407,870 baptised members, 2063 churches, 1814 ministers, 30 seats of learning and five publishing houses.

NEW YORK, June 6.—In the Reformed Presbyterian Synod to-day an animated discussion ensued over the question of the union with the General Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church of the United Presbyterians. The matter will be further discussed this evening.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

GERMANY TO ADD 40,000 MEN TO THE PEACE FOOTING.

Important Announcement by the Minister of War—Speakers of all Factions Testify to a Growing Agitation in the Country Against Militarism.

BERLIN, June 6.—The Minister of War announced to the Military Committee of the Reichstag to-day that bills would be introduced by the Government providing for the construction of strategical railways and for training the reserves in the use of the new rifle. In addition to these bills the War Minister said an appropriation would be asked for the further equipment of the army. He declared no one capable of bearing arms should cease training when he had completed his term of service. The Government had only decided upon the main principles of the measure concerning the reserves. The demands contained in the Military Bill were small as compared with those of the French Government. He said he was not empowered to make a statement regarding the fixing of the strength of the army every seven years. The War Minister said the Government meditated a still further increase of the peace footing, 40,000 men more than the present bill provided for.

Speakers of all parties, especially the Centrists, Freisinnige and National Liberals, testified to a growing agitation in the country against military burdens and declared it was imperative to reduce the term of service.

Parliament's Vacation.

LONDON, June 6.—The Government has resolved to adjourn Parliament at the end of July until the middle of October.

The Copper Market Excited.

BIRMINGHAM, June 6.—The copper market became excited to-day on receipt of a telegram from Chili. The price of copper has risen nearly £2 since yesterday. Chili is quoted at £50 cash, at ports £56s 6d.

LONDON, June 6.—On the Metal Exchange to-day copper rose 17s 6d. The failure of a large operator in Rio Tinto shares reported from Paris together with the rise in the price of the metal forced up the prices of all copper-mine shares.

Orleans at Dover.

LONDON, June 6.—The Duke of Orleans arrived at Dover to-day from Belgium. His father, the Count of Paris, and 40 of his friends awaited him upon the pier and he was given a hearty reception.

South Australian Property.

ADELAIDE, South Australia, June 6.—The Earl of Kintore, Governor of the colony, opened Parliament yesterday. He congratulated the members upon the growth of Australian unity. He announced that the budget showed a surplus; that the duties would be remitted on tea, coffee, sugar, cocoa and kerosene, and that a bill would be introduced for the extension of the Transcontinental Railway as far as the McDonnell Range.

THE ELECTIONS.

Later Returns Do Not Materially Alter the Situation.

TORONTO, June 7.—The latest returns of Thursday's polling do not materially alter the situation. The election of Mr. Blezard (Lib.) in East Peterboro is assured, but there seems to be doubt of the result in North Bruce. The constituency is claimed for Mr. Porter, Liberal by three majority, and for Mr. George, Conservative, by six majority. There is much the same situation in Prince Edward County. There Mr. Johnson, Conservative, claims the seat by one majority, while the Liberals claim the election of Mr. Sprague by six majority. In North Bruce the Conservatives have the advantage in the size of the claim, but in Prince Edward the best claim is made by the Liberals. The case now stands:—

Government	56
Opposition	32
	91

If the three doubtful should go to the Conservatives the Government will have a majority of 21. If the three doubtful seats should go to the Liberals the Government would have a majority of 27. The Government majority on the complete returns received is 24. This was exactly the Government's majority in the last house.

The Latest Figures.

TOTTENHAM, June 6.—Hammell (Con.) has 92 of a majority with two places to hear from.

ORILLIA, June 6.—Miscampbell's majority over Drury in East Simcoe is 189, with one place in Oro to hear from.

RENFREW, June 6.—Dowling's (Lib.) majority in South Renfrew is 200, with one place yet to be heard from, which will increase his majority.

BRACEBRIDGE, June 6.—Marter's (Con.) majority in Muskoka is 130, with two places to hear from.

PERTH, June 6.—McLeneghan's (Con.) majority in South Lanark is now 340.

A GOOD LOSER.

Col. Gibson Accepts His Defeat Philosophically—West Lambton Open.

HAMILTON, June 6.—It is difficult to be a good loser, no matter whether one's pocket or feelings are affected, but Mr. Gibson certainly takes his defeat in a very common sense way. Not but that he is disappointed—aye, bitterly disappointed—still now that the first sharp, bitter pangs of the crushing blow he has received have passed, he calmly reviews the situation in a philosophical manner. When asked what his intentions regarding the future were he said:

"I am naturally very much disappointed, so disappointed in fact that I feel like cutting politics forever and retiring into private life. For 12 years have I endured the harassing strain of public life, its domestic and business privations and I might say its social privations. I feel after the way I have laboured for Hamilton for the past 12 years that the rebuff I have received was scarcely a merited one. Of course, I suppose, I could be elected from some other constituency, but I am a Hamilton man, born and bred, and my life has been spent here. Whether I shall seek re-election in some other constituency or not, I am not at present prepared to say."

It is said among local politicians that West Lambton is open to Mr. Gibson if he cares to take it.

Severe Hailstorm at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, June 6.—A short-lived but fierce hailstorm visited this city about 5 p.m. Hail fell profusely. A basketful was brought to the signal service station containing stones which measured 1½ inches in diameter. Reports of damage by flood and storm in Western New York are being received hourly.

Ten Persons and 400 Houses Burnt.

WARSAW, June 6.—Four hundred houses were destroyed by fire in the town of Dobryen near Warsaw to-day. Ten persons were burned to death. The damage to property is immense.

IN SEARCH OF HER CHILD.

Mrs. Cowles at Cleveland Pays a Fruitless Visit to Toronto.

TORONTO, June 7.—On the register at the Rossin House appear these names:

C. HALE, Cleveland, Ohio.
MRS. DOLSON, Cleveland, Ohio.
MRS. ALICE H. COWLES, Cleveland, Ohio.

The party arrived in Toronto by the 6.20 train from Hamilton last night and the object of their visit is to find Mrs. Cowles' husband, Eugene H. Cowles, and their 9-year old daughter Florence, who was abducted in a sensational manner by the father at Cleveland on Monday last.

The party arrived a day too late, however, as Mr. Cowles had evidently got wind of the intended visit and had disappeared. He arrived at the Queen's Hotel with his daughter Wednesday night, but left at 7½ Thursday evening, presumably having taken a train east.

Mrs. Cowles, who is almost prostrated with grief over the loss of her daughter, told the story of her ill-treatment at the hands of her husband, with tears welling from her eyes. They were married about twelve years ago, Cowles being a son of the late Edwin Cowles, proprietor of The Cleveland Plaindealer. Four years ago, she alleges, her husband formed an intimacy with a young woman named Clara Lienschloss, then living at Bloomfield, N.J., who accompanied him on a trip to Europe in October, 1886, and returned with him the next spring. When they came to Cleveland the woman rented a house in Arlington-street, where Mr. Cowles frequently visited.

In March, 1888, Mr. Cowles sailed from New York on the steamer Trave, the young woman, registered as Miss C. L. King, again accompanying him, and their trip extended to Paris and Nice. On their return the same year he took her to the Catskill Mountains, where they registered at a hotel as man and wife. Mrs. Cowles says that during all this time her husband claimed that his health would not permit him to live in Cleveland, and that she did not learn of his conduct until October, 1888, when she returned to the home of her father.

After a year of separation Mr. Cowles made a promise in writing to lead an upright life thereafter, and on that pledge she returned to their home, but in December, 1889, she alleges, Mr Cowles joined Miss Lienschloss in New Jersey and spent several days with her. Learning of this Mrs. Cowles refused to live with him any longer, and has since had no communication with him and received no support from him.

After the abduction of her child on Monday, Mrs. Cowles, through her attorney, filed a petition in the Common Pleas Court at Cleveland for absolute divorce and the custody of her child, and Judge Hamilton issued a mandatory order for the delivery of the child to Mrs. Cowles.

After Cowles' departure he was traced to Buffalo, thence to Niagara Falls, from there to the Welland House, St. Catharines, and finally to Toronto, and the party were chagrined to find on arrival there that the father had evidently been posted by a friend in court and had disappeared.

Mr. Hale, who is a brother of Mrs. Cowles, was evidently of the opinion that Cowles had merely left the Queen's as a blind and was in hiding with the child some place in the city, and with the assistance of a detective scoured the city until long after midnight. He will leave with Mrs. Cowles for Montreal this morning to see if Cowles has arrived there. If he declines to surrender Florence legal steps will be taken to recover the girl.

Mrs. Cowles expresses her intention of pursuing the chase until she recovers possession of Florence, to whom she appears much attached. Her father is E. B. Hale, the wealthy Cleveland banker.

The fact that Edwin Cowles did not, in his will, name Eugene, his eldest son, as one of the trustees of the Cowles estate, and furthermore directed the payment of one-half of Eugene's share from the income to the latter's wife, is alleged to be the cause of his abducting Florence.

Displeased With the Sentence.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June 6.—The one prevailing topic of comment about the streets is the sentence of a month's imprisonment imposed by Chief Justice Allen yesterday on Watt, the murderer of Samuel Torrie. All the city papers speak editorially against the sentence, and The Gazette this evening strongly criticises Justice Allen, whose usual sagacity, it says, has on this occasion utterly failed him.

A Defaulting Lawyer.

HEMPSTEAD, L.I., June 6.—Joseph R. Hunting, one of the most prominent citizens of East Williston, is a defaulter of trust funds to the extent of $31,000. He is a lawyer of previous high standing.

Sunol Makes a Fast Quarter.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., June 6.—Findlay won the 2.25 pacing race here to-day. Best time 2.24¼.

Almont won the 2.19 trot, Kit Curry second. Best time 2.20¾.

Several crack horses were exhibited. Sunol made a quarter in 33¼ seconds and Johnson in 31¼.

A Battle in Macedonia.

BELGRADE, June 6.—Another conflict has taken place at Pristina, Macedonia, between Servians and Arnauts. Forty Servians were killed and 209 were made prisoners by the Arnauts.

AN ONTARIO FLOOD.

HEAVY RAINS SWELL THE CREEKS AND RIVERS.

Severe Losses Reported from Various Sections of the Province—Dams, Bridges and Buildings Washed Away—The Railroads Suffer—No Lives Lost.

ORANGEVILLE, Ont., June 6.—One of the most disastrous floods this town has ever experienced was the result of yesterday's thunderstorm. The storm began about 1.30 p.m. and lasted until about 3 p.m., during which time a swelling torrent swept through the low lying land in the south and east wards. A portion of the Canadian Pacific Railway track, a number of bridges, several frame structures, trees, etc., were swept away. The heaviest losses were sustained by the breaking of two mill dams and the almost total wreck of the shingle mill owned by a Rockaine of Mount Forest.

GREENWOOD, June 6.—The worst freshet ever known here occurred last evening. For the past two nights terrific thunder storms have raged and the waters were high, but the climax was reached last night. Four small dams north of here gave way and the mighty flow of water carried away F. L. Green's large dam. Then the new dam and the race broke away, and last of all the dam of the Oatmeal Milling Company broke away. Roads were submerged and gutted, cellars were flooded, bridges were carried away and telegraph wires broken. Timber and trees were seen floating in all directions. Several people have lost cattle and horses. The roads in the vicinity are in a terrible state. M. Gibson loses heavily from his store cellar being flooded. The loss of F. L. Green will be from $1500 to $2000.

SCHOMBERG, June 6.—In consequence of the heavy rainfalls yesterday afternoon and the sweeping away of two large mill dams, this village was flooded yesterday. Many business and private dwellings were swept away by the flood, leaving the occupants homeless and in destitute circumstances. The total loss is estimated at $10,000 or more.

BARRIE, June 6.—The loss caused by the flood here will reach $20,000.

The Grand Trunk had a large staff of men working all night, and about noon today trains were able to pass over the track laid on trestle work, which extended over 50 yards, and had been washed about eight feet below the level of the track. It is stated that the road has about thirteen washouts to repair at one on the North Simcoe branch. The road is washed away about 400 feet in length and in some places sixty feet deep. The road on this line will not be open for traffic for several days. Large gangs of men have been at work to-day building temporary bridges here so that traffic may be resumed on our principal streets.

This afternoon another storm raged north of here. A farmer named Edward Dixon of Minesing was instantly killed by lightning. He leaves a widow but no children. Considerable damage is reported from the surrounding country.

A Washout on the Grand Trunk.

LONDON, June 6.—A part of an embankment about 100 feet long and 20 feet deep on the main line of the Grand Trunk railway between Komoka and London gave way last night, caused by the action of the recent heavy rains. Through trains are being sent around by St. Thomas without much delay. It is expected that the break will be repaired in three days. It was discovered by the section man in time to warn trains and prevent an accident.

A Station Roof Carried Away.

ELORA, June 6.—During the storm which passed over this vicinity last night, part of the roof of the G.T.R. station was lifted by the wind and thrown on the track, pulling down all the telegraph wires with it.

Great Damage in Ontario County.

WHITBY, June 6.—Ontario county was visited by a terrible storm yesterday evening. The floods have washed away all the mill dams, many bridges and a big slice of heavy filling on the Midland Railway, between here and Port Perry. The aggregate loss will run into hundreds of thousands.

OSHAWA, June 6.—The loss by the flood in East Whitby and Oshawa is estimated at $50,000.

Losses at Port Hope.

PORT HOPE, June 6.—The most disastrous flood in the history of Port Hope occurred this morning. All the dams on Smith's creek north of the town were swept away. Dams were carried away, over 100 feet of the Midland track was washed out and all traffic cut off. Bridges are gone and cellars flooded. The loss will reach $50,000.

A WRECK ON THE L. & N.

Eight Persons Seriously Injured—Two Likely to Die.

LOUISVILLE, June 6.—The Wagner through sleeper from Louisville to Boston, via Cincinnati over the Louisville & Nashville, was wrecked near English, Ky., at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Eight persons were seriously wounded, two of whom will probably die. The injured are:

Col. H. G. Hodges, severely bruised, leg broken.

Mrs. Hodges, cut and crushed about head and shoulders, can hardly recover.

John Johnson, wealthy cotton merchant of Memphis, cut about the head and chest.

Mrs. Johnson, dreadfully mangled, will probably die.

R. C. Epperson, Brent Arnold, C. R. Brent, officials of the L. & N., severely hurt.

Two trainmen, badly hurt.

The wounded were brought here.

Boot and Shoe Workers' Officers.

ROCHESTER, June 6.—At this morning's session of the Boot and Shoe Workers' International Association Charles Irish of Hamilton, Ont., was elected president; H. J. Skeffington, New York, secretary. An executive committee was elected, of which Richard Burke of Toronto is a member. President Irish was born in London, Eng., and is 36 years of age.

PITTSBURG, June 6.—During a heavy thunderstorm this morning the postoffice building at Goff, Pa., was struck by lightning and the postmaster seriously injured.

BOSTON, June 6.—Heavy thunderstorms are reported in various portions of this State and Connecticut. At Pittsfield, Mass., last night, a street car was struck by lightning. One horse was killed, the driver was rendered unconscious, the passengers were thrown from their seats and more or less bruised but none very seriously hurt.

Killed on the Track.

GUELPH, June 6.—This afternoon the south express on the Wellington, Grey & Bruce division of the Grand Trunk struck a man named Maitland of Pusbinch, who was walking on the track four miles north of here. He was brought to Guelph, but died shortly after he arrived.

REASONS

Why Ayer's Sarsaparilla is preferable to any other for the cure of Blood Diseases.

Because no poisonous or deleterious ingredients enter into the composition of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla contains only the purest and most effective remedial properties.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla is prepared with extreme care, skill, and cleanliness.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla is prescribed by leading physicians.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla is for sale everywhere, and recommended by all first-class druggists.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a medicine, and not a beverage in disguise.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla never fails to effect a cure, when persistently used, according to directions.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a highly concentrated extract, and therefore the most economical Blood Medicine in the market.

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla has had a successful career of nearly half a century, and was never so popular as at present.

—Thousands of testimonials are on file from those benefited by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1890.

THE PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS.

The result of the elections in the Province has been the retention in office of the Mowat Government. This result we believe to be an unfortunate one for the Province, for the policy that Government has pursued in many matters has not been in the interest of the people.

The platform of the Opposition, led by Mr. Meredith, was one that should have been endorsed by the electors. In regard to the financial management of the affairs of the Province, the conservation of its resources, the decentralization of power and patronage, the educational laws and the other points of difference the Province will suffer through the continuance of the policy that has been pursued in the past by the present administration. So far as the decision has been the freely expressed wishes of the people, it must be accepted by those who, like ourselves, think it unfortunate and unwise, but it would be a mistake to think that the result was wholly due to an unfettered expression of opinion. Through its control of the patronage and of the expenditure of public money, through the liquor laws, the unfair and one-sided ballot system and the gerrymandered constituencies the Government obtained advantages that were unfair and unrighteous, and that were calculated to and did prevent a free expression of opinion at the ballot box.

The election was full of surprises, but among the losses on the Conservative side none will be more regretted than the defeat of Mr. Creighton in North Grey. A man of ability and a member who was careful in attending to the duties of his position as a representative, he will be greatly missed from the Legislature and his defeat is a loss to the Province.

There were strong indications of disapproval of the course of the Government in many quarters, and although the Government has received a majority three of the Ministers have disappeared. The Provincial Treasurer did not seek re-election, and the Provincial Secretary and Minister of Agriculture, Messrs. Gibson and Drury, were defeated in their constituencies. These signs, it is to be hoped, will not be lost upon the colleagues of Mr. Mowat who remain, and if they should be heeded we might hope for a better administration, although from the course they have pursued in the past there is not much ground for expecting better things from them.

Mr. Meredith made a valiant fight, and although the number of his supporters in the House may not be increased, he has increased his reputation as an able and fair-minded man and he deserves the warmest thanks of the Conservatives of Ontario for the efforts he made on behalf of their views and, as they believe, on behalf of the best interests of the Province.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Medalists of the University—The Haldimand Election Trial.

TORONTO, June 7.—The results of the Toronto University examinations are announced. The medals and scholarships were bestowed as follows:

FACULTY OF MEDICINE—Starr Gold Medal, L. F. Barker.

FACULTY OF ARTS—Second Year: Governor-General's Silver Medal, J. A. McLean. Third Year: Governor-General's Gold Medal, D. McGee.

FACULTIES OF LAW AND ARTS—First Year in Law and Second Year in Arts: Blake Scholarships, 1, D. C. Ross; 2, J. A. McLean. Second Year in Law and Third Year in Arts: Blake Scholarships, 1, W. H. Boddingham; 2, J. M. Godfrey.

The graduating class in arts eclipses any preceding year in the history of the university. Hitherto the carrying of two honor courses in the fourth year has been looked upon as almost impossible, although the feat has been performed in a few rare cases. The class of '90, however, not only has one but at least half a dozen members who have carried off honors in more than one department. Not the least of these are the ladies who have in many cases set the pace for the masculine members of the class. It is understood, moreover, that some of these young ladies have made application for the fellowship in Modern Languages.

The degree of M.D. is conferred on 1 in course and 5 ad eundem, M.A. on 8, D.D.S. on 20, LL.B. on 12, M.B. on 41, B.A. on 78 and B.Sc.A. on 5.

The Court of Queen's Bench yesterday fixed the trial of the petition against the return of Dr. Montague as M.P. for Haldimand to be heard at Cayuga on Sept. 2.

At Osgoode Hall yesterday Mr. Justice Street gave judgment in Ontario Natural Gas Company v. Smart and others. The defendants are mainly members of the Kingsville Citizens' Natural Gas Company, who enjoy under a bylaw passed by the Gosfield South Township Council the right to bore for natural gas in the neighborhood of the plaintiff's wells, and apparently through the same joints. It was sought to quash the bylaw on the ground that natural gas was not a mineral and therefore that the council had no right to pass the bylaw. But the judge held that natural gas must come within the provisions of the statute and declined to entertain the motion.

Ned Hanlan was caught in the storm yesterday afternoon on the bay and his great aquatic generalship kept him afloat. Several mishaps occurred to his shell, but after a struggle he landed at Warin's safely. He weighs 161¼ lbs.

THE U. S. TARIFF.

Senators at Work on the Bill—A Reduction in Barley Demanded.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Work on the Tariff Bill was resumed to-day by the Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee, and when recess was taken it was announced that the schedules including chemicals, oils and paints, and earths, earthenware, china and glassware had been completed. It is believed none of the changes are radical. This afternoon the sub-committee finished not only the metals schedule but also the wood schedule. It is said copies of these will be given the Democratic members of the committee to-morrow.

Before the committee formally began work to-day Congressman Farquhar of Buffalo made an argument in behalf of the maltsters of Oswego, N.Y. These men want a reduction of duty on barley from 30 cents a bushel as proposed in the McKinley bill to 15 cents a bushel, which is higher by five cents than the present rate.

A COLLISION IMPENDING.

Bay St. George Fishermen Threaten to Fire on the French.

HALIFAX, June 6.—Rev. Father Guille, who arrived from St. John's, Nfld., this morning, said that the fishermen at Sandy Point, St. George's Bay, are very much excited over the manner in which they have been treated by the French. A day before the steamer Caspian sailed the schooner Rover while fishing off St. Georges was hailed by a boat from the French man-of-war and ordered to take in her nets. The captain of the Rover refused and the French deliberately pulled the fishing gear from the water. A number of fishermen held a meeting at St. George Friday night, at which resolutions were passed to the effect that if the French came inside the shore limits and floated their nets they would be fired on.

ARRESTED FOR BURGLARY.

Chief Hoy of Prescott Catches a Batch of Thieves at Cardinal.

PRESCOTT, June 6.—During the night of June 4 burglars blew open the safe of Contractors Murray & Cleveland of Cardinal. Chief Hoy of Preston was notified of the burglary, and hearing of the presence of suspicious characters in an outbuilding three miles from the village he went to the place with Village Constable Strange, burst open the door and found five men asleep. They had a full set of burglars' tools, gunpowder and fuse. A quantity of stolen goods was recovered. The prisoners were committed for trial.

The C. P. R. and the Southeastern.

MONTREAL, June 6.—A step towards the recovery of the Montreal, Portland and Boston Railway Company of their line from the Canadian Pacific Railway was made by a decision of Mr. Justice Davidson in the Superior Court to-day, practically setting aside the only claim of the Southeastern Railway Company for $330,000 against the road. The action taken against the C. P. R. involved some $2,000,000 and was for recovery of the road from them and the trustees of the Southeastern.

Suicide at the Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., June 6.—In a little summer house on the bank of the river, near the entrance to Prospect Park, Policeman McMullin yesterday morning found a woman's bonnet, cloak and shawl. John Bergan recognized the articles as belonging to his wife, who is missing. It is supposed she committed suicide by going over the cataract.

The Newfoundland Troubles.

LONDON, June 5.—In the House of Commons this evening Sir James Ferguson, Under Secretary, stated that the Government was in receipt of official cablegrams showing that there had been no landing of French armed vessels in Nova Scotia. No threats had been made, nor had there been any refusal to pay taxes although resolutions to that effect had been voted.

The Channel Tunnel Bill was rejected by a vote of 234 to 153.

A Toronto Lad Drowned at Guelph.

GUELPH, June 5.—A young boy aged about five years, son of Henry Ching, who is employed at Newcombe's piano factory, Toronto, was drowned here about 9 o'clock this morning. He was playing above Goldie's dam and is supposed to have stumbled and fell in. He was carried over the apron of the dam, a fall of about twenty-five feet. He was got out immediately, but was dead.

The Newfoundland Dispute.

LONDON, June 6.—In the House of Commons to-night Sir James Ferguson in reply to questions regarding the Newfoundland dispute said the Government would readily assent to arbitration but there were many difficult preliminaries to be settled.

The Ottawa Murder.

OTTAWA, June 6.—The coroner's jury in the Visfaro case returned a verdict of wilful murder against Antonio Gariboni and recommended that a reward be offered for his arrest.

MORE DAKOTA LOTTERY SCHEMES.

Plans to Carry the State Legislature of Dakota and Charter the Louisiana Concern.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 5.—Circulars offering advertisements have been sent out from the Great European lottery at Hamburg, from the Louisiana lottery, and from the Zacatecas in Mexico to every paper in North Dakota, and in many of them they are now being printed under yearly contracts. This is evidently a systematic effort to stifle the conscience of the people of the State through the only means of expression of public sentiment. These advertisements offer a constant and almost irresistible temptation to the struggling editor to betray his trust to the people and no longer print the facts in regard to this great political crime that has been once attempted and is still believed to be secretly cherished.

Reports from all over the State indicate that the same men who furthered the lottery scheme last winter are making the most industrious preparations to obtain possession of the primaries this fall. Secretary of State Flittie, who is in St. Paul, speaking of the political situation, denied indignantly that he was the lottery ring's candidate for Governor, but thought they might secure the nomination of some such man as Budge of Grand Forks. He thought that failing in that they might bolt and support McCormack for Governor. Mr. Flittie hoped, however, that the lottery crowd would not be strong enough to disrupt the Republican party of the State.

Denny Hannafin of Bismarck, who is always well posted in politics and is proud of his relations to the lottery scheme as one of the most active supporters, said to a reporter this evening: "The next Governor of North Dakota will be just whoever the lottery people want. The mine is laid, and they're putting in the fuse now that is to be touched off next fall, and then the opposition to the North Dakota lottery people will be blown so high toward North Heaven that they can hear the angels whistle. North Dakota is going to stand by Alexander McKenzie and Spencer and the rest of the only friends she ever had. We ain't going to make any mistake this time, and after the next Legislature is elected the Louisiana State lottery can have a charter in North Dakota if it wants it."

KILLED AND MAIMED.

Terrible Results of an Oil Explosion on a Steamer at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—About 4 o'clock this afternoon an explosion occurred in the tank steamer Hans and Kurt, lying at the Atlantic oil refining docks at Point Breeze. The vessel was ruined and 80,000 gallons of oil, together with considerable wharf property, including a brick storage building, were destroyed by the fire which resulted from the explosion, cause unknown. The killed and injured: Jos. Quinn, aged 38, shipping clerk, died from injuries; Harris Scheuholtz, 37, hoseman of engine 4, dying from inhalation of smoke; John Karwenut, 42, the steamer's captain, badly wounded, condition serious; Henry Gempen, 40, badly burned, will die; and 11 others badly injured, two possibly fatally.

MASSACRED BY INDIANS.

Redmen Who Were Refused Firewater Annihilate a Surveying Party.

DENVER, Col., June 5.—J. H. Holl, purchasing agent for the Importing Cattle Company of Wyoming, arrived here to-day and gives an account of the Indian massacre in the Upper Green River country, several days ago. He says a party of Indians intoxicated with whisky furnished by ranchmen came to the camp of the Government surveyors and demanded more "firewater." It being refused the Indians attacked the party, killing Chief Engineer Crittenden, in charge of the third division of the Government survey, and Chain-bearers E. F. Timberlake, George Woods and Henry Overmeyer. Jesse Lee, assistant engineer, was left for dead, but recovered sufficiently to get to a neighboring ranch, where he lies in a precarious condition.

THREE ROBBERS BOLD.

Toronto Lads Steal a Woodbridge Shoemaker's Purse—Fictitious Names Given.

WOODBRIDGE, June 5.—Three boys giving their names as Ernest Selden Ford, John Mullen and John Peterson stole a ride on the Canadian Pacific Railroad from Toronto to this place this morning and entered a shoemaker's shop here pretending they wanted their boots repaired. While the shoemaker's back was turned they stole a purse containing about $12 and made a race for the country. They were hotly pursued by the constables and other citizens and were all captured. They were brought here and are now awaiting trial before Reeve Wallace. Part of the money was found on two of the boys. The other one says he threw his part away. The purse was found hidden near the Methodist Church. It is thought the names they gave are fictitious.

LEASED BY THE SYNDICATE.

The C. C. Washburn Mills at Minneapolis in the Hands of the Big Combine.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 5.—The English syndicate controlling the Pilsbury and W. D. Washburn mills have leased the C. C. Washburn mills, A, B and C, thus adding to their present capacity of 14,500 barrels per day over 8500, making over 23,000 barrels as a total capacity of the English syndicate per diem. There will be no such syndicate in the world as this last named doing business as flour-producers. Mr. Pilsbury says that this new deal adds $6,000,000 to Minneapolis capital.

AN APPALLING DISASTER.

A Special Filled With Baltimore and Ohio Officials Goes Through a Trestle.

WHEELING, W. Va., June 5.—It is just learned that an Ohio River Railway special train of two cars filled with Baltimore and Ohio railway officials en route to Wheeling went through a trestle between here and Parkersburg. The disaster is said to be appalling, but the officials of the road can give no information. A special train with surgeons and an associated press reporter on borrd has just left the depot. It will be impossible to get details until a very late hour.

Saved by a Heroic Boy.

OMAHA, Neb., June 5.—The heroism of a boy named Mike Haley prevented the wreck of the Union Pacific flyer between here and South Omaha at a place called Summit. Young Haley was returning home when he saw two men unlock the switch and turn it. He ran to South Omaha and notified the train men just as the train, which consisted of 12 coaches, was pulling out. There was an unusually large number of passengers on board, and had the plot not been discovered the loss of life must have been great.

Friction in the British Cabinet.

LONDON, June 5.—It is stated upon the highest authority that in the cabinet council held to-day Mr. Balfour strongly objected to the shelving of the Irish Land Purchase Bill, which was proposed by other ministers desiring precedence for the bill compensating publicans for revoked licenses, the latter bill being now shelved. It is undoubtedly the case that a considerable degree of friction exists in the cabinet.

Cholera is rife at Desrich on the Tigris. A sanitary cordon has been placed around the town.

A Female Train Wrecker.

COLON, Mich., June 5.—Kittie M. Frederick has been arrested here for placing three ties on the Michigan Central track three miles west of Union City a few days ago and nearly wrecking a freight train. The company is said to be in possession of positive evidence of her guilt.

Losses Caused by Flames.

WIARTON, June 5.—Young's mill was totally destroyed by fire early this morning. Incendiarism is suspected. Loss $4000, insurance $1000 in Lancashire and City of London.

South Grimsby Bonuses the T., H. & B.

GRIMSBY, June 5.—The bylaw of South Grimsby granting a bonus of $4000 to the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo Railway to purchase right of way through the township was voted on Wednesday and was carried by a majority of 30.

Getting their Licenses.

Yesterday the hotel, saloon and shop licenses were prepared and delivered to those to whom they had been granted by Mr. Mowat's Commissioners. The elections being over, there was no need to hold them back longer.

Replace Your Footwear.

Possibly your boots have been half worn out running around doing election work. Good! Now you will need new boots. Get them at Kidd's, The Shoe House. Grits, Tories and Equal Righters can all be well and cheaply shod. Kidd the shoe man boots all comers. d128tf

There is comfort for the man with a prematurely gray beard in Buckingham's Dye, because it never fails to color an even brown or black as may be desired.

Four Years More a Member.

The verdict of the polls has been given. Mr. Stratton is a member for 4 years longer. The ballots were marked in his favor by a large majority just as they would have been for Hawley Bros. as the prompt, careful and successful tea merchants, who give a good article at a moderate price. Give Hawley's a trial. d128tf

A Coming Sale.

We are informed that Mr. C. Stapleton has been instructed to sell by auction at some date next month, of which notice will be given: Lot No. 4, south side of Sherbrooke-st. and Lot No. 7, corner of Sherbrooke and Aylmer-sts., on which is the house and buildings now occupied by Mr. Stethem. This is a very handsome and well situated property, and must attract the buyers who are picking up the few pieces of centrally located property that are not yet taken. 3d123-2w22

A Coming Entertainment.

The close of the term in the Collegiate Institute will be celebrated with an exhibition of physical exercises by the pupils in the drill shed on the evening of Thursday, June 12th. The exercises will be entirely new to the public and will consist of the latest exercises in physical training and the performance will be a varied one. Mr. Ketchum's Institute class will render choruses. The admission will be 10 cents; proceeds to pay for uniforms. d108-4t

Canker in the mouth can be cured only by expelling the poisonous humor from the system. To do this effectually requires the persistent use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, together with a good, generous diet. One dollar a bottle. Six bottles for $5. Begin at once.

Still Another Chance.

No word has been received as yet from Mr. Patterson, the unfortunate Lakefield jeweller whose store was robbed recently and who went to Napanee Thursday, to identify if possible a quantity of jewellery which was found on three tramps who were arrested at that place this week. However another lot of jewellery has turned up which may prove to be part of the burglarized goods. Chief Roszel has received a postal card from Chief Hoy, of Prescott, stating that five burglars have been arrested at Cardinal, Ont., with a quantity of jewellery on them. A list of the articles is given and tallies with part of the goods stolen from Patterson's store. Mr. Patterson will go to Prescott to examine them.

Come early on Saturday, June 7th, to M. Sullivan's old stand for Bargains. d131-w23tf

EAST PETERBOROUGH.

Mr. Blezard Returned by a Greatly Reduced Majority.

In East Peterborough Mr. Blezard is returned, but by a majority greatly reduced. His majority of 240 has dwindled down to 90. Mr. Kidd made a good fight in the East, and though not altogether successful he has come out of the contest with credit. Details of the returns are not to hand, but the result is as follows:—

Meeting Monday Night.

The P. A. A. A. will meet on Monday evening next in the Olympic reading room at 7.30, to consider the taking of lacrosse into the Association upon an equal footing with other sports. An answer to this important question cannot longer be delayed, so it is expected that all members of the P. A. A. A. will make especial efforts to be present. A directors' meeting of the Association will follow the lacrosse discussion.

Victorious Baseballists.

A local baseball nine went to Hastings yesterday afternoon to play a game with the local club there. The game was played and resulted in the Hastings men being defeated by a score of 20 to 7. The local nine was one picked up for the occasion but they did good field work, and succeeded until the last innings in confining their opponents runs to a solitary one for the innings. McCabe and Sullivan were in the points for the Peterborough boys and did good work. Davy was in the box for the home team, while York and Banigan did the receiving. The individual score is not available to-day but the score by innings was as follows:—

Hastings ..... 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 6—7
Peterborough ..... 5 2 2 0 6 7 3 *—20

Wedded in Toronto.

A matrimonial event of interest was celebrated in Toronto on Thursday evening, when Dr. Scott, one of Peterborough's rising young professional men, was united in marriage to Miss Addie Raymore, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed in the Queen-st. Methodist church at 7.30 o'clock in the evening. Rev. Mr. Beason tied the nuptial knot in the presence of quite a large number of interested friends of the contracting parties who had gathered to witness the event. Miss Raymore, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Mr. A. E. Dixon, of Peterborough, supported the groom. After the ceremony the wedding party drove to the C. P. R. station and took the train for Peterborough, followed by the best wishes and congratulations of a host of Toronto friends. However, owing to the washouts on the railway, a delay took place on the road and a return had to be made to Toronto. Yesterday morning the bride and groom left the Queen city again on the G. T. R. and arrived here on the noon train. The happy couple have taken up their residence on Brock-st. A large number of friends in this vicinity will unite with the REVIEW in extending to them the happiest wishes for a felicitous future.

AN EPITOME OF THE WILL

PROBATE FOR THE WILL OF THE LATE MRS. NICHOLLS APPLIED FOR.

The Estate Estimated at $373,000—The Private and Public Bequests—The Conditions and Stipulations of the Lengthy Document Regarding the Public Bequests.

Probate for the will of the late Mrs. Charlotte Jane Nicholls, Peterborough's noble benefactor, has been applied for, the estate being sworn at $373,000. The public bequests contained in the will were given in the REVIEW at the time the document was read, but the following epitome of the will, which was several columns long, has been obtained:—

The will was executed at Asbury Park, New Jersey, on the 29th August, 1886, and gives, devises and bequeaths to Richard Hall, of the town of Peterborough, merchant, and Charles McGill, of the same place, bank manager, as trustees, all her estate, real and personal and whatsoever and whensoever upon the trusts and for the uses intended and purposes following, namely, to pay the following legacies and sums of money:—

To Miss Mary Jane Bryson the sum of $75,000.

To Miss Fanny Dugan the sum of $30,000.

To Mrs. Cora Clark the sum of $10,000.

To Frank Nicholls Kennia the sum of $60,000.

To Mrs. Marianna Wildman the sum of $50,000.

To Dr. Wildman the sum of $5,000.

To Mrs. Juliet Raymond the sum of $30,000.

To Benjamin Andrew Jackson the sum of $50,000.

To William Heron, of Glasgow, Scotland, the sum of $10,000.

To Rev. Alexander Bell the sum of $5,000.

To the daughters of John J. Hall, $1,000 each, $3,000.

To Thomas Chas. Dugan the sum of $5,000.

To Mrs. Louisa Westfeldt the sum of $5,000.

To Mrs. Fanny Holton, the sum of $5,000.

To the children of Dr. Jas. Fitzgerald, of Newton Butler, Ireland, the sum of $10,000.

To Mrs. James Best the sum of $2,000.

To Mrs. J. G. Hall the sum of $2,000.

To Miss Annie J. Hall the sum of $5,000.

To Richard Hall, Robt. Innes and Robt. Hall, members of the firm of Hall, Innes & Co., $10,000 each, $30,000.

To Mrs. T. W. Robinson the sum of $10,000.

To Jas. T. Emmerson the sum of $3,000.

To Peter Connal and W. G. Ferguson each $5,000, $10,000.

To Mrs. William Bell the sum of $1,000.

To Miss Annie Clydale the sum of $100.

To Mrs. Jane Hoff the sum of $100.

To Mrs. Ann Turner the sum of $1,000.

To Richard Hall and Charles McGill each $5,000, $10,000.

To the children of the late Emma J. Rackham the sum of $20,000.

To Miss Abbie Dugan the sum of $15,000.

To Mrs. Florence Burritt the sum of $15,000.

To Mrs. Elizabeth Hall the sum of $25,000.

To Thomas Nicholls the sum of $5,000.

To St. Andrew's church, Peterborough, the sum of $15,000.

To St. Paul's church, Peterborough, the sum of $5,000.

To each of the Protestants Sunday schools of the town of Peterborough $500, say eight, $4,000.

To trustees to be appointed by the trustees of the will, they themselves being of the number, for the benefit of the Peterborough Mechanics Institute to be called the Nicholls Endowment Fund, $20,000. This fund is to be invested and the income derived therefrom is to be used for the improvement and purposes and towards the maintenance of the Institute.

To trustees to be appointed by the trustees of the will, they themselves being of the number, for the benefit of the Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association, $20,000. A sufficient part of this fund for that purpose is to be applied for the purchase of land and the erection of a suitable building and the furnishing of same and the balance is to be invested and the income derived therefrom is to be used for the support and purposes of the Association.

To the Nicholls Hospital as an additional endowment, $35,000.

To the Nicholls Hospital for improvement of the grounds and supplying proper hospital appliances, $5,000.

To the Peterborough Protestant Home $20,700.

To the following schemes of the Presbyterian Church: the aged and infirm ministers' fund, $20,000; the widows' and orphans' fund, $20,000; the home mission fund, $10,000; the foreign mission fund, $10,000; the missions in Manitoba and the Northwest, $10,000; the French evangelization fund, $5,000.

To Queen's College, $20,000.

To Queen's College for a scholarship, $2,000.

To Knox College, $20,000.

To the Collegiate Institute, Peterborough, for scholarships, $2,000.

For public works, $60,000. The provision as to parks is as follows: And I direct my said trustees to set aside the sum of $60,000 for the purpose of purchasing and improving public parks and recreation grounds in the Town of Peterborough, and I authorize and direct them out of said fund from time to time, and at such times as they deem it expedient to do so, to purchase in different portions of this said town of Peterborough, suitable lands for such said parks and recreation grounds, and to lay out, plant and render fit for the purposes intended, and to hold them in trust for the inhabitants of the said town and to give them such names as will perpetuate the memory of my late husband and myself in the said town and to invest the surplus of the said fund not immediately required for the purchase of such parks and recreation grounds and the laying out and beautifying the same, until required for the purchase of additional parks and recreation grounds and the laying out and beautifying the same and apply the income derived from such investments in the meantime on the improvement and maintenance of the parks and recreation grounds already purchased or towards the purchase of further land for a similar purpose. And I give my said trustees full power to purchase the land necessary for such purposes at such time or times and to delay the purchase for such time as they in their discretion may think best and authorize and empower them to associate with themselves (if they deem it expedient to do so) on the management and control of the said parks and recreation grounds such other persons as they may consider advisable and to frame such rules and regulations for the proper and efficient care management and control of the said parks and recreation grounds and the appointment of such other persons (if it is deemed advisable to do so) fixing the number thereof and the term and manner of their appointment and of their successors and other necessary and suitable rules and regulations.

The balance of the estate is left in the discretion of the executors to be applied and paid over as and when they may think advisable to such deserving Protestant institutions of the town or such schemes of the Presbyterian church, or in supplementing any of the legacies given to public religious or charitable objects of the said church or town, as they may consider would be in accordance with the wishes of the testatrix or that they on their discretion may think most deserving and worthy of assistance.

The Chancellor's Judgment.

The Empire has the following in reference to the judgment of Chancellor Boyd in the case of Stothart vs. Hilliard et al:—Stothart vs. Hilliard and the Auburn Woollen Co.—Judgment in action tried at Peterborough. Action to restrain the defendants from penning back the waters of the Otonabee river, near Peterborough, so as to overflow the plaintiff's lands, lot 17 in the 2nd concession of the township of Smith, fronting on the river, and for damages sustained by reason of the water being so penned back. The learned chancellor holds that the defendants the Auburn Woollen Company have a right under the Statute of Limitations, by possession for twenty years, to the easement in question, but as to the defendant Hilliard that by reason of a lease to him of the land now occupied and owned by the plaintiff, there was such unity of possession in him of the dominant and servient tenement as caused a suspension of the easement. Action dismissed with costs as against the defendant company. Judgment for the plaintiff against defendant Hilliard for damages to be ascertained by the master at Peterborough, with costs of action. Counsel will be heard as to the question of damages and costs of the reference.

Open Temple.

A very pleasant evening was spent last night in the hall occupied by Carswell Lodge I. O. G. T. After a number of candidates had been initiated and others balloted for, the business of the lodge was closed down. An open temple to friends who had been invited filled the lodge room to the doors, and the following programme was carried out with Mr. G. J. Early, W. C. T., in the chair:—Address by the chairman; chorus by members of the Lodge; reading by Mr. W. Stubbs; mouth organ solo by Mr. B. Hudson; reading by Miss Chow; instrumental solo by Miss S. Mitchell; speech by Mr. Jas. Stubbs; and a half hour intermission during which refreshments were served. The second part was opened with a dialogue entitled "Bessie's Troubles," by seven members of the order, followed by a reading by Mrs. G. Mitchell, short addresses by Mr. W. Cowie and by Miss Sanderson, S. C. of the Royal Templar Council, and a closing chorus by the choir. The meeting was closed with prayer by Mr. Jas. Stubbs. This Lodge is having large numbers added to its membership roll by initiations at every meeting. It is also making arrangements for a picnic, of which further notice will be given.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

'Tis An Old Saying

that a pleasant companion on a journey is as good as a carriage, therefore the fond mother possessing both a baby and a perambulator must be doubly blest. There are some, however, that have not yet provided themselves with the carriage, there may be many more who contemplate such a purchase in the near future. 'Tis of the latter we speak today. We want them to know that we are going to give special inducements for immediate purchases. In addition to offering the largest and most varied assortment to be found. SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1890.

THE JUDGE!

"Don't wriggle," impatiently ejaculated Jeanne. "How do you expect me to put up your hair, if you act like this? I have something to tell you, if only you will keep still a moment."

"I am still," said Margaret, delighted at the comfort and the peace of it all. Jeanne's magnetic touch on her head gave her new life.

"Very well, then. Two weeks from to-day I am going to Europe."

"Is it possible!" cried Margaret. "Alone?"

"No," said Jeanne, intent upon the back hair of her friend. "Not alone."

"Your father is surely not going. Or, perhaps, you are companion to some one. I am jealous, Jeanne."

"Well, you have some reason to be jealous, that is a fact," confessed Jeanne. "I am going as a companion."

"I hope you know what kind of people you are going with, my dear."

"I do, perfectly. At least, it isn't people. It's a person. It's a gentleman."

"What?" cried Margaret, jerking her hair out of Jeanne's hand at the critical moment. "That is very remarkable!"

"Yes," acquiesced Jeanne, "I think so myself. Every time I think of it I am astonished. I shall sign a contract with him, of course. I would not want him to drop me if he got tired of me, and take some one else in my place."

Margaret got up from her chair and laid a stern hand on each of the saucy child's shoulders.

"Now tell me," she said.

Gurgling and giggling, with a face as rosy as the heart of the apple blossoms, Jeanne told the truth.

"Dennis has a position on the London edition of the New York Herald. I must go to London with him, for I intend to go wherever he does forever after this."

"My dear, my heart is so full of joy for you that I cannot speak. You love him, do you not?"

"Well, a little, laughed Jeanne. "I guess I would creep under the daisies if—if I were not going to London."

There was silence for awhile.

"I think if you do not mind, I would rather not see him, Jeanne," Margaret said at length. "I have poor papa's suffering too fresh in my mind."

"He saved Harry's life for you," cried Jeanne indignantly.

"I know it. I am not ungrateful," protested Margaret.

"Oh, very well!" said Jeanne, smiling again. "Just as you like. Of course, if you can get along without seeing him I can get along without having you." There was something in her tone that made Margaret look up quickly.

"You are not going to be jealous, Jeanne, are you?" she asked.

"Of no one but you," whispered the little damsel, leaning over her. And then she went out shopping, while Margaret, having eaten, slept again among the cushions of the sofa. Her exhausted brain called for rest constantly, and no one came to disturb her. She wondered dimly where Harry was, but she was too weak to wonder long, and dropped to sleep with the ease of a tired child.

* * * * * * *

"The waters are the bluest in the world, Margaret. The sky is more brilliant than that of Italy. The forests are such as you have never dreamed of. If you have never experienced, you can not know the perfect reverence that comes to the heart in a mighty pine forest. A perfumed carpet is spread beneath the feet, the lofty arches allow plenty of room for all the worshippers of earth to pass if they will, and above are the eternally singing trees, standing with a protecting majesty. There is life in the very perfume—why, even now, Margaret, I seem to smell the resinous scents of that mighty forest. I have a hut there that is quite my own. We shall take rugs and hammocks, dishes and books, and I will write my opera under the inspiration of your smile. Do not shake your head. I know you will learn to smile again there. If there is any place that can convey to the spirit, a sense of the majesty of time, the foolishness of fears, and the perfect peace of nature, it is the shore of Lake Superior. Besides, Margaret, you shall learn to be a huntress. There is wonderful game, and the finest fishing on earth."

"Harry, for God's sake not that. Do not ask me to shed blood, or to look upon it! Let the free creatures go. We shall see the birds in that blue sky, the fish gleaming in those transparent waters, and find them beautiful. We will not destroy their beauty—not if you love me, Harry. Not if you would cure me!"

"Forgive me, love. Try to forget. We will live in peace and let other creatures do the same."

"I have sent my wedding present to Jeanne. It is finery. I know she loves it, and that she will need it, and the paternal purse is small. I am glad they are going away for a time, Harry. When we meet again, this strange feeling I have toward Mr. Pond will have disappeared. I am so glad he loves Jeanne."

"There will be no one to give us wedding presents," said Harry, half regretfully. "I do not believe that any one will even think to throw a shoe after us."

"But he was mistaken. The morning of the wedding, which Margaret had succeeded in postponing a week, as they left Grace Church together a party of young people came dashing up to hinder them.

"I guess you thought we didn't care what had become of you," exclaimed a familiar voice. "But we ain't so rattle-headed as we seem. We're glad and happy to know your troubles are over with, we are. Let me kiss you, my dear." It was Tessie Thompson, the "actress" of Walnut street, and with her was the undertaker, and young Barnum in a tight suit of clothes, and his proud mother, as well as the old landlady—the landlady of the Misses Browne.

"And where is your sister that was, or that pretended to be," cried Mrs. Barnum, kissing Margaret with motherly fervor. "She was the sweetest little thing I ever set eyes on."

"She is married," cried Margaret, holding on to the motherly hand, "and on her way to London. By this time she is in New York."

"Well, I wish her well," said Mrs. Barnum, "and my son wishes her well. She didn't take to him in just the way he took to her, but the heart can be coaxed, but not driv. That's what I says to him often. The heart cannot be driv."

The young undertaker said something …a sowing sheet, which was at once apropos to Jeanne's sea voyage, and his business. But he got a smile and a handclasp from Margaret that covered his confusion, although it was calculated to wound later, when he was alone, and to make him wish he was in one of his own superior coffins, with the satin padding around him. The undertaker had a very low opinion of life as an institution, since he met Margaret.

"We've all brought you presents," said Tessie, blushing. "And though I am sure you will not think them much, we felt that we wanted to bring a little, you know."

The presents were delivered, done up in neat parcels, and were placed in the carriage with the heartfelt thanks of Margaret. Mrs. Barnum had brought some rice to throw after the carriage, and didn't forget to perform her duty. There were two carriages of newspaper boys, who rode behind. And these good fellows had been the only witnesses of the wedding.

"Spare me," Harry begged of them, "for old time's sake."

So the marriage received no record, except such as appeared in the record of the county clerk. There was an odd little dinner afterward at the Richelieu, and the guests made merry with Harry's old jokes repeated by them at second hand, and they told the bride she was beautiful with the most confiding candor.

"Out of all the friends I once had," said Harry to them, "you are the only ones that I felt sure would be glad to come to my wedding. Others might have come from a sense of duty, but I knew you would come with warmth."

It was these wedding guests who sang, "Oh, He's a Jolly Good Fellow," over their claret, and that told remarkable stories with the dessert and that presented a pair of scissors and a paste pot to Harry, to assist him in the preparation of his new opera, which was to make him famous.

Days afterwards, when Margaret lay on the soft bed of pine needles, looking up through the swaying branches at the intensely blue sky, she used to hear the merry voices of her wedding guests in fancy above the continuous solemn roar of the pines. Aside from that deep music the silence was deep. The quiet days melted into the perfect nights, until she lost all account of time. Some days were spent on the water, drifting from isle to isle, or along the mighty banks of the Northern Peninsula of Michigan. When a passing vessel threatened to discover them they took to their retreat again. They saw no one, except the ever-laughing darkey who represented the necessities of life to them.

"Harry," said Margaret, one day as she lay stretched at length in a hammock half over the water's edge. "I do not know which is more beautiful, to look across this wonderful solitude of water, or in your eyes."

"You love me as you used, now, do you not, my wife?"

"Not as I used, Harry. I love you as I never thought I could love any one."

"When do you want to go back to civilization?"

"I have never been able to decide what civilization means," sighed Margaret. "But I think it might be best to go to the Mediterranean in the autumn."

"Why best?"

"Because we should be happiest. We could go after your opera had been put on at New York. Then we will go to the south of France and write another."

"We?"

"Yes, I may write a book at least."

"My love, I forbid it. Kiss me."

"Very well, then, I am your slave. Not that I mind."

A wind crept up in the tops of the trees and set them a-singing. It spread across the water, leaving a rippling of white gleams.

"It is so beautiful that I do not know how to look at it," cried Margaret. "It is holy."

"You must be speaking of yourself," returned Harry. "For that is how I should describe you."

[THE END.]

Mustard Oil as a Lubricant.

Mustard oil has of late been given some attention as a lubricant, and it is reported to have been successfully used for some time in Germany for lubricating purposes. It is said not to be susceptible to cold, and, besides, does not easily become rancid or form fatty acids which would attack metal. Its lubricating value, moreover, according to Prof. G. Herman, of Aix-la-Chapelle, is of a relatively high order. No particulars have been yet given as to the cost of the new lubricant, its specific gravity, etc.

Artificial Diamonds.

The diamond trade is much interested in remarkable artificial diamonds which came into notice during the Paris Exposition. So perfect are some of the imitations that they puzzle dealers and experts. By the same chemical analysis as applied to precious stones they are found to melt at only a very high degree of heat, and, of course, were exceedingly hard—in fact, so hard that they would scratch and almost cut mirror glass. —Court Journal.

His Honor's Joke.

"What's the next case?" asked the Judge.

"The prisoner was arrested for ogling women."

"Ah! sort of stare-case!" said the Judge, and the prisoner laughed so uproariously that the Judge was very lenient.—Boston

Scaly Skin Diseases

Psoriasis 5 years, covering face, head and entire body with white scabs. Skin red, itchy and bleeding. Hair all gone. Spent hundreds of dollars. Pronounced incurable. Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

Cured by Cuticura

My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed; it then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head, and shoulders being the worst. The white scabs fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using two bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT and one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I thought the disease would leave a very deep scar, but the CUTICURA REMEDIES cured it without any scars. I cannot express with a pen what I suffered before using the CUTICURA REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recommend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight. I know of others who have received great benefit from their use.

MRS. ROSA KELLY, Rockwell City, Iowa.

WOMEN AND MICE.

The reason why a woman is afraid of a mouse is a profound mystery—indeed, it has never been very clearly proven that she is. But some women are constantly in such a nervous, irritable condition that the slightest thing annoys and startles them. The cause of this unfortunate state of affairs is usually some functional derangement; some distressing or painful irregularity, some derangement or peculiar weakness incident to her sex; or, it may be due to inflammation, ulceration or displacement, of some of the pelvic viscera, or to other organic lesions peculiar to her sex. From whichever cause it may arise, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive remedy, so certain in its curative results that its manufacturers sell it, through druggists, under a guarantee of its giving satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded. As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Coughs, Colds, Croup.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

ENDS IN A TRAGEDY.

EUGENE H. COWLES SHOT IN MONTREAL BY HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW.

A Startling Sequel to the Abduction of 10-Year-Old Florence Cowles From Cleveland—Chasing the Fugitive From Toronto.

MONTREAL, June 8.—Intense excitement was created here to-night when it became known that a shooting affair had occurred on the public thoroughfare. About 4 o'clock a carriage driven by two white horses passed rapidly along St. Catharine-street containing four persons, who proved to be Mr. Cowles of Cleveland, his child, wife and brother-in-law. Just opposite No. 4 Fire Station Cowles shot at his wife and missed her. The brother-in-law then shot at Cowles and the bullet passed through his neck. The carriage then drove to the general Hospital and the injured man was placed under Dr. Kirkpatrick's care.

There was a close examination, a hurried consultation, and the result was announced to an eager crowd who had gathered outside the hospital—no immediate danger. The ball entered the right side of the neck, and after piercing the right jaw bone emerged through the cheek of the opposite side.

Mr. Hale briefly related the story of the shooting and gave himself up at police headquarters on the charge of shooting with intent to kill. He took a brief leave of his friends and was then shown to a cell. There were then on the scene: Mrs. Cowles, Mrs. Bolton, her sister-in-law; Judge J. E. Ingersoll of Cleveland, as Mrs. Cowles' legal adviser, and Mr. D. McGibbon, Q.C., of Montreal.

On Thursday night Cowles left Toronto for Montreal. The pursuing party, composed of Mrs. Cowles, Mrs. Bolton, Judge Ingersoll, C. C. Hale and officers, reached Toronto Friday night. A consultation by Cowles with his Toronto attorneys, McCarthy, Osler & Creelman, led to an interview being arranged here. The last party reached here this morning and stopped at the Windsor. Mr. Cowles had left the Windsor, where he had been stopping, and came to St. Lawrence Hall, where he was registered as Mr. Wilson and child and had breakfast. After breakfast he took the child to L'Academie de la Sacre Cœur, a convent under charge of Les Sœurs de la Province, with injunctions that she was not to be given up without a written order from him. He then returned to the hotel without the child ready for the interview with his wife.

To-day the interview was effected. Cowles insisted that only his wife should be present, but her brother would not consent, and accompanied them in a cab for a drive in the Mountain park. The interview was in progress when Cowles made a movement as if to draw a revolver, when Hale anticipated him with the result stated. An order was procured from Judge Dugas to the sisters to produce the child, but they refused. The court will issue an official mandamus to-morrow, when a guardian will be appointed.

Mr. Hale will appear in the Police Court to-morrow to answer to the charge. It is believed Cowles intended killing both his wife and child unless prevented by the brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Cowles were married in 1879 in Cleveland. Mrs. Cowles is a daughter of E. B. Hale, a prominent banker of Cleveland, while Cowles is a son of the late Edwin Cowles, the famous editor and proprietor of The Cleveland Plaindealer. Their married life was not happy, Mrs. Cowles discovering that her husband was living with another woman. They had one child, a girl named Florence, who is now about 10 years old, and whose possession was the cause of the shooting. When Mrs. Cowles found out that her husband was unfaithful she went to his father, who asked her not to take out divorce proceedings owing to the scandal it would cause. A separation, however, was taken out and the custody of the child committed to the mother. The father, however, was permitted to see his child at stated intervals. During one of these visits be abducted her and fleeing with her came to Canada, going first to St. Catharines. A detective engaged by Mrs. Cowles followed him there and had an interview with him. Cowles said that he would not give up the child unless Mrs. Cowles gave him half the share of his part of his father's estate, who, when he died, left the share of his estate originally intended for his son to his son's wife and daughter. Cowles, after his father's death, only got $2000 per year. Previous to that he was a very high roller, and spent a large amount of money every year. Cowles is a Protestant, while his wife is a Roman Catholic. At the time of their marriage there was a great sensation in church circles in Cleveland, which was not concluded until extensive correspondence had taken place with the Pope.

AN INCENSED CITY.

A Two-Mile Procession in a Religious Demonstration.

MONTREAL, June 8.—The important event in religious circles to-day was the great Fete Dieu procession of the Catholic Church. Thursday was Ascension Day, but in this archdiocese permission was obtained to defer the ceremony till to-day in order for its better observance. This event always excites interest and attracts large crowds of both Catholics and Protestants. At an early hour white-robed children were seen everywhere. Nuns, priests and bands of music were making their way to the place of meeting, Notre Dame Church. There High Mass was celebrated, Archbishop Fabre officiating, and the immense edifice was crowded with 15,000 persons. The procession was two miles in length and the whole city was filled with the odour of the burning incense.

A CHANCE FOR A ROW.

THE FIRST CONSEQUENCES OF REFUSING TO PAY DUTIES.

The Customs Officers of Bay St. George Refuse a Steamer the Right to Unload Her Cargo—England Ready to Arbitrate—Little Interest in London.

HALIFAX, June 7.—A new feature of the Newfoundland trouble was reported to-day. During the past week the people of St. George held a mass meeting and unanimously resolved that, inasmuch as the Newfoundland Government was unable to protect them from French outrage, thereafter they would pay no duty on imports to the Newfoundland Government. A few days ago the steamer Harlow sailed from Halifax with a cargo of supplies for Bay St. George, but on arriving there the customs officers, acting under instructions from St. John's, refused to allow the freight to be landed, on the ground that the importers had pledged themselves not to pay duty. It might have been supposed that the goods would have been landed and placed in bond, but the Government was afraid to do that, as the people would simply have taken possession of the goods and the Customs officer would have been powerless to prevent them. The result is that the steamer will bring her freight back to Halifax. This action of the Newfoundland Government in forcing taxation without being able to afford protection will only tend to still further excitement and exasperate the people.

READY TO ARBITRATE.

England's Interests in the Island of Newfoundland.

LONDON, June 8.—Telegrams from Newfoundland continue to give highly colored accounts of conflicts between the French and English over the fishing rights; but the English public continues to concern itself hardly at all about the matter. At the Foreign Office, however, there is anxiety. The questions at issue between the two countries are admittedly difficult. The possibility of a collision between the French and English vessels was some time since foreseen, and orders were perhaps given. This is the explanation offered of what some here regard as the supineness of the British officers in the presence of alleged French aggression, which in higher quarters is extolled as discretion. The Newfoundland stories, moreover, are flatly contradicted by the Foreign Office. Sir James Fergusson denies them in the House of Commons on information which must be authentic. No French marines have been landed, no force has been used, and no outrage has been committed, unless the fact that a French officer went ashore in uniform be an outrage. The Governor of Newfoundland expressly says that no threat was heard, and that the request of the French there for the removal of nets was fully justified. There are people who think that in the presence of these special rectifications of sensational stories the origin of these latter requires explanation. Sir James Fergusson's statement last night is important. He declares that the Government are quite ready to accept arbitration.

GUYING THE OFFICERS.

Newfoundlanders Who Laugh at the "Blawsted Britishers."

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 8.—Several of the leading citizens of this place in interviews regarding the fisheries troubles said they felt that the first step taken by the Government of Newfoundland in sending delegates to England and Canada to present the case of the islanders against the aggressions of the French had been a success. The next step will probably be the organization of a volunteer force and the erection of fortifications. The people of Newfoundland are showing a steady determination to maintain their rights. The newspapers are more outspoken on the subject than are the delegates. The Herald says that England must fight France or abandon her British-American possessions.

The Colonist, commenting on the reports of the forcible removal of herring nets by a force from a French warship at Bay St. George, says that the British tar must have deteriorated very much in quality when he stood by and saw British property injured and British subjects ruined by a handful of Frenchmen. The British naval officer on this station, the paper says, should be clad with petticoats instead of breeches and adorned with a lawn tennis racquet. If there be any manly sport on hand he is conspicuous by his absence. If there be a rifle match between the clubs and the ships of war, rarely can an officer be found to take charge of the squad, and a majority of the officers cannot hit the target at 200 yards. The ships are in Newfoundland waters ostensibly for fishery protection, but in reality they are here to bolster up the French claims to the fisheries and play lawn tennis.

The furious address of the Legislature to the Queen relative to the fishery troubles here, published several days ago, has not yet passed the Legislature, hence its publication was premature. The document published was a rough draft of the proposed address, a copy of which, it is supposed, was purloined by some one in the Government printing office. The address may be modified considerably by the Legislature before it is passed.

SEVEN DROWNED.

A Fishing Excursion that Ends in a Tragedy.

BOSTON, June 8.—About 6 o'clock this morning eight young men started on a fishing excursion in a sailboat. When they were about a mile from the Thompsons' Island in Dorchester bay the boat was struck by a squall and capsized. All but one were swimmers, but instead of trying to swim ashore they tried to climb on the boat, which was so heavily ballasted that their weight would force her beneath the surface leaving them struggling in the water. In this manner the strength of the men was exhausted and they sank one by one until but one was left. The survivor, Walter Quinlan, had sunk for the last time, when the boat rising came up under him, lifting him above the surface. He floated unconscious for some time when the boat was seen from the shore by employes of the gas works at Cow Pasture Point, who went out, brought him to shore and resuscitated him.

The drowned were:

LAWRENCE MCTIERNAN, aged 24, and
JOHN SULLIVAN, aged 24, living in Charlestown.
ALBERT LANBORD, aged 20, of Boston.
JAMES HUSBAND, 17,
THOMAS TROY, 18, and
JOSEPH TUFTS, 18, of South Boston and
EDGAR MALONEY, aged 18, of Dorchester.

McTiernan left a wife and child. The others were unmarried.

A Beef Trust.

DENVER, June 8.—Articles of incorporation of the Western Union Beef Company with a capital of $15,000,000 have been filed here. The company is a consolidation of all the principal stock interests of Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico and Texas.

HE'S ALL RIGHT.

Perhaps He Felt Uneasy, but He Didn' Want to Say.

NIAGARA FALLS, June 7.—James P. O'Haire, cashier of the Erie Railroad at Suspension Bridge, who has been missing since Thursday noon, returned to-night. Immediately upon his return he went to the office safe and opened it. Investigation proved that his accounts were all right, not one cent being missing. He appears very nervous and it cannot be learned where he has been.

O'Haire had been missing since June 5. No one seems to have seen him. On the above day Auditor [illegible] arrived at Suspension Bridge and started to check up the station. Noon arrived and the work had not been quite completed, and it was left, and O'Haire went to his dinner. He did not return at the usual time and when 2 o'clock had arrived he had been sent for twice. He was not to be found, however, and his whereabouts became a matter of general curiosity. The matter was kept very quiet, but it finally leaked out and many rumors were afloat, some of them to the effect that O'Haire had appropriated some of the company's money for his own use. He is about 21 years of age and a young man held in the highest esteem by all. His many friends were loth to believe that he had acted dishonorably. Three years ago he was appointed to the position of cashier and during that time has attended faithfully to his duties.

LONG-DISTANCE TELEGRAPHY.

Electricity That Girdles the Continent—A Lively Battle.

PORT TOWNSEND, June 8.—The Western Union Telegraph Company and the Oregon Improvement Company on the one hand, and the Pacific Postal Telegraph Cable Company and the C. P. R. on the other hand, have been waging a lively battle as to which telegraph company should get the bonus that the Port Townsend Chamber of Commerce was willing to give to the company that would extend its telegraph system into this city. The Pacific Postal Company offered to build from Olympia, 120 miles distant, over a new railway that is under construction for $12,000 cash, the estimated cost of the line, agreeing to allow the subscribers to take their subscriptions out in two years in telegraphing. This proposition was accepted and by September 1 Port Townsend will also be connected with Vancouver via Victoria, and will form the American terminus of the C.P.R. telegraph, whose extreme eastern end is Halifax, N.S., nearly 5000 miles distant.

NEW COONS IN TOWN.

But They had No Place to Stay, so They Say.

HALIFAX, N.S., June 8.—The color line is drawn very sharply in the town of Bridgewater, Lunenburg County, judging by the treatment awarded the Fisk Jubilee Singers at that place. The singers concertized in this city and during their stay put up at one of the leading hotels. They went to Bridgewater, but could get no hotel or private house to put them up for a night. The people of the place would listen to them sing, but just there they drew the line. In consequence of this unchristian-like action the jubes had to leave the town at the conclusion of their concert and travel all the way to Lunenburg to get lodgings, a distance of 12 miles.

The Slave Trade Still Goes On.

BERLIN, June 8.—A letter from Major Wissmann, Imperial German Commissioner to East Africa, has been received here, in which he states that the presence of cruisers on the east coast of Africa is not sufficient to stop the slave trade, which is being carried on there in spite of all the efforts made to suppress it. Major Wissmann holds that the only effective way to put a stop to the business of slave traders is to establish military garrisons at different points along the coast.

Apparently Suicide.

BELLEVILLE, June 9.—Thomas Cowan, blacksmith, Tyendinaga, was yesterday about noon found bleeding to death in his barn from a deep gash in his throat, which had evidently been inflicted by a bloody razor that lay near him. No cause can be assigned for the rash act. The unfortunate man died within a few minutes. He leaves a widow and six children.

A $7000 Fire in Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 8.—A fire of a very serious nature broke out in the Montreal stock yards to-night. Two sheds were destroyed, two more damaged, 37 head of cattle were killed and five injured. The loss will amount to $7000, covered by insurance in the Grand Trunk Stock Company. The owners of the cattle were James Aiken, Port Hope, and A. Craig & Son, Brampton.

Died in Devotion.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, June 8.—While a religious procession in celebration of Corpus Christi was passing through Central Park here Thursday the iron railing bordering the western promenade gave way, falling on a crowd assembled to witness the spectacle. Four persons were killed and a great many others seriously injured.

He Saved His Arm.

OSHAWA, June 8.—While working a circular saw in the Williams piano factory here yesterday James Jacques had the misfortune to get a long and deep cut about six inches in length and an inch and a half deep in his right arm. He had a miraculous escape from having his hand cut off. He is doing well under the circumstances.

Reduction in Freight Rates.

CHICAGO, June 8.—The Chicago and Grand Trunk Railway will reduce the rates on dressed beef to 42 cents a hundred pounds from Chicago to Boston and common New England points by way of Montreal. The reduction does not apply via the Niagara frontier.

A Comparison of the Losses.

BUFFALO, June 8.—During May there were 179 lake disasters against 138 in April, aggregating $198,800 damages. Stranded, $27,600; disabled, $37,200; collisions, $73,700; heavy weather, $19,160; fire, $16,000; ashore, $14,100; sprung aleak, $6000.

April losses were $246,600.

Who Buys the Coffin?

NIAGARA FALLS, June 7.—Samuel Smith of Lewiston and John L. Saules of Muskegon, Mich., have made the announcement that they will swim a race through the whirlpool on the Fourth of July. The steamer "Maid of the Mist" will convey the contestants to the whirlpool, the men will then don their life preservers and swim for the opposite shore, and the first one reaching it will win the stakes—$100, and the loser will get $50. Mr. Smith says that this will be no "fake."

Electricity Kills, and No Appeal.

BALTIMORE, June 8.—Charles Frazier, an employe in Kern's saloon, went into the cellar last night to get a keg of beer. In his work he caught an electric light wire and was instantly killed. The smell of burning flesh attracted the attention of Kern and he went to assist Frazier, but as soon as he touched the body he received a shock which knocked him senseless. He was restored to consciousness after some labor. Frazier was terribly burned.

In the Toils.

OTTAWA, June 7.—Grisboise, the Italian murderer, was arrested here this evening. He has evidently gone through great hardship since being seen last.

How His Application for a Divorce is Looked Upon—The City of Rome Goes on a Rock—No Lives Lost—General Cable News.

LONDON, June 7.—The application filed by M. Christich, formerly Prime Minister of Servia and later Servian Minister to Berlin, for a divorce from his wife Artemesia has caused considerable surprise, not, however, because of any belief that his petition is groundless, but rather that he should at this late day take action that any self-respecting man in his well-known position would have resorted to years ago. It is a matter of notoriety that the political advancement of M. Christich and his retention of the several high positions to which he was raised, were based solely upon his acquiescence in the scandalous relations existing between his wife and his sovereign, King Milan, and it is also equally well known that his social and finally his official ostracism in Berlin were due to his peculiar notion of his rights as a husband. Furthermore, no part of Europe is in ignorance of the fact that Mme. Christich finally left the husband she had never been true to and whose willingness to continue the beneficiary of her infidelity most probably disgusted her to live openly with Milan, who was compelled to abdicate his throne by the popular and official clamor against his profligacy and immorality.

It was King Milan's relations with Mme. Christich, too, that formed the basis as well as the fabric of Queen Natalie's suit for divorce against Milan. Yet, with all these proofs forthcoming, M. Christich, as though still in fear of his former master, merely alleges an ungovernable temper on the part of his wife and her final desertion of his home as the grounds upon which he petitioned for separation.

Ex-Queen Natalie is too keenly incensed against the unfaithful father of her son, the present King of Servia, to allow an opportunity for revenge to go by, and it is expected that she will contribute very largely to the sensational character of the revelations of the proceedings in M. Christich's action.

THE WATER POWER.

How It Caused a Demonstration in London Town.

LONDON, June 7.—There were hundreds of bands in the temperance procession to-day and between 500 and 600 banners. The emblems were so numerous and so close together that the inscriptions could hardly be read by the spectators. They contained the mottoes of religious, temperance and workmen's societies, as well as portraits of the public men whose attitude on the publican pension question has won them the approval of the temperance people. The demonstration was an imposing one, and interesting because of its novelty. Nothing exactly like it was ever seen in the metropolis before. One peculiar feature was the number of women who participated. They did not, of course, march afoot over the long route from the Thames embankment to Hyde Park, but were escorted in carriages, vans and coaches. The vehicles were decorated with flags and various appropriate emblems, and two of them bore aloft the American flag. Another singular feature, and a pathetic one, was the grouping in certain carriages of widows, whose sombre garments proclaimed their misfortunes, and who held up banners inscribed, "Rum caused our sorrows." These were followed by wagon-loads of children, presumably orphans. Among the speakers were three American women — Mrs. Pearsall, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Forster. The temperance league is receiving large contributions for its work. Among these received to-day was a check for $5000 from Cardinal Manning on behalf of various Catholic societies.

AT HALF SPEED.

The City of Rome Goes On a Rock, but all the Passengers are Saved.

LONDON, June 8.—The Anchor line steamer City of Rome, Captain Young, from New York, May 31, arrived at Queenstown at 10 o'clock this morning. The vessel had a narrow escape from destruction at Fastnet. She made land in a dense fog at four o'clock this morning. She was going slowly and was taking soundings when, notwithstanding the care exercised, she struck Fastnet Rock, about three miles seaward off Crookhaven, bow on. Her forefoot got on the rock, and but for the promptitude displayed in reversing the engines a great fatality would have been recorded. Passengers who were interviewed say the steamer trembled all over when she struck the rock. For a time there was intense alarm on board, the density of the fog adding to the ominous character of the situation. The passengers were finally quieted by the repeated assurances of the commander and other officers of the steamer that not the slightest danger existed. The full extent of the damage will not be ascertained until the steamer is docked at Liverpool. Her stern is broken at the peak and she shipped a large volume of water forward. The steamer started for Liverpool at 11 o'clock, proceeding at half speed.

An Escapade Which Some Would Call the Act of a Chump.

LONDON, June 8.—The release of the Duc d'Orleans is the act of President Carnot, say his friends. It is, at any rate, to his credit and that of the Ministry who sanctioned it. The original mistake was in treating the young man's escapade as serious. But for the Radical opposition in the Chamber he would have been released almost at once. Even the Radicals hardly think it worth while to make much noise about his release now. M. Dumay's outburst in the Chamber ought to prove helpful to the Ministry. M. Dumay is a Radical Deputy for Paris. "The Government had begun," he said, "by laying violent hands on the people's palace, the Hotel de Ville. Next they arrested the Russian Socialists. Now they set a Prince at liberty." The people whom M. Dumay calls Russian Socialists were engaged in making bombs to be used in assassination. He complained that there were still in Paris unfortunate fathers of families, victims of a defective social organization. This is probably not meant as a demand for a general jail delivery, but for the release of workmen whose crimes were committed in aid of strikes. The Chamber sustained the Ministry by a majority of 119, which rose to 171 on the motion for a general amnesty to M. Dumay's friends. The Duke arrived in England yesterday and seems none the worse for his four months in Clairvaux prison.

A Sort of Misplay.

BOSTON, June 8.—Mrs. Susan Ney, aged 45, yesterday by mistake drank a glass of lemonade in which she had put strychnine with the intention of giving it to her husband. She died in a few hours.

Hands Up!

LAREDO, Tex., June 8.—The stage running between Laredo and Guerrero, Mex., which left here Wednesday with the Mexican mail and two passengers was held up by Mexican bandits 20 miles down the Rio Grande. One passenger was robbed of $700.

CANADIAN CATTLE.

Again the farmers of Canada have a warning of the damage they would sustain, the heavy loss that would be inflicted upon them, says the Toronto Empire, if the advocates of continental free trade, of a great American Zollverein, succeeded in their designs. Once more there is telegraphed from the other side of the Atlantic an account of a deputation having waited upon the president of the Board of Agriculture in the Imperial Government to ask for a relaxation of the restriction placed upon the importation of cattle from the United States into the United Kingdom. Once more the minister refused the request and declined to hold out any hope of compliance.

The grounds of this request are worthy of thoughtful consideration by our cattle-breeders and exporters. That there is a scarcity of store cattle and a demand for them in Great Britain is a proof of the value of this market and of the special privilege of landing our cattle alive to our farmers. There would be suicidal folly in closing this live stock market against ourselves, or in aiding to throw it open to competitors who would be far larger exporters than ourselves. The statement of the deputation that the cattle of the United States are now free from infectious disease we know to be inaccurate, and it evidently gains no credence from the department.

The reasons given by Mr. Chaplin for his refusal are also very suggestive. He alluded to the opposition of the farmers of the United Kingdom to a removal of the restrictive regulations applied to the United States. This opposition in the present depressed state of the agricultural interest of the Mother Country must have much influence in the Imperial Parliament. Even those who are not directly interested by themselves or their constituents in farming can have no wish to see the farmers' difficulties increased, and the community can have no particular desire for the importation of diseased cattle and the spread of contagion.

The farmers of Canada know that repeated attempts have been made on the same plea to include Canadian cattle in the same restrictions. This has been successfully resisted by the Imperial authorities, Sir Charles Tupper doing invaluable service by his exertions on behalf of our farmers.

If, however, under "continental free trade," the present distinction could no longer be made between Canadian cattle and those of the United States, the arguments against the privileged admission of our live stock could be no further resisted; they would be as cogent as they now are in respect to the cattle of the United States. It will not avail the advocates of continental free trade to prophesy that the British consumer would not submit to such restrictions on his food supply. If the consumer should apply successful pressure for the free admission of our live stock under such circumstances, it would be extended also to include the cattle of the United States. Our farmers would then have to compete in the markets of the Mother Country with the far more numerous herds on the other side of the international line and the far larger surplus for exportation. It is the special privilege of landing our cattle alive that is so valuable to our farmers, adding considerably to the value of each head. As mixed farming becomes more imperatively necessary in the older agricultural districts of Canada, this advantage will become of more and more importance to our farming community.

It would be very rash of our farmers to allow themselves to be inveigled into favoring a movement that would endanger this valuable privilege which they now enjoy, by delusive hopes being held out to them of at least problematical gains in other directions.

MILLBROOK.

Correspondence of the Review.

In Memoriam.—In memory of Margaret Hamill, beloved wife of Wm. Armstrong, who died March 26th, 1890.

She has gone from us, our loved one,
  God has taken her to His home,
In this world so dark and dreary
  Longer here she might not roam.

Just a few short hours suffering
  Then God called her to her rest,
Sweetly her pale hands were folded
  On her still and silent breast,

Her dear ones she has left behind,
  Bereft of a mother's care,
And her sorrowing husband alone
  Must tread life's journey drear.

They miss the soft clasp of that hand,
  They view her vacant chair,
They miss the kindly word and smile,
  They miss her loving care.

But they have a Friend, a Brother,
  Who will be their guide and stay,
May He comfort those bereaved ones,
  May He guide them all the way.

Weep not friends, she is not dead
  But has only gone before,
In unspoken bliss she dwells
  Over on the other shore.

GARDEN AND ORCHARD

INTERESTING ITEMS FOR HORTICULTURISTS AND GARDENERS.

Points on Pruning—Culture of Strawberries—Chances for Cherries—Points on Onions and Other Vegetables.

An approved season for pruning is nearly upon us. Prof. Budd commends the following resolution, which, as reported in the Iowa State Register, was passed unanimously by the members of the Iowa State Horticultural Society a few years ago: "Resolved, that the best time for pruning is when the leaves are about fully expanded in the spring."

One of the special points in pruning urged by A. L. Hatch, in his paper read last February before the Wis. State Horticultural meeting at Madison, was to prune in spring, and then only after favorable winters left the trees in a vigorous condition. Under these circumstances the growth of formation of new wood favours the rapid healing of the wounds made with the knife.

In a general way it seems to be approximately settled that much pruning of such fruit trees as apple, pear, cherry and plum is not advisable. With peach-trees, grape-vines, etc., it is different. With the former many think it is best to prune out branches sufficiently to admit sunshine and air, but we notice that Prof. Budd holds an adverse opinion. He says: "The old notion of 'letting in the sun' into the tops of our fruit trees is all wrong. In our climate we will get for many years more fruit, and of better quality, if we form close thick tops on our apple, pear, cherry and plum trees, than we will with the open tops of moister and cooler summer climates.

For convenience in thinning and gathering fruit, also for greater efficiency in spraying with insecticide solutions, a degree of openness is advisable; but this should be accomplished rather by rubbing off incipient branches than wholesale hewing out after they have attained large size.

Culture of Strawberries.

That noted fruit-grower, J. H. Hale of South Glastonbury, Ct., writes to the Farm and Home that there is no more uncertain crop cultivated than the strawberry. If given the best of culture and liberal manuring, and everything is in perfect condition just up to fruiting time, a two-weeks' drouth then will reduce the yield fully one half. Aside from this uncertainty the crop is commendable. Good corn or wheat land should be carefully plowed early in the spring, liberally manured, and harrowed till it is as mellow as a fine seed bed. Set the most approved varieties in rows three feet apart, plants 12 to 18 inches apart according to the vigor of the variety. When the runners start allow them to root a few plants right along the line of the row, keeping off all other runners. This narrow row will give the most and best berries, and can be kept free from weeds at much less expense than can matted rows. Given thorough culture all through the summer and carefully mulched in winter such an acre should yield 4,000 to 5,000 quarts of berries. (I have often had 5,000 to 6,000 quarts). The cost per quart for picking is usually 1 1-2 cents. If pickers are plenty and the crop is a large one some growers pay only one cent; on the other hand, where labor is scarce, some pay as high as two cents. The net profit per acre depends on one's situation and markets. With drouth at fruiting time and a poor crop the profits are anything from nothing up to $50 or 75, while with a favorable season and a good crop from $300 to $400, according to the markets supplied, can be obtained. New England prices range from 8 to 15 cents per quart, while in New York the prices are usually from 5 to 12 cents. The best varieties grown under liberal culture in a series of years are sure to return a handsome profit.

Onions.

A New York correspondent writes: All writers on onion growing advocate very early seeding, plenty of manure, and that the land should have been thoroughly cultivated two or three previous years to eradicate weeds and their seeds. In 1888 I violated all these conditions and all other pre-requisites I ever read of by sowing an eighth of an acre on sod ground on the 14th of May, and produced a crop most remarkable for the size of tubers and quantity. Some weighed over a pound each; the variety Red Wethersfield. The plat was in the corner of a pasture field which had not been plowed in twenty years. It was a sandy loam, rich, of course, but no manure was added. The well harrowed sod furnishes what onions require—a mellow, shallow seed bed with firmness beneath. Not a scullion grew. In regard to weed seeds, a stiff sod is freer from them than land which has been recently cultivated. I planted on such as the latter in 1889 with poor results. I shall sow on sod again this season about the middle of May, when the ground will be warm enough to germinate the seed and give it a start at once. I regard this as of more importance than early sowing. Almost anything will do best planted when conditions are right to start it quick and push it ahead.

NOT ENOUGH PROFIT IN ICE.

Couldn't See His Way and so Blew His Brains Out.

Barrie, June 8.—A matter of a sensational character has to-day been brought to light in the way of a suicide. Messrs. Hammill & Davidson of this town filled an immense ice house here during the boom and shortly after sold the whole stock as it stood to one Emile Messing of Tonawanda, N.Y., for $14,000 and realized about $10,000 profit. Not long since Messing was offered $5000 advance on his purchase, but he declined the offer. The ice-house was in charge of a man named John Morrison. He noticed that the eastern section was sinking, the house being on boggy land and wrote Messing to that effect and advised him to sell as quick as he could. Nothing further was heard from him. The day of the flood the icehouse stood in about four feet of water and the eastern section referred to give way. Morrison telegraphed Messing to that effect, but did not hear from him in reply, but had a message from some parties at Tonawanda stating that some one would be along to look after the matter. To-day three business men from that place arrived and saw Morrison and Messrs. Hammill & Davidson and told them that Messing had taken the matter so hard that he took his own life by shooting himself Friday night. It appears that these three men lent Messing the money. One of them is a brother-in-law and they say he evidently understood that the ice was completely destroyed and rather than meet them he committed the rash deed. He was in the livery business in Tonawanda, N.Y., and the loss of what he had put in the ice speculation would have ruined him. He leaves a wife and four or five children. The men here to-day feel very bad over the affair and are endeavoring to do the best they can with the ice on hand yet, as over three-quarters is in good condition.

French Threes Per Cents Pass 90.

Paris, June 8.—For the first time French 3 per cents have passed 90, a higher figure than they reached under either Louis Philippe or Louis Napoleon. The continued advance above 90 is taken as evidence that capital is now convinced of the stability of the Republic.

He Got the Limit.

Chicago, June 8.—Frederick T. McLeod, an ex-minister found guilty of living with a woman in Chicago when he had a legal wife in Nova Scotia, was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction, the heaviest punishment provided by the statute.

With strawberries, raspberries, gooseberries and grapes a supply of fruit for the family could be had until late in the season. If currants and melons be included the supply may be more varied. Apples, pears, peaches and cherry trees should also be planted, but the small fruits will come into bearing the next year, thus rendering it easy for all to secure a supply without loss of time.

COURTSHIP FAIRYLAND.

Common-Sense Precautions For Maids About to Mate.

Of course, the advice of Solon to a young girl who is passing through the fairyland of courtship would hardly be regarded by any young person in her position, and I hardly think that my advice will be of any more value. But as I have been asked to give it, and as one is always glad to talk with those most delightful of people—lovers—I will very diffidently give one or two hints which have occurred to me as of possible value to some girl whose lover happens to be away on a journey, and who may be willing to pass the time which she would prefer to pass in his society in reading these modest suggestions.

To such a one I would say let frankness and reserve be your two watchwords.

Courtship is the gay novitiate to sober marriage, but it must be always remembered that it is a testing of each other's natures, a trial of characters, which sometimes at the last moment do not stand the test, are proven to be unblendable, and the marriage never takes place. Reserve in demeanor is, therefore, always to be borne in mind.

HER HEART ON HER SLEEVE.

There is so much of what is called "innocent flirtation" between young people in this country that an unsophisticated girl, thrown in the society of a young man given to paying attentions without intention to the most attractive young girl on the social horizon, may sometimes be deceived by such a light swain and mistake for serious courtship what is only meant for a pleasant passing of the time. I think this is not often the case, for a woman's instinct almost infallibly tells her with what end a man persistently seeks her society; still it does sometimes happen that a very young girl fancies she is being courted, when, in point of fact, she is only being trifled with.

It is as well for a girl to bear this fact in mind and not to wear her heart out upon her sleeve. Pursuit is a large part of the pleasure of the chase, and the thing that has cost us the greatest effort to secure is valued accordingly.

LET THE WOOER WOO MANFULLY.

Until you have real reason to believe that your love is being sought, no matter how much you may care for a man, do not let him know it. If he really wants your love he will not fear to risk a refusal. The man who keeps his attentions to you a secret, who is not willing that the whole world should know he is your suitor, does not deserve to win you. If his vanity is stronger than his love let him pass by; he is no true lover. Orlando wanted all the dwellers in the forest of Arden to know the secret of his love for Rosalind, so he hung verses on the trees of the wood praising her virtues and beauty. Every woman prefers an honest Orlando, who, whether his love is crowned with happiness or not, is willing all the world should know that he loves her and has chosen her for his own.

If you are going to marry for love, for the sake of your future happiness be frank with your suitor and with your betrothed. If you are on the point of marrying from any other motive—ambition, pique, fear of being an old maid, or anxiety to provide yourself with a home—you need read no farther, for I have no advice to give you, except Punch's advice to those about to get married, "Don't." This lecture is only for true lovers, to no others doth it apply.

Perfect love casteth out fear. If you have a hot temper, a jealous nature, a tendency to dispute, do not conceal it from your lover, for he will be better able to forgive now than later. Of course you are an angel in his eyes, but all the same, if he be the good fellow he ought to be, he knows very well that girl-angels have plenty of faults. If they did not, would they be fit mates for him and his kind forsooth!

THE BITE-THE-BANISTER GIRL.

Do not play the part of the girl with the abominable temper, whose lover tested her patience by bringing her each day a tangled skein to wind. The task was always accomplished with the greatest sweetness. After they were married, our Petruchio found he had wedded a shrew.

"How was it possible that you could have had so much patience with those tangled skeins?" he asked his wife.

For answer she led him out into the hall and said:

"Don't you remember that I used to go out of the room from time to time?"

"Yes."

"Well, I came out and bit the banisters!"

Now, girls, do not bite the banisters; take my word for it, it's a very bad plan. Be frank and natural, and let him see you as you are, faults and all. Not that you are to sit down under the burden of your shortcomings, and say, "I am cross, or jealous, or lazy, or disorderly, and you have got to make the best of it." Never, if we live to be a hundred years old, can we afford to take that point of view.

TRIM DOWN THE FAULTS.

We speak of the battle of life—the battle is mainly with our own shortcomings. I can not give you the advice of Hamlet, "Assume a virtue if you have it not;" but try in all ways to cultivate the virtues, and to trim down the faults in the garden of your life.

Beware how you exhibit your captive to your friends until you are quite sure that the fetters are fast about him; keep your own counsel about attentions which may lead to nothing. This does not apply to your father, mother, sister or to any member of your immediate family who has a personal interest in your affairs, but to the half-dozen intimate girl friends who will be quick enough to spy out your secret without your confiding it to them; silence is golden, indeed, in such matters. If the world is to know that Horace is courting Harriet, it is from Horace that the information must come. All men are not Orlandos, and even he might have been much annoyed if Rosalind and not himself had spread the news of his attentions over the trees of the forest.

FINALLY.

Once Harriet and Horace understand each other, all the rest is so easy. There is no advice so good as the two short words: Be happy! Avoid lovers' quarrels; even the bliss of reconciliation does not quite wipe out the sting of sharps given and returned.

I have said a word about long engagements, which are, I think, always to be avoided, except—and this is a most important exception—where Harriet and Horace are almost strangers to each other. A year is then not too long in which to learn each other's characteristics. It is a good thing to know how the different seasons affect Horace. He may be gentle in June and fierce in February. If our lovers know each other well, then the sooner they marry the better, in ninety-nine cases out of every hundred. Do not be afraid of beginning housekeeping on a small income. Horace will learn to make it a larger one all the sooner with Harriet by his side, and Harriet will be none the worse for learning the lessons of economy, for, as the Scripture saith:

"Better a dinner of herbs where love is, than a stalled ox and hatred therewith."

Cost of a Buffalo Head.

Ten years ago a good buffalo head sold from $15 to $40. The price now ranges from $75 to $400. There has not been a green buffalo head in Denver for three years. But it is expected that Buffalo Jones's domestic buffalo herd in Kansas will occasionally add a new head to the market. Rocky Mountain sheep are not very numerous, and the handsome head of that animal brings from $35 to $100. Mountain sheep are sold in pairs, when the taxidermist has saved the whole animal, and they sell for $350 a pair. Elk heads sell from $25 to $200 each. Grizzly bear rugs bring from $35 to $200 each, black bear as high as $75. The cinnamon and brown bear are common and not so desirable, and the best will not sell for over $50.—Kansas City Journal.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

We understand the buildings were insured, but to what amount we have not learned."

A Coming Entertainment.

The close of the term in the Collegiate Institute will be celebrated with an exhibition of physical exercises by the pupils in the drill shed on the evening of Thursday, June 12th. Mr. Ketchum's Institute class will render choruses. The admission will be 10 cents; proceeds to pay for uniforms. d109-4t

New Laundry Enterprise.

Some wise authority has said that "woman's best gift to man is a clean shirt." This may or may not be true as a fact—but women are gradually working out of the laundry business into other fields of feminine effort. The steam laundry has filled the want all over the civilized world. Just now we have a new candidate for public patronage, the Swiss Steam Laundry, of Toronto, a branch of which has been established at Peterborough, Messrs. A. Mercer & Co. being the local agents. The advertisement in another column affords explanation of the method of doing business and the local agents will see that every facility is afforded to customers. Call at Mercer & Co's. or telephone your order.

A GANG OF BURGLARS.

Part of the Stolen Lakefield Jewellery Recovered—Eight Men in the Toils as Implicated in the Job.

The burglary of Patterson's jewellery store at Lakefield a few weeks ago was a most successfully perpetrated job, and at the time it was greatly doubted if the midnight toilers who stripped the safe would ever be brought to justice or any of the goods returned to their unfortunate owner. However, time and chance has done its own work and the sequel would seem to show that eight men were implicated more or less in the daring job, all who are now in the grip of the law. It was thought at the time that there was more than one man in the affair, but that a gang of eight should have been implicated was little dreamt of. The men must have laid very low before doing their "gopher" work, and must also have made their departure just as cleverly as they did their work.

On Friday last it was mentioned in the REVIEW that three men giving the names of E. Burritt, Geo. Bennett and Ed. Malvern, had been arrested in Napanee as tramps, and that after their arrest a burglars' kit and a quantity of jewellery was found upon them. Chief Bell, of Napanee, who had been notified of the Lakefield burglary, immediately suspected that the jewellery in possession of the three tramps was from the Lakefield store. He communicated with Mr. Patterson who went to Napanee and as some of his. The goods found on the trio amounted to about seventy-five dollars worth. The three men are held in Napanee on a charge of carrying burglars' tools and come up for trial on Wednesday, but it is probable that the charge will be dropped and the prisoners brought here for trial on the more serious charge.

On Saturday a postal card received here by Chief Roszel stated that five men had been arrested in Prescott for burglary. When arrested a large quantity of miscellaneous jewellery was found upon them. Mr. Patterson arrived home from Napanee yesterday and when shown the list of recovered articles sent from Prescott was confident they belonged to his stolen stock and left on the 11:40 train last night for Prescott to identify the goods. A telegram received this morning from Mr. Patterson states that he identifies the goods as his. These five men give their names as Wm. Young, Thos. Connors, Geo. Woods, John Collor and Dan Warner, and there is no doubt but that they were with the three Napanee men when the Lakefield safe was cracked. The four men at Prescott are held on a charge of burglary at Cardinal so that it may be some time before they are brought here.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Patterson will be successful in recovering the remainder of his stolen goods and that the guilty parties will be brought to justice and receive their just dues.

The picnic of the season is to be held on Tuesday, June 17th, when the Oddfellows of Peterborough and their friends go to Jacob's Island. Accommodation will be provided for a large number and all the wants of the picnicers will be attended to by the committee. Tickets, adults, 60c.; children, 30c. This will be an enjoyable outing.

The Best Attendance Yet.

The usual weekly meeting was held under the auspice of the Royal Templars in their hall on Hunter-st. yesterday. Mr. Geo. Howson presided as chairman. There was a large attendance the meeting being in this respect the best held yet. An address of an appropriate and interesting character was delivered by Mr. John Carlisle and the service proved to be most interesting.

An Indian Officer Coming.

Commissioner Booth-Tucker, of the Salvation Army in India, with other officers, natives of that far off country, will be here on June 25th and will be welcomed at the Army barracks. The Commissioner held an important position in the civil service before joining the army, and resigned it to enter the army work. He will also be accompanied by Commissioner Adams, commandant of the Canadian forces, and all the officers of the district are expected to be present.

Personal.

Mr. W. H. Dingle, of Brockville, formerly organist in the George-st. church, is in town.

Miss Vair, who has been on a years' sojourn in Europe, has returned home, after having visited the principal centres on the continent.

Mr. A. V. B. Young, American Consul, has been elected a director of the Lakefield Steamboat & Navigation Company, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late George Strickland.

The Diocesan Synod.

The Rector of St. John's left town this morning to attend the meetings of the Diocesan Synod this week at Toronto. He is accompanied by Messrs. W. Howden and C. W. Forbes who, with him, are delegates from the Young Men's Guild of St. John's, to represent the Guild at the meeting of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood which meets to-day as a body for the first time in Canada. The Brotherhood is a society consisting entirely of young men belonging to the Church of England. Established in the United States several years ago it numbers there many thousands, and an attempt is now being made to firmly establish the society in Ontario. The Young Men's Guild of St. John's, whose objects are precisely the same as those of the Brotherhood, will no doubt become a part of the new organization. The delegates from the Rectory of Peterborough to the Synod of the Diocese are Messrs. Poussette, W. E. Sherwood and Dr. Boucher. Rev. C. B. Kenrick remains in charge of the parish.

THE QUINTE CONFERENCE.

The Methodist Ministers of This Conference in Session—Church Business Transacted—A Resolution to Rev. M. L. Pearson.

COBOURG, June 6.—The Bay of Quinte Conference got down to work yesterday. In the afternoon the General Conference officers presented their annual report.

Rev. Dr. Briggs briefly addressed the Conference in the interest of the book concern, showing it to be in a most satisfactory state.

Dr. Withrow followed with a most encouraging report in connection with the Sunday school publications. The Conference assured them of support in their prosperous work.

REV. M. L. PEARSON.

The following resolution was unanimously passed:—"That this Conference having learned of the removal of the Rev. M. L. Pearson by transfer to the Toronto Conference, desire to express its highest appreciation of the fidelity and ability of the labours of our beloved brother and of the genial and Christain spirit which has characterized his intercourse with all his brethren. Our prayers and sincere good wishes go with him to his new field of labor, and while he continues at our sessions, we desire that he shall feel at home and free to give us the help of his experience and wise counsel."

Rev. Dr. Forster and Rev. E. Arnold, of the New York Conference, were introduced to the Conference.

The reports of the superannuation fund and of the General Conference fund were presented by Rev. James Grey and were entered in the minutes.

Rev J M Hodson, Dr. Griffith and Mr A L Morden, of Napanee, spoke at the educational meeting.

FRIDAY'S SESSION.

The Conference opened at 9 a.m., the President, Wm Burns, in the chair.

Devotional exercises being over, the minutes of the previous sessions were read.

Ministerial character was then investigated and found blameless. Rev D S Houck received the appointment of reporter for the Christian Guardian.

The question of the number of years the young men had travelled was then asked. The following answers were given:—Henry E Bayley, B A, four years, and is recommended into full connexion; Wilmott Clarke, B A, A B Osterhout, G C Clare, S H Anderson, have travelled three years; John A Kennedy, E W McColl, B A, Richard Bamforth and J M A Spence, have travelled two years; A W Mallet, W O Harrison, F A Leitch, Charles Adams, J D P Knox, E A Pearson, B.A., W B Tucker and J S I Wilson have travelled one year; Kenneth B Booth and Totton Williams having ill-health wished to retire.

The claims of Albert College were presented by Principal Dyer, who showed the debt to be $30,000.

Rev. A. Campbell also urged the claim of the college, and in the space of one-half hour the debt was reduced two thousand.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Conference opened at two o'clock with the usual devotional exercises.

Rev. Dr. Williams presented the report of the Educational Fund, showing a slight decrease in the receipts as compared with the previous year.

The following candidates for the ministry were received on trial:—Harry B Kennedy, John N Brown, John E Butler, James Bateston, Knox Farnesworth, Wm. P Herron, Franklin J Anderson, Harry Strike, Marcus E Sexsmith, Geo. Nichol, Wm. E Smith, Hamilton McGahey, S Session Pentland.

Rev. Dr. Dewart, editor of the Guardian, was introduced and addressed the Conference at considerable length.

The remainder of the session was taken up with routine business.

The reception service held in the evening was well attended notwithstanding the heavy rain storm which prevailed. There was only one candidate, Mr. Hy. E. Bayley, B. A.

Saturday's Business.

FORMATION OF COMMITTEES.

The Conference opened at nine o'clock this morning, Rev. W. Burns in the chair. The first hour was devoted to the formation of committees. Rev. S. J. Shorey appears on the Nominating and Memorial Committees and Rev. A. C. Wilson is on the Temperance Committee.

ELECTION OF DELEGATES.

At ten o'clock the Conference resolved itself into an Electoral College for the election of delegates to the General Conference. Very great interest was taken in these proceedings. The following were elected:—Revs Wm Burns, Dr Williams, Wm Johnston, Amos Campbell, Dr Badgley, Dr Reynar, Dr Burwash, J S Clarke, D Griffith, W Jolliffe, J J Rice, O R Lambly, A B Chambers, F B Stratton, W P Dyer, W Buchanan, S J Shorey. Reserve delegates—Revs. J Curts, E N Baker, Jos. Young. And Messrs. E D O'Flyn, Jas Aylesworth, Dr. Ford, Judge Dean, J M Ferris, Geo Wilson, W H Austin, A L Morton, Wm Johnston, J A Holgate, Jno Hull, R Gordon, R W Clark, W F Hall, G D Platt, W Eyres, C S Wilson. Reserves—J B Young, Dr. Bain, W H Webster.

This Week's Cricket Match.

The Hamilton cricket eleven play here on Friday next. The local team will be selected from the following players:—Burnham, Turnbull, Attewell, Stratton, Hamilton, Parker, Ray, Rutherford, Rogers, Montgomery, Salisbury, Gower, Goldsmith and Scott.

Dominion Day Picnic.

Arrangements have been completed for holding the annual picnic under the auspices of the congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral, on Dominion Day, July 1st next. The picnic will be held on the grounds of St. Joseph's Hospital, Ashburnham. A very fine and interesting programme of games and sports will be arranged, and the ladies of the congregation will prepare suitable refreshments. Full particulars by posters and programmes and in the local papers. 1d134

Took the Pledge in the Cells.

John Armstrong, who was allowed to go at the Police Court on Saturday on a charge of drunkenness, was again a prisoner this morning. John had gone to drink again on Saturday and being noisy on Charlotte-st. was locked up. This morning when he appeared in the Police Court he wore a blue ribbon on the lapel of his coat and told His Worship that he had taken the pledge and was going to drink no more. Some of his friends have undertaken to assist him to keep his pledge and the Mayor allowed him to go under suspended sentence, but warned him that another offence would send him to gaol. John left the court room decided to reform and it is hoped his good sense will enable him to carry out his decision.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Union Farmers' Picnic.

Thursday, 12th June. Prizes will be offered on the grounds at Idyl Wild, for running, jumping, etc. The Golden Eye will leave warf at 7.30 a. m. Prof. Doucet's orchestra on Palace Barge. 3d134

Bankrupt Stock at 60c. on the Dollar.

P. D. Doran's Bankrupt Stock of Dry Goods and Ready-made Clothing will be sold out in 30 days for the benefit of creditors. Sale to commence at 9 o'clock Wednesday, June 11th, 1890, at 393 George-st., by order of E.J. Dwyer, assignee. 3d133-1w24

Away to Galt.

Mr. J. J. Turner shipped on Saturday night a large tent, 20x30 feet, to Galt, from which place he received the order last week. The canvas house was a fancy stripped one, and was finished in first-class style. From east to west Turner's fame is known.

Among the Churches.

It is expected that Rev. Dr. Parsons, of Toronto, will occupy the pulpit in St. Paul's church a week from next Sunday.

Mr. Duff occupied the pulpit at the George-st. church yesterday, morning and evening.

The organ of the George-st. church is being thoroughly overhauled and repaired. A piano was used in the services yesterday.

Mr. Isaac Richardson was in the sacred desk at the Charlotte-st. church yesterday morning and preached to a good congregation. Mr. R. J. Colville conducted the evening service.

The June Sessions.

The June sessions of County Court will open here to-morrow at one o'clock before His Honor Judge Weller. The docket this time is unusually light, their being only one civil and one criminal case. The civil action is that of Brennan vs. Glynn, and is one in which Oscar A. Brennan, of Norwood, is the plaintiff and Wm. Glynn, of Havelock, the defendant. The claim is in replevin for goods wrongfully taken and detained. The criminal case is that of Queen vs. White for embezzlement. The accused in this case is Thos. R. White, collector of taxes for the Township of Galway. There are two charges against him.

Y.M.C.A. Notes.

The Saturday evening meeting was fairly attended. The address was by Mr. F. Saunders on "The Turning Point in the Life of Enoch."

There was a very refreshing time at the consecration meeting at 9 a.m. on Sunday, and at the personal purity meeting in the afternoon. The Secretary, Mr. Colville, gave a straight talk on the "Evils of Gambling." At the evening meeting the Rev. J. C. Davidson, Rector of St. John's, addressed the meeting.

OBITUARY.

In Loving Remembrance of the Late Mrs. Alexander Smith.

Fragrant and sweet is the memory
Of their dear precious mother,
And the great loss to her family
Can be fill'd by no other.
Father and mother both in one,
She governed well by love,
And daily pleading at the throne
For wisdom from above.

May God lead and guide her children
In the path their mother trod,
And give each one sufficient grace
To trust their mother's God;
But they will so need their mother
To unwind their tangled cares,
Need her soothing voice and counsel,
And her earnest, humble prayers.

If I only had the power
And language to portray
Her genuine deeds of kindness
Done in her gentle way;
It needs a far more fluent pen,
More power then mine to blend
The richest thought, the purest love,
In one, for such a friend.

She followed well the Master,
His teaching understood,
And tried to live the golden rule
By doing all she could;
Her sympathy for others
To her a pleasing theme,
She thought and worked and acted
While so many of us dream.

She was true as the finest steel
That ever yet has made
The tiny spring of a jewell'd watch
Or kingly royal blade;
True as the precious golden ore
When in the furnace tried
Comes out of the refining pot
Both bright and purified.

But Jesus now has call'd her home—
Her earthly work is done—
To live among that happy throng,
Her victories are won,
Won while she was passing through
The great Refiner's fire,
Her Saviour came and whisper'd low,
"Daughter, come up higher."
May we also be ready,

ELIZA DOBBIN.

WARSAW.

Correspondence of the Review.

FOOTBALL.—On Saturday, May 31st, a match was played between the junior teams of North Dummer and Warsaw, which resulted in a victory for Wrraw the score standing 8 to 0 in their favor. The first goal was not scored until after twenty minutes hard play, when the North boys showed signs of lack of practice. Carveth and Crowe did the finest playing for the home team, while for Warsaw the playing was pretty even. A return match is to be played at Warsaw on the 1st of July.

Etiquette For Waiters.

Headwaiter Betts, of Young's Hotel, makes it a practice to deliver a lecture to his men at stated periods. One of his recent lectures was, in part, as follows: "The first requirement of a waiter is a gentlemanly bearing. No one but a gentleman can be a good waiter. I want to speak now about this habit of passing around subscription papers among the guests in aid of sick employees. You must stop that. Never beg for any one but yourself. In the matter of serving wines, if you don't happen to know what glass to use for a particular wine, ask some one. The trouble is that some men can't be told anything. They will never learn to be waiters. If a person orders a pot of coffee, don't bring up cold milk unless it is called for. Bring up hot milk with coffee, and cold milk with tea. Always serve fine sugar with tomatoes and lettuce, and cracked ice with cucumbers, tomatoes, watermelons, canteloupe and muskmelon. Berries, of course, need milk or cream and pulverized sugar. A desert knife and fork and powdered sugar should go with all pastries, while a small piece of American cheese in order with all kinds of pies. Many men never think of putting such a thing as mustard on the table. Some people like it. There are very few who have yet learned that a boiled potato is not proper with baked beans. Don't cover the bread plate with a napkin. It looks as if there was dirt or dust around. This matter of laughing and fooling doesn't make a waiter. Never chew tobacco and spit on the doormats, and don't gather in groups in the corridors. Sleeping on watches must also be stopped. All cold meats ought to be garnished with parsley, lettuce or celery. Be careful about leaving your side towels around. Another man comes along with something to wipe, and he doesn't know whether it has been lying there for twenty seconds or twenty years. It is a good plan not to wipe your face with an apron or towel, nor be too familiar with the guests. Do your drinking in the proper place. If you don't study these little things, you will always be down as sure as you are born."—Boston Courier.

As an Emergency Medicine, for sudden colds, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral takes the lead of all remedies, a dose or two generally sufficing to stop ordinary coughs and ease the worst. For the cure of throat and lung disorders, this preparation is unequalled.

that a pleasant companion on a journey is as good as a carriage, therefore the fond mother possessing both a baby and a perambulator must be doubly blest. There are some, however, that have not yet provided themselves with the carriage, there may be many more who contemplate such a purchase in the near future. 'Tis of the latter we speak today. We want them to know that we are going to give special inducements for immediate purchases. In addition to offering the largest and most varied assortment to be found. WAR WITHOUT POWDER

A great ado has been made about the recent discovery of smokeless powder, by the aid of which armies can annihilate each other by shot and shell without the presence of smoke. This invention will create a revolution in the tactics of war. Military authorities are full of the idea and no doubt it gives them something to think about; but when men can now kill each other with missiles propelled by a smokeless powder, the women have had a far more important article placed within their reach, by which they can make war and kill, without Any Powder at all. They can kill dirt or greese on the clothing (or anywhere else) by the use of "Sunlight" Soap, which requires no washing powder to aid in the work. For warfare against dirt, and for bringing comfort and cleanliness in the house, "Sunlight" Soap is the greatest invention of the age. Try it.

WHY?

CHAPTER I.

A SHADY NOOK, sheltered by willows—not, perhaps, as sequestered as some people might have wished for—but two souls were satisfied with the spot they had selected, therefore who should question its seclusion? But water is the conductor of sound, and when two lovers "go a-courtin'" on the river, and choose for their bower an island, round which other lovers of boating are apt to wander, they really should be careful what they say.

"Dolly, you know I love you—haven't I told you so thousands of times?"

"Yes; but why?"

What a confession for a man, who didn't know what love was, to hear! Fancy Dolly's sweetheart telling her a thousand times that he loved her, and the only answer she could make him was: "Yes; but why?"

Poor Dolly couldn't understand why he loved her. Sweet young things, to be so happy; they were in love, and there was an end to everything. What was the outside world to them? A dreamland, and they were the only two mortals living in that land. They must have been, for they didn't notice the solitary figure that punted nearly into their canoe.

Tom, or whatever the poor deluded fellow's name was, looked crestfallen. He was thinking of Dolly's answer. "Whatever does Dolly mean? I keep telling her I love her, and she asks me why, and I don't know, so I can't tell her." I'm sure that was what he was comming over in his mind, for he must have told her scores of times she was pretty, and plump, and——. Well, I didn't know any more about her qualities, I could only judge by outward appearances, seeing her for a moment, and a pretty face always attracts, and Dolly's was attractive; consequently she must be pretty, and not vain; otherwise she wouldn't have asked why her sweetheart loved her, but would have concluded that it was because she was pretty, for Tom must have often told her so, and she didn't either believe him, or, like a little coquette, which, perhaps she was, Dolly wanted to be told so over and over again.

"Leave the turtle doves in peace; punt in, Jack, to the Belle Wier Hotel, and refresh the inner man."

A briefless barrister—an uncommon being—family pride had made him one; personal pride would have made him some one who could make money. But "what will the world say?" had to be considered, and no trade could be thought of. Consequently, "the him" in question, more commonly called Jack Dainstey, was educated for the bar, and now, in his 28th year, was about as poor as a fellow possibly could be, and by the advice of all his friends and relations was, as a last resource, about to take unto himself a wife who could keep him. But love wasn't thought of. What a state of affairs!

And until hearing Tom's confession and Dolly's answer the idea of marrying without love had not entered my head. I'd been out in the world, met girl after girl, admired a pretty face, flirted outrageously and remained heart-whole, yet I was engaged to be married to one of the prettiest and richest girls in town. But our courtship was not romantic. I'd asked her to be my wife in the same matter-of-fact way as I'd ask any man to brush my coat, she'd said the necessary "Yes," and we were engaged. Paragraphs appeared in all the society papers to that effect, and the world knew all about it. Many fellows called me a "lucky dog," others spoke of the truth when they said I was marrying that pretty Miss Mills for her money.

Conscience, you are my adviser. Is there such a thing as love? Tell me, before it is too late!

Conscience answer, "Yes, but you don't know what it is."

Conscience, you are right. Here's the Belle Wier at last, and I'll toast your health in a quart of shandy-gaff, for I'm awfully dry.

"Alice, is it too late? I'm to be married to-morrow, and instead of being the happiest girl in creation I am undoubtedly the most miserable. Alice, Jack doesn't love me!"

So spoke Madge Mills to her bosom friend the day before her marriage.

"Madge, how absurd you are! Not love you, indeed! Why, men don't make a show of their affections; that only happens in fairy tales or novels. Do you expect Jack to be always bending over you and whispering soft nothings in your ear? Because, dear, if you do, quickly undeceive your young, trusting self, and be content with the unvarnished side of Jack's nature. He can't be all polish, as some men are, but then their polish often hides blemishes; whereas Jack is in the rough diamond state. It's for you to do all the polishing, and remember my words, Madge—the advice of your matter-of-fact friend—it rests with you entirely whether Jack turns out a perfect gem, one that the whole world will covet, or spoilt in the process of transformation, and consequently no good."

"But Jack is such an uncommon lover, Alice, never caring to go anywhere with me. 'Oh, I hate dances, I can't stand crowds,' etc., etc. What must people have thought—what must they think? Why, that he is marrying me simply for money; and yet, Alice, how I love him! I appeal to you once more. Shall I, at the eleventh hour, break off the engagement and set him free, or shall I endeavor to win him to me, to make him love me, if I can?"

"Wise young person! Make him worship at your shrine. Jack is a strange fellow. He doesn't care for girls who gad about, as he calls it, and every man is after; Jack isn't that sort of man who would be jealous if other men made love to his wife. Those men are fools, or the women are, to give them cause. He would be disgusted and rightly so. 'Set your cap,' vulgarly speaking, at Jack, but don't let him see you are doing it. Use your woman's tact and fascinations. Let him see you are not like 'all women.' His love, respect and admiration is what you covet—and only this. There, my sermon is ended, and you shall utter the 'Amen.'"

"Amen, Alice, and thank you. To-morrow morning Jack and I will be bound by chains that only death can sever. If I win his love it shall be as a wife, not as a maid."

"Madge! Madge! Where are you? Here have I been hunting all over the house and grounds to try and find you. That fellow Standing's here and wants me to go to town with him. He's found us out, and says we're making our honeymoon too long, and we ought to be back among our old friends and our old haunts. But, somehow, I'd rather stop here and be quiet. Wouldn't you?"

"Yes, Jack."

"Why, Madge, I thought you'd have pined for town and gayety, but you seem quite content with this sort of existence. We've led a humdrum life for a whole month. What shall I tell him?"

"Whatever you like, Jack, although I'm perfectly happy here, and I'm sure could remain so for a long time yet."

"Madge, you are a funny mortal. Strange how men are deceived in girls. Now, I've gone out of my way to study you. I'm pleased with the task I've set myself. The more I study it the easier and more interesting it becomes. But perhaps we'd better make our 'start off,' before the London season begins. There's the house waiting for a 'warming' in Curzon street, so let's tell Standing he can jog back to town and inform our numerous relations, friends and acquaintances that Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dainstey will no doubt be seen about the streets and parks of London town in a few days. How will that do? Besides, there's that case of mine coming on next month, so I must be on the spot. My first brief! Can it be possible! You've brought me luck, Madge—for since I've been married I've actually been trusted, and I hope I shan't be found wanting."

"Jack, have you been happy here, happy away from everybody you know, and all your old haunts?"

"Happy, little woman, why, I've never felt so happy in all my life."

"Neither have I, Jack, and that's why I don't want to leave here. I don't believe we shall be half so happy in town, there are so many people who will want to be in our world."

"Our world, why two people don't make a world, though two people can help to mar it. I hate meddlers and gossips, Madge, they are my abomination. We'll have a flower garden without any weeds. It's a very difficult thing to have, but we'll try and have it, won't we, little one?"

"Little one." Jack was happy in my society—and to-day he had spoken so tenderly to me. Was he beginning to care for me? Would Alice's words come true? Should I be the one to perfect him? If Jack learns to love me he will give me the love of his life—the love that no other woman has shared or ever would. Yes, Jack is different to other men, and yet why had he ever married without loving? for he had done so. Perhaps he thought he never could love, and one girl was the same to him as another. No, one should be different, and that one was his wife.

CHAPTER II.

"Madge, that case comes on to-morrow. I wonder if you'll care to come and hear my defense. I hope I shan't make a stupid of myself. You've been so patient in helping me to put a 'bold front on,' and I want you to be repaid for your trouble—and, if possible, to be proud of me for once."

"Of course it's possible. Alice and I have quite made up our minds to come, and you're sure to make a great success of your speech, if you'll only deliver it as you've read it to me. I'm not going to that dance to-night, Jack, I want to have bright eyes and bright cheeks in court to-morrow. I want you to be proud of your pretty wife." This came from my heart, and Jack knew it and looked pleased. Can a man ever be blind to a woman's love? He must see it; no matter how much she strives to veil it, it shines through thickest mist and is welcome. Darling, I am striving to win you, and the battle is an easy one, but I don't want your compassion! That won't satisfy Madge Dainstey. I want your love—don't love me because it is your duty, or because you know I love you—but because you can't help doing so. Will that day ever come, and will it be soon when my husband and not lover goes on his knees to me and says, "Madge, I love you." What a dream or bliss. Will it ever be?

To be Continued.

LATEST ELECTION RETURNS.

Campbell Captures East Algoma After a Desperate Struggle.

SAULT STE. MARIE, June 7.—After one of the greatest struggles that ever took place in Eastern Algoma A. F. Campbell, the Conservative candidate, is elected by about 25 majority. Conservatives all over the riding are very jubilant. Manitoulin Island gives Campbell 180 majority. The Soo gives Campbell 14 majority, Manitowaning 40, Little Current 59, Gore Bay and Gordon township 55, Barrie Island, Kagawong, 21; St. Joseph Island 35, Algoma Mills 9, Mills township 27, Webbwood 5, and all through the settlements on the north shore rousing majorities of Conservatives and Reformers together were piled up for Mr. Campbell. Mr. Lyon got his largest vote at Chelmsford and Massey, French settlements. The Grits are awfully crestfallen over their defeat. They calculated to beat Mr. Campbell by over 500.

Can This Be So?

OWEN SOUND, June 8.—Full returns have been received from East and West Algoma. In East Algoma Campbell (Con.) has a majority of 107.

In West Algoma Macdonell (Con.) has been elected by nine majority.

[The World undoubtedly believes Mr. Campbell has been elected in the East, but is doubtful about Mr. Conmee's (Lib.) defeat in the West.]

Mr. Johnson's Majority of 1.

PICTON, June 8.—Official returns for Prince Edward are all in. Total vote polled:

For Johnson (Con.)	2046
For Sprague (Lib.)	2045
Giving Johnson a majority of	1

Mr. Hudson (Con.) Elected in East Hastings.

BELLEVILLE, June 8.—Mr. Biggar's (Lib.) majority is 136. In the East riding Mr. Hudson (Con.) is elected by a small majority.

John Fell (Con.) by 80.

LINDSAY, June 8.—Final returns from East Victoria give John Fell (Con.) 80 majority.

"AGE CANNOT WITHER HER," remarked an old gentleman, as he gazed fondly upon the comely little woman by his side; "but frankly," he continued, "at one time I was afraid cosmetics would. The silly little woman, in order to appear youthful, plastered her face with different varieties of whitewash, yclept 'balms,' 'creams,' 'lotions,' etc." "Yes," interrupted the little woman, "I did, until my skin became like parchment and as pimply and coarse." "Well," said the listener, "What do you use now?" "Use," was the reply, "nothing but common sense and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Common sense told me that if my blood was pure, liver active, appetite and digestion good, that the outward woman would take on the hue of health. The 'Discovery' did all those things and actually rejuvenated me." If you would possess a clear, beautiful complexion, free from blotches, pimples, eruptions, yellow spots and roughness, use the "Golden Medical Discovery." It is guaranteed to do all that it is claimed to, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded.

SEVEN MEN KILLED.

TERRIBLE COLLISION OF FREIGHT TRAINS ON THE WABASH.

Two Palace Horse Cars Wrecked, and Fifteen Racers From Latonia Perish—Eight Persons Badly Injured—The Complete List of Casualties.

ST. LOUIS, June 9.—Two freight trains on the Wabash Road collided just outside of Warrenton this morning. Both engines and 18 cars were wrecked. There were palace horse cars attached to one of the trains laden with race horses from Latonia en route to Kansas City, two of which were wrecked. The killed were:

WILLIAM H. THOMAS, Cynthiana, Ky.
HENRY STONE, horse trainer, Harrodsburg, Ky.
JAMES KELLEY, Chicago.
FRANK KELLY, Chicago.
EDWARD SIMMONS, hostler, Lexington, Ky.
MORRIS GREEN, colored, Frankfort, Ky.
SAMUEL DAVIS, jockey, Lexington, Ky.

Fifteen horses were also reported killed.

The injured were:

WILLIAM TAYLOR, colored, trainer, Covington, Ky., arm broken.
GEORGE HURLEY, colored, Cynthiana, Ky.
LEE BROWN, Louisville, arm broken.
MERRITT JOHNSON, colored, St. Louis, arm broken.
ENGINEER SHIVELLE, rib broken.
FIREMAN LEE PARSONS, collar bone broken.
FIREMAN BROWN, legs badly sprained.

A wrecking train was sent out from Moberly and surgeons from several points were sent to the scene.

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

Leading Features of the Grain and Produce Markets at Home and Abroad.

TORONTO, June 10.—Eggs are firm and still held at 12c. Butter is quoted at 10c to 12c for new rolls and 8c to 10c for old. Potatoes are quiet at 65c by the carload. Straight roller flour is quoted at $4.50 to $4.60, extra $4.10 to $4.20. No. 2 spring wheat 98c on Midland, Manitoba white $1.

BEERBOHM'S REPORT.

Beerbohm reports: Floating cargoes—Wheat, quiet; corn, firm. Cargoes on passage—Wheat, quiet; corn firm. Mark Lane—Wheat, English, steady; foreign, turn easier; corn, American, firmer; Danube, quiet; flour, English, weaker; American, turn easier. French country markets quieter. Liverpool—Spot wheat and corn steady.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

Liverpool reports: Wheat firm, demand poor; holders offer sparingly. Corn steady, demand fair. Spring wheat, 7s 2d; red winter, 7s 1½d; corn 3s 6d, peas 5s 6d, pork 58s 9d, lard 31s, bacon, long clear, heavy, 29s 6d; light 30s; short clear 29s 6d; tallow 25s; cheese, white, old, 53s; new 46s 6d; colored, old, 53s; new 48s 6d.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Buffalo reports: The sales of cheese to-day were 4080 boxes, comprising Cloverfield 1800 at 8⅜c, Marshfield 1580 at 8⅜c, Springville 1100 at 8⅜c, Neff 200 at 8⅜c.

Utica reports: The cheese market exhibited more activity and there was an improvement in prices. The ruling price established at 8¼c as against 8⅛c a week ago. The cheese offered was almost entirely full grass stock, and this fact no doubt had some influence upon prices. Transactions were: 7 lots, 600 boxes, 8¼c; 117 lots, 8865 boxes, 8¼c; 23 lots, 285 boxes, 8⅜c; 34 lots, 2147 boxes, 8⅛c; 29 lots, 2498 boxes; ruling prices 8¼. Transactions same date last year aggregated 18,340 boxes, and the ruling price was 7⅞.

Nomination Day in Quebec.

This is nomination day in Quebec province, elections June 17.

A Blaze at Orangeville.

ORANGEVILLE, June 9.—A fire broke out in the second story of the Campbell block on Broadway occupied by W. H. Dame, photographer, at 11 o'clock to-night. By hard work the firemen succeeded in confining the flames to the building in which they originated, but not until the second and third stories had been badly damaged. The stocks of Crosier & Fleming, general store, G. A. Campbell, boots and shoes, and T. McAdam, grocer, and the public reading room and library suffered severely from fire and water.

Death of "The Blue Man."

BELVIDERE, N.J., June 9.—Henry Melick, a rich old farmer of Harmony, known all over this section as "The Blue Man," died suddenly at his home yesterday, aged 70 years. When a young man he was practically drowned by falling in the Delaware River while fishing, but was resuscitated after hours of hard work. His skin ever afterwards had a dark blue cast. His entire body suddenly underwent transformation. Physicians were unable to account for the phenomenon.

They Must First be Caught.

BISMARCK, N.D., June 9.—Searching parties are still out after the robbers who went through the Northern Pacific train at New Salem. If caught they may be lynched. The Postoffice Department has offered a reward of $1000 for the arrest and conviction of the robbers.

The Trouble in the Rosebud.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Gen. Schofield, acting secretary of war, has received information that the trouble on the Rosebud between the settlers and Cheyennes seems to have subsided. The Indians have agreed to surrender the prisoners demanded by the authorities.

Broker Pell's Sentence.

NEW YORK, June 9.—Recorder Smyth today sentenced Broker George H. Pell of Sixth National Bank wrecking fame to imprisonment for 7½ years in States Prison.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

DILLON'S MOTION OF CENSURE LOST BY 281 TO 220.

Mr. Vincent Calls Attention to the McKinley Bill and Gets a Put-Off Answer—Russia Buying Munitions of War—Carnegie's Gift to Edinburgh.

LONDON, June 9.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Dillon moved to adjourn in order to call attention to the danger to the public peace arising from the violent and unconstitutional action of the magistrates and police of Cashel and Tipperary. He challenged Mr. Balfour to give the reasons why the Tipperary meeting was proclaimed. He avowed his intention to address all the proclaimed meetings he possibly could. If the forces against them were too strong he would advise the people to disperse and avoid bloodshed. He denounced the police for attacking a peaceful meeting, even if it had been proclaimed, without giving due warning to enable them to escape.

Mr. Balfour said that an adequate force had been sent to Tipperary to preserve order. If anything serious happened the blame would rest upon those who defied the proclamation.

Mr. Gladstone supported Mr. Dillon's motion. He contended that the charges had not been answered.

The motion was negatived, 281 to 220.

Charles Vincent, member for Central Sheffield, called the attention of the House to the fact that the House of Representatives at Washington had passed a bill providing for enhanced prohibitory duties on cutlery, tin plates, iron hoops, and other articles of British export. He asked whether the English Government, having regard for the disastrous effect which the Senate's approval must have upon Sheffield, the Midland, South Wales, and Belfast, waved adhere to their view that the free import system of the United Kingdom precluded an instruction to the British Minister at Washington to represent to the United States Government the injury that such legislation would do to the industry of a friendly power which in 1889 gave a free market to £95,000,000 worth of competing American goods.

Sir James Fergusson, Under Secretary, said the Government had not received a copy of the bill and had not been informed of any important alterations therein.

Trinity's Deputation.

LONDON, June 9.—Lord Knutsford will receive a deputation to-morrow headed by Sir Charles Tupper, to present the memorial of Trinity College, Toronto, respecting musical degrees. The deputation will comprise Rev. Provost Body and the college examiners here.

His Name's Against Him.

LONDON, June 9.—George Washington Butterfield, an American, has sued The Financial News for £100,000 damages for alleged libel.

Carnegie's Gift to Dunedin.

EDINBURGH, June 9.—The public library presented to the city by Andrew Carnegie of Pittsburg, Pa., was opened to-day. Lord Rosebery presided at the ceremonies.

Kalnoky on the Triple Alliance.

PESTH, June 9.—Count Kalnoky addressed the Austro-Hungarian delegates to-day. He declared the relations between the nations forming the Triple Alliance were clearer and firmer than ever before. He made a sympathetic reference to Bulgaria, whose position, he said, was being consolidated. He said he regretted the excessive growth of radicalism in Servia.

Who's Lost a Balloon?

QUEENSTOWN, June 9.—The bark Architect, from Fernandina, reports that May 24 she saw a large balloon floating in the ocean. The bark attempted to reach the balloon to ascertain if anybody was in the car, but darkness set in and the balloon was not afterwards seen.

It's a Pity He Talks.

LONDON, June 9.—A correspondent of the Daily Telegraph has been accorded an interview by Prince Bismarck. The Prince declared no concession to the Nihilist was possible. Over-education had led to much dissatisfaction and disappointment in Germany, but in Russia it had led to disaffection and conspiracy. There were ten times as many people educated for the higher walks as there were places to fill. Further, education was making pedantic theorists and visionaries unfit for constitutional governments. It would be madness to put such men in authority. Russians do not know yet what they want; they must therefore be ruled with a rod of iron. Referring to the labor question the Prince ridiculed the idea that workmen would ever be contented, because he said the rich are never contented. He spoke strongly against any dictation as to hours of labor, and against usurping the rightful authority of parents over their children.

Caprivi's Tribute to Bismarck.

BERLIN, June 9.—Chancellor von Caprivi to-day addressed the Committee of the Reichstag on the Army Bill. He said he was anxious to emphasize the fact that he had only given his adhesion to plans that his great predecessor had already approved. The Chancellor said the withdrawal of Bismarck had left affairs from their nature less secure than when his fascinating personality still figured before the world. A thousand things which were in themselves unchanged now appeared with notes of interrogation instead of points of exclamation.

"I quite understand," he added, "that you should wish that things had happened otherwise, or that Prince Bismarck should return [Lively protest from all parts of the House]. But it was inevitable sooner or later. We still find the simplest duties difficult because his weight does not fall into the scales. I count in the first place upon a patriotic understanding on all sides. Let us wait another year; then if necessary I shall be prepared to combat all conflicting elements here. But to-day I still face the fray with some anxiety."

Herr Bennigsen and Dr. Windthorst declared the chancellor's statement was satisfactory and clarified the situation.

Herr Liebknecht reiterated the objections of the Socialists against the bill.

They Justified Murder.

PARIS, June 9.—At a meeting of the revolutionary party to-day a protest against the recent arrest of Russians was unanimously adopted. Cluseret, Ferroul and others made violent speeches, some justifying murder to attain their ends.

The Terrier's Bite was Fatal.

NEW YORK, June 9.—Edward Corriveau of Harrisville, R.I., died to-day at Bellevue Hospital of hydrophobia. He came here yesterday to be treated by the Pasteur method, but the disease had gained too much headway. The man was bitten by a small terrier.

A SPURIOUS DIVORCE MILL.

Exposed by a Man in Doubt as to the Legality of His Decree.

DETROIT, June 9.—D. McIntosh of Regina, N.W.T., wrote to Judge Reilly the other day inclosing a decree of divorce to which the Judge's signature was attached, purporting to grant a divorce to McIntosh from She-Pass-One-Sick McIntosh, his Indian wife. He was anxious to marry again and wrote to the Judge in order to ascertain if the signature was genuine and to be assured that he was at liberty to wed. He explained that he had obtained the divorce through Attorney W. A. Reid of this city.

The Judge was astonished at this revelation. In reply he declared that his signature had been forged. He had never written it and it wasn't anything like his handwriting. An order was issued to-day for the arrest of Reid, but he cannot be found. Reid came here from Canada a few years ago and it is thought he has sought a refuge in his native land. He can be extradited if found.

OFFENSIVE DISCRIMINATION.

Claimed by Niagara Methodists to Exist Against Non-Episcopal Churches.

HAMILTON, June 9.—This resolution moved by Dr. Burns at the Niagara Conference of the Methodist church to-day was accepted by the Conference and ordered to be forwarded to the Committee on Conference Resolutions:

"Whereas, the British North America Act under which the various provinces of the Dominion have been united, recognizes the equality of all religions before the law:

"And whereas, in the order of precedence of Provincial and Dominion receptions we have the following order: Governor-General, Lieut.-Governors, Archbishops and Bishops, the Cabinet, etc., thus ignoring the very existence of our own church and the other non-Episcopal churches representing the majority of this Dominion:

"Therefore, be it resolved that we present our most emphatic protest against such an offensive and unjust discrimination against more than one-half of the population of the Dominion who refuse to yield to any others in loyalty to our beloved Queen and to the truest interests of our beloved Dominion.

"We would memorialize the General Conference to bring this unjust and offensive discrimination before the proper authorities, and to take such steps as may be necessary to its removal."

SHE HAS SLEPT OVER 80 DAYS.

The Strange Case of Pretty Grace Gridley—Medical Men Puzzled.

AMBOY, Ill., June 9.—In a quiet room on the shady side of one of Amboy's pleasant homes stands a dainty bed, upon which, with rosy cheeks, lightly closed eyes and half-smiling face, slumbers pretty Grace Gridley, the daughter of one of Amboy's prominent merchants, the "Sleeping Beauty," as she has come to be known.

On the night of March 15 she retired to rest as usual in perfect health, so far as her parents know. The next morning she did not appear at the breakfast table at her usual hour. Her mother went up to call her, and found her sleeping so soundly that she decided not to awaken her, saying: "It will do her good." So Grace slept all that day, and when supper time came she was still sleeping, and her mother found it impossible to arouse her. Becoming alarmed the family called in physicians, but every method known to them was applied unsuccessfully. Medical gentlemen came from other cities, and a consultation was held, but they could not solve the puzzle. They had all had cases of trance and had read of cases similar to Grace's, but never in their experience had they encountered a case like this.

Only once since falling into her long sleep has Miss Grace shown the slightest consciousness. When she had been asleep for about a week the nurse left the room for a few moments. Upon her return she found that Grace had arisen from her bed and left the room. In another apartment, not far away, she was found, where she had apparently gone for the purpose of reading a Bible, as the book lay in front of her, where she had apparently dropped it, after reading awhile, and had again returned to her strange slumber. She was placed in her bed again and has not since shown the slightest signs of awakening.

The young lady has, strange to say, lost but little flesh during her long sleep, and appears to rest as calmly and easily as a child in gentle slumber. The beating of her heart and her respiration are natural, her flesh is warm and natural in tint, and the sleep appears to be perfectly normal. Food is given in a liquid form, but not in very large quantities. After being placed in her mouth the food passes into the stomach without any apparent effort at swallowing.

There are many surmises as to the cause of her strange condition, but only one that meets any favor. During the winter there was a religious revival in Amboy. Among the most enthusiastic was Grace Gridley. Every night saw her present, taking part in the exercises with ever-increasing fervor. On the night of March 15 the meeting was attended by more than usual religious excitement, and, it is thought, culminated in complete prostration of the young lady's nervous system.

Monk's Majority 13.

OTTAWA, June 9.—Sheriff Sweetland this morning made the official return of the Russell election:

Robillard (Lib.)....................2238
Broder (Con.)....................1388

Majority for Robillard....................850

Mr. P. J. Coffey announced the official figures in Carleton:

Monk....................1148
Kidd....................1135

Majority for Monk.................... 13

Conmee (Lib.) 50 Majority in West Algoma.

PORT ARTHUR, June 9.—Complete returns for West Algoma show Conmee (Lib.) elected by 50 majority over Macdonell (Con.).

Hudson's (Con.) Majority in E. Hastings 20.

BELLEVILLE, June 9.—Mr. Hudson (Con.) was to-day officially declared elected for East Hastings by 20 majority.

Biggar's (Lib.) majority in West Hastings is 141.

Losses Caused by Flames.

COLCHESTER, Conn., June 9.—The business portion of this town was burned this morning. Loss $60,000.

MEMPHIS, June 9.—The elevator at West Memphis built for the Kentucky Central Railway at a cost of $75,000 was burned early this morning. E. C. Adams of Atchison, Kan., the contractor, who had just completed the building and was sleeping in the second story, was lost. He was 75 years old. The origin of the fire is unknown.

They Cannot Have a Divorce.

NEW YORK, June 9.—"Billy" Rice, the minstrel, and his wife, with charges and counter-charges of infidelity, have been trying since 1888 to secure decrees of divorce. A referee first found husband and wife equally guilty and recommended that Rice's complaint be dismissed. Plaintiff's counsel moved to reopen the case, but Judge Ingraham has handed down a decision denying the motion and confirming the referee's report.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT.

COWLES SURRENDERS POSSESSION OF HIS CHILD.

Hale Allowed to Put Up at the Windsor in Charge of Two Officers—The Wounded Man Progressing Favorably—A Touching Scene in Court.

MONTREAL, June 9.—The Cowles abduction case has been settled. This afternoon Mr. Cowles called for Superintendent Kirkpatrick of the Montreal General Hospital and stated that he was willing to give up the child to his wife; accordingly he affixed his signature to this document, written by Dr. Kirkpatrick at his dictation and witnessed by one of the house surgeons:

To MADAME SUPERIEURE AND THE CONVENT OF THE SACRED HEART: Please deliver to my wife, Alice H. Cowles, our daughter, Florence Cowles, without delay and consider this as an annulment of my former order respecting the child.
EUGENE H. COWLES.

This morning a preliminary order was given by Judge Tait commanding the nuns to produce the child in court from the retreat where she had been placed yesterday morning by her father, and accordingly she appeared accompanied by her mother and aunt. There were also in court C. C. Hale, the brother of Mrs. Cowles, who shot her husband; Judge Ingersoll, her legal adviser, and H. Gibson, a secret service agent from Washington. Mr. McGibbon appeared as counsel for Mrs. Cowles and presented a petition asking that the child be taken out of the hands of the nuns, who were acting for the father, on a writ of habeas corpus, and he briefly recounted the circumstances of the case, which have already been published.

The writ was granted and made returnable at 3 o'clock. A subpoena was served on Cowles, but he was too ill to receive it, much less to act upon it. At 3 o'clock all interested appeared in court, but in the absence of Cowles, Judge Tait adjourned the case till Wednesday. Everyone thought proceedings were stayed, but in that they were wrong. The Associated Press correspondent went to the hospital and saw Dr. Kirkpatrick, and informed him that his patient would likely be condemned without a hearing. He at once asked Cowles if he wished proceedings stayed, to which the wounded man replied that he would do nothing further, and was willing to give up the child. By this time the court had adjourned, but Judge Tait was seen in chambers and shown the letter. He considered that it settled the case. Mrs. Cowles was then communicated with, and she received the news with joy.

Though the case is adjourned till Wednesday Judge Tait said he would give a hearing to-morrow morning and have the case favorably settled. Mr. Cowles was seen as he lay in bed. There were no private apartments for his reception, and he is placed in a public ward, surrounded, however, by screens till more private quarters can be found. His pale, handsome face could not but excite sympathy as he lay with bandaged head. The bullet entered the right side of the neck, between the external and internal carotid arteries, passed beneath the tongue and lingual arteries, and piercing the jaw came out on the opposite side. Only a few words were permitted. He said he had no quarrel with his wife. With men he could fight all the year round, with women not two minutes. He said Hale had no need to interfere, that he and his wife were in the way of coming to an amicable settlement and all would have been well.

His condition is quite serious, the more especially since he is suffering from consumption. "If I die," he said, "and I am afraid I shall, it will go hard with poor Cleve" (Hale).

Hale was released from prison to-day, put in charge of two officers and is stopping with his friends at the Windsor.

An interview was had with Hale. He looked none the worse for his confinement over night. He admitted that he feared an attack and only anticipated it by shooting.

The scene in court between mother and child was very touching. The little one clung to her mother's neck and would not be separated from her.

Your correspondent was permitted to-night to examine all the affidavits that have been filed in the Cowles case, but now that the contest has been abandoned it can serve no good purpose to make them public. The correspondence between Cowles and his wife is of a most repulsive nature, especially the letters sent from him to her, in which he makes charges of the grossest nature, which she indignantly denies.

Cowles is somewhat easier to-night, and unless unforeseen complications occur his ultimate recovery is very probable.

Cowles' Lease of Life Short.

CLEVELAND, June 9.—Eugene H. Cowles has had many hemorrhages of the lungs during the past few years and has been told by his physicians that he cannot live more than three or four years at the most, and that during six months in the year he must reside in Italy, New Mexico or other suitable climate.

Mr. Cowles was intended by his father to succeed in time to the editorship of The Leader. He worked on The Leader for a year or two, but developing no taste for journalism, turned his attention to scientific pursuits. In company with a brother he investigated silver and copper mines in Central and South America and became interested in the subject of aluminum production. The brothers established a small aluminum plant in this city and invented new processes of manufacture. Out of this has grown the big aluminum works at Lockport, N. Y., which has the largest electric dynamo in the world, and the Cowles' Aluminum Company, of the United States and Great Britain. The late Edwin Cowles invested a large amount of money in the enterprise.

Mrs. Alice M. Cowles is the daughter of Banker E. B. Hale, whose wealth is estimated at from 4 to 5 millions. Before her marriage she was one of the most prominent leaders in society here. They were married in 1879 and the event was the grand social affair of the year in Cleveland. Rutherford B. Hayes and Mrs. Hayes and Gen. and Mrs. Garfield were among the guests, and the union seemed most auspicious, but even then there were intimate friends who suspected that unhappiness would follow, owing to the somewhat "heady" disposition of both.

A Savage Fight at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, June 9.—There was much interest in the fight to-night at the Travelers' Club between Paddy Brennan and Mike Leary. It was slated at 24 rounds with soft gloves, but was intended to be a fight to a finish and the gloves used were the two-ounce gloves. Both men were in good condition and a savage fight resulted, in which Brennan was victorious after 17 rounds. Leary was punished severely and in the 18th round went down and failed to come to the scratch in the 10-second limit. The referee declared Brennan the victor.

La Bourgogne Disabled.

NEW YORK, June 9.—The French steamer La Bourgogne, which left here Saturday for Havre with a large number of passengers, was spoken 210 miles east of Sandy Hook disabled and returning to New York. The cause of the trouble was not ascertained.

REASONS

DOMINION FINANCES.

THE amount of revenue received during the month of May, according to returns received up to the 31st of that month, says the Ottawa Citizen, was $3,295,485.20, from the following sources: Customs, $1,956,122.15, against $1,971,675.17 in May, 1889; Excise, $592,709.24, against $628,665.20; Post office, $195,000, against $206,010.80; public works, including railways, $320,570.49 against $325,402.86; miscellaneous, $215,075.44, against $256,600.23. Adding the revenue for May to that of the previous ten months of the current fiscal year—$32,432,238.65—there was a total revenue for the eleven months of 1889-90, ended the 31st May, of $35,728,724.04.

The expenditure for May amounted to $2,587,120.05, making a total expenditure for the eleven months of $28,677,753.33.

Deducting the $28,677,753.33 expenditure from the $35,728,724.04 revenue on account of Consolidated Fund, there was an excess of revenue for the eleven months of $7,050,970.71.

The expenditure on Capital account for the month amounted to $120,022.17, and for the eleven months to $4,720,080.51.

On the 31st of May the gross debt of the Dominion amounted to $286,157,439.42, made up as follows: Funded debt payable in England, $199,604,960.20; funded debt payable in Canada, $13,914,446.79; Dominion notes, $15,289,287.79; savings banks, $40,037,406.67; trust funds, $7,893,129.48; Province accounts, $16,087,985.26; miscellaneous and banking accounts, $1,069,265.50. The assets amounted to $49,465,162.51, making the debt at the end of May $236,740,295.92. The decrease of the debt during the month was $175,076.91.

FACING DEATH ON THE ALPS.

Fate of a Party and Eight Guides—Narrow Escape from Imminent Destruction.

Many have died on the way; deaths of starvation, agony, horror. In the depths of the same glacier paths travelled to-day, half a score of men have been sleeping for years. This is the terrible tale of mountain climbing in the Alps. Both the strong and the weak have perished. One beautiful morning a party of three, with eight guides, left for Mont Blanc. They made the peak, then a snowstorm invested them. A week after, the bodies of three were found, but no traces were left to tell the gulf which swallowed the others.

The merest trifles occasion instant and terrible death. The elements of that cause are as numerous as the shifting winds which beat about the peaks. One who has ascended the highest peaks of the Alps, and who has also climbed many mountains in United States, says that mountain climbing is the best example one can have of life's vicissitudes. Advantage must be taken of every warning, or else the stout adventurer will be buried in some fathomless abyss. In life each warning in the way of pain that tells of nerves, brain, or general health growing weaker and weaker must be looked to at once, or lingering or fatal illness will result. The alarming increases of nerve and brain diseases in the last ten years, with so many sad endings, tells its own story of neglected headaches, sleepless nights, poor appetite, listlessness and tired feeling, aching muscles, and weak backs. If these symptoms had been faithfully treated with Paine's Celery Compound, sickness and suffering would have been banished, and health and happiness would now reign instead. There are cases on record where this wonderful remedy has cured insanity, paralysis, and other diseases hereto considered incurable. But is it not better to use this medicine as soon as you begin to feel weak, depressed, and unfit for life's duties? Then it will build up and renew your vitality in a short time, and you will have the perfect strength and health which will resist fever, pneumonia, and other diseases that are fatal in so large a portion of cases. It is a scientific medicine, and has a power possessed by nothing else in all brain and nerve diseases.

ENNISMORE.

Correspondence of the Review.

WEATHER NOTES.—Flowery May is again a thing of the past. The beginning of the month commenced bleak and cold, continuing so up to the last week, when a higher temperature prevailed. The number of days, namely, eighteen, on which rain fell is beyond my conception, although the fall was light compared with the number of days, being only 2 inches and 76-100 of an inch. We had some snow on the 1st and 7th, also there was frost on the 2nd, 8th and 21st. The 2nd and 7th were the coldest mornings, the thermometer standing on each at 26°, the last week, in the morning, ranging from 40° to 55° and at sundown from 60° to 65°, but on the last day at 2 p.m. in the shade, it stood at 85°, and sunset at 78°, leaving the mean temperature of the month at 51°. There was fog on two mornings, four thunder storms—the one of the 17th a large amount of hail falling and followed by one of the severest gales of the season. The migratory birds are now all amongst us; the swallow, our last, coming on the 4th. The following are the different points from which the wind was blowing at sunrise during the month, viz.: North 1 day, south-west 9 days, east 1 day, north-west 7 days, north-east 2 days, south-east 6 days, south 4 days and west 1 day.

VEGETABLES INJURED.—On June 9th at sunrise there was a sharp white frost, with the thermometer at 34 deg. It will injure vegetables.

A TALE OF MANY MONKEYS.

Monkeys, according to oriental tradition, have a very peculiar beginning. Satan, we are told, tried to imitate the works of the Creator, but failed signally to equal them. Instead of the horse, he could produce only the ass; instead of the fish, a serpent; and instead of man, the monkey. Yet in India, the paradise of monkeys, they are held in high honor because of the aid which their king, Hanooman, "in the days of old," gave to the god Rama when, to rescue his wife, Sita, he invaded Ceylon; Hanooman helping to bridge the straight.

Duty had taken me to Dharmsala, a hill station considerably west of Simla. On the return journey I turned off the main road at Kangra, an ancient fortress, named by Runjeet Singh "the key of the Punjab," though utterly incapable of standing a week's siege from a civilized army. The object of this excursion was to see a neighboring shrine, much venerated by the Hindoos, and called Jwalamookhee. Not only was the temple said to be worthy of a visit, but we had been told that self-fed jets of natural fire burned night and day within its walls. To die with a cow's tail in one's hand, to have one's funeral obsequies performed by one's own son, to have one's own corpse burned on the banks of the Ganges at Benares, and to have the funeral pyre lighted with fire brought from Jwala-mookhee, constitute the ne plus ultra of a happy Hindoo's death and funeral. Hence the temple was considered particularly sacred, and the Hindoo rajahs of India vied with each other—as they do at Benares, their holy city—in decorating it. We know that quite recently the rajah of Faridkote had covered the huge doors of the temple with thick plates of chased silver. But more than the building, I was curious to see and investigate the phenomenon of the natural fires. So from Kangra I rode to the shrine.

A few hours' ride brought us to the little town, which lies on the hillside, below the temple, and is the offspring of the temple, in much the same way that many cities have sprung up around our own cathedrals, and for similar reasons. The native pilgrims, who come in thousands, lodge in the open air under the trees and cook their own food; the rich bring tents for their accommodation. But there was no place for a European to lodge in except the usual "district officers' bungalow." This is always a small house, with two or three rooms, built and furnished by the Government, and put in charge of a man servant, who both looks after it and attends to the wants of those who occupy it. In it the officers whom duty takes to such out-of-the-European's-world places, lodge and transact business during the few days of their periodical visits. To this bungalow, therefore, we went. On telling the care-taker who we were, he opened the house; and while I went in and indulged in a very needful and refreshing wash, he attended to my horse. These preliminaries being over, we sent him into the town, for the double purpose of procuring us some food and of inquiring from the priests at what hour we might pay the temple a visit.

The main road passes through a dense wood not 100 yards from this house, which was more than half a mile away from the nearest part of the town. From the road, a narrow avenue had been cut among the trees to a small clearance around the house; otherwise, it was quite buried in the wood.

When the care-taker left me, I found the house stuffy and damp; it had probably not been opened or aired for days. The stillness around was oppressive. Not a sound was heard except the munching of our horse in the neighboring stable or the rare cry of a bird in the trees. There was nothing in the house to read, and nothing to do. Moreover, I had had a long ride and felt rather stiff in the legs. So rising from the chair I strolled out of the house. After walking listlessly around it, and pacing the small cleared space in front, I followed the avenue to the main road; and then returning, passed into the wood, immersed in my own thoughts. It was literally a "twilight wood;" for though it was nearly noon on a bright August day, the trees stood so close and their leaves grew so thick that scarce a patch of sunshine lighted up a few favored spots. The giant branches of the grand old trees more than touched; they interlaced, and formed a canopy overhead, with here and there a rent, to admit a ray of light.

Sauntering under these trees, I suddenly became conscious of noises in the branches above me. I looked up and about; but though the branches stirred and the leaves moved, I could see nothing. I was not, however, long left in doubt or speculation. A monkey, a large male, dropped from a branch to the ground at a distance of about 30 feet in front of me. As he reached the ground, he squatted on his heels, resting both his hands on his knees and gazing fixedly and solemnly at me. His gravity upset mine. Then near him another monkey dropped down; a third and a fourth followed. It began to rain monkeys. In tens, in scores, in hundreds; old, middle-aged, and young; large and small; males and females—many of the latter carrying babies, some on their backs, others in their arms—kept dropping from the trees around me. I was standing under a mighty giant of the forest; and against its trunk, some 5 feet in diameter, I set my back, as the monkeys in their hundreds squatted down in an irregular semicircle around. They did not go behind the tree; for its trunk was much wider than my back, and they chose to sit only where they could see me. Around they left a clear space; but at the distance of about 30 feet they sat, huddled close together, in several rows, 600 and more in number.

It may be said in passing that monkeys are sacred animals in India. They are fed and protected and allowed to roam at large with impunity. Vast numbers infest Delhi, Agra, and other large towns. At Benares they are a perfect plague. In so favorable a situation as Jwala-mookhee, they naturally multiply beyond reckoning, and people the woods in sufficient hordes to account for the hundreds that now surrounded me. At some distance beyond, several young monkey urchins, which preferred play to curiosity, kept suspending themselves from the branches in long living chains, holding on to each other's hands or tails, and swinging themselves pendulum-wise to and fro. They were not the small, puny creatures generally seen in European menageries, but the real genuine Indian Hanooman, of which race the large and strong males stand, when erect, fully 4 feet in height. There were many such among others of smaller size, in the crowd around me.

It had not taken three months to form that solid semi-circle of monkeys. They had come down as thick as a shower of hailstones; but so softly and gently had they descended to the grass and leaf-covered ground that scarcely any noise had been made. For a short time they sat motionless and silent, staring hard at me; and a baby monkey, having made a noise, was instantly smacked by its mother in the most human fashion. They looked at me, then at each other, and again at me; and then they began to chatter—first one, then a few together, then many at once, finally all in a chorus. They talked, chattered, jabbered, discussed, argued, shouted and yelled; gesticulating meanwhile, making faces and grinning. Suddenly there was a dead silence for a short interval, during which they gravely stared again at me harder than ever. Every now and again one or another or several at once would grin, snarl and growl at me, showing their large canine teeth. Again the chattering discourse would be renewed.

The laughter with which I had greeted the first of my visitors died a very sudden death, for my curiosity to watch their behavior did not prevent my realizing the fact that I was not in a very safe position. Even one or two monkeys would be difficult enough to deal with, if they chose to attack a man, for, though small, they are extremely muscular and agile, and it would be harder to prevent them from biting and tearing than it would a mad dog. True, I knew that one or two would hardly dare to attack a man, but when hundreds crowded together around one stranger, the circumstances were far from encouraging. Here I was, unarmed, nothing but a light riding-whip in my hand, surrounded by hundreds of monkeys, to which my white face and European dress were evidently objects of as much aversion as curiosity. Natives they did not mind, but Europeans they seemed to regard with the hatred due to intruders. I fully realized my danger, but continued calm and collected and reasoned the position out with myself. The only chance of safety was to remain quietly against this friendly tree, silently observing the monkeys, careful to give no offence or provocation, watchful to give them no advantage over me, till the return of the care-taker or some other chance came to my aid. Had I attempted to strike them, or to frighten them, or to flee from them, I have not the slightest doubt that I should not now be writing this account. Their enormous numbers would have emboldened them to any act. I should have been quite helpless in their grasp—would, indeed, have been pounced upon by scores of them, overpowered, bitten and torn to pieces. So making a virtue of necessity, I kept up a bold front, watched, waited, and prayed.

In one of the intervals of silence, the great monkey that had first arrived and that seemed to be one of the leaders, suddenly hopped nearer to me—2 feet or so. His action was immediately imitated by all the monkeys forming the front row of the semi-circle, while those behind closed up as before; and the semi-circle contracted around me by 2 feet in the radius. More chattering and gesticulating followed, more growling and grinning, with intervals of silence. They had a great deal to say, and they all said it, and it was all about me, too; for they frequently pointed at me with their hands, and snarled and gnashed their teeth at me. Again they contracted the semi-circle as before. And so they kept gradually coming nearer and nearer, and growing more and more excited. Still I remained quiet and silent and still in the distance the monkey-youths played the mad gambols of their living pendulum, heedless of what engaged the attention of their seniors. All else was silent and undisturbed—no sign of man.

The semi-circle had gradually contracted to within 14 or 15 feet of where I stood; the monkeys indeed were so near that in two or three leaps they could easily have jumped upon me. I felt decidedly uneasy; wondered how they would attack me, and when? From the right, or the left, or the front? By jumping on me from a distance, or waiting till quite near? Then I wondered whether the care-taker would return in time to stave off the assault, for I was still quite close to the house. Of the dreadful results of the attack, if once made, I had not the slightest doubt. Still I remained leaning immovable against the tree, calm and cool, facing them straight, looking fully into their faces all in turn, and showing outwardly no sign of flinching or alarm. Yet I began to think that it was now only a matter of a mere few minutes. Before a quarter of an hour at the furthest they would be within touching distance of me. They would be sure to begin to handle my clothes; and whether I permitted it, or resisted, or tried to fly, I would with equal certainty be attacked and overpowered and killed.

But my deliverance was at hand. In the midst of one of their most noisy discussions—or did it only seem more noisy because they were now so near?—they one and all became suddenly silent and perfectly still. They seemed to be listening attentively. I listened, too, but at first could catch no sound anywhere; the stillness of death was all around; for even the young monkeys had ceased their tricks. What could have disturbed and silenced the noisy throng? Or what did they now purpose? Next from afar off came the loud cry of a monkey—evidently the warning call of a scout on out-post duty. Then, first faintly from afar, and gradually nearer and louder, came, down the main road through the wood, the welcome sound of the clatter of a horse's hoofs at a swift walking pace. This it was which their quicker ears had detected long before I had heard it. They kept their ground for a few moments more, but their attention was now evidently divided between me and the approaching horse. Again, and nearer, the scout's cry sounded through the wood. There was an immediate stampede. One and all the monkeys rushed off to the neighboring trees, and, scrambling up the trunks and into the branches, they were, in the twinkling of an eye, lost to sight in the leafy canopy overhead. They had disappeared in their hundreds as rapidly as they had come, and almost as silently, save when the rustling among the leaves indicated their course as they passed from tree to tree and fled further into the wood.

I waited still against the tree till the horse and his rider—a mounted policeman going his rounds—had come quite near. Then I made for the house and bolted myself in, thankful for the timely arrival and involuntary aid of the unconscious patrol. Unknowingly, but providentially, he had saved my life. Through the window I could still see the monkeys in the distant trees and hear their chatter. When the policeman had gone away, numbers of monkeys again descended to the ground and walked about, perhaps looking for me. I was, however, secure within doors; nor did I open them till, half an hour later, the care-taker returned with food, and a message from the Brahmins, fixing the same afternoon as the time for visiting the temple. Having satisfied the calls for hunger and, later on, visited the temple, I left Jwala-mookhee and its monkeys behind me, and rode back the same day to Kangra. I don't care if I never see a monkey again all my life.

And what about the temple and the fire? Well, there was not much to see except "barbaric pearls and gold." The temple is large and lofty, certainly, and differs much from the usual style of Hindoo temples; it is, however, without any pretension to architectural beauty or grandeur. But the constant flames are really there. There are fissures in the rock on which the temple is built, especially in a hollow, like a rectangular cistern, natural or excavated in the center of the temple. These fissures are vents for the escape of natural gas, produced most probably from vast reservoirs of earth-oils in the bowels of the hill. These jets of gas, once set on fire, naturally keep burning for long spaces of time. Sometimes one jet fails, and sometimes another, to be rekindled when a fresh supply of gas has been accumulated in nature's laboratory below. When I was there, no fewer than seventeen jets were in active combustion in various parts of the temple, the greater number being in the cistern.

CHEAP, COOL COMFORT!

Summer Bulletin.

WE DEFY OLD SOL TO DO HIS HOTTEST.

The elections are over. Now for business. We've did a rousing trade during May, and swept competition to the wall. Our gigantic stock, marvellous buying, splendid selling and unparalleled value has carried our constituency. GOUGH BROS. are the representatives of the biggest, the best, the peoples Clothing Emporium.

Hot weather is coming as sure as fate, rent or taxes. Then be prepared. Shed your winter clothes and don a summer suit. Select one from our special line of BRITISH COLUMBIA STOCK, bought at a big sacrifice and selling at prices that knock competition into smithereens.

WORKERS AND THINKERS
Look, Read and Ponder Well.

The desire of all buyers of Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, is to procure Goods of the best quality, providing the price suits the pocket. Gough Bros. has made this possible to persons of the most limited means. Energy and enterprise has been the motive spirit of our business—with this spirit we have defied hard times—thus inspired, we have inaugurated and enlarged and extended our trade until it has outgrown our widest expectations.

We again promise you more and better value for your money than you have ever yet had. Our stock has been well and cheaply bought expressly for our own trade, and those who have visited us during the last two months will admit that we have fully redeemed the pledge when promising the Cheapest Goods ever sold in the town of Peterborough.

Our Stock is fully assorted, and we have not confined the bargains to a few leading lines, relying on the rest to reimburse the loss, but have everything proportionately low. In a word we are determined to surpass every former effort, and make the Gough Bros. Bargains instruments of pleasure.

In Boots and Shoes we lead the Country. In Hats and Caps we beat all Competition.

EPPS'S COCOA
BREAKFAST.

By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.—Civil Service Gazette.

New Church at Bailieboro.

On Monday the building committee and Churchwardens of Christ's church (Episcopal), Bailieboro, met at the village and on motion of Mr. McInnes, seconded by Mr. Lucas, it was unanimously agreed to accept the tender of Mr. A. Rutherford, contractor, for the erection of their new church. The building will be of white brick, built to plans furnished by Aylsworth, of Toronto. Work commences at once and the church will be completed during December. The work will be done in Contractor Rutherford's usual good style.

COUNTY COURT.

Two Criminal Cases to be Investigated—The One Civil Suit Settled.

The June sittings of the County Court opened at the Court House at one o'clock to day, His Honor Judge Weller presiding.

There were two criminal cases on the calendar, one a charge against Thomas R. White of having embezzled $2.50 and $2.40 while collector of Galway in 1889, and one against Thos. Beaumont of having stolen a watch and locket from Mr. John Hatherly, of Otonabee, in January last.

THE GRAND JURY.

The Grand Jury was sworn in as follows:

W. H. BUDDEN, Foreman.

John Anderson,	F. H. Green,
Jas. H. Ames,	John Hambridge,
Wm. A. Bell,	Wm. H. Hill,
T. E. Breckenridge,	Wm. H. Hall,
John Corkery,	Job Humphries,
Richard Darling,	Adam Humphries,
Robert Eastland,	Thos. E. Lobb,
Thos. Flood,	Alex. Macfarlane,
Stephen Nicholls,	E. Sanderson,
O. C. Rowse,	John Telford,

Samuel Wallace.

The JUDGE, addressing the Grand Jury, explained the nature of the criminal charges and their duty in the matter. If they were perfectly satisfied that the men was innocent they would find no bills, but if there was evidence sufficient to place them on trial for the offences charged, they should find true bills. If they had any doubt they should send the case in for trial, for while the Petit Jury should give a prisoner the benefit of any doubt, with the Grand Jury the opposite was the case, for they did not try the case. It was also their duty to inspect the gaol, and they were entitled to visit the Nicholls Hospital, the Protestant Home and the St. Joseph's Hospital. He referred to the benevolence of the late Mrs. Nicholls, the establishment of the Home by few benevolent ladies and its history, and to the magnificent site and fine building of St. Joseph's Hospital, which, he said, was a credit to the town and to the Roman Catholic citizens by whom it was erected.

—The Grand Jury then retired.

BRENNAN vs. GLYNN.—This was the only civil suit and was an action of replivan to recover a pool table, a cue rack, balls and other things belonging to the table. The table was rented by a man named Howson and taken to Glynn's at Havelock, where Howson died. Judgment was given by consent for the plaintiff.—Sawers & Stone for plaintiff; John Burnham, Q.C., for defendant.

An Expensive Accident.

An accident occurred at the carbon works last week which will compel the works to partly shut down for a few days. It was on Thursday last, that in the midst of the election excitement one of the large pieces of machinery was in some way mismanaged and as a result was badly demolished. A new machine was sent for to Cleveland, but none was ready for shipment and the works here will have to wait until it is manufactured. The machine will cost the company about six hundred dollars.

The St. Joseph's Hospital.

The St. Joseph's hospital now stands completed and ready for occupation, a monument of architectural skill and charitable benevolence. The building occupies a delightful site on the high ground in Ashburnham and can be admired from many parts in town. The formal opening of the institution has not been fixed for any definite date at present, but it will probably take place early in July, when a detailed description of the building will be given to the readers of the REVIEW.

A Young Girl Prisoner.

Carrie Robinson, the young girl who was arrested on Friday last charged with stealing a dress and a quantity of underwear from Miss Campbell's dressmaking establishment on Hunter-st., appeared before the Magistrate this morning for trial. The girl is about seventeen years of age and is an object of pity. Her mother is dead, her father left her, so that with no one to caution or guide her she has, through carelessness, fallen into this difficulty which has made her a prisoner behind the stone walls and iron bars of the gaol. The offence with which the girl is charged was told in the REVIEW at the time of her arrest. She went to Miss Campbell to have a dress made. After the garment had been finished she called with a note which she alleged was from Mrs. D. H. Burritt, with whom she worked last summer, telling the dressmaker to allow the girl to have the dress and Mrs. Burritt would see that the account was paid. Miss Campbell suspected the genuineness of the order and refused to give the girl the dress. The next morning the dress together with some aprons and underwear was gone, having been taken during the night. The girl called for her dress and being suspected of having stolen it during the night the police were called and Carrie taken in charge. After telling several false stories and taking the police for a long walk, the girl admitted she knew where the goods were and gave them up. At the Police Court this morning she pleaded guilty. The Magistrate heard the story of Miss Campbell, questioned the unfortunate girl's aunt who was in court, and finally reserved sentence until to-morrow to ascertain the girl's past character.

THE CHEESE BOARD.

The Board all Sold—An Inspector of Milk Addresses the Factories.

A regular meeting of the Cheese Board was held in the old Music hall at noon to-day. Nineteen factories boarded 1985 boxes, which were all sold to Mr. Warrington at 8⅝c. The buyers present were Messrs. Claxton, Wrighton, Fitzgerald, Spence, and Warrington. The cheese boarded were as follows:—

Factory.	No. of Boxes.
Keene	120
Warminster	176
Shearer	160
North Smith	140
Central Smith	46
Cherry Grove	120
Missing Link	45
Warsaw	62
Westwood	160
Norwood	148
Melrose Abbey	60
South Dummer	165
Pine Grove	94
Otonabee Union	25
Maple Leaf	60
Peterborough	65
Lakefield	102
Fenelon Falls	38
Minden	30
Total	1985

Mr. Wrighton started the bidding by offering 8¼c for the board, which was followed by a bid of 8⅜c by Mr. Fitzgerald. Mr. Warrington then raised it to 8½, but Mr. Claxton went one better and offered 8 9-16c, which Mr. Warrington again raised to 8⅝c for the board. This offer was accepted by all the factories and the board was cleared.

AN INSPECTOR AND INSTRUCTOR.

Mr. Baillie, inspector and instructor for the association, addressed the board briefly after the sale. He said that as some dissatisfaction had been expressed last year by members of the Peterborough Board that they had not received a fair share of attention, it had been deemed advisable by the Association that he should come here and give the members of the Peterborough Board and opportunity early in the season to place their names with him, and then he would do just as fairly by this Board as was done by the Belleville, Prince Edward or Kingston Boards. If they gave in their names early it would enable the inspector to make two visits during the season. He urged patrons of factories to pay attention to the aeriating of the milk, advising that the milk be aeriated twice which would reduce the temperature 25 or 30 degrees. His post office address was A. E. Baillie, Campbellford.

The Board then adjourned.

The programme there is always fully carried out. Any information desired can be obtained by writing W. E. BRAMIER, Secretary of Committee. d120

Three Young Adventurers.

Three youths inspired with the spirit of adventure and fortune seeking left their homes last night and started out to face the wide, wide world. An eleven-year-old son of Mr. Barton Earle, a lad a few years older named Wm. Patterson, a nephew of Mr. J. Coyle Brown, and a young son of Mr. John Lee were the three lads. One of the boys was armed with a revolver and cartridge and was ready for the fray. But, alas! the path of the wanderer is indeed a rocky one, and this morning the three young adventurers returned to their homes tired and hungry, after spending a night out of doors. They had travelled in the direction of Warsaw when they became weary and decided to return.

Death's Still Call.

Many friends will regret to learn of the death of Miss Adah Graham, youngest daughter of Mrs. Robert Graham and a niece of Mr. Jas. Stevenson, M.P., which sad event took place at her mother's residence on Water-st. this morning. The deceased was a young lady who was widely known in Peterborough and enjoyed the friendship of a large circle of acquaintances who will receive the news of her untimely demise with profound sorrow. She was for years engaged as a teacher in our Public school and in this capacity she was a faithful, effective and beloved instructor. Death was caused by lung trouble which developed from an attack of acute bronchitis. The funeral takes place from the family residence, 374 Water-st., on Thursday afternoon next at three o'clock.

GRAIN TESTORS.

A Movement Among the Farmers Against These Instruments.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Empire writes:—Several years ago grain buyers and millers began to use what is known as the "grain tester" as a means of fixing the gravity of grain, particularly wheat. After it had been in use for some time an order-in-council was passed admitting this tester to verification. Within the past few months, however, complaints have reached the Inland Revenue Department from farmers in different parts of the country questioning the accuracy of this instrument and claiming that as it contained only the sixteenth part of a bushel, the slightest error in measurement made by it, when multiplied by 16 to give the weight of a whole bushel, made the mistake a serious one in deciding the gravity of grain. The farmers represent that the tester, if it is to be used at all, should be of the capacity of half a bushel, or at least one peck, and thereby the errors which are now likely to occur in fixing the gravity of a bushel would be decreased, if not altogether removed. After looking at the matter from every standpoint and upon consultation with many of the representatives in Parliament of agricultural constituencies where the grain tester is most in use, the Hon. John Costigan decided that inasmuch as there now exists a recognized measure of capacity, viz, the bushel, half bushel, peck, etc., and also a means of ascertaining the gravity of grain by scales, and there is no real necessity for recognizing a third instrument as a combined weighing and measuring machine for grain. Every farmer is in a position, by the use of the standard measures of capacity and weighing machines, to ascertain the gravity of his wheat, and the buyer of the grain has access to the same means. Accordingly, on the recommendation of the Minister of Inland Revenue, the old order-in-council recognizing the grain tester as an official instrument has been cancelled. The department, however, does not think it advisable to take any steps to forbid its use, as a buyer might desire to avail himself of it to enable him to form his judgment as to the weight per bushel of grain which he is about purchasing. The effect of the change simply is to remove official or legal recognition from the tester as a standard of measurement.

As an Emergency Medicine, for sudden colds, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral takes the lead of all remedies, a dose or two generally sufficing to stop ordinary coughs and ease the worst. For the cure of throat and lung disorders, this preparation is unequalled.

Our Barley in England.

The importance of opening up a market in the United Kingdom for our barley is becoming fully recognized by our farmers and, indeed, by the general community. The augmented quantity and improved quality of the barley grown in the United States and the increased use by their brewers of substitutes for malt are having a growing tendency to diminish the demand of our neighbors and the prices they are willing to pay for our grain. In the United Kingdom, on the other hand, there is great demand for barley, which we can supply at remunerative prices if we study and meet their special requirements. There are Canadians who in their antipathy to the Mother Country and their eagerness to disparage its value to us as a market are very fond of contending that we cannot produce barley to suit the malsters and brewers of the United Kingdom. The baselessness of this attempt put forth by the advocates of discrimination in favor of the United States against the United Kingdom and the restriction of our commerce with the Mother Country has just been demonstrated anew by very weighty evidence. Samples of barley grown in our Western Territories were shown by Mr. Dyke, the agent at Liverpool, to a number of experts, leading grain dealers, who were assembled from different parts of the country for an arbitration in which they were interested. The verdict given by this indisputable authority was that if such barley were shipped to England there would be a practically unlimited demand for it. This is a most important fact for the settlers on our prairies, and it promises no less advantage for our Ontario farmers, who should be quite as well able to produce the barley required across the Atlantic. Hitherto they have been most successful in producing the grain adapted to the special requirements of our neighbors, and there is conclusive evidence of their ability to produce the variety suited to the needs of the British market. This new evidence received by our Minister of Agriculture is a further confirmation of a fact already ascertained. The Canadian Department of Agriculture has rendered valuable service to our farming community, and one striking instance is the practical measures that have been taken to encourage and facilitate the production of the kind of barley which the brewers of the Mother Country are quite ready to buy from us.—Empire.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria!

The Daily Review.

TUESDAY, JUNE 10, 1890.

WHY?

The court was crammed to overflowing every one was there. Most of "our circle" went out of curiosity. Anxious to hear what Jack Dalmstey was going "to be up to." Numerous remarks had been passed, Alice told me after, at Lady Hill's the night before. Some had said Jack would be sure to do something great, he was made of the proper stuff, and had only wanted a brief to show the other fellows at the bar what he could do. One man had commented on Jack's improvement since his marriage. "I never thought Dalmstey was in love with that girl when he married her, but I suppose he must have been, for he seems to hang about her enough, and hardly ever spends his evenings at the club as he used to. It's a puzzle to me, I can understand a fellow dragging after a girl before marriage, but I'm hanged if I can after."

My hopes were more than realized, Jack was the lion of the hour. His defence was unanimously voted "grand" and his client won the day. It was his first brief and was bound to bring him fame, for he had made a great success of it. In an hour Jack had made a name for himself, and the briefs would pour in now in dozens. This was the general opinion in court, and time showed people were right.

"Well, Madge, what do you think of it all? You told me I should succeed—and, thank God, I did. You can't imagine how worried and anxious I was over the whole affair. But your bright face gave me courage and I went at it. Didn't I give them some ticklers and how beastly 'sat upon' poor Hunter was, but 'all's fair in love and war,' and mine was 'war to the knife.' And so success has crowned my efforts! A briefless barrister no longer—perhaps, dear, I shall be able to help my friends to a few I can't undertake—vanity of vanities."

We returned to our little home feeling perfectly happy and satisfied. Alice had dinner with us, and completely overwhelmed Jack with compliments.

Dinner over, we left Jack to his cigar and went off to my room to have a chat. Alice and I had not had an opportunity for a gossip since my marriage, and I had so much to tell her.

"Hip! hip! hurrah! Three ringing cheers for Jack! What did I tell you, Madge! you've got a husband in a thousand, but you had to find it out and treat him accordingly and you are to be congratulated, Mrs. Dalmstey, for you have fitted him into the right socket, and turned him almost perfect, eh! Now, do you regret your choice? Tell me, has he given you a black eye yet, or treated you very badly, or spurned your love, etc., etc., etc."

"How you are rattling on, Alice. Do I look as though I'd been badly treated? If so, my looks belie me, for I have no cause for complaint. Jack is perfection in my eyes; and, Alice, he cares for me now, and he didn't once—you knew it as well as I did that night, but you wouldn't tell me the truth. I've profited by your advice though, and won my husband to me, and mean to win him more every day, until at last he is mine and no one can question his love for me. The world shall see with it searching eyes that his is the love of a lifetime, a love that can be tried and yet live, because it has grown and not sprung up to wither and die in an hour."

"Why, how romantic we are! Nevertheless right—I quite agree with you, dear. When you ask for the genuine article take care that you get it. It's half as nice again, and goes ever so much further. You want to win a great battle, and, like a brave General who commands the puppets—I beg their pardon, I mean soldiers—wear the crown of victory. But the battle isn't quite ended yet. There are a few more fires to face, a few more marches to make, but its nearly at an end, and then you can lay down the sword and, like the gladiators of old, cry 'Habet.' And then your army, 'the world,' will praise you, and you'll live happy ever after—as they do in the story books. What do you say to this summing up? Almost as good as the judge's to-day, isn't it, Madge? Now I must be off. I've to go in somewhere else and you have to dress for Mrs. Nay's ball.

Alice was gone. I heard her go down to Jack. I heard him speaking to her at the door, bidding him good-night The door closed upon her and she was gone.

What a true friend, and what would my life have been without her advice! like at one had known and understood my nature. If she had not spoken as she did before I entered upon my new life, I might have acted so differently. Perhaps I should have resented Jack's marrying me for my money, and shown him by my treatment of him I did. I might have become soured and petulant, made myself more objectionable to him than ever. But no, I started upon my mission in a different spirit. By no sign, word or action did he suspect that I knew why he had asked me to be his wife. His wishes were mine, his ideas mine, his tastes mine, until at last we have become united by sympathies. I've made myself essential to him. When he's worried he flies to me for consolation, when troubled and uncertain of anything, for advice. And yet how different things might have been if Alice had not read Jack's character aright.

The fire was burning so brightly in the grate that I got up and turned out the lights. I meant to ensconce myself snugly in an arm-chair and enjoy a peaceful slumber before dressing for the night's frivolity. Everything was at hand, and I had quite an hour before my maid would come to disturb me. But some one was coming to disturb me already, for there was a knock at the door.

"Come in."

It was Jack.

"Are you going to be alone, Madge? I knew Alice was gone, but I didn't know whether any one intended calling in on the way to dance?"

"Not that I am aware of, Jack. You're going with me, are you not? But perhaps you're too tired."

"Not a bit of it. Of course I'm going with you. A young married woman may be all very well under an old married woman's wing, but I don't believe in it. Her husband's the proper person to chaperon her. But I've got a lot of things to say to you, Madge. First of all, what have you to say to me about to-day's proceedings? You haven't congratulated me yet."

"Why, Jack, you've received enough congratulations and adulations to fill a volume. You'll have your head quite turned. You know how proud I was of you. Didn't my face act as a mirror to my thoughts?"

"Does your face always act as a mirror to your thoughts, always, darling?"

"Darling!" He had never called me by such an endearing name before. My face did act as a mirror to my thoughts then, for I felt myself turning deadly pale, and then the blood rushed back again till it seemed to be bursting forth from every feature of my face. I could not answer him; my heart was too full.

Jack didn't repeat the question but sat down at my feet and took both my hands in his.

"Madge, this has been an eventful day for me. I've secured myself a position in the world. I'm doubly proud of having done so, because I have you to share that position with me, but I have much more to accomplish before my goal is reached. Many more briefs to get, speeches to make, another case to win, of more importance to me than the brief itself. Shall I win it as easily as I did the one to-day? I'm going to try. This is my own case, and you are the judge. Madge, I'm going to relate a little anecdote. Before we were married—during our engagement—I happened to be spending a day up the river between Windsor and Cookham. I was alone in a punt, and steadily pushed up the back water. On my travels I came across a canoe. It was moored into a bed of willows. In the canoe were two young people, oblivious of everything and everybody, for they were in love. At least, the young fellow was, but the girl could not understand why he did love her. For when he said, 'Dolly I love you, haven't I told you so thousands of times? her only answer was, 'Yes, but why?' His question and her answer rang in my ears the whole of that day and often since. Then, Madge, I didn't understand how much Dolly's answer meant to that poor boy, for I didn't know what love was, and I didn't want to know. But that's six months ago and time works wonders. A good many things can happen in six months. I've made a confession to you in relating this little river adventure. Can you guess what it is?"

"Yes, Jack, that when you proposed to me you didn't care for me. When you married me you didn't care for me. You—"

"Stop, Madge, the truth is often unpalatable. What you have guessed is, I'm ashamed to confess, only too true. I was poor, ambitious. You were rich, pretty and a 'good catch.' I was advised to marry you, and accordingly set about doing so. I asked you to have me. You said 'Yes.' Whether I loved you or you loved me I didn't give a thought, and therefore didn't ask you that question. I doubt if I ever did give such a commodity as love even a passing thought then, but I give it many passing thoughts now. We are husband and wife, and expected and believed to care for one another. Madge, I'm going to repeat the question that young fellow has repeated so many times to his sweetheart in that canoe on the river, though mine differs in many points to his. I can only say, 'Madge, you know I love you.' I can't say 'haven't I told you so thousands of times?' because I haven't, but I want you to make me the same answer as Dolly did, will you?"

"Yes, but why?"

"Why, Madge? because you have been the one to open my eyes to love and life, have founded for me a new existence, and taught me what real happiness is. Why? because you are my sunshine, and without you everything would wither away. You are essential to me as the sun's rays are to the flowers. Madge, my wife, you don't doubt me, do you? I have never deceived you. You know my love is yours now. You have been the one to discover the hidden treasure, for that it may prove a treasure to you I pray night and day. This is my case—my pleading? Say that you believe me and tell me that you want this love."

"Want this love! How much I have wanted it you can never guess. I knew the bitter truth even at the altar rails, and longed to draw back, though my love for you willed me forward. Words of comfort and assurance seemed to ring in my ears: 'He is yours to-day before all the world. You will be his one day before all the world,' and it is true at last."

"My sweetheart and wife! How bright the future is for me now. The whole world before us, we should be happy, and we will. To-night we go out into the world to be feted and made much of, and after all how empty and shallow it is. But I've one anchor to rest upon—your love. Our courtship was a short one, but our honeymoon is to last forever."

"How radiant we shall both look to-night, and how every one will envy me my treasure, Jack."

"And mine, Madge. A far more precious one. I wonder if that boy in the canoe was ever able to explain why he loved Dolly! I left him trying to do so, looking horribly dispirited."

"The Elixir of Life—is love, when it's lasting. Madge, I love you!"

"Hush, Jack! here's Burrows coming, and I must dress or we shall be the last arrivals. I won't be long, and you shall repeat that question again and again on our way to Kensington, but I shall not answer 'why?' because I know."

To be Continued.

UP TO A HIGHER COURT.

The Charivaring Weavers at Hamilton Sent for Trial.

HAMILTON, June 9.—Great interest was taken in the trial of the weavers who charivaried Mrs. Tope because she returned to work, at the Police Court this morning. Many of the strikers were in court. The defendants—William Carlisle, George Maxwell, Robert Irwin, Mary A. Kinsley and Elizabeth Wright—were charged with following the complainant and acting in a disorderly manner, with a view to compel her to abstain from working for the Ontario Cotton Mills Company. The defendants were willing to have the magistrate dispose of the case, but J. W. Nesbitt, Q.C., counsel for the prosecution, wanted the defendants indicted. H. Carscallen, Q.C., represented the Ontario Cotton Mill. George L. Staunton appeared for the defendants. The magistrate committed the defendants for trial at the sessions. Bail was accepted in $500. A contra charge brought by Mrs. Wright against Mrs. Tope was dismissed.

A meeting of the directors of the Ontario Cotton Mills Company was held at noon to-day, and the directors carefully considered the situation. The result of the conference was the decision that the demands of the strikers could not be acceded to.

Mrs. Smith, who lives with her son, John Smith, at 143 West-avenue north, made a desperate attempt to end her life yesterday afternoon. She had been ill for some time and was despondent. Yesterday morning she threatened to commit suicide, and, for fear that she would carry out her threat, her son hid two razors that were in the house. During the afternoon, while he and another young man were in the yard, she found one of the razors and drew it across her throat. Her son was horrified when he went into the house and found her lying on the floor covered with blood. He telephoned to the police, and Constable Harris went down and took her to the hospital in the ambulance. The wound in her throat is not more than an inch long, and it is likely she will recover. The woman is between 45 and 50 years old. She has been in the hospital recently, and became despondent on account of her poor health.

At a meeting of the Women's Christian Association, held this morning, it was decided to open the training school for domestic servants next September in the institution in Main-street. All branches of domestic service will be taught.

Dry Goods News at

TURNBULL'S

Another week has brought us many bargains. The first one we will mention is in the Dress Goods Department. We have opened out new Silk-warp Henriettas in black and colors at 60c. and 75c. a yard. Never mind how or where we got them. Those who want fine silk-warp henriettas for the price of wool materials will now know where to go.

We are showing three special lines in Union Carpets at 40, 50 and 60c. a yard. Remember where you have heard of cheap carpets.

Those who have bought the 5½ and 7½ Check Chambrays have found out that what we said about them was true—that they wash beautifully—and they are now coming back for quantities. Remember these goods are selling at just half their value.

The Silk Taffeta and Lace Gloves we are selling at 25c. a pair are startlers.

Mothers, you should see our Heavy Ribbed Cotton Hose for boys. They will recommend themselves to your judgment for durability.

Ladies, do not buy black hose that stain when you can get perfectly stainless ones at Turnbull's.

The rush is on us now in our Tailoring Department and no wonder. Our stock of Tweeds and Worsteds are very choice. We propose and are repeatedly told that we do sell clothing made to order cheaper than any other house in Peterborough.

Our Millinery stock is constantly changing hands. If you have seen our stock of hats last week do not expect to find it the same this week, as we are always receiving new and desirable shapes and trimmings. As the season advances prices always decline in the wholesale millinery stocks, so look out for bargains at Turnbull's Millinery for the balance of the season.

TORONTO UNIVERSITY.

CONVOCATION EXERCISES HELD IN A TENT.

Two of the St. George Accident Claims Settled by the Grand Trunk for $3500 Each—The Mail-Empire Libel Case—An Escaped Convict Recaptured.

TORONTO, June 11.—"On a grassy floor, with a canvas roof, hard by those walls 'all roofless and storm-broken,' which were at once our shelter and our pride," as Chancellor Edward Blake gracefully put it in his address, the convocation of Toronto University was celebrated yesterday. A huge tent erected on the lawn and draped with flags and embellished with flowers was the scene of the exercises. The Chancellor in his address did not weary his audience with a full statement of details and figures relating to the progress of the university, although throughout he was most hopeful and sanguine as to her future prosperity. He spoke more of the recent fire, of the portions of the building reconstruction of which is most urgently necessary, and of the funds necessary to accomplish their reconstruction. The main needs of the university are books, library, gymnasium and Convocation Hall, and the amount required the chancellor estimated at $175,000. If the city votes proposed bylaw there will be a deficiency of $55,000; if not, of $106,000. The chancellor made an eloquent appeal to prosperous Toronto men for an exhibition of progressiveness and public spirit in this emergency. Among the degrees conferred was an honorary LL.D. upon Mr. Blake.

Two of the big batch of damage suits against the Grand Trunk Railway arising out of the accident at the St. George viaduct were settled by the parties yesterday. The company pays to the representatives of William Francis of Woodstock $3500 and all costs. The amount sued for was $20,000. The same settlement was made with the estate of Daniel Peacock of Woodstock. Both men were killed in the accident.

There was another round of The Mail-Empire case yesterday. Mr. Creighton filed an affidavit stating that he was not ready to go on as he wished a commission sent to Washington, New York and other places to examine Senators Hoar, Hale, Dolph, Hill and Erastus Wiman and others. Speaking to the application counsel said with the evidence obtainable from this commission they were prepared to defend the case on its merits, and show that the allegation that Mr. Farrar of The Mail—by going to Washington and representing to the Senate Committee that non-intercourse with Canada would drive the Canadians to annexation—was a traitor and a plotter, was true. Mr. Justice Falconbridge granted the order and laid the case over till the next Assizes.

Warden Massie of the Central Prison is a happy man. Charles Richmond, one of the fugitives who escaped from the Central Prison about a year ago, was re-captured Monday night at Meaford by Richard Dealy, chief constable of that town. Richmond was convicted of larceny at Owen Sound about two years ago, being committed to the Central Prison for eighteen months. After serving twelve months of his term he took French leave one day. All efforts to trace him failed until about a fortnight since, when Richmond reappeared in his old neighborhood, celebrating his advent by stealing a span of horses from a farmer. Warden Massie then issued a proclamation offering a reward of $100 for the apprehension of the escaped convict. Chief Constable Dealy captured the prize. An officer of the Central Prison has gone to Meaford for the prisoner.

At the Assizes yesterday the case of James McGinn who abducted and seduced 16-year-old Nellie Howell and lived with her three or four days in a Lombard-street lodging house was called. McGinn is a married man, but his wife has been missing three or four years, and he believes that she is dead and has expressed his willingness to mary the girl. When the case was called his counsel, Mr. W. G. Murdoch, explained the willingness of his client to tie the nuptial knot, but pending satisfactory evidence of the death of Mrs. McGinn he could not advise the consummation of the marriage ceremony with Miss Howell. The case was allowed to stand over.

The World says that Hon. A. M. Ross, late Provincial Treasurer, is to be made Clerk of the York County Court, a position worth from $8000 to $10,000 per annum.

A Young Lady's Complexion Gradually Becoming of an Olive Hue.

DAVENPORT, Ia., June 10.—Miss Hildegarde Whittleborn of this place is suffering from an affliction of a most extraordinary nature. About a year and a half ago Miss Whittleborn began to notice that the tips of her fingers and soles of her feet were slightly discolored, but paid no particular attention to it until the discoloration deepened from a faint yellow to a saffron tint, which began to spread slowly until her limbs and the greater part of her body are covered with the stain. It is of a rich copper color, which is growing darker perceptibly from day to day and spreading with alarming rapidity.

The young lady's face, which had hitherto escaped, has within the last day or two become affected. The physicians are unable to account for the change. The dark olive hue is far from being ugly or repulsive, and, doubtless, when it has entirely enveloped her, Miss Whittleborn will find herself as comely as one of Cooper's Indian heroines.

The Old Swindle Finds Dupes Among People of Little Wit and Less Honesty—One of the Cheats Arrested and Committed for Trial.

COLLINGWOOD, June 10.—For some time past letters have been received in this town and vicinity offering counterfeit money for sale. Two letters were taken from the post-office here addressed to T. Draper, who at once returned them to the postmaster. They were forwarded to the authorities, who communicated with the Attorney-General's department. The matter was placed in the hands of Government Detective Rogers, who came here two weeks ago and succeeded in locating the party engaged in the business. Wednesday last Detectives Rogers and Greer had warrants issued for Alexander Cline and Jacob Hough. When the officers went to get their men they found they had left the town. The detectives went to Barrie and on Friday evening Greer returned by the late train and arrested Cline. Hough escaped, but his arrest will be made in a day or two.

Cline was taken before Police Magistrate Frome to-day, when evidence was adduced showing Cline had offered to sell $1000 in counterfeit notes on the Banks of Toronto and Commerce for $200. Cline received the $200 from Thomas Raner. Cline would not deliver the money, but promised to send it to Raper by express to Thornbury. On Raper's going to the express office at Thornbury he got a box and on opening the box found it was empty. Cline was committed for trial for giving information where counterfeit money could be had and also for sending letters to Robert Horton and Alfred Burton offering counterfeit money for sale, bail being refused in each case.

It is stated a number of persons have been duped by this swindling scheme.

CLAD IN HER BRIDAL DRESS.

A Lovely Girl Awaits Burial and Her Affianced Is In a Cell.

BUFFALO, June 10.—The body of Miss Minnie Ellis, clad in her bridal dress, was to have been buried this afternoon in Alfred Centre, but an official order stopped the interment. Miss Ellis died on Saturday at the General Hospital in this city from natural causes it was supposed at first. The efforts the girl made to compel a young man to marry her, however, caused an investigation. Coroner Tucker and two detectives investigated the case and concluded that there was no cause for criminal proceedings.

This afternoon developments caused the coroner to empanel a jury to investigate the case and the funeral was stopped. Miss Ellis' folks are respectable country people, and she was a very bright girl and a society favorite. She left her home in August, 1887, for Buffalo to obtain a place in an art painting store, where she displayed remarkable genius. In a Swan-street boarding house she became acquainted with James C. McCoppen, a Western Union telegraph operator, with whom she was deeply in love. McCoppen says he loved the girl, but when he found she was in a delicate condition he refused to marry her, and in her desperation she had him arrested for betrayal. He confessed to the police that he would have married her but for the arrest. He fought the charge and was acquitted. Miss Ellis then resorted to malpractice and both herself and child are dead. The physicians implicated will be arrested on a charge of double murder.

Miss Ellis in her casket is clad in the cream-colored satin dress which she made to wear when she would marry McCoppen. The physicians say that while blood-poisoning was the direct cause of death, a broken heart was more than a contributing cause.

"That man could have saved her life," said the doctor, "if he had acted like an honorable man and proven himself worthy of her love. She was the loveliest woman I ever saw."

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION.

A General Store at Lynnville Burnt—Four Persons Scorched.

SIMCOE, June 10.—At Lynnville, 5 miles from here, B. Hall's general store and stock were consumed by fire yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Young, Mrs. Cabal and Mr. Boughner were badly burnt, Mr. Young probably fatally. The fire originated in a room where oil was stored.

Other Fires.

ST. JOHNS, Que., June 10.—Black's Opera House in Richelieu-street was destroyed by fire last midnight. Loss $40,000.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Fire gutted the city button works, owned by Max Erlinger, here to-night. Loss $75,000.

WINNIPEG, June 10.—Two thousand cords of wood belonging to Smith, Curtis and the Portage Milling Company were burned at Oakville Station on the Northern Pacific & Manitoba Road. Loss $2000.

Drowned at Kinmount.

LINDSAY, June 10.—Kinmount was thrown into a state of excitement on Friday morning last by the sad intelligence that Mr. Robert Bryans, son of Mr. Bryans, lumberman of Toronto, had been drowned in the river. Mr. Robert Bryans, who has been looking after the estate of Mr. Robert Bryans of Lindsay, was a young man 22 years of age, and was a favorite with one and all. He was out in his canoe, and although only a short distance from shore when the canoe upset, he was not able to reach shore, being unable to swim. The remains were taken to Lindsay on Saturday and buried on Sunday afternoon at Cannington.

A Prize Fight Results Fatally.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10.—Harry McBride, who was badly punished in a brutal glove fight with Frank Larne at the Golden Gate Athletic Club last night, died this morning. Larne is in jail. Secretary Jamieson of the Golden Gate Athletic Club; Frank Jones, a director of the Club; Joe Bowers, Wm. McGrath and John Joel who seconded the contestants, were arrested to-day as accessories to the murder.

LADY BALL TOSSERS IN QUOD.

The Sabbath Observance Association at Danville Asserts Itself.

DANVILLE, Ill., June 10.—The Civil Sabbath Observance Association of Danville through Joseph B. Mann, its attorney, and State's-Attorney Blackburn, late this evening caused the arrest of the Ladies' Baseball Club, consisting of Nettie Williams, Edith Maynes, Maggie Marshall, Edna Majors, Alice Morrow and Rose Mitchell of Cincinnati, and May Howard, Lulu Grant, and Annie Grant of Chicago, for disturbing the peace and good order of society on the Sabbath day by playing a game of baseball with the Danville Browns in which the home talent were defeated by a score of 33 to 12. The ladies received notice of the approaching storm and were arrested as they were leaving town in carriages for the Indiana line at a late hour. They each gave bond for $50 for their appearance for trial to-morrow morning. Warrants will be sworn out for the members of the Danville nine.

THE WALPOLE-WIEDMANN CASE.

An Apparent Collapse of the German Governess' Side.

LONDON, June 10.—The utter collapse of Valerie Wiedmann's case against Hon. Robert Horace Walpole, heir to the earldom of Oxford, for breach of promise creates much surprise. Without a word of warning Miss Wiedmann's lawyers withdrew from the case to allow her to go to court alone. She asked for a further delay of a fortnight so as to be able to engage other lawyers. The Court said she had already been treated leniently in the matter of delay, and a week hence she must be ready to go to trial. The lawyers decline to give reasons for withdrawing from the case, but it is generally understood they are convinced that Wiedmann's case does not rest on solid foundations, and that she is mainly anxious to persecute Walpole and his American wife, who was Miss Corbyn of New York.

Miss Wiedmann was, it will be remembered, a German governess, and the facts she told in court were not creditable to Walpole. She refused to answer certain questions which she deemed insulting, became hysterical, defied the court and was nonsuited. It was learned afterwards that her refusal was due to her imperfect knowledge of English. Her wrongs excited the sympathy of the public and the newspapers and an order for a new trial was obtained.

The Newfoundland Question.

LONDON, June 10.—Orders have been received at Sheerness for the war sloop Basilisk and the cutter [illegible] by to be put in commission, the latter by June 12. It is rumored that both are going to Halifax and that the Government has serious intentions of handing over to France the British rights in Senegambia in exchange for French claims in Newfoundland.

Comes High but We Must Have Him.

LONDON, June 10.—Major Pond signed a contract with Stanley yesterday for fifty lectures in the United States. For the entire course Stanley is to receive $50,000, being at the rate of $2500 for New York and other large cities and $1000 each for the smaller ones. The first lecture will be given at the Metropolitan Opera House, Nov. 11.

Weary of Life.

LONDON, June 10.—At Holloway, a northern suburb of London, a shocking tragedy has just come to light. A family consisting of husband, wife and a boy of eight years of age, agreed to put an end to their existence, as they had been out of work for some time. A dose of strychnine was given to the child with the result that he died in fearful agonies. The father and mother then cut their throats, but not sufficiently deep to cause death before they were discovered by the neighbors and they will probably recover

THEY LOVED AND DIED.

Roumanian Lovers Find Peace in Death by Suicide.

BUCHAREST, June 10.—A romantic double suicide is just now the subject of conversation, and on account of the prominence of the participants has created considerable excitement. Helene Neriadi, the daughter of a former Court Minister, was married to a certain Moldavian physician not long ago, but from whom she shortly became divorced, and later engaged to a Captain Goestarchi, with whom she had been deeply in love for many years. The consent of the King to the marriage was obtained and everything was in readiness for the ceremony when, upon the very eve of the wedding, Helene discovered that a blood relationship existed between herself and her intended husband. Deeply grieved, and in a moment of delirium, she seized a pistol and shot herself through the heart. Goestarchi was almost crazed at Helene's death and for five days ceaselessly he prayed beside her body and at her tomb. Then he was not seen for two days, and his friends becoming alarmed forced the door of his room and found him sitting in his chair dead. One hand held a volume of Heine's poems marked by his dead love and bearing on the open page a bunch of Edelweiss, while his other hand clutched a gown that had belonged to Helene, and which he had strewn thickly with rose leaves.

KEPT SILENT THIRTY YEARS.

A Georgia Woman Religiously Keeps a Vow Made to Her Husband.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 10.—The death of Mrs. Susan E. Merrifield, which has just occurred at Americus, revives interests in one of the most peculiar cases ever known of a vow of silence made and kept thirty years. In 1860 Mrs. Merrifield, who, it is said, was a little woman of a peculiarly bright and cheery disposition, was telling her husband of some occurrence, when he requested her in a very surly manner to be silent, adding that the sound of her voice was hateful to him.

It seems that Mr. Merrifield, while a good husband in every other way, was in the habit of venting his displeasure when aroused by outside matters by ill-humor with his good wife, whose good nature usually passed his testiness by, but on this occasion she replied that as it was hateful to him he should never hear her voice again. And he never did, nor did any other person ever hear it, for in spite of her husband's remorse and remonstrances from friends and relatives, Mrs. Merrifield kept her room, though she continued to act the part of a good wife and mother, fulfilling every duty scrupulously. She even bore three children to her husband after this vow was taken. When communication was absolutely necessary with those about her she used a slate, but reduced a language of signs to such perfection in governing her household and children that it was but seldom that this slate was resorted to.

It was thought that when her husband died she would resume the use of her speech, but while she sat by his dying bed, devoted and loving to the last, in answer to his supplications that she speak but a word to him, wrote on the slate with all the evidences of grief: "I cannot, I cannot! God forgive and help me. I cannot!" But whether it was that she found it impossible to break her will and her vow, or that long disuse had affected her organs so that she really could not use them, could not be arrived at, but her family inclined to the latter belief, for it is said that while on her own deathbed she made distinct but ineffectual efforts to speak to her children, dying with the seal of silence unremoved from her lips.

A Fatal Runaway Accident.

OSWEGO, June 10.—A shocking accident occurred here this afternoon. A spirited horse driven by Miss Bell Mitchell, daughter of Mayor Mitchell, and Mrs. Edward V. Mitchell, her sister-in-law, became frightened and ran away. At the corner of Bridge-street the carriage was overturned and the women thrown to the pavement. Miss Mitchell struck the edge of the curbstone, crushing her skull. Mrs. Mitchell was badly but not fatally injured. Miss Mitchell was to have been married in two weeks and Mrs. Mitchell had just returned from her wedding trip.

Anti-Chinese Laws Denounced.

NEW YORK, June 10.—The Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church to-day adopted a resolution denouncing the Chinese restriction laws as unjust and contrary to the genius of American institutions. All missionaries were called upon to remonstrate against the Chinese legislation.

TO BE MADE TO TALK.

WHELAN AND PACAUD PROVE RECALCITRANT WITNESSES.

The Royal Commission Orders Their Committal to Jail Until They Are Ready to Answer Questions—Cowles' Condition Continues Critical.

MONTREAL, June 10.—Who got the boodle is the question a royal commission has been struggling with all day, but up to this moment it is not any nearer a solution than when Messrs. Malouin and Baigne, the commissioners, took their seats this morning. The parties implicated are Contractor J. P. Whelan and Ernest Pacaud. Whelan is the financier who undertook to erect a court house in Quebec for $150,000, for which the county paid nearly $1,000,000. He was willing to pay a percentage of his gains to the Government, but he had to draw the line somewhere. A disagreement followed and Whelan betrayed his friends.

He affirmed that Ernest Pacaud, editor of L'Electeur of Quebec, who acted as go-between, received $10,000 on the ground that if it were not paid certain claims of Whelan's would be struck off the list of estimates. He gives other amounts totalling $115,000 which he alleges he paid to the Government election agent.

Whelan refused to say from whom he got the information that this money was intended for the purposes of bribery, and Pacaud declined to state to whom he paid it. Both gentlemen will be sent to jail to-morrow to see if it will render them more communicative. The commitments have been made out, but they will be given another chance in the morning. It is probable, however, that an attempt will be made to impeach the authority of the commission.

COWLES' CONDITION CRITICAL.

The Party Will Stay in Canada to Abide the Final Results.

MONTREAL, June 10.—The Cowles case was formally finished this morning. Mrs. Cowles appeared in court before Mr. Justice Tait with the girl Florence and her friends. The letter was produced which Cowles wrote renouncing all claims to the daughter and the order from him to the nuns with whom she had been placed authorizing them to deliver her up. This was regarded as concluding the case.

Mr. Cowles' condition is not improved and his wound may result fatally. A commission of physicians has been named to examine Cowles to-morrow to ascertain if he is in a fit condition to come to court. If he is the case of Hale will at once go to the grand jury, and if a bill be found against him he will be tried at once. None of the party will leave Canada till everything is finally settled.

THE QUEBEC ELECTIONS.

Seven Ministerialists and Two Opposition Members in By Acclamation.

MONTREAL, June 10.—Nominations for the Legislative Assembly took place to-day throughout the province. Nine seats went by default, seven to the Ministerialists and two to the Opposition. The members elected were all in the last House and all sat for their present constituencies except the Premier, who represented St. Hyacinthe, but by the grace of Dr. Martin of Bonaventure comes back from that county. Polling takes place June 17, except in Gaspe, where it is a week later. The members-elect are:

Bonaventure	Mercier
Charlevoix	Morin
Joliette	Basinet
Lotbiniere	Laliberte
Montreal West		Hall
" Centre	McShane

The Third Party Routs the Printers.

MONTREAL, June 10.—The strike in The Herald office is at an end. The management has now a full staff of compositors, and to-morrow morning will issue the usual 8-page paper. The non-union men employed are under a police escort when they go on the street. They are quartered in The Herald office.

The paper was got out for eight days in single sheets by the assistant editor, two reporters, the cashier, the telegraph editor and the office boy. The assistant editor was the only man in the lot who had a fairly thorough knowledge of setting type and making up forms. The improvised staff were pretty well used up when the siege was raised.

Uncle Sam's Crop Outlook.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The statistical returns of June to the Department of Agriculture include preliminary estimates of the area of wheat both spring and winter and its condition. While several states increased the area of winter wheat last autumn the heavy reduction by plowing and planting in other crops to replace the winter-killed wheat in Illinois, Indiana and a limited extent in two or three other states has reduced the average in every growing state of any prominence except Kansas and Oregon. The percentages represent the actual area now growing in comparison with the average harvested last year and include all that was seeded last fall except what wheat has been replaced by other crops. The general average is 92.2, a reduction of 6.8 per cent. of last year's winter wheat area. An increase of spring wheat is reported except in Wisconsin and Dakota. The general percentage is 103.6. Taking winter and spring wheat together the percentage of last year's breadth is 95.4, showing a net loss of nearly 1,750,000 acres. The estimated area of 1889 was 36,128,859 acres. Condition of growing winter wheat has declined from 80 to 78.1 since the first of May. The reported area of oats is 96.7, condition 89.8. Area of barley 99.1, condition 88.4. Area of rye 96.5, condition 93.2. Area of clover 100.7, condition 98.1.

Another Train Robbery.

TEXARKANA, Ark., June 10.—The belated train on the Texas & Pacific, which left here at 11 o'clock last night, was robbed at Four Mile Junction. A switch was thrown and the train wrecked. An unknown man stealing a ride was smashed into jelly and instantly killed. Express Messenger Nevlin resisted the robbers as they entered the express car and was fired upon, one bullet piercing his right hand and another cutting through his ear. The robbers then went through the car and escaped. The amount of money and valuables taken cannot be ascertained. A posse is in pursuit of the bandits.

An Alleged Horse Thief Arrested.

BUFFALO, June 10.—Bernard Leppert was tried in the Police Court this afternoon on the charge of bringing stolen property into the United States from Canada. It is alleged he stole from John Strickland of St. Catharines, Ont., a horse, harness and buggy valued at $300. Detective Kilroy worked up the case. It was adjourned until to-morrow afternoon so that Leppert can get witnesses.

The Sugar Syndicate.

MONCTON, N.B., June 10.—The Transcript says the sugar refinery and cotton factory here are to be sold to a syndicate, and that Barrister O. L. Spencer of Cameron & Spencer, Toronto, is visiting West Moncton and Halifax in the interest of the sugar refinery syndicate.

Dress the Hair

With Ayer's Hair Vigor. Its cleanliness, beneficial effects on the scalp, and lasting perfume commend it for universal toilet use. It keeps the hair soft and silken, preserves its color, prevents it from falling, and, if the hair has become weak or thin, promotes a new growth.

"To restore the original color of my hair, which had turned prematurely gray, I used Ayer's Hair Vigor with entire success. I cheerfully testify to the

Efficacy

of this preparation."—Mrs. P. H. Davidson, Alexandria, La.

"I was afflicted some three years with scalp disease. My hair was falling out and what remained turned gray. I was induced to try Ayer's Hair Vigor, and in a few weeks the disease in my scalp disappeared and my hair resumed its original color."—(Rev.) S. S. Sims, Pastor U. B. Church, St. Bernice, Ind.

"A few years ago I suffered the entire loss of my hair from the effects of tetter. I hoped that after a time nature would supply the loss, but I waited in vain. Many remedies were suggested, none, however, with such proof of merit as Ayer's Hair Vigor, and I began to use it. The result was all I could have desired. A growth of hair soon came out all over my head, and grew to be as soft and heavy as I ever had, and of a natural color, and firmly set."—J. H. Pratt, Spofford, Texas.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 11, 1890.

THE NEWFOUNDLAND DISPUTE.

THIS matter has been the cause of so much interest lately, that the following elucidation of the points in dispute, which is furnished by the Halifax Herald, will lead to a better understanding of the subject:

By the treaty of Utrecht, 1713, the island of Newfoundland was ceded to Great Britain forever, and the thirteenth article of that treaty expressly declared that neither the King of France, his heirs and successors, nor any of his subjects, should thereafter lay any claim to any right to this island and adjacent islands, or to any part of it or them. The French retained no territorial rights whatever in the island, though French subjects were by this thirteenth article conceded the privilege of catching fish and drying them on a certain portion of the coast. Subsequently by the treaty of Paris, 1763, the right of the French to catch and dry fish on the "French shore" was confirmed; but the French were allowed no privileges on the coast that were not also guaranteed to British fishermen.

In 1783, by the treaty of Versailles the British Government conceded to the French the privilege of fishing and drying fish on the whole of the west coast of the island. And the fifth article of the treaty expressly provides that "The French fishermen shall enjoy the fishery which is assigned to them by the present article, as they had the right to enjoy that which was assigned to them by the treaty of Utrecht." The treaty of Versailles conceded no exclusive rights to the French; but unfortunately Manchester, the British commissioner, made a declaration on behalf of Great Britain, which was attached to the treaty, and which is the real source of the present vexatious dispute. The declaration sets forth that "in order that the fishermen of the two nations may not give cause for daily calls, his Britannic Majesty will take the most positive measures for preventing his subjects from interrupting, in any manner, by their competition, the fishery of the French during the temporary exercise of it which is granted to them upon the coasts of the island of Newfoundland, but he will, for this purpose, cause the fixed settlements which shall be formed there to be removed. His Britannic Majesty will give orders that the French fishermen be not incommoded in cutting the wood necessary for the repair of their scaffolds, huts and fishing vessels."

This declaration has been interpreted by the French Government as giving to their fishermen the exclusive enjoyment of the fishing privileges of the so-called French shore. They have contended that the erection by the British of any fish houses, lobster factories, or of any other structures whatever on the French shore, or any attempt to participate in the shore fisheries would "interrupt" the French fishermen; and that in consequence the French are by that declaration guaranteed the exclusive right of fishing on the coast, and that British subjects are denied the right of settlement on any part thereof. It is true that the declaration made by Manchester is most unfortunately worded, yet neither the Government of Great Britain nor the Government of Newfoundland has ever formally admitted the French claim, though the former has on more than one occasion seemed to act as if that claim were well founded.

In 1838, Lord Palmerston in a state paper opposing the French claims as presented by Count Sebastiani, having reviewed all the facts of the case, thus sums up the situation: "If the right conceded to the French by the declaration of 1783 had been intended to be exclusive within the prescribed district, the terms used for defining such right would assuredly have been more ample and specific than they are found to be in that document, for in no other similar instrument, which has ever come under the knowledge of the British Government, is so important a concession, as an exclusive privilege of this description, accorded in terms so loose and indefinite." And the law officers of the crown, to whom this declaration was on one occasion submitted for their opinion, have also stated "that if there be room in these districts for the fishermen of both to fish, without interfering with each other, this country is not bound to prevent her subjects fishing there."

However, if it is possible as now proposed, to buy out the French rights to the coast, of what sort soever they may be, this will undoubtedly prove to be the most satisfactory way of adjusting a dispute that has been vexatious from the beginning and which now threatens the peace of the two nations.

A SMALLER MAJORITY.

ALTHOUGH returned to office the Mowat Government is personally weakened and will have to meet a House with a smaller majority than it had previous to the election.

There were ninety members in the last Legislature, while now, though representation having been given to Nipissing, there will be ninety-one. The Government had a majority before of about 25, and leaving out Nipissing, they will now have a majority of 16, or counting the new district a majority of 17.

The highest majority received by any candidate was given in Ottawa, where the Liberal defeated the Equal Rights candidate by 1,415. The smallest majority received by any elected member, if a bull forced by legislation is permissible, was given to Mr. Tait, Liberal, of Toronto, who was in a minority, but will sit in the House despite the will of the people by virtue of the Revised Statutes. Mr. Barr, of Dufferin, had the honor, so far as returns received indicate, of receiving the highest Conservative majority, namely 726. There were a number of large majorities on both sides, but the old-time large majorities in some Liberal constituencies are dwindling away, while in several constituencies there was no Government candidate and the contest was between Conservatives.

There is the encouragement of a "great moral victory" in the result for the Conservative Opposition, and while such a victory may not give much practical advantage, it is satisfactory in showing that the Government has lost the confidence of a great many who formerly supported it, and that the people have been to a considerable extent awakened to the fact that the affairs of the Province are being mismanaged by the present administration. If the electors have been allowed to give free expressions to their views, without partial muzzling through the aid of gerrymandered constituencies, numbered ballots, and the other unfair as well as illegal means used on behalf of the Government, the result would had been much more pronounced against Mr. Mowat and his colleagues.

Now will come the struggle for the vacant offices by the hundreds who have been promised them.—Empire.

And not only the vacant offices. There were not enough vacant, and even those now occupied were promised and dangled before electors when it was thought votes could be influenced in that way.

AT a meeting of the Methodist Conference here a few years ago a facetious clergyman moved that the members resolve to hold themselves completely independent of political parties—until within six weeks of an election. This resolution, although it probably does not appear on the Conference minutes, is respectfully offered to those Liberal Equal Righters who forsook their party—until an election contest came on.

OF course Mr. Mowat would not allow the license laws to be used for political purposes! But it is somewhat singular that the licenses in Peterborough were held back for over a month and delivered the day after the election. The public offices have long been openly used for party purposes on behalf of the Mowat Government, and the administration of the law is becoming as flagrant a party instrument in so-called Liberal hands.

The Baby's Life.

All day, between his three or four hours sleep, baby coos like a pigeon, sputters and puts on his faces of importance, and when he fasts, the little Pharisee fails not to sound his trumpet before him.

By lamp light, he delights in shadows on the wall; by day-light, in yellow and scarlet. Carry him out of doors—he is overpowered by the light, and he is silent.

This little epitome of man is an autocrat in the home, we all bow before him and serve him; he, in his peculiar way, commands, and we through love obey.

Every mother loves and adores her child. Have you, dear patient mother, ever considered the question,—"how is my baby liked by my friends and visitors?"

The baby is always a general favorite if he is well-behaved to all around him, that is, if he is not cross, peevish and restless; his cooing, prattling, angelic smile, and healthy vigorous appearance, compel all to admire and love him.

Mother is your baby's life a smooth, happy and joyous one to you and to your household? If not, the fault is your own, you can remedy every evil by very little care and trouble.

Baby's life, perchance, has been made miserable by the food administered to him from day to day. His stomach is so weak that he often refuses the food you give. The digestive organism is out of order, and requires gentle and careful repairing.

Mother, have you used Lactated Food? Have you not heard your friends speak of its wonderful properties for allaying irritation of the digestive organs of both young and old?

Mother, if you desire baby to be beloved by your friends, and an idol of the household, be sure that its health is right; and no food can so well accomplish this desired end, as Lactated Food.

Growing Aquatic Plants.

Many persons are not aware of the ease with which water lilies can be made to grow and bloom in all their beauty and fragrance in the yard, with the trifling cost of constructing a small pond or sinking in the ground an old tub or barrel sawn in half, and kept filled with water during the summer, covering up with straw and boards in the winter to keep from freezing. The ponds should be made about two feet deep; for lilies bloom better in shallow than in deep water. Get some healthy, knotty roots, cover but slightly with rich mud, fill with water, and the job is ended. For tubs, take any strong barrel free from tar, oil, or salt; old molasses or whisky barrels are about the best, for the nature of the contents presupposes them strong and well hooped. If an old wagon tire be driven snugly on the bottom, and the tub well painted, they will last a dozen years or more. Now saw the barrel in two at the bung, fill each half full of fine loam, or if the barrel be a large one, only fill about a third full, lay in the roots, straighten out the small fibers, and cover to the depth of about two inches, and if it is intended to put fish in, overlay with coarse gravel to prevent the fish from burrowing down and exposing the fibrous roots, until all are well set. Now sink the tub to a level with the ground, and fill very gently with rain or river water; well water is not natural to aquatic plants. I venture that ninety per cent of the failures to grow plants in this way are the result of using well water. Replenish the tubs with water from time to time, to supply evaporation; this is all the care they need. If desirable, tubs may be set on a platform on rollers, instead of sunk in the ground, and can thus be kept indoors during the winter. Kept filled with water, they will come out early in the spring.—G. R.

Vine Disease.

From experiments in the treatment of vine diseases made in several states last year, under the direction of the Department of Agriculture, it would seem that the Bordeaux mixture, containing six pounds of copper, and four pounds of lime to twenty-two gallons of water, is the most reliable remedy known. The ammoniacal carbonate of copper solution, however, gave excellent results, with the advantages that it is cheaper and does not spot the fruit. Mr. Galloway, the chief of the Section of Vegetable Pathology, recommends the use of the Bordeaux mixture for the first three treatments and the ammoniacal solution the rest of the season. A recent bulletin prepared by him tells how to prepare and apply the remedies.

The ammoniacal solution was found to be excellent for treating the apple scab.

The agent of an American soap company went to Uruguay and began to extensively advertise his goods, but in less than a week he was called in and advised to leave the country. He was giving away samples, and such of course, he was told, was calculated to make the people wasteful and extravagant.

FARM AND GARDEN

SOME INTERESTING ITEMS FOR FARMERS AND GARDENERS.

Practical Advice on Many Subjects—The Cultivation of Potatoes Under Straw Vine Disease—Growing Aquatic Plants—Some Very Peculiar Botanical Specimens.

There are two or three advantages in growing potatoes in this way. One is that no cultivation being necessary the hills can be planted closer together each way, giving a larger yield. The mulch aids materially to retain moisture in the soil, and this in a dry season especially is often quite an item. No cultivation is necessary and in a busy season often this will be an item.

The plan is better for late than for early varieties, as the mulch rather retards the growth, at least at first. In many localities there is more or less of a drouth nearly every summer, during the latter part of July and August, usually at a time when late potatoes need moisture; and a good mulch at this time will aid in securing this by retaining moisture in the soil.

Were it not interfering too much with other work, the best plan of applying a mulch is to prepare the soil in a good tilth, mark out the rows and plant the seed, covering with soil, but taking pains not to cover too deep. Then after the plants have started just showing above ground, apply the straw. But care must be taken not to wait too long. The only objection to covering with straw as soon as planted, is that if the weather should be cold and wet there is considerable risk of the seeds rotting, and especially in low wet land. On higher or well-drained land this danger is very much less.

The soil should be ploughed deep and thorough, and prepared in a good tilth by harrowing. Mark out the rows shallow and not more than two feet apart; then drop the seed eighteen inches apart in the rows, covering with a little soil, and then haul out and apply the wheat-straw, spreading evenly over the surface. No other attention will be necessary. Occasionally a few of the stronger weeds like Jimson or ragweed, will force their way through the mulch, but the few that will succeed in doing this can be easily pulled up, and no cultivation is needed. Where wheat is made a leading crop, so that a good supply of straw can be readily secured, this plan can often be made profitable, as it saves labor at a time when usually work is very pressing; while in a dry season there is a much less risk of failure. Wheat or rye straw only should be used.—N. J. S. in Prairie Farmer.

Peculiar Plants.

A very funny plant in the government botanical garden is the so-called Barber plant, the leaves of which are used in some parts of the east by rubbing on the face to keep the beard from growing. It is not supposed to have any effect on a beard that is already rooted, but merely to act as a preventive, boys employing it to keep the hair from getting a start on their face. It is also employed by some oriental people who desire to keep parts of their heads free from hair, as a matter of fashion. Also found in the botanical garden is the "cruel plant," which is so designated because it catches butterflies and kills them for sheer sport. Its flowers attract the poor little flutterer by the honey it offers, and when the victim lights upon it grabs the butterfly by the head and holds it fast until the captive dies. Then the flower drops it on the ground and lies in wait for a fresh unfortunate. A curious looking tree from the Isthmus of Panama bears a round red fruit as big as an apple, which has this remarkable faculty, that its juice rubbed on tough beef or chicken, makes the meat tender by the chemical power it possesses to separate the flesh fiber. One is interested to observe in the botanical greenhouse three kinds of plants that have real consumption of the lungs—the leaves, of course, being the lungs of a plant. The disease is manifested by the turning of the leaves from green to white, the affection gradually spreading from one spot until, when a leaf is all white, it is just about to die. Cruelly enough, as it would seem, the gardeners only try to perpetuate the disease for the sake of beauty and curiosity, all plants of those varieties that are too healthy being thrown away. THE WORLD OF SPORT.

The Buffalo International Franchise Goes to Grand Rapids.

GRAND RAPIDS, June 10.—Secretary White of the International League and Manager Leadley of the Detroit club arrived here to-day and met the directors of the Grand Rapids club. They offered them Buffalo's place in the International League free of cost. The offer was accepted and Grand Rapids will leave the Michigan League and join the International at once.

A mass meeting of citizens has been called for to-morrow night, when it is hoped that $3000 will be subscribed as backing.

Barred from the Grand Circuit.

ROCHESTER, June 10.—The Board of Stewards of the Grand Trotting Circuit met here to-day and arranged schedules for the coming season. Pittsburg was admitted to the association. F. L. Noble, George Robins and C. H. Nelson with the horses Alcryon and Nelson were barred from participation in any circuit races.

The Athletic Championship.

WEST NEW BRIGHTON, S.I., June 10.—The competition for the individual general athletic championship of the United States, to which amateurs attach much importance, came off to-day on the grounds of the Staten Island Athletic Club. E. J. Abbott, Corinthian A.C.; M. O'Sullivan Pastime A.C.; Alex. Jordan, New York A.C., and J. Devereau, M.A.C., were the only contestants. The program contained ten events. Jordan scored 31 points, O'Sullivan 30. Jordan was declared the champion.

The Tennis Championship.

DUBLIN, June 10.—In the tennis contest for the championship of the world, best of five match, five sets each, Kerr beat Pettit on Monday 3 to 2, and to-day 3 to 1.

Cobourg Wants the C.P.R.

COBOURG, June 10.—A meeting composed of the reeves of the different townships in this county, together with a railway committee composed of citizens of Cobourg, was held in the Council Chamber to-night for the purpose of discussing the new railway scheme to connect with the Canadian Pacific Railway. The people of Cobourg are determined to get connection with the Canadian Pacific Railway and the tone of the meeting to-night augurs well for the successful carrying out of the scheme.

CHEAP, COOL COMFORT!

Summer Bulletin.

WE DEFY OLD SOL TO DO HIS HOTTEST.

The elections are over. Now for business. We've did a rousing trade during May, and swept competition to the wall. Our gigantic stock, marvellous buying, splendid selling and unparalleled value has carried our constituency. GOUGH BROS. are the representatives of the biggest, the best, the peoples Clothing Emporium.

Hot weather is coming as sure as fate, rent or taxes. Then be prepared. Shed your winter clothes and don a summer suit. Select one from our special line of BRITISH COLUMBIA STOCK, bought at a big sacrifice and selling at prices that knock competition into smithereens.

WOREKRS AND THINKERS

Look, Read and Ponder Well.

The desire of all buyers of Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, is to procure Goods of the best quality, providing the price suits the pocket. Gough Bros. has made this possible to persons of the most limited means. Energy and enterprise has been the motive spirit of our business—with this spirit we have defied hard times—thus inspired, we have inaugurated and enlarged and extended our trade until it has outgrown our widest expectations.

We again promise you more and better value for your money than you have ever yet had. Our stock has been well and cheaply bought expressly for our own trade, and those who have visited us during the last two months will admit that we have fully redeemed the pledge when promising the Cheapest Goods ever sold in the town of Peterborough.

Our Stock is fully assorted, and we have not confined the bargains to a few leading lines, relying on the rest to reimburse the loss, but have everything proportionately low. In a word we are determined to surpass every former effort, and make the Gough Bros. Bargains instruments of pleasure.

In Boots and Shoes we lead the Country. In Hats and Caps we beat all Competition.

A Day with Oddfellows.

The Oddfellows go to Jacob's Island on Tuesday next and expect to be accompanied by a large number of friends. The picnic is bound to be a success and those who attend are ensured of a good time as the committee are making every arrangement possible. Sports and games are to be held on the grounds, and a good, old-fashioned picnic day is expected. Let everyone come and bring the children. Milk, coffee and hot water will be supplied free at the Island. Tickets 20 and 60 cents. The date—Tuesday, June 17th.

On Dominion Day if you wish to spend a good day and enjoy a healthful outing attend the annual picnic of St. Peter's congregation which is to be held at St. Joseph's, Ashburnham. Arrangements of a most complete character have been made for the entertainment of a large crowd. Sports and games will be run off and other amusements provided, while the ladies will supply the good things in abundance. For a day's good solid enjoyment for the family, little ones and all, the picnic at St. Joseph's will furnish the means. Don't forget the day—July 1st.

A Tribute to the Dead.

In his annual address to the Synod of Toronto which opened in Toronto yesterday morning His Lordship Bishop o Toronto made a feeling reference to the death of Rev. J. W. R. Beck, the late rector of Peterborough whom he described "as a zealous and devoted churchman, in his parish beloved by his parishioners, and universally held in the highest esteem by his fellow-townsmen. As a member of the Synod, whether in debate or in committee work, his excellent judgment and high intellectual qualities were greatly appreciated, while his legal cast of mind, early trained to the examination of a question in all its bearings, gave a special value to his counsel. In private life he was a fine type of the true Christain gentleman, honorable and courteous."

DOOMED TO HANG.

Peter Davis Learns His Fate Without Flinching.

Peter Davis, the Mamora murderer, who was sentenced to death for the murder of the man Emory, has been living in hopes of a commutation of the death sentence, but a petition circulated in his behalf has had no effect and the man must die. The Belleville Ontario of Monday says:—"The day fast approaches on which Peter Edward Davis will pay the penalty of his crime. On Saturday Sheriff Hope visited the prisoner in his lonely cell and for the first time he was made aware of the decision of the govenor-in-council in reference to the petition for commutation. The sheriff watched him closely, but there was not a quiver; not the first outward manifestation on the part of the prisoner. He accepted the decision as calmly as if it had been an issue of a most insignificant instance, rather than a matter of life or death. He did not utter a word until questioned by the sheriff if he still maintained hopes of sentence being commuted to life imprisonment. The prisoner with some animation remarked that he certainly did. Rev. M. Daw was the man who was instrumental in having the petition of mercy circulated in behalf of the prisoner. He has been in attendance daily on the spiritual wants of the doomed man who still emphatically protests his innocence. It is likely that the man in his ignorance will go to the gallows without admitting his awful crime. He is so set in the hope that the sentence of death will yet be commuted to imprisonment he fears lest he may impeach himself and no doubt on this account maintains stolid silence. The execution will no doubt be performed by a professional hangman from whom the sheriff has received several applications mostly from the States. Citizens who watch the flag staff which rears its lofty head from the gaol top will only see a black flag floating away on the breeze and which will only be unfurled while the execution is taking place. Spectators have been strictly prohibited and will be limited to the local press and officials. The law provides that the body shall be buried in the gaol yard, but Sheriff Hope will endeavor to secure the permission of the minister of justice to allow the remains to be interred in the cemetery, unless the relatives of the deceased wish to take care of it. Mrs. Emory, who is accountable to her God for her share in this crime, was in the city today. She will remain here until her doomed lover is launched into eternity."

Obituary.

A telegram received this morning announced the death of Mrs. Ada Ambrose, wife of Mr. Thomas H. Ambrose, and daughter of Mr. W. Cluxton, on Monday night in Liverpool, Eng. The family sailed from New York on the "Tuetonic," on 28th May, and Mrs. Ambrose was taken ill with typhoid the second day at sea. She had a severe attack of influenza during the previous winter which left her in a delicate state of health, and the exertion of preparing for removal to England from Port Hope, and packing up was too much for her strength. Deceased was the third daughter of Mr. Wm. Cluxton, and will be remembered by a large circle of friends.

Taxing Insurance Companies.

The following appeal case came up in Toronto yesterday before Chancellor Boyd and Justice Robertson and is thus reported in the Empire:—City of Kingston vs. Canada Life Ass. Co.—Judgment on appeal by the defendants from the judgment of Ferguson, J., (18 O. R., 18) in favor of the plaintiffs in an action to recover taxes assessed against the defendants on income at Kingston. The contention of the appellants was that their only place of business was at Hamilton, and that their business was of such a nature that they could not be assessed in Kingston, and that they had elected under R. S. O., ch. 193, sec. 35, sub-sec. 2, to be assessed at Hamilton on their whole income. The court now hold, reversing the judgment of Ferguson, J., that the defendants have no branch or place of business at Kingston, and cannot be assessed upon income there. Per Boyd, C.—The argument ab inconvenienti applies cogently to exclude "income" as an item of "personal property" to be assessed as a "branch" which is entirely in subordination to the principal seat of business. Appeal allowed and action dismissed with costs. Bruce, Q.C., for the appellants; Walkem, Q.C., and Langton for the respondents.

COUNTY COURT.

Thomas White Acquitted—The Grand Jury Presentment.

The Grand Jury returned true bills on indictments against Thos. R. White for embezzlement and Thos. Beaumont for larceny.

Thos. R. White was placed on trial this morning. There were two charges against him. He was collector of taxes for the township of Galway for a number of years, and he was charged with embezzling $2.80 paid to him by Maurice Hickey on Feb. 14, 1889, and $3.40 paid to him by Wm. Copeland on April 26, 1889. To both charges he pleaded not guilty. The first charge was then taken up, Mr. R. E. Wood, County Attorney, conducting the prosecution, and Mr. E. B. Edwards defending the prisoner. The case did not go to the jury, the prisoner being acquitted on both charges.

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT.

The Grand Jury brought in their presentment when the court opened after lunch to-day. The document read as follows:—

The Grand Jurors for our Sovereign Lady the Queen, for the County of Peterborough, beg to present to Your Honor as follows:—

We felicitate your Honor upon the freedom from crime enjoyed by the County of Peterborough as evidenced by the lightness of the docket with which we have had to deal.

We have visited the gaol premises and find everything very clean and in good order. One of the inmates is very ill and we would recommend, if possible, he should be placed in the hospital for incurables at Toronto. The two insane persons confined should be looked after by the proper authorities and placed where skilled attention might alleviate their unfortunate condition.

We have also visited the Nicholls Hospital and feel that the inhabitants of the county are under a lasting obligation to the late Mrs. Nicholls for her large-hearted generosity in erecting and endowing with such liberality an institution which will prove a blessing to suffering humanity. The building is commodious, cheerful and well adapted for the purpose for which it was intended and has a staff both capable and zealous.

It is gratifying to know that in Ashburnham there is another large and imposing building erected for an hospital, which will shortly be completed and ready to receive patients, showing that laudable generosity has also been exhibited in other directions. We have also visited this building, St. Joseph's Hospital, and have been much pleased with its arrangement, general plan and commanding site.

The alterations being carried out in the Court House building meet with our approval as being timely and judicious.

All of which we hereby present to your Honor.

W. H. BUDDEN,
Foreman.

June 11, 1890.

His Lordship replied in a short address, touching upon the points mentioned in the presentment, and discharged the Grand Jurors.

This afternoon Thos. Beaumont was arraigned on a charge of larceny. The prisoner was brought down from the Central Prison at noon to-day where he is serving a six months term for assault.

There is comfort for the man with a prematurely gray beard in Buckingham's Dye, because it never fails to color an even brown or black as may be desired.

Allowed Her To Go.

Carrie Robinson, the young girl who was charged with stealing a dress, apron and underwear from the dress-making establishment of Miss Campbell, was brought before the Magistrate this morning for sentence. The girl appeared to feel her position keenly and wept bitterly. The Magistrate, after giving her some good advice and telling her to remember that anything she got by dishonorable means would only bring her pain, allowed her to go under suspended sentence.

Dominion Day Celebration at Port Hope.

This year's programme for the celebration of Dominion Day in Port Hope is the best ever presented by that town. It comprises Aquatic Sports, Athletic Sports, Grand Horse Races, Baseball Match and other sports during the day. In the evening there will be a Magnificent Display of Fireworks, Balloon Ascensions, &c. We would strongly advise our readers to make their arrangements to spend Dominion in Port Hope. The programme there is always fully carried out. Any information desired can be obtained by writing W. E. BRAMISH, Secretary of Committee. d130

Rather Misleading.

Mr. C. W. Taylor, manager of the Brock's Manufacturing Co., has returned home from Cleveland, where he went to purchase an hydraulic press to replace the one which was broken last week. In the item which appeared in last evening's REVIEW referring to the accident the word "mismanaged" was inadvertently used in the hurry of writing. It was rather misleading, as the breaking of the press was an accident which no foresight could possibly have prevented and which no management could have foreseen. The correction is made in justice to the management and employees of the Carbon works.

Pleasure at Chemong Park.

This season promises to be a lively one at Chemong Park. The Chemong Boat Club which was organized last year proposes to inaugurate the season with an event worthy of the beauties of the Park and the advantages which the club enjoys in having its handsome boat house at the lake. This boat house, which has already been described in the REVIEW, has not yet been formally opened. The club held two meetings recently, one last week and another last evening, at which officers were elected and arrangements for a suitable opening decided upon. The boat house will be favorably opened on the 26th of June, when the members will give a picnic in the afternoon at the Park and an "At Home" in the boat house in the evening at which they will entertain their friends. Free transfer will be provided and the band will be in attendance in the afternoon. This event is sure to be a pleasing success. The newly elected officers of the Club are as follows:—

HON. PRESIDENT—Judge Weller.
PRESIDENT—G. W. Hatton.
VICE PRESIDENT—R. A. Morrow.
CAPTAIN—Geo. Stevenson.
SECY.-TREAS.—J. L. Gower.
EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE—Messrs. Parker, Elliott, Fairweather, Young and the officers

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

MR. BLEZARD'S MAJORITY.

As an Emergency Medicine, for sudden colds, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral takes the lead of all remedies, a dose or two generally sufficing to stop ordinary coughs and ease the worst. For the cure of throat and lung disorders, this preparation is unequalled.

They Pleaded Guilty.

Chief Roszel this morning received a telegram from Prescott stating that the five tramps, who were arrested there for burglary, and upon whom was found part of the jewellery stolen from Paterson's store at Lakefield, had pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary against them at Prescott and are to be sentenced on Saturday next.

WITH THE RANGERS.

A Good March Out—Battalion Orders Issued to the Officers and Men.

The 57th Battalion had a march out last evening, headed by the two battalion bands. For the first time the bugle band supplied music along the line of march, and it sounded remarkably well. Bandmaster Miller was leading the boys. There was a large turnout of men, and the general marching and appearance of the different companies was very good. The battalion marched down George-st. to Hunter and along Hunter over the bridge to the P. A. A. A. grounds where an hour's drill was put in. Returning to the drill shed the battalion went down Water to Simcoe, along Simcoe to George and up George to the shed. There will be no company drill on Thursday night this week on account of the concert, but the usual weekly drill will be held on Friday evening.

BATTALION ORDERS.

Upon returning to the drill shed last evening Capt. Dennistoun, Adjutant, read the following regimental orders:—

Headquarters, Peterborough,
June 10th, 1890.

Orders by Lieut.-Col. J. Z. Rogers, commanding the 57th Battalion of Infantry, Peterborough Rangers:—

No. 1. The battalion will parade on Tuesday next at 7.30 o'clock in drill order, with leggings.

No. 2. The commanding officer has been pleased to grant a corporals certificate to Sergt. H. E. Bletcher, "F." Co., he having passed the necessary examinations.

No. 3. All rifles must be returned into Company stores in order that they may be refitted with snap caps.

No. 4. Captains commanding Companies will see that slings are fitted properly to all rifles and that leggings are worn by every man.

No. 5. The Commanding Officer will inspect the Battalion next Tuesday evening and expects to find every man correctly and properly dressed.

By order,
R. MAX. DENNISTOUN,
Adjutant Peterborough Rangers.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

The Daily Review.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 11, 1890.

Only One Mother.

You have only one mother, my boy,
Whose heart you can gladden with joy,
Or cause it to ache
Till ready to break:
So cherish that mother, my boy.

You have one mother who will
Stick to you through good and through ill,
And love you although
The world is your foe:
So care for that love ever still.

You have only one mother to pray
That in the good path you may stay;
Who for you won't spare
Self-sacrifice rare:
So worship that mother alway.

You have only one mother to make
A home ever sweet for your sake;
Who toils day and night
For you with delight:
To help her all pains ever take.

You have only one mother to miss
When she has departed from this,
So love and revere
That mother while here:
Sometime you won't know her dear kiss.

You have only one mother, just one;
Remember that always, my son;
None can or will do
What she has for you:
What have you for her ever done?

THE COWARD'S DEATH.

WOMEN in society called him "the handsome Signoles." His name was Viscount Gontran Joseph de Signoles.

An orphan and the possessor of a sufficient fortune, as the saying goes, he cut a dash. He had a fine figure and bearing, enough conversation to make people credit him with cleverness, a certain natural grace, an air of nobility and of pride, a gallant mustache, and a gentle eye—a thing which pleases women.

In the drawing rooms he was in great request, much sought after as a partner for the waltz; and he inspired among men that smiling hatred which they always cherish for others of an energetic figure. He passed a happy and tranquil life, in a comfort of mind which was most complete. It was known that he was a good fencer, and as a pistol shot even better.

"If ever I fight a duel," said he, "I shall choose pistols. With that weapon I am sure of killing my man."

Now, one night, having accompanied two young ladies, his friends, escorted by their husbands, to the theatre, he invited them all after the play to take an ice at Tortoni's. They had been there for several minutes, when he perceived that a gentleman seated at a neighboring table was staring obstinately at one of his companions. She seemed put out, uneasy, lowered her head. At last she said to her husband:

"There is a man who is looking me out of countenance. I do not know him, do you?"

The husband, who had seen nothing, raised his eyes, but declared:

"No, not at all."

The young lady continued, half smiling, half vexed:

"It is very unpleasant, that man is spoiling my ice."

Her husband shrugged his shoulders:

"Bast! don't pay any attention to it. If we had to occupy ourselves about every insolent fellow that we meet we should never have done."

But the Viscount had risen brusquely. He could not allow that this stranger should spoil an ice which he had offered. It was not him that this insult was addressed, because it was through him and on his account that his friends had entered the cafe. So the matter concerned him only.

He advanced toward the man and said to him:

"You have sir, a manner of looking at those ladies which I cannot tolerate. I beg of you to be so kind as to cease from this insistence."

The other answered:

"You are going to mind your own business, curse you."

The viscount said, with close-pressed teeth:

"Take care, sir, you will force me to pass bounds."

The gentleman answered but one word, a foul word, which rang from one end of the cafe to the other, and, like a metal spring, caused every guest to execute a sudden movement. All those whose backs were turned wheeled around; all the others raised their heads; three waiters pivoted upon their heels like tops; the two ladies at the desk gave a jump, then turned round their whole bodies from the waists up, as if they had been two automata obedient to the same crank.

A great silence made itself felt. Then, on a sudden, a dry sound cracked in the air. The viscount had slapped his adversary's face. Every one rose to interfere. Cards were exchanged between the two.

When the viscount had reached home he paced his room for several minutes with great, quick strides. He was too much agitated to reflect at all. One single idea was hovering over his mind—"a duel"—without arousing in him as yet an emotion of any sort. He had done that which he ought to have done; he had shown himself to be that which he ought to be. People would talk about it, they would praise him, they would congratulate him. He repeated in a loud voice, speaking as one speaks when one's thoughts are very much troubled:

"What a brute the fellow was!"

Then he sat down and began to reflect. He must find seconds the first thing in the morning. Whom should he choose? He thought over those men of his acquaintance who had the best positions, who were the most celebrated. He finally selected the Marquis de la Tour-Noire, and the Col. Bourdin, a nobleman and a soldier. Very good indeed. Their names would sound well in the papers. He perceived that he was thirsty, and he drank, one after another, three glasses of water; then he began again to walk up and down the room. He felt himself full of energy. If he blustered a little, if he showed himself resolute at all points, if he demanded rigorous and dangerous conditions, if he insisted on a serious duel, very serious, terrible, his opponent would probably withdraw and make apologies.

He picked up the card which he had pulled out of his pocket and thrown on the table, and he reread it with a single glance. He had already done so at the cafe and in the cab, by the glimmer of every street lamp on his way home. "George Lamil, 51 Rue Moncey." Nothing more.

He examined these assembled letters, which seemed to him mysterious and full of a confused meaning. George Lamil! Who was this man? What had he been about? Why had he stared at that woman in that way? Was it not revolting that a stranger, an unknown, should so come and trouble your life, all on a sudden, simply because he had been pleased to fix his eyes insolently upon a woman that you know! And the viscount repeated yet again, in a loud voice:

"What a brute!"

Then he remained motionless, upright, thinking, his look ever planted on the cards. A rage awoke in him against this piece of paper, an anger full of hate, in which was mixed a strange, uneasy feeling. It was stupid, this whole affair! He took a little pen-knife which lay close to his hand, and pricked it into the middle of the printed name, as if he had stabbed some one.

However, they would fight. He considered himself indeed as the insulted party. And, having thus the right, should he choose the pistol or the sword? With the sword he risked less; but with the pistol he had the chance of making his adversary withdraw. It is very rare that a duel with swords prove mortal, a mutual prudence preventing the combatants from engaging near enough for the point of the rapier to enter very deep. With the pistol he risked his life seriously; but he might also come out of the affair with all the honors of the situation, and without going so far as an actual meeting.

He said:

"I must be firm. He will be afraid."

The sound of his voice made him tremble, and he looked about him. He felt himself very nervous. He drank another glass of water, then began to undress himself to go to bed.

As soon as he was in bed he blew out the light and shut his eyes.

He thought:

"I've got all day to-morrow to attend to affairs. I'd better sleep first so as to be calm."

He was very warm under the bedclothes, but he could not doze off. He turned and twisted, remained five minutes on his back, then placed himself on his left side, then rolled over to his right.

He was still thirsty. He got up again to drink. Then an anxiety seized him:

"Shall I be afraid?"

To be Continued.

THE M'KINLEY TARIFF.

Senators Making Haste Slowly—Edmunds Fighting the Mormons.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Senator Morrill, Chairman of the Finance Committee, was with his Republican associates to-day and joined them in the further consideration of the Tariff Bill. The wool and silk schedules were examined and some items agreed to. Notwithstanding statements heretofore made by members of the committee it appears the minority members have not yet received any of the schedules and that none of them are formally completed, although several of them are practically so.

Senator Edmunds introduced a bill to-day providing that all funds or other property lately belonging or in the possession or claimed by the corporation of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormons), to which it shall appear there is no lawful private right, shall be devoted to the benefit of public common schools in Utah, the money to be disposed of by the Secretary of the Interior.

A CHICAGOAN BURIED ALIVE.

The Doctor Said He Was Dead and So There Was a Funeral.

CHICAGO, June 10.—An afternoon paper prints this story and gives a three-column account with details that seem to affirm its truth:

Last Saturday the funeral of John Ruske, who died suddenly, was held at his residence and after the services the body was carried to the cemetery. While the body was lying in the casket friend remarked the lifelike appearance of the face, but the doctor had pronounced the man dead and the relatives did not feel like going contrary to the doctor's opinions. When the cortege reached the cemetery someone suggested that the coffin be opened, but this was not heeded, notwithstanding that a tapping from the inside of the coffin indicated there was life there. As the body was being lowered into the grave the tapping became more pronounced, but the people had assembled for a funeral and it had to take place. The coffin was dropped into the grave, the earth fell on the casket and in a short time a little mound covered the secret—covered it for a time merely—for yesterday the grave was opened, the coffin removed and an examination of the body showed that the victim had been murdered through the carelessness of the attendants. Ruske's body was twisted, his features distorted, his tongue bitten nearly in two and his finger nails imbedded in the flesh. There was every indication that a horrible struggle had taken place.

OPENING OF THE SUICIDE SEASON.

An Unknown Man Jumps From the Goat Island Bridge.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 10.—This afternoon one of the park policemen saw a man on Goat Island bridge climb the railing and jump into the water. He was carried down by the current and passed over the American Falls. A few minutes afterwards the body was seen in the middle of the river near the Maid-of-the-Mist landing. The steamer started after it but it almost immediately disappeared and has not yet been recovered. There is no clue to the identity of the suicide.

The body of Mrs. Beagen, the woman who suicided by jumping into the river above the Falls on the American side last Sunday, was found in the whirlpool this evening.

The C. & G. T. Free to Cut.

CHICAGO, June 10.—The quarrel over the dressed beef rates in which the eastern roads are engaged has resulted in the withdrawal of the Chicago & Grand Trunk from the Central Traffic Association. The officials of that road are incensed at Chairman Blanchard for refusing to authorize them to protect their differential rate. They will now make such rates as they see fit.

Psoriasis 5 years, covering face, head and entire body with white scabs. Skin red, itchy and bleeding. Hair all gone. Spent hundreds of dollars. Pronounced incurable. Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

Cured by Cuticura

My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed; it then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head, and shoulders being the worst. The white scabs fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using two bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT and one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I thought the disease would leave a very deep scar, but the CUTICURA REMEDIES cured it without any scars. I cannot express with a pen what I suffered before using the CUTICURA REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recommend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight. I know of others who have received great benefit from their use.
MRS. ROSA KELLY, Rockwell City, Iowa.

Cuticura Resolvent

Coughs, Colds, Croup.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

Dry Goods News at
TURNBULL'S

Another week has brought us many bargains. The first one we will mention is in the Dress Goods Department. We have opened out new Silk-warp Henriettas in black and colors at 60c. and 75c. a yard. Never mind how or where we got them. Those who want fine silk-warp henriettas for the price of wool materials will now know where to go.

We are showing three special lines in Union Carpets at 40, 50 and 60c. a yard. Remember where you have heard of cheap carpets.

Those who have bought the 5½ and 7½ Check Chambrays have found out that what we said about them was true—that they wash beautifully—and they are now coming back for quantities. Remember these goods are selling at just half their value.

The Silk Taffeta and Lace Gloves we are selling at 25c. a pair are startlers.

Mothers, you should see our Heavy Ribbed Cotton Hose for boys. They will recommend themselves to your judgment for durability.

Ladies, do not buy black hose that stain when you can get perfectly stainless ones at Turnbull's.

The rush is on us now in our Tailoring Department and no wonder. Our stock of Tweeds and Worsteds are very choice. We propose and are repeatedly told that we do sell clothing made to order cheaper than any other house in Peterborough.

Our Millinery stock is constantly changing hands. If you have seen our stock of hats last week do not expect to find it the same this week, as we are always receiving new and desirable shapes and trimmings. As the season advances prices always decline in the wholesale millinery stocks, so look out for bargains at Turnbull's Millinery for the balance of the season.

MRS. ANDREWS' REVENGE

SUPPLANTED IN DR. TRIPP'S AFFECTIONS BY HER DAUGHTER.

The Discarded Woman Causes the Physician's Arrest on a Charge of Murder—The Queer Sequel of an Ingersoll Elopement—Out on Bail.

WOODSTOCK, June 11.—Dr. M. E. Tripp of Ingersoll appeared before William Grey, J.P., to-day on the charge of murdering his mother, Hannah Tripp, and was allowed to go on his own recognizance for $500 to appear before Police Magistrate Field on June 17.

This case is an interesting one. About 10 years ago while Tripp was living in Norwich he gave his wife some opium for some complaint from which she was suffering and she never awoke from the sleep it brought on. It is understood the prosecution are basing their case largely on a deposition made by Mrs. Christopher Andrews of Ingersoll. The name of Mrs. Andrews has been associated with that of Dr. Tripp before. On Feb. 27 last she and Dr. Tripp were arrested in Detroit at the instance of her husband, Christopher Andrews, who had traced the runaways there. Mrs. Andrews refused to return to her husband.

What has since come between the doctor and Mrs. Andrews is not generally known, but it is supposed the youthful charms of Mrs. Andrews' young and rather pretty daughter Emmeline intruded themselves between the doctor and her mother and threatened to shut the latter out entirely.

Whatever the truth may be Mrs. Andrews' deposition contained charges against the doctor that are horrible to think of. She kept house for the doctor and waited on his mother for some time prior to her death. Her description of the way in which Tripp abused and neglected his mother is drawn out in revolting detail. But not only did he, according to the deposition, neglect and abuse his old mother but he brought one the end by the administration of medicine which produced convulsions that were horrible to witness.

Dr. Tripp left for Ingersoll this morning.

LOVE THE BROTHERHOOD.

Fraternal Societies in Annual Conventions—Grand Lodge K. of P. Officers.

SMITH'S FALLS, June 11.—The Grand Lodge of Ontario Knights of Pythias, in annual session here, has elected these officers:

Past Grand Chancellor—P. D. McKellar, Chatham.
Grand Chancellor—R. H. Jarvis, Toronto.
Grand Vice-Chancellor—John Blackwood, Windsor.
Grand Prelate—W. F. Morphy, Toronto.
Grand M. of C.—James Smith, London.
Grand K. of R. & S.—George H. Mitchell, Toronto.
Grand M. at A.—G. C. Fawlis, Smith's Falls.
Grand J. G.—J. Fitzgerald, London.
Grand O. G.—Robert Irwin, Hamilton.
Representatives to Supreme Lodge—Dr. John S. King, A. J. Rattray, Toronto.

The Grand Lodge will meet next year in London.

C.O.F. Officers.

KINGSTON, June 11.—At the High Court of Canadian Foresters to-day after preliminaries nominations for office occurred. These were elected by acclamation:

H.C.R.—Edward Towe.
H. Sec.—T. White, Brantford.
Hon. Treas.—J. Newlands, Wingham.
Chairman of Medical Board—Dr. U. M. Stanley, Watford.
Associate Medical Board—Dr. Young, Ridgetown.
H. Chap.—Rev. R. Coulson, East Angers.
H. Aud.—H. Gumner, Guelph.

There were many nominations for the other offices.

Manchester Unity at Trenton.

TRENTON, June 11.—The proceedings of the Grand Lodge Canadian Order of Oddfellows M.U. yesterday and to-day have resulted in the completion of a lot of work, the delegates being evidently desirous of expediting proceedings so as to if possible allow of the lodge being brought to a close Thursday afternoon. The banquet this evening was a great success.

Nova Scotia Free Masons.

HALIFAX, June 11.—The Grand Lodge of Free Masons was entertained at a grand banquet by the Halifax brethren to-night. An elaborate program of toasts was presented.

Columbus Carmen's Strike.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 11.—The Consolidated Street Railway Company made another effort to start cars to-day. The cars had proceeded but a few squares when thousands gathered and the tracks were blocked with stones and rubbish. One of the new employes was driven off. The women took a hand in stopping the cars. The Mayor was present and ordered the arrest of two citizens who were blocking the tracks.

Is Your Home Mortgaged?

NEW YORK, June 11.—Forty persons have thus far been arrested for giving the census enumerators trouble and refusing to answer questions. Out of this number not one has been fined. "Is your home mortgaged?" appears to be one of the questions at which the women rebel. Then again they complain that the census man comes around while they are in bed and refuses to leave until they dress. All sorts of excuses are made. The culprits are generally reprimanded and allowed to go.

DEATH IN THE STORM.

A TORONTO WORKMAN STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Halton County Visited by a Tornado—The Elements do Great Damage in the States—A Tent Sheltering 2000 People Blown Down—Loss of Life.

TORONTO, June 12.—John Hamilton, an employe of the rolling mills at Swansea, was struck dead by lightning, while returning from his day's work in the Lake Shore road.

About 5½ o'clock several of the workmen from the mills were caught in the heavy thunder shower. John Hamilton, who was some distance ahead of the others, took shelter under a tree opposite the front of Howard Lake. W. Stickles, No. 1 Lisgar-place, and D. Kent, 1420 Queen-street west, also made for the tree, while Hamilton from his refuge stood laughing at the wetting the two were getting. Suddenly there was a flash of blinding light and a terrible crash. Stickles and Kent stopped short in terror and then ran forward to Hamilton, who lay with his hands outstretched as if clutching at the tree for support.

Stickles raised his head, but the poor man had been instantly killed. No mark of any kind disfigured the body, and but for a rent in his trousers, probably done by the tree, the clothes were not marked at all. On the side of the tree opposite to the portion under which the victim stood a large branch was split off.

The deceased was 30 years of age and arrived in Toronto from Kent, England, six months ago. He was employed in what is called the "scrap gang" in the mills, and as his salary was not large his wife is left alone among comparative strangers with no means of support. She is prostrated with grief. The deceased was a member of St. George's Society in England, but as yet no funeral arrangements have been made.

A TORNADO IN HALTON.

Farm Buildings Wrecked and Fences Destroyed—A Child's Arm Broken.

MILTON, June 11.—A tornado passed about a mile north of town at 2½ this afternoon, wrecking Wm. Center's barn in Esquesing, the dwelling, sheds and barn of Malcolm Chisholm, Alex. McNab's barn and sheds. Fences were torn down and much damage done. The path of the tornado was about 80 yards wide and extended across the 1st, 2nd and 3rd concessions of Esquesing. One of Mr. Chisholm's little girls had her arm broken but no other casualties are reported.

A Child's Close Call.

BRACEBRIDGE, June 11.—During a heavy thunder storm this afternoon the house of William Ross was struck by lightning, wrecking the house badly. A child lying asleep upstairs had a narrow escape from falling bricks from a chimney which were thrown all over the room, about a dozen falling on the bed where the child lay, but fortunately all the inmates escaped injury.

The Illinois Cyclone.

JOLIET, Ill., June 11.—The damage done by the cyclone at Channahon last night was slight. Two houses were blown down. The occupants escaped uninjured.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., June 11.—Specials give particulars of a cyclone which swept Dewitt county between 11 o'clock and noon to-day. A schoolhouse near Birkbeck was demolished while school was in session. Five children were injured, of whom it is feared two will die. At Wapella the Illinois Central depot and the Methodist church were wrecked. A man named Rouse living near that town was fatally hurt. Trees and telegraph poles were smashed in all directions. The barn on Mrs. Abbott's farm near Wapella was demolished and three horses killed. Considerable damage was done at Waynesville and Clinton. The storm moved northwest to southeast in a pathway about half a mile wide.

A Circus Tent Blown Over.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., June 11.—Two thousand persons were in a tent south of Jacksonville listening to a concert to-day, when a storm sprang up and the tent blew over on the crowd. A scene of mad confusion ensued, the poles and heavy canvas crushing many to the ground. Quite a number of persons were injured, the most seriously being Mrs. Musgrave, wife of the pastor of Grace M. E. Church, hurt about the spine; Miss Alderson of Chapin, skull fractured.

Destruction in Iowa.

WAPELLA, Ia., June 11.—A cyclone last night destroyed the fair ground exhibition hall and tore to pieces residences of Mrs. Biggs, S. Bryant and O. W. Ives. All the inmates of the houses were injured more or less, though none fatally.

A Fatal Bolt.

SCRANTON, Pa., June 11.—Morgan Lewis was killed and four other persons injured by lightning near Oliphant to-day.

Heavy Losses in Pennsylvania.

CARLISLE, Pa., June 11.—A severe hail and wind storm passed over the entire Cumberland valley this evening, doing considerable damage to growing crops. Hail fell in large quantities. Reports from the surrounding country state the damage was heavy.

Snapper Garrison's Close Call.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Snapper Garrison had a narrow escape from death at Morris Park race track to-day. He had the mount on D. T. Pulsifer's Brother Ban in the second race, and in coming down the stretch Brother Ban fell to the rear and suddenly dropped to the track dead, probably from over-exertion. Garrison was thrown to the ground, but beyond a few bruises was uninjured.

THE STRYCHNINE ROUTE.

Farmer Lawrence of Marmora Deliberately Takes His Own Life.

MARMORA, June 11.—Thomas Lawrence of Marmora township visited this village Saturday and sold about $20 worth of ginseng, purchased necessaries for his family and returned home, about eight miles north, arriving at 9 o'clock. He retired for the night and complaining of a headache told his wife he would take some salts. He arose and deliberately took a dose of strychnine which, it is believed, he had purchased for the purpose. He was dead in 15 minutes. After taking the deadly drug he asked for vinegar. As there was none in the house he asked for coal oil. The deceased was about 38 years of age and apparently enjoyed good health. His wife is an invalid and with her two small children are in reduced circumstances. Lawrence has several times told his wife that he meant to take his life.

Coroner Dr. Jones upon becoming acquainted with the facts decided that an inquest was not necessary.

BELLEVILLE, June 11.—Davis, the murderer to be executed next week, wept when told of the suicide of his friend Lawrence.

NO CHARGE TO MAKE.

Cowles Declines to Prosecute Hale for Shooting Him.

MONTREAL, June 11.—The condition of Cowles continues to improve and his recovery is only a matter of a week or two. To-day the hospital physicians pronounced him well enough to make his deposition and Judge Desnoyers proceeded to the hospital for that purpose. The only persons admitted were the counsel for the defence, the judge and his secretary. Remaining in the waiting-room were Mr. Hale, the assailant, Judge Ingersoll and the detectives. Mr. Hale, sr., Mrs. Cowles and the girl Florence remained at the hotel.

When asked what he had to say Mr. Cowles answered that he had no statement to make and declined to make any charge. Judge Desnoyers was in a quandary and took till to-morrow to consider the matter, when it is probable Hale will be discharged from custody.

Another Side to the Story.

BELLEVILLE, N. J., June 11.—A reporter called at the home of Miss Clare Luneschloss' parents here yesterday afternoon. The door was opened by Miss Belle, a young and pretty sister of Clare's. When the errand was explained Miss Luneschloss said: "We have nothing to say at present, but when the proper time comes a statement will be made. You may have noticed that in all the newspaper accounts there has been but one side of the story given. One should not judge until he has heard both sides."

The family live very quietly and the neighbors know little about their affairs.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Opening of the Presbyterian Supreme Court at the Capital.

OTTAWA, June 11.—A large audience gathered in Bank-street Church this evening, the occasion being the assembling of the members of the Supreme Court of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Principal Grant, the retiring moderator, preached an admirable sermon from Hebrews xii.

28. Wherefore we receiving a kingdom which cannot be moved, let us have grace, whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear.

During the delivery of the discourse condemnatory reference was made to Lincoln's newly elected representative and to circumstances connected with the re-election. These elicited audible expressions of adoration from various parts of the house.

As predicted yesterday Dr. Laing of Dundas was chosen to succeed Dr. Grant in the moderatorship. He was conducted to the chair by Messrs. Burson of St. Catharines and Johnston of Fredericton, his mover and seconder. The new moderator expressed thanks and craved indulgence and assistance from the court.

Acknowledgment was made by the retiring moderator of correspondence from Her Majesty the Queen and from His Excellency the Governor-General in reply to addresses from the last assembly. After a few routine arrangements had been made the assembly adjourned to enter upon regular work to-morrow morning.

BAPTISTS IN COUNCIL.

The Midland Counties' Association at Galt—Encouraging Reports.

GALT, June 11.—The Midland Counties' Association of the Baptist Church is in session here. Last night an able opening sermon was preached by Rev. D. G. McDonald of Stratford. This morning Rev. J. L. Gilmour, B.A., of Orangeville, delivered the annual sermon from John xx. 21. The discourse was a clear exposition of the passage. At the close of the sermon Rev. J. L. Gilmour was elected moderator and R. D. Warren clerk.

In the afternoon reports from the churches were heard. They were of an exceedingly encouraging character. Mr. R. D. Warren gave the report on the condition of the churches: Number of churches reported 21; membership 2028, added during the year 175; raised for missions $2737; increase over last year $1297; raised for all purposes $33,444; contributions per member $16.

To-night addresses were given on "Education" by representatives of Woodstock College and McMaster Hall. The association continues in session to-morrow.

Reformed Presbyterians.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The Reformed Presbyterian Synod adopted a resolution condemning secret societies, including college societies, and laid over the report of the committee on divorce until the next synod. The report permits divorce for adultery and wilful desertion only. The report of the committee on tobacco was finally adopted, the third recommendation being amended to request elders and members engaged in the tobacco traffic to withdraw from it.

Washington Topics.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The Republican members of the Senate Committee on Finance to-day further considered the Tariff Bill. The preliminary disposition of the fee list was completed and some attention was paid to the general customs provisions of the bill.

Senator Sherman to-day introduced the bill to incorporate the Pan-American Bank, which was introduced in the House by Representative Hitt.

Quebec's Welcome to Connaught.

QUEBEC, June 11.—The only public function connected with the royal visit to this city took place to-day in the Legislative Council Chamber, when the Prince was presented with an address by Mayor Fremont on behalf of the citizens. A large and brilliant assemblage of the beauty and fashion of the Ancient Capital were present.

A Steamship Burnt.

BROOKLYN, June 11.—The iron steamship Honda, owned by the Honduras & Central American Steamship Company, was burnt to the water's edge and sunk in the mud at the Atlantic dock here to-night. The loss on the vessel was $15,000 and on cargo $25,000.

WILL THERE BE WAR?

GREAT BRITAIN DOESN'T LIKE THE AMERICAN STYLE.

A Strong Protest Against Blaine's Action in Behring Sea—And Now the United States Puts in a Claim of Ownership in the Seals.

LONDON, June 11.—The Standard protests strongly against Mr. Blaine's sending cruisers to Behring Sea. It says if he attempts to employ force wrongfully against British subjects or property force will be employed on our side also. The gravest condition of affairs may arise from his heedless and intemperate action.

The United States Claim.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—A reporter called the attention of Senator Morgan of Alabama, a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, to an Ottawa despatch to the effect that Secretary Blaine assumes that the United States has the right to follow the seals beyond the conventional territorial limit because they are the property of the Government. The Senator said:

"If the Government of the United States has based its orders to the captains of the revenue cutters on the above ground it is correct not only under the statute of 1889, but also under the public law. The seals, according to their instinctive impulses, select these islands for their breeding ground. They resort there in the month of May and remain until August. While the seals are raising their young it is necessary for the females to go out into the sea long distances for the purpose of procuring food. They return to the islands and remain there until the young are able to sustain themselves. During this period the seals remain upon the islands, seldom, if ever, going to the water.

"The law undertakes to protect the seals while approaching the islands and during their temporary residence there. This, according to the tenor of the English common law, gives the United States qualified property in the seals during such periods, which property it clearly has a right to protect. This is the whole theory of the act of March 2, 1889, and I suppose it is the ground upon which our government has based the instructions to the commanders of the revenue vessels."

When asked what he thought might be the result of the seizure of British vessels and the confiscation of their cargoes of sealskins by American revenue vessels, Senator Morgan said:

"I can only regard confiscation in such cases as the act of a court before which the ship is taken for adjudication. The British owners would be compelled to go into court to seek legal redress. The British Government could only interfere on the ground that her people under the international law had a better right to kill the seals approaching or fishing in the vicinity of the islands than our own people had. We prohibit our citizens from such interference with these animals, we sell the privilege to our citizens of taking these animals on shore, and it is a duty the Government owes to its lessees to protect them by prohibiting the destruction of the seals when out in the sea food hunting.

"The talk about the possibility of a collision between the Governments, growing out of the instructions of the Treasury Department to the commanders of the revenue cutters and the execution of such instructions, is probably based on a misconception of the nature of the orders issued. If the officers commanding the revenue vessels keep within the law I think there need be no apprehension of trouble between the two Governments.

"I hope Secretary Blaine had some substantial reasons for declining the modus vivendi proposed by the British Government. Such arrangements in the recent past have been of great advantage in promoting a good understanding between governments."

Senator Morgan does not consider that the question as to whether Behring Sea is American water enters at all into the seal question. He holds that even if it is an open sea and free to all, still our Government has the right to protect the seals during the period they frequent those waters.

AN ABUNDANT HARVEST.

That is the Present Outlook for the Farmers of Canada.

Ontario has every prospect of an abundant harvest. The crop reports from every section of the province are most encouraging. With the exception of fall wheat, which has been injured to some extent, especially in low grounds, and in a few sections was winter-killed and plowed in, all grains promise a good yield, and many localities report that never before at this season of the year was the outlook for the farmers so encouraging. Spring wheat, barley, oats and peas are above the average in acreage and condition. Hay will be an exceptionally large yield. Roots of all kinds are in fine shape. Corn planting is backward in some counties, but the acreage will be large when it is all in. Fruit of all kinds in the western peninsula will be abundant. In the Niagara peninsula plums and cherries will be a light crop, peaches fair and apples a large crop. Despite the damage done in some counties by violent storms the outlook is on the whole for a year of great agricultural prosperity.

Quebec sends out reports also of an encouraging nature. The spring has been somewhat backward, but the outlook in general is hopeful.

Manitoba correspondents can hardly find words to express the magnificent hopes of the Prairie Province. Unless some unexpected contingency occurs the Northwest has in store for it a year of unexampled prosperity.

Such in brief is the agricultural prospect summarized from several hundred special reports by telegraph yesterday. Unless all signs fail it will be a prosperous year for the Canadian farmer and therefore for the merchant, the manufacturer, the professional man and the artisan.

Firewater Slew Him.

HAGERSVILLE, June 11.—The evening express train from Hamilton on the Grand Trunk Railway ran over and killed an Indian named Joseph King about 3½ miles north of Hagersville. The body was cut almost in two. King was stretched across the rail evidently very much intoxicated. It being about dusk the engine driver was unable to distinguish any object on the track until too late to prevent the accident. A bottle containing liquor was found near him. An inquest will be held.

Died from His Injuries.

QUEBEC, June 11.—Capt. Crangle, master of the bark Amaranth, who was so badly injured by a piece of timber in the hold of the vessel yesterday morning, died from his injuries during the night.

Long on Wheat, Short on Cash.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Robert Warren & Co., one of the oldest houses in the grain trade, has failed. Liabilities supposed to be quite heavy. The firm has been "long" on wheat and provisions, and the recent heavy depreciation in values drove them to the wall.

Dress the Hair

With Ayer's Hair Vigor. Its cleanliness, beneficial effects on the scalp, and lasting perfume commend it for universal toilet use. It keeps the hair soft and silken, preserves its color, prevents it from falling, and, if the hair has become weak or thin, promotes a new growth.

"To restore the original color of my hair, which had turned prematurely gray, I used Ayer's Hair Vigor with entire success. I cheerfully testify to the

of this preparation."—Mrs. P. H. Davidson, Alexandria, La.

"I was afflicted some three years with scalp disease. My hair was falling out and what remained turned gray. I was induced to try Ayer's Hair Vigor, and in a few weeks the disease in my scalp disappeared and my hair resumed its original color."—(Rev.) S. S. Sims, Pastor U. B. Church, St. Bernice, Ind.

"A few years ago I suffered the entire loss of my hair from the effects of tetter. I hoped that after a time nature would repair the loss, but I waited in vain. Many remedies were suggested, none, however, with such proof of merit as Ayer's Hair Vigor, and I began to use it. The result was all I could have desired. A growth of hair soon came out all over my head, and grew to be as soft and heavy as I ever had, and of a natural color, and firmly set."—J. H. Pratt, Spofford, Texas.

COUNTY OFFICIALS.

THERE are a number of officials in every county who are paid by the county and are in every sense county officials, except that they are appointed by the Ontario Government. No good reason has been shown why the body or people who pay the officers should not also select them. The registrars, gaolers, turnkeys, license inspectors and other officials should be the servants of the county or city that they serve, but although they do work for the people of the county or city, and although paid by the people of those places, the municipal representatives—the county and city councils—have no voice in their appointment and they are under the control of the politicians in Toronto. Some of these officers were not always subject to political control, but the Mowat Government, in accordance with its policy of grasping patronage with a view to retaining power, took over the appointments to itself, instead of giving the power of appointing them to the representatives of the people in the county

The excuse that the county councils would not select good men for the offices is a false one as well as insulting to the municipal councils and the people who elect them. The county councils are still allowed to choose some of their officials, and no one has dared to say that the men who fill those county offices are not as capable and as trustworthy as the men who occupy county offices through the grace of the Government and party exegencies. County officials should be appointed by representatives chosen to administer the business affairs of the county, and the offices should not be given as rewards for party services and that the officials may continue to do active party work. The people who pay the officers and whose work they are appointed to do should select them. This is a reform the so-called Liberal Government refuses to carry out, but the interest of the people of Ontario requires that the powers of the municipalities should not be curtailed, but should be extended.

Montreal Cattle Market.

The Montreal Gazette of Tuesday says:—The cattle market has shown little change since our last review. Butchers' cattle were not in large supply and prices were fairly well maintained for choice stock, which was in good demand. Shippers did very little buying, prices being too high for them to "let out" and suitable cattle being in short supply. In consequence space was hard to fill and boats went short. The season so far has been an unsatisfactory one for shippers, but now that freights have been lowered the prospects are brighter, many being confident that the market on the other side will improve before long, owing to the falling off in shipments from American ports, while the supply of cattle in the country is said to be small. All, or nearly all, the shipping stock has been bought up and it will be some time before grass fed cattle begin to come forward.

Prices during the week ranged from 5¼c @ 5¾c for export cattle to 3½c @ 3¾c for culls, and the few sales which were made this morning were at about these figures. Hogs, sheep and lambs were in short supply and in good demand, sheep being worth from 4½c @ 5¼c, hogs from $5 25 @ $5 35, and calves $4 @ $8. The receipts since Saturday were 1,541 cattle, 42 sheep, 280 hogs and 27 calves.

Cheese Comments.

The market showed a firmer feeling to-day, says the Montreal Gazette of Wednesday, and it now seems as if the disposition fore-shadowed on Saturday is to have further developements, for there was an evident inclination to-day to follow up the lead given which we intimated yesterday was a possibility. Although no material accession to the enquiry from the other side has to be noted, it would now appear that some think the article is wanted, and are also basing calculations on the effect of grass cheese and the lateness of its appearance this year, and the otherwise satisfactory statistical position. Consequently to-day more transactions are spoken of in the country, some lots in the Eastern townships, it is said, bringing prices equivalent to 8¾c there, and fractionally better than it, while at Belleville the board sales showed a considerable advance on previous figures, the range being 8½c @ 8⅝c, while the factory men show a disposition to take the gifts the gods send and be thankful. On the whole, therefore, the position in the country is firm, while later New York markets indicate an anxiety to secure stock also, if the prices are any indication. This probably induced the desire manifest to-day to offer 8⅞c for white, several holders accepting it, but for colored it is claimed 8⅞c was refused. In consequence of this feeling an alteration to our range is necessitated and we now quote 8¾c @ 9c for finest white and colored, as it is evident that with holders actuated by their present feeling the article could not be had under it.

Montreal Horse Market.

MONTREAL, June 10.—The horse trade has continued to rule very quiet during the past week as is usual at this season of the year, there being little or no enquiry for horses of any kind and no prospects for anything better in the near future. The receipts at the Montreal exchange for the week ending on Saturday were 189, shipped during the week 132, left for city 16, sales 15, on hand 34. Those left over consisted of good workers and drivers and are now on offer together with two car loads of draught horses, which arrived yesterday, one coming from J. Cowan, Cannington, the other from R. Climie, Listowel. A consignment of 10 English shire stallions was received at these stables last week and forwarded to the owner, J. Bell, of Wooster, Ohio. There were shipped to the States from Montreal during the week ending June 7, 148 horses, valued at $13,615, or about $95 each, in the following lots: 6 horses valued at $477.50, 14 valued at $1,480, 13 valued at $1,242, 12 valued at $1,380, 15 valued at $1,446, 15 valued at $1,720, 17 valued at $1,480, 20 valued at $1,655, 16 valued at $1,645, 8 valued at $500, and 5 valued at $499.

HOW TO BUILD A SILO.

DOMINION DAIRY COMMISSIONER ROBERTSON ON ENSILAGE.

A Very Able Article of Vital Interest to Farmers, Feeders and Dairymen—Practical Advice on Cutting, Curing and Storing Ensilage—Illustrations on Silo Building.

The prejudice against the construction and use of silos is fast disappearing from the minds of observant farmers. The partial failures of some of the first efforts to introduce into this country the ensilage system of preserving fodders, originated a timidity and opposition which are now uncalled for. The causes of those failures are understood, and can be so guarded against, remedied or removed that satisfactory results may be obtained with certainty. In the handling of perishable commodities the damage and loss that may be sustained will be proportionate to the absence of applied knowledge and skill. All rational and successful human effort is the result of some person's accurate observation and clear thinking. A clear knowledge of "how to do it" and the "doing of it" just that way will enable farmers, as well as other men, to cope successfully with the things most difficult to do well. The curing of a crop of fodder corn in the silo is now an easy and invariably satisfactory work to the farmer who follows right directions with reasonable prudence. It used to be stated that there was a loss in the feeding value of fodders when put into or taken from the silo. When the ensilage was partially decayed, of course that was the case; but a similar depreciation of quality and consequent loss in the feeding value would result if the hay, grain and straw were allowed to become rotten in the mows or granaries. The spoiling was and and always is a result from unsuitable conditions or treatments. These the silo is intended to remove and guard against. Let me make clear the use of the new names. A silo is simply an air-tight building, box, tank, compartment or pit, into which fodders in a succulent state are put for curing and preservation. Silage, or as it is sometimes written, ensilage, is the feeding substance after it has been so cured and preserved. Hence, we have corn ensilage, clover ensilage, oats and peas ensilage, etc., etc.

If a silo be erected as a separate structure its foundation may be a low stone or concrete wall, or durable sills treated with tar, or charred to prevent decay from contact with the soil. An earth floor will be cheapest and best. The immediate surroundings of the silo should be drained, to prevent the entrance of water to its floor. The following cuts have been prepared to illustrated the method of construction.

A, Foundation wall; B, Sills; C, Studs, 6 inch x 10 inch or 2 inch x 12 inch, not more than 2 feet apart; D, Lining of inch lumber dressed on one side; E Sheeting of tar-paper, F; Lining of inch lumber dressed on one side; G, Tar-paper; I, Outside siding; H, Strip nailed behind heel of studs; J, 1 inch board 10 inches wide, across the inside corner of the silo and filled behind with sawdust; K, Cut straw on the floor of the silo.

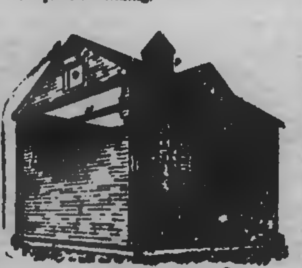
A stone wall of barn; B, Sill; C, stud of silo D, Lining of inch lumber dressed on one side; E, Sheeting of tar-paper; F, Lining of inch lumber dressed on one side; G, Tar paper on the inside of the siding of the barn. H, Strip behind the heel of the studs; I, Siding of the barn; K, Girt; L, Strips 1 inch thick by 4 inches wide, put up and down on the stone wall: M, Inch lumber, tongued and grooved.

FIG. III.

Fig. III. represents an outside silo, erected as a separate building.

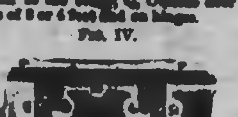


C, Studs; D, Lining on the studs; F, Inside lining of the silo; I, Outside siding; M, Boards of the door to be taken off as the silo is emptied; N, Cross ties, to strengthen the building; O, Openings for the filling of the silo; P, Ventilator; Q, One of the outside doors, on hinges.

Fig. IV. represents a simple method of constructing a door in silo.

C, C, Studs; F, M, The two thicknesses of lumber with tar-paper between, on the inside of the silo, to be sawn through flush with the side of the studs; L, L, Cleats to be nailed on to the studs; Q, Outside door in sections of 3 or 4 feet and on hinges.

FIG. IV.



To preserve the inside lumber, it should receive a coating of crude petroleum, which is much easier of application than coal tar, and seems to leave the ensilage in immediate contact with it in a good condition. I take the following from my last annual report as Professor of Dairy Husbandry at the Ontario Agricultural College, to show the effects on the ensilage from different styles of finishing the inside of a silo;—

"The finish on the inside of the studs was different on each of the four sides of the silo.

"On one side of the silo a lining of inch lumber dressed on one side, was nailed on the studs; this was covered with a sheeting of tar-paper; on the tar-paper was put a lining of inch lumber dressed on one side, tongued and grooved.

"On another side of the silo the construction on the inside of the studs was similar, with only the difference that the inside lining of lumber was not tongued and grooved.

"On the third side of the silo the studs were lined on the inside with tar-paper; on that was nailed horizontally a sheeting of inch lumber, tongued and grooved and dressed on the side next the inside of the silo.

"On the fourth side of the silo the finish on the inside of the studs was made by the use of only one thickness of inch lumber, neither dressed nor tongued and grooved; it was nailed on the studs horizontally.

"The following concise statement may help to make the difference of inside finish, clear to the minds of the readers who have had no experience in silo building.

First side; studs 2 by 10; inch lumber dressed on one side; tar-paper; inch lumber dressed on one side, tongued and grooved.

Second side: studs 2 by 10; inch lumber dressed on one side; tar-paper; inch lumber dressed on one side; but not tongued and grooved.

Third side; studs 2 by 10; tar-paper; inch lumber dressed on one side and tongued and grooved.

Fourth side; studs 2 by 10; inch lumber as it came from the saw.

"The lumber on all sides was put on horizontally. The purpose of the differences in the construction of the sides was to discover the cheapest way of building one that would preserve the silage.

"I may here anticipate by reporting that up to the time of writing, with the exception of a short distance from the top of the silage, there was practically no waste or spoiling against the first, second and third sides. Against the fourth side the silage was decayed or moulded for a space of 4 to 6 inches in from the side, for the first 6 feet from the top of the silage; below that the waste was confined to a space of about 4 inches around the seam between each two boards."

From within 4 feet from the bottom of the silo there was no waste, even close to the seams. If air finds admission through a knot-hole, or crack, or down the sides, from neglect of tramping, or otherwise, after the ensilage is settled, it will carry spores with it and so cause mould and decay.

FILLING A SILO.

Three conditions or treatments seem to be essential to the obtaining of the best quality of ensilage without appreciable waste from fermentation, moulding or decay:—

1. The plants should be grown to a stage almost mature;

2. They should be wilted in the sunlight until the water which they contain is lest than 75 per cent. of the total weight;

3. The ensilage around the sides and in the corners of the silo should be tramped and packed thoroughly while it is being filled.

For the economical filling of a silo, the tools, implements and conveniences should, as far as possible, be adapted to the cheap and easy performance of the work. For the cutting of the corn I prefer and recommend a common corn knife or old-fashioned reaping sickle. A strong reaper may do the work by horse power; but if the crop be heavy and the corn from 10 to 12 feet high, the rakes will not clean the table and stalks will be dragged behind.

A truck or waggon with low wheels and a large platform may be used. A low platform may be put upon the running gear of a common waggon, by hanging the front of it to the under side of the front axle and attaching the back of it to the under side of the back axle. A cheap and convenient platform for such work may be made by placing the ends of two poles 14 or 16 feet long on the front bolster of a common waggon and attaching the other ends of them to the under side of the hind axle by the use of a piece of stout rope. If boards be nailed across on these poles between the front and hind wheels, the platform thus made may be easily loaded and can carry from one to two tons of stalks, if a stake be put in at each corner of it. After the corn is cut, it should be left to wilt for one or two days in small bunches on the ground. It may be filled into a silo without cutting; but more labor would be involved and the work of feeding would be rendered more difficult. Any strong corn or straw-cutter, with capacity for a large quantity per day, will serve the purpose. Carriers should be attached, unless the cutter stands on a level with the top of the silo, which ordinarily is neither practicable nor desirable. Horse power or an engine may be used. From 5 inches to a foot of cut or uncut straw should be spread over the bottom of the silo before the filling is commenced. At the silo, the corn can be fed into the cutter, directly from the wagon platform. The horses may meanwhile be changed from the loaded to an empty waggon. At the cutting box, two men will be required. A 2-inch cut is as good as a shorter one. During the filling, care should be taken to level the heavier parts of the stalks out against the sides of the silo occasionally. The filling may proceed every day, every second day, or every third day, as may be convenient. In any case the contents should be tramped around the sides and in the corners before the addition of a new layer. Though the corn stalks be wet from rain, they may be put into the silo without any damage from that cause.

COVERING THE ENSILAGE.

When it is full, after the lapse of two days, the sides and corners should be thoroughly tramped again, after which the whole surface should be covered with a layer of from 2 to 3 feet deep of any kind of straw, cut or uncut. It should be packed closely around the sides and into the corners; and for that reason cut straw is rather preferable. The ensilage may be left to cure and to keep until wanted, be that time four weeks or ten months. When the ensilage is uncovered for feeding, unless the silo be frost proof overhead, it becomes chilled, and is then not in the best condition for being fed to cattle. That may be guarded against by the putting of movable poles across the top of the silo and the placing of a layer of straw upon them.

A silo 16 by 20 by 18 feet deep, inside measurement, will hold about 100 tons of cut fed corn ensilage.

The Generation of To-Day.

Our elders loved to tell us
  Of days when they were young,
Of all the games they favored,
  Of all the songs they've sung,
As if the generation to-day
Was not as good as the one passed away.

They quote the works of fiction
  That they were won't to read,
And shake their heads at novels,
  On which our brains we feed—
As if the popular books to-day
Were not as good as those passed away.

They tell us how they went courting
  In the good old-fashioned way,
And sigh in disapproval
  Of notions of to-day,
As if our social etiquette
Had room for some improvements yet.

I wonder if we also
  Will talk of bygone days,
And look upon the present
  With very little praise—
If we will shake our heads and sigh
For the generation that's gone by.

Ambitious City Notes.

HAMILTON, June 11.—As Dr. Metherell of Freelton was driving home from the city last evening, the neck yoke became unfastened and the team ran away. The carriage upset and the doctor was thrown out. He is badly injured about the head and hip, and it is thought that he sustained internal injury. He will be laid up for some time, but thinks that his injuries are not serious.

The business of the Niagara Conference was concluded at noon to-day and the Anglican Synod opened, Bishop Hamilton presiding.

Mr. Fred. Skinner, formerly of Hamilton, was killed in a railway accident at Detroit yesterday afternoon. He has a sister living here.

CHEAP, COOL COMFORT!

Summer Bulletin.

WE DEFY OLD SOL TO DO HIS HOTTEST.

The elections are over. Now for business. We've did a rousing trade during May, and swept competition to the wall. Our gigantic stock, marvellous buying, splendid selling and unparalelled value has carried our constituency. GOUGH BROS. are the representatives of the biggest, the best, the peoples Clothing Emporium.

Hot weather is coming as sure as fate, rent or taxes. Then be prepared. Shed your winter clothes and don a summer suit. Select one from our special line of BRITISH COLUMBIA STOCK, bought at a big sacrifice and selling at prices that knock competition into smithereens.

WOREKRS AND THINKERS

Look, Read and Ponder Well.

The desire of all buyers of Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, is to procure Goods of the best quality, providing the price suits the pocket, Gough Bros. has made this possible to persons of the most limited means. Energy and enterprise has been the motive spirit of our business—with this spirit we have defied hard times—thus inspired, we have inaugurated and enlarged and extended our trade until it has outgrown our widest expectations.

We again promise you more and better value for your money than you have ever yet had. Our stock has been well and cheaply bought expressly for our own trade, and those who have visited us during the last two months will admit that we have fully redeemed the pledge when promising the Cheapest Goods ever sold in the town of Peterborough.

Our Stock is fully assorted, and we have not confined the bargains to a few leading lines, relying on the rest to reimburse the loss, but have everything proportionately low. In a word we are determined to surpass every former effort, and make the Gough Bros. Bargains instruments of pleasure.

In Boots and Shoes we lead the Country. In Hats and Caps we beat all Competition.

DAINTY DISHES.

COFFEE BREAD.—To eat in the morning with coffee; (used much by the Germans, who dip it in their coffee.) One-half cupful of sugar, one egg, one cupful of milk, one-half cupful of yeast, enough flour for a sponge. When it is risen, add one-half cupful of butter, worked in with the hand (not kneaded), and flour enough to make it soft, so that it can be patted down into a greased pan to be baked. When it is risen, put little specks of butter over the top, press them down in, and sprinkle sugar and cinnamon over it. Bake in a quick oven—twenty minutes when the oven is right. Serve cold. Cut in strips about an inch wide, for breakfast or lunch.

TENDER CHICKENS cooked in the following way are as good as if they were broiled: Open them in the back, season and put them in a baking-pan, with a little water in it. Turn another pan over it, and bake for an hour and a half or two hours according to the size. If they are not brown enough when nearly done take off the upper pan. Cut off the neck before putting in the oven, and boil it along with the giblets in half a pint of water. Take the bones out of the neck; cut that, the gizzard and heart into fine pieces. Mash the liver with a spoon, and add them all, with the water in which they were boiled, to the gravy.

COLD SLAW.—Chop finely some tender white cabbage. Let it lay in water half an hour before using. Drain all the water from it. To about three cupfuls of cabbage add a tablespoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one of French mustard or of mixed mustard. After mixing well together two well-beaten eggs in a cupful of boiling vinegar, a little cayenne and a tablespoonful of butter. Pour this over the cabbage, toss well together and serve.

COLD LEMON PUDDING.—One-half box of gelatine soaked in four tablespoonfuls of water for ten minutes; add a pint of boiling water, juice of two lemons, one cupful of sugar. Strain and set away to cool. When cold, stir in the whites of three well-beaten eggs. A thin boiled custard or thick cream may be used to pour over the pudding.

Election Guesses.

The Hastings Star had a guessing contest, the persons making the best guess as to the result of the elections in East Peterborough and East Northumberland receiving a prize. It is somewhat peculiar that the nearest guess to Dr. Willoughby's majority in East Northumberland was made by a gentleman in Jacinto, California, Mr. P. Coughlan of that place being the lucky winner. Miss Mary O'Reilly, of Norwood, came nearest to Mr. Blezard's majority, she having guessed 81, while the majority was 79. There were two guesses of a majority of one for Mr. Blezard, one of them being made by Mr. T. Fraser, of Norwood.

TWO YEARS IN THE CENTRAL.

Thos. Beaumont's Term for Stealing a Watch and Locket.

Thos. Beaumont's term as guest of Warden Massie in Toronto was considerably extended yesterday afternoon, and instead of getting free on the 27th of July next, as he expected, he will have to remain in the Central Prison until June, 1892.

He was sentenced last January for assaulting Mrs. McNevin, of Otonabee, and stealing a fur cap from Mr. Wm. Stewart, of the same town. This time the charge against him was for stealing a watch and locket from Mr. John Hatherly, also of Otonabee. He had stayed all night at Hatherly's and afterwards the watch and locket were missed. It was suspected that Beaumont had taken them and the articles were found in his possession. This was the case as presented by the prosecution, but in the cross-examination of Mrs. Hatherly it was brought out that Beaumont had represented to her that he was skilled in medicine and his story, as told by his attorney, was that the articles had been given to him by her.

The jury, however, quite naturally believed the evidence of Mrs. Hatherly and Beaumont was found guilty. In sentencing him Judge Weller said that he agreed with the finding of the jury. If he had represented himself to Mrs. Hatherly as a physician, the judge said, and had thus imposed upon her, he was also liable to be charged with indecent assault, an offence for which he could be whipped, and he (the Judge) would have the County Attorney make enquiries regarding him and he might be brought back again on that charge. It would be will for him to mind his ps and qs, both while serving his sentence and afterwards, for this charge would be hanging over him. He was then sentenced to two years, less one day, in the Central Prison, the unexpired portion of the term he was serving when he was brought down to be a part of the present sentence.

The gaol athorities here were glad that a guard was present to take Beaumont back to Toronto, for he was troublesome while in their charge before and they did not want to keep him any longer than they could help. The guard said that he had served a previous term in the Central and that he also gave trouble there.

Six Months for Vagrancy.

Lawrence Hill was charged at the Police Court this morning with having no visible means of support and was sentenced to six months in gaol at hard labor. He protested that he was not able to perform hard labor, as he had a sore shoulder, and the Magistrate's suggestion that "the soft stones" would be selected for him to break did not allay his fears. However, he will probably find the shelter on the hill better than none at all.

Now

That the time for summer vacation is approaching is it not well to look about and see where you are going to spend it to the best advantage. It is human nature to want to spend it pleasantly and profitably. It has been said "a change is better than a rest" and therefore in making your plans had you not better become a student again and spend a month or two in the useful and beautiful penmanship and art. Excellent advantages are offered in the Peterborough Business College during the vacation at low rates. College hours during the cool of the day. For particulars address Principal Geo. S. Bean, B.A.
2d136 Peterborough.

Divine Healing.

Mrs. Scults, from New York, will address the meeting of the Christian Alliance this evening in the Y.M.C.A. hall at 8 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Schultz have charge of the New York Mission Training College, where students in the doctrines of the Alliance are trained, and are closely associated with Dr. Simpson's work at Baracha Home, a place where persons worn out physically go to learn the scriptual teaching in regard to divine healing. Mrs. Schultz will give information regarding the Home, Training College and the Alliance work generally. To-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and again in the evening at 8 o'clock she will address meetings at the same place. All these meetings are open to the public.

The Marmora Suicide.

The Belleville Intelligencer says:—"We have been furnished with further particulars in reference to the suicide of the man Lawrence, living in the township of Marmora, which sad occurrence took place on Saturday night. It appears that he had been ailing for many years with dyspepsia and at times he would become down-hearted, and on two or three occasions made threats to do away with himself, and had once before made an attempt on his life without accomplishing his purpose. The facts of the case were communicated to Dr. Sutton, coroner, but no inquest was thought necessary and he gave orders for the burial of the body. Peter Davis, the condemned murderer, was informed of the death, by suicide, of Thomas Lawrence, of the township of Marmora, a man whom the prisoner well knew and who gave evidence against him at his trial in April last. Davis for the first time since his incarceration exhibited emotion upon receiving the intelligence. He buried his face in his hands and remained in that position for some minutes. Upon uncovering his face tears were perceived to be in his eyes and trickling down his face. He did not speak for some time, and when he did he only protested his innocence of the crime of which he is charged. He insinuates that there was a conspiracy entered into to kill Wm. Emory and that he knew who the guilty party was."

THE ANGLICAN SYNOD.

A Day of Reports and Routine—Rev. John Langtry and the Separate Schools.

TORONTO, June 12.—The Anglican Synod resumed proceedings morning at Holy Trinity schoolhouse with the Bishop as presiding officer. The day was spent principally in receiving reports.

The Chancellor brought in the report on the contested seats, and it was found that as to 27 parishes returns had not been made, and as to 23 parishes they had not paid their assessment in full, and so were disfranchised. Subsequently, under the resolution of the preceding day, 13 parishes became enfranchised by arranging a settlement with the secretary-treasurer.

The Chancellor drew attention to a letter from the officers of the Dominion Alliance asking that the Synod appoint four delegates to attend an alliance meeting on Aug. 14 and 15. This communication provoked a lively discussion, and Col. Robert Denison and Rev. John Carry poured out the vial of their wrath upon the heads of the alliance officers. Rural Dean Allen moved that the communication be courteously replied to. The motion carried.

Rev. Rural Dean Langtry sent up a lengthy notice of motion setting forth objectionable features of the present separate school system and resolving that:

"This Synod do petition the Government of Ontario to adopt such legislation as will secure to every Christian denomination in the country the privileges which these ministers evidently thought they already possessed, and will also secure to them equal rights with their Roman Catholic fellow-citizens in regard to the religious education of their children; that this synod invites the synods and assemblies of the different denominations now meeting or about to meet to appoint delegates for the purpose of agreeing upon as wide a basis of Christian teaching as may be, with a view of urging the Government of Ontario to make the same a necessary part of the curriculum of every public school in the land."

Mr. Alfred B. Lamb sent up a notice of motion to consider the advisability of devising a scheme for erecting a building in which the business of the diocese could be carried on.

The report of the Executive Committee was read by the lay secretary, also the reports of various committees. They were adopted.

Personal.

A Lad's Painful Fall.

George Dormer, a young son of Mr. John Dormer, of Ashburnham, was playing in the school yard in the village yesterday and when running fell violently to the ground. He put out his right arm to save himself and both bones of the arm were broken below the elbow. Dr. Clarke was called and set the fracture.

A box of Ayer's Pills has saved many a fit of sickness. When a remedy does not happen to be within reach, people are liable to neglect slight ailments and, of course, if serious illness follows they have to suffer the consequences. "A stitch in time saves nine."

A Committee Meeting.

All the members of the joint committee which has charge of the Oddfellows excursion to Jacob's Island on Tuesday next are requested to attend a meeting of the committee to-night, and members of both lodges are also asked to be present. The tickets for the excursion were received today.

Dominion Day Celebration at Port Hope.

This year's programme for the celebration of Dominion Day in Port Hope is the best ever presented by that town. It comprises Aquatic Sports, Athletic Sports, Grand Horse Races, Baseball Match and other sports during the day. In the evening there will be a Magnificent Display of Fireworks, Balloon Ascensions, &c. We would strongly advise our readers to make their arrangements to spend Dominion in Port Hope. The programme there is always fully carried out. Any information desired can be obtained by writing W. E. BRAMISH, Secretary of Committee. d120

"For a long time I had no appetite, was restless at night, and very much debilitated. After taking two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla my strength and appetite returned, and my health was completely restored."—D. M. Fisher, Oswego, N. Y.

Accident at Havelock.

Last Tuesday evening a very painful accident befell Mr. Geo. Newton, who was endeavoring to move a carload of coal, and by which he may lose his leg, says the Campbellford Herald. He with his mate were moving a car of coal, starting it with a pinch bar, when Newton in trying to get on the car after it had been moved far enough to put on the brakes, missed his hold and slipped, falling across the track before the moving car. The wheel ran against his thigh and rested almost on top of it, while Mr. Hubel took the pinch bar and moved the car away. His thigh bone was badly fractured and the flesh was badly injured surrounding the fracture; also there were two large flesh wounds. He was made as comfortable as possible and conveyed to the Toronto General Hospital by a special train, the Rev. J. J. Rae accompanying him. His leg, although so badly crushed, is very likely to be saved. He was doing well at last reports.

Hymeneal.

Last evening at 6.30 o'clock an interesting ceremony took place in the Charlotte-st. Methodist church, when Mr. H. W. Stock, of A. Mercer & Co's, was married to Miss Coosie Cook, formerly of Georgetown. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. J. Shorey, who came from the Conference at Cobourg for that purpose, and was witnessed by a large gathering of friends of the parties. Miss Annie Cook, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Thos. Barrie assisted the groom. The bride was attired in a travelling dress, and immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left for Rochester and will spend a week in the cities of New York State. The bride received a large number of beautiful presents, tangible testimony of the esteem in which she is held by her friends in Peterborough. Mr. Stock is a popular young man, and he and his bride will receive many hearty wishes for a long and happy life, in which the REVIEW cordially joins. Mr. and Mrs. Stock upon their return will reside in Aldridge's terrace on Stewart-st.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

The 'Prentice Boys.

At the meeting of the Grand Lodge of 'Prentice Boys at Brockville the following officers were elected:—J. S. Jackson, Toronto, G.M.; R. H. Ketcheson, Belleville, S. D. G.M.; F. W. Edwards, Kingston, J.D.G.M.; W. J. Sloan, Peterborough, G. Chaplain; M. A. Jamieson, Peterborough Lodge, G. Secretary; J. Billinghurst, Toronto, G. Treasurer; A. E. Hinch, Camden East, A.G.S.; G. E. Kerr, Brockville, G.L.; D.R. Ward, Renfrew, A.G.L.; H. Bell, Lindsay, G. D. of C.; W. J. Huff, Deseronto, G. T.; Wm. Pierce, Toronto, D.D.G.M.; A. M. Ketcheson, Belleville, D. D. G. M.; Charles Riley, Kingston, D.D.G.M.; S.A. Logan, Brockville, D. D. G. M. In striking the standing committees Peterborough representatives were placed on the following committees:—Correspondence, W.J. Sloan; Finance, M.A. Jamieson; Suspensions and Expulsions, W.J. Sanders. The meeting closed last night with a banquet and the Peterborough delegates returned this morning.

Forestry Statistics.

At the meeting of the High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters at Kingston High Chief Ranger Edward Lowe presented a lengthy report, giving a synopsis of the work performed by him in his responsible office during the year. During the year the death claims numbered 58. The High Secretary, Thos. White, of Brantford, reported 10,293 members, an increase of 1,657; courts organized, 51, Ontario leading. Since he began his work three years ago the order had doubled. Peace and harmony prevailed and a spirit of loyalty and enterprise was manifestly showing itself. John Neelands, Wingham, High Treasurer, on the endowment fund account had received $75,277.08, interest on deposits $3,534.48, and with $616 95 transferred from the endowment expense account and a balance of $80,205.51 on hand last year, made a grand total of $159,614. Claims to the amount of $51,600 had been paid and the balance on hand, $108,014, was deposited in various financial concerns. The receipts of the general fund were $15,921.39, and the expenditure $13,132 64. Balance on hand, $1,788.75. Dr. Stanley, of Watford, chairman of the medical board, reported that 3,273 applications had been made—741 over any previous year. Of this number 3,018 were accepted and 255 rejected. The deaths numbered 52. Dr. J. S. Gray, of Winnipeg, was commended for his work as medical referee for the Northwest. He had examined 581, accepted 532 and rejected 49.

CHARMING AWAY WARTS.

Several Sure Cures if Your Faith Holds Out.

"Warts!" ejaculated the oracle to the presiding member of the oyster-cracker convention in a Main street grocery store in Lewiston Saturday. "I've had 'em. Yes, sir, I've had 'em, but I charmed 'em away." After this statement the members of the convention fell into silence, considering the departed warty days of youth. "If a man will write down the number of warts he has on his hands on the hat band of a tramp without the tramp knowing it, the latter will carry the warts away with him," suggested George William, the elderly oracle on warts, after a long silence. "Warts used to give in," he continued, "when you cut one notch on a green alder stick for every wart you had and then rubbed the stick on each wart and then buried it in the barnyard until it rots. That fixes 'em. Take a black snail, rub him on the warts and then stick him on a thorn bush. Do this nine successive nights and the snails and the warts will be dead together." "Chalk marks on the stove funnel used to fix my warts," said the chairman of the meeting. "Get 'em on when nobody could see you and when they disappeared the warts went too. This used to get sort of mixed when my mother saw the chalk marks and wiped 'em off. When I used to see a funeral go by unexpectedly I used to rub the warts up and down and say, 'Warts and corpses pass away and never more return.' That was intended to fix 'em." "Charming warts was the popular way in my day," said the minister. "A man of elderly mien and sad features was the king of the charmers. I went to him surreptitiously one day and he looked me in the eyes and said something that sounded like "Webbly, gobbly, gum,' and a lot more of the same interesting description. I've forgotten whether the warts went or not. We used to think that to take as many pebbles as we had warts, touch them to the excrescences, sew them in a bag, take them to the corners of the cross-roads and throw the bag over the left shoulder, would do the business. The only bad feature of this was that if any person should find the bag and open it he would reap the warty treasure of the bag."—Lewiston Dispatch.

All the Town on a Two-days' Spree

Dr. H. C. Sutton of Rome, N. Y., was telling some acquaintance in the Leland rotunda one evening about a big spree in which an entire town in British Guiana participated.

"A few weeks ago," said the Doctor, "I landed at Georgetown, Demerara, during a Southern cruise, and was there two days without seeing a person not 'loaded with a jag.' There might have been some sober folk in that little warm town, but I did not see them. The cause of the spectacular spree was the sale of liquor at an extremely low price. The Excise Board refused to renew the license of the Bengal Tiger rum shop in Robb street, and the owner had but four days to dispose of his stock. He announced that he would sell his goods at less than cost. The love of the common people of the West Indies for rum is proverbial, and it is needless to say that they appreciate cheap rum. As soon as it was known that a pint of white rum was being sold for sixpence and a quart for a shilling the people crowded into the shop, and the excited rush was almost a riot.

"The news was spread over the land and customers came from all directions, the stream of people increasing as the news extended. Finally the mob was so noisy that the entire police department was called out to regulate the traffic. The people seemed to think it would show a lack of gratitude not to drink at such a low price, and they did their best to get rid of the stock. The Government allows a citizen to buy only one quart at a time, or some one would have purchased the entire establishment at once. For two days the riot kept up, and from the start the whole town was on a big spree. It was the strangest sight I ever witnessed or ever heard of, and it seemed barbarous to me, for I was all alone in my soberness."—Chicago Tribune.

KINGS IN DANGER.

"Uneasy Lies the Head That Wears a Crown."

"The crowned heads of Europe are having a great deal of trouble in these days, not only from the cares of royalty, but also from bodily ailments," says the Medical Record. The Czar of Russia is melancholy and his nerves are terribly shattered. His wife is even worse and is subject to attacks of intense nervous prostration. The Emperor of Austria, in consequence of the suicide and the sad circumstances attending the death of his son, is a melancholy, nervous, heart-broken man, while the Empress is said to be a martyr to sciatica and melancholia. The King of Holland is paying the horrible penalty of a dissipated life. The King of Italy suffers from chronic dyspepsia.

The list might be continued still further, but this is enough to show that nervous diseases are alarmingly prevalent at the present day. In our own country we daily hear of the death of some prominent person from heart failure, paralysis, or other fatal disorder, directly traceable to the shattered nerves that result from overwork and over-worry. In this city there are hundreds of men and women who are suffering from peculiar depression of spirits, anguish of mind, and gloomy forebodings, while headaches, disordered digestion, and poor sleep are a few of the bodily ailments with which they suffer. They are nervous, excitable, irritable, and morbidly fearful of coming evil. The muscles are wasted, and there is a general sense of weakness and lack of ambition. The skin is sallow, and perhaps is marked with unsightly eruptions. Instead of being cheerful and contented, they are morose, fretful and easily inclined to take offence. Loss of appetite, failure of strength, general debility are common, while perhaps a dull and heavy ache right across the back, makes the patient think himself a victim of serious kidney diseases.

All of these grave troubles are the result of weakened, overstrained nerves, and can be readily cured by the use of Paine's Celery Compound. It will give strength to the nerves, tone to the brain, and infuse new vitality, vigor, and ambition. The muscles will be strong, the step brisk, and appetite will return. Aches and pains will be no more, sleep will be restful and refreshing, and the patient will be in better condition for work than in many years.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

The Daily Review.

THURSDAY, JUNE 12, 1890.

THE COWARD'S DEATH.

Why did his heart fall to beating so madly at each of the well known noises of his chamber? When the clock was about to strike, the little grinding sound of the spring which stands erect caused him to give a start; and for several seconds after that he was obliged to open his mouth to breathe, he remained so much oppressed.

He set himself to reasoning with himself upon the possibility of this thing:

"Shall I be afraid?"

No, certainly not, he would not be afraid, because he was resolute to go to the end, because he had his will firmly fixed to fight and not to tremble. But he felt so deeply troubled that he asked himself:

"Can a man be afraid in spite of him?"

And this doubt invaded him, this uneasiness, this dread. If some force stronger than his will, if some commanding and irrestible power, should conquer him, what would happen? He should certainly appear upon the field, since he willed to do it. But if he trembled! But if he fainted! And he thought of his situation, of his reputation, of his name.

And a curious necessity seized him on a sudden to get up again and look at himself in the mirror. He relit his candle. When he perceived his face reflected in the polished glass he hardly recognized himself, and it seemed to him that he had never seen this man before. His eyes appeared enormous; and he was pale, surely he was pale, very pale.

He remained upright before the mirror. He put out his tongue as if to test the state of his health, and all on a sudden this thought entered into him after the fashion of a bullet:

"The day after tomorrow, at this time, I shall perhaps be dead."

And his heart began again to beat furiously.

"The day after tomorrow, at this time, I shall perhaps be dead. This person before me, this 'I' which I see in this glass, will exist no longer. What, here I am, I am looking at myself, I feel myself to live, and in twenty-four hours I shall be laid to rest upon this couch, dead, my eyes shut, cold, inanimate, gone."

He turned towards his bed and he distinctly saw himself extended on the back in the same sheets which he had just left. He had the hollow face which dead men have, and that slackness to the hands which will never stir more.

So he grew afraid of his bed, and, in order not to look at it again, he passed into his smoking-room. He took a cigar mechanically, lit it, and again began to walk the room. He was cold; he went towards the bell to wake his valet; but he stopped, his hand lifted towards the bell-rope:

"That fellow will see that I am afraid."

And he did not ring; he made the fire himself. When his hands touched anything, they trembled slightly, with a nervous shaking. His head wandered; his troubled thoughts became fugitive, sudden, melancholy; an intoxication seized on his spirit as if he had been drunk.

And ceaselessly he asked himself:

"What shall I do? What will become of me?"

His whole body vibrated, jerky tremblings ran over it; he got up, and approaching the window, he opened the curtains.

The day was coming, a day of summer. The rosy sky made rosy the city, the roofs, and the walls. A great fall of tenuous light, like a caress from the rising sun, enveloped the awakened world; and with this glimmer, a hope gay, rapid, brutal, seized on the heart of the viscount! Was he mad to let himself be so struck down by fear, before anything had even been decided, before his seconds had seen those of this George Lamil, before he yet knew if he was going to fight at all!

He made his toilet, dressed himself, and left the house with a firm step.

He repeated to himself, while walking:

"I must be decided, very decided. I must prove that I am not afraid."

His seconds, the marquis and the colonel, put themselves at his disposition, and after having pressed his hands energetically, discussed the conditions of the meeting.

The colonel asked:

"You want a serious duel?"

The viscount answered:

"Very serious!"

The marquis took up the word:

"You insist on pistols?"

"Yes."

"Do you leave us free to settle the rest?"

The viscount articulated with a dry, jerky voice:

"Twenty paces, firing at the word, lifting the arm instead of lowering it. Exchange of shots until some one is badly wounded."

The colonel declared, in a satisfied tone:

"Those are excellent conditions. You are a good shot; the chances are all in your favor."

And they separated. The viscount returned home to wait for them. His agitation, which had been temporarily calmed, was now increasing with every moment. He felt along his arms, along his legs, in his chest, a kind of quivering, a kind of continuous vibration; he could not stay in one place, neither sitting down nor standing up. He had no longer a trace of moisture in his mouth, and he made at every instant a noisy movement of the tongue as if to unglue it from his palate.

He tried to take his breakfast, but he could not eat. Then he thought of drinking in order to give himself courage, and had a decanter of rum brought to him, from which he gulped down, one after another, six little glasses.

A warmth, like a burn, seized on him. It was followed as soon by a giddiness of the soul. He thought:

"I know the way. Now it will go all right."

But at the end of an hour he had emptied the decanter, and his state of agitation was become again intolerable. He felt a wild necessity to roll upon the ground, to try to bite. Evening fell.

The sound of the door-bell caused him such a feeling of suffocation that he had not the strength to rise and meet his seconds.

He did not dare to talk to them any longer—to say "How do you do?" to pronounce a single word, for fear lest they divine all from the alteration in his voice.

The colonel said:

"Everything is settled according to the conditions which you fixed. Your opponent at first insisted on the privileges of the offended party, but he yielded almost immediately, and has agreed to everything. His seconds are two officers."

The viscount said:

"Thank you."

The marquis resumed:

"Excuse us if we only just run in and out, but we've still a thousand things to do. We must have a good doctor, because the duel is not to stop until after some one is badly hit, and you know there is no trifling with bullets. A place must be appointed near some house, where we can carry the wounded one of the two, if it is necessary, etc.; it will take us quite 24 hours more."

The viscount articulated a second time:

"Thank you."

The colonel asked:

"You're all right? You're calm?"

"Yes, quite calm, thanks."

The two men retired.

When he felt himself alone again it seemed to him that he was going mad. His servant having lit the lamps, he sat down before his table to write some letters. After tracing at the top of a page, "This is my will," he got up again and drew off, feeling incapable of putting two ideas together, of taking a single resolution, of deciding anything at all.

And so he was going to fight a duel. He could no longer escape that. What could be passing within him? He wanted to fight, he had that intention and that resolution firmly fixed; and he felt very plainly that, notwithstanding all the effort of his mind and all the tension of his will, he would not be able to retain strength enough to go as far as the place of the encounter. He tried to fancy the combat, his own attitude, and the bearing of his adversary.

From time to time his teeth struck against one another in his mouth with a little dry noise. He tried to read, and took up de Chateauvillard's dueling code. Then he asked himself:

"My adversary, has he frequented the shooting galleries? Is he well known? What's his class? How can I find out?"

He remembered the book by Baron de Vaux, upon pistol-shooters, and he searched through it from one end to the other. George Lamil was not mentioned. But, however, if the man had not been a good shot, he would not have accepted immediately that dangerous weapon and those conditions, which were mortal.

His pistol case, by Gastinne Renette, lay on a little round table. As he passed he opened it and took out one of the pistols, then placed himself as if to shoot, and raised his arm; but he trembled from head to foot, and the barrel shook in all directions.

Then he said:

"It is impossible. I cannot fight like this."

At the end of the barrel he regarded that little hole, black and deep, which spits out death; he thought of dishonor, of the whisperers in the clubs, of the laughter in the drawing-rooms, of the disdain of women, of the allusions in the papers, of the insults which would be thrown at him by cowards.

He went on staring at the pistol, and raising the hammer, he suddenly saw a priming glitter beneath it like a little red flame. The pistol had been left loaded, by chance, by oversight.

If in the presence of his adversary he had not the calm and noble bearing which is fit, he would be lost forever. He would be spotted, marked with a sign of infamy, hunted from society. And he should not have that calm and bold bearing; he knew it, he felt it. And yet he was really brave, because he wanted to fight. He was brave because—at that moment there was a sharp report.

When his valet ran in, attracted by the report, he found him dead, on his back. A large drop of blood had fallen on the white paper on the table and made a great red stain below the four words:

"This is my will."

PLEURO-PNEUMONIA.

Brooklyn Officials Raid Long Island Farms—Hand-to-Hand Fights.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The stringent measures adopted by the Secretary of Agriculture to stamp out pleuro-pneumonia in cattle from its last stronghold in the counties of Kings and Queens on Long Island have created tremendous excitement and aroused the dairymen into rebellion. It is understood Secretary Rusk has received private intimation that unless this disease be extirpated a severe quarantine will be proclaimed by England against the importation of American cattle. This would paralyze one of the most important branches of American industry and result in incalculable loss to western cattle raisers.

Last week Secretary Rusk spent two days in New York and impressed upon Government Agent Smith and Dr. Robertson, chief inspector, the necessity of gathering in and killing all cattle diseased or exposed. A great raid was therefore executed by these two gentlemen at the head of a large posse of the bureau employes. The dairymen launched paving stones, brickbats and other missiles upon the invaders, hand to hand encounters took place and in some instances pistols were drawn. Some herds were so strongly defended that the bureau forces were unable to capture them. Next day the headquarters of the bureau in Brooklyn were in a state of siege. Dairymen and dairy women joined in a chorus of execration and denunciation. Some had obtained writs of replevin, which were practically useless, because all the captured cattle had been slaughtered.

It is understood there will be other raids. All cattle condemned by the veterinary inspectors are appraised and the owners are paid for them by the Government. During the last four months 1046 cattle, of which 263 were diseased and 783 exposed to the disease, have been slaughtered by the bureau.

FOUND DROWNED.

An Escaped Lunatic Meets His Fate in Lake Sagamite.

QUEBEC, June 11.—Dr. Belleau, district coroner, held an inquest this morning on the body of the man who was discovered dead and floating in Lake Sagamite, which empties into Lake St. Charles, last week. The body was identified as being the remains of Onesime Perron, aged 40 years, an escaped patient from the Beauport Insane Asylum. The deceased was a farmer and a native of the parish of St. Albans, County of Portneuf. In the year 1882 he became insane and was conveyed to the Beauport Asylum, from whence he escaped during the month of October last. The asylum authorities kept the matter very quiet, for the police knew nothing of the unfortunate man being missing.

Last week a farmer named Jean Bedard, accompanied by his son from the River Jeaune, went to Lake Sagamite to fish, when they discovered the body of the deceased floating in a terrible state of decomposition. They immediately informed the authorities, when the body was brought to town. An open verdict was found by the jury that deceased was found drowned. Notwithstanding that when found the deceased wore the clothes of the asylum the officials refused to bury it on the ground that the law did not oblige them to do so after 15 days' absence from the institution, consequently the Government will have to bear the expense of burial. The unfortunate man must have inhabited the precincts of the lake where his body was found since his escape from the asylum, because the traces of bush fires have been discovered in many places. When found he had a penknife and lamp wick in one of the pockets of the clothes he wore.

Ladies' Championship Tennis.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—This was the second day of the annual tennis tournament for the ladies' championship of the United States, given on the Wissahickon cricket grounds. The attendance was over 1000. All the events were pushed toward completion, but the only one finished was the all-comers' match in ladies' singles which was won by Miss Roosevelt of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., who defeated Miss Voorhees of Bergen Point, N. J., in the final round. This gives Miss Roosevelt the right to meet Miss Townsend of Philadelphia, the present champion of the United States, in the match for the championship to-morrow afternoon.

New York in Darkness.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Lightning struck the Manhattan Electric Light Co's works to-night and caused a fire which did $40,000 damage. Many switchboards and dynamos were destroyed. A large section of the upper part of the city will now be in darkness until Saturday.

THEY WENT WITHOUT MUSIC.

Because British Troops Wouldn't Look Well Under the Stars and Stripes.

KINGSTON, June 11.—By special permission of the Government the American steamer St. Lawrence was permitted to call at Canadian ports to-day without calling at American ports alternately. This was to accommodate the excursion under the auspices of the Canadian Order of Foresters. The band of "A" Battery was engaged by the Mayor to accompany the excursion, but when Col. Cotton observed that the boat was flying the Stars and Stripes he refused to allow the bandsmen to go on board on the ground that it would not look well to see British troops in uniform on a steamer carrying the United States flag. The captain refused to haul down the banner and the excursion had to forego its musical attraction.

How Horseradish is Grown.

Near large cities vast quantities of this plant are grown, and usually as a crop to follow others put in early. For example, it may be placed between the rows of early cabbage, which will give the rows the same distance apart as the cabbage—two or three feet—the roots being fifteen to eighteen inches apart in the rows. The planting is performed by making holes ten to twelve inches deep by a planting stick or light crowbar. A piece of root is dropped into each hole, leaving the top two or three inches below the surface. By having the roots below the surface no injury is effected by hoeing over in the early growth of the cabbage. And by the time of the last hoeing of the cabbage the horse-radish begins to show top-growth, and when the cabbage comes off, has the ground to itself. It is a crop that requires but little after-attention, except to keep down the weeds by the entire summer, and it usually well repays when the crop is taken off.

Of course any early crop ground is as good as the cabbage quarter, the only feature is to have such a crop as will come off any in July. By growing this way, one summer suffices to give good, stout, clear roots, and is a far better way to grow, even for family use, than the old one of having the horseradish in some neglected corner to plant itself, and dig as wanted. Such roots are gnarly and small, and of no use as a marketable product nowadays. For house use the aim should be to grow only the best.—Prairie Farmer.

Hidebound Cows.

The trouble named "hide-bound" arises from derangement of digestion, poor feeding, or overwork. Take Barbadoes aloes half oz; calomel, half dr.; Jamaica ginger, 2 drs; powdered gentian, 4 drs. Mix in a solution of gum arabic and divid into three pills. Give one of these night and morning until the bowels are relaxed. Then mix in the feed every night and morning nux vomica, 15 grs; powdered ginger, half dr; powdered gentian, half dr; powdered golden seal, half dr. A drachm of powdered sulphate of iron may be given at noon daily with advantage. Let the cow be examined carefully also for vermin, and if any are discovered smear the skin all over with lard oil and wash off clean with soap and water after twenty-four hours.

The Largest Grain Elevator.

The largest grain elevator in the world was built at Minneapolis Junction in 1886. The building is 336 feet long, 93 feet wide and 175 feet high. It has storing capacity for 2,000,000 bushels of grain with its walls. During its constuction the carpenters and joiners used over 6,500,000 feet of lumber of all kinds, besides 32 car loads of nails, which, if packed, would make the enormous amount of 10,000 common kegs: the best calculators say that the actual number of nails used in the mighty building will fall but few, if any, under 20,000,000! The engine used is capable of handling 175,000 to 250,000 bushels of grain per day, or enough during the year to equal the combined productions of the State of Minnesota and the two Dakotas. Two hundred and fifty cars have often been loaded at this elevator in ten hours.—St. Louis Republic.

Dashaway—I saw you walking on the street yesterday with your trousers turned up. Don't you know that isn't the proper thing now?

Cleverton—It is when you only have one pair of trousers.—Clothier and Furnisher.

Dry Goods News at

TURNBULL'S

Another week has brought us many bargains. The first one we will mention is in the Dress Goods Department. We have opened out new Silk-warp Henriettas in black and colors at 60c. and 75c. a yard. Never mind how or where we got them. Those who want fine silk-warp henriettas for the price of wool materials will now know where to go.

We are showing three special lines in Union Carpets at 40, 50 and 60c. a yard. Remember where you have heard of cheap carpets.

Those who have bought the 5½ and 7½ Check Chambrays have found out that what we said about them was true—that they wash beautifully—and they are now coming back for quantities. Remember these goods are selling at just half their value.

The Silk Taffeta and Lace Gloves we are selling at 25c. a pair are startlers.

Mothers, you should see our Heavy Ribbed Cotton Hose for boys. They will recommend themselves to your judgment for durability.

Ladies, do not buy black hose that stain when you can get perfectly stainless ones at Turnbull's.

The rush is on us now in our Tailoring Department and no wonder. Our stock of Tweeds and Worsteds are very choice. We propose and are repeatedly told that we do sell clothing made to order cheaper than any other house in Peterborough.

Our Millinery stock is constantly changing hands. If you have seen our stock of hats last week do not expect to find it the same this week, as we are always receiving new and desirable shapes and trimmings. As the season advances prices always decline in the wholesale millinery stocks, so look out for bargains at Turnbull's Millinery for the balance of the season.

THE COLONY'S CASE.

A LEGISLATIVE ADDRESS TO THE QUEEN ADOPTED.

Newfoundland's Parliament Prorogued—Governor O'Brien Makes No Direct Allusion to the Fisheries Trouble—An Interview with the Premier.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 12.—The House of Assembly was prorogued yesterday afternoon with all the impressive ceremonies attending the prorogation of the Imperial Houses of Parliament. It was a sort of London done in miniature. Governor O'Brien in a formal speech of dismissal thanked the delegates, alluded to questions of peculiar delicacy and matters of vast interest to the colony's future which came before them, but made no direct allusion to the fisheries troubles.

One of the last acts of the House of Assembly was to agree upon the address to the Queen on the French fishery aggressions. This is a very strong remonstrance with the Imperial Government against the encroachments of the French on the west coast. It makes an emphatic protest against the French being permitted to fish for lobsters on the ground that this was not contemplated in the treaty, and does a great injury to the colony's interests, because they are not permitted to erect more lobster factories under the modus vivendi.

The modus vivendi is criticised altogether. The point insisted on is the colony's right to legislate for the French shore, which the French deny. Great indignation is expressed because Great Britain's right to the sovereignty of her own soil is virtually conceded to the French. Attention is called to the treaties as merely giving French concurrent rights to fish with British subjects, not an exclusive right, and the use of the strand during the fishing season only for the purpose of drying their fish. Codfish only was contemplated at the time of the treaty, not lobsters.

The address shows how the treaty operates to prevent the settlement and development of the valuable country adjacent to the French shore and claims that the French assumption of right to prevent access to develop the interior of the country is entirely unwarranted. The French have no right to prevent the erection of permanent structures on the shore, except fish houses, under the treaty. The French have committed repeated violations of the treaty in permitting the Island of St. Pierre to become a nest of smugglers.

The next mail to England will take the address to the Queen.

Sir William Whiteway, the Premier, when asked his opinion as to the effect the address would have on the Imperial Government, shrugged his shoulders and said:

"It is impossible to say. We have been appealing for years to the home country for a remedy without much effect, but the present remonstrance is very strong and might convince the colonial office that affairs are rapidly growing unbearable."

It is admitted that the bait act this season is a failure so far as being a retaliation on the French is concerned, because the act is not enforced. It is very difficult to prevent the smuggling of bait across to St. Pierre from Placentia Bay, only about 15 miles distant, but Sir William Whiteway said that if the bait law could be enforced by a patrol of fast cruisers it might do a great deal to induce the French to sell out their rights. Arbitration is the only remedy short of war, which is not at all likely. The difficulty is to get France to consent to arbitrate.

THEY BROKE UP IN A ROW.

THE CABLE FIEND TELLS ALL ABOUT THE TORY CAUCUS.

Salisbury's Program Condemned—The Defiant Attitude of the Postal and Police Employes Complicates Matters—A Serious Split in the Party Threatened.

LONDON, June 12.—Everything points to the certainty that the Conservative caucus at the Carlton Club to-day ended in a row. Upon the questions of procedure and the advisability of shelving one or another of the important bills, now in various stages of parliamentary advancement, not only the Cabinet but the unofficial leaders of the Tory party, as well as the voting contingent of the ministry in the House of Commons, have for some time past been divided in opinion, while the pressure of the constituencies upon their representatives, also variously directed, has increased. To-day's caucus, it was asserted by the dictators of the ministerial policy, would restore harmony, but the bitter discussion which characterised the conference and the failure of the meeting to reach any definite conclusion denotes a widening of the breach to an extent threatening hopeless division in the ranks of the party on pending bills. It is announced to-night that another caucus will shortly be convened when a further attempt will be made to subdue the refractory element, but the determined attitude of the cabinet minority and their adherents gives very little encouragement to the majority that their efforts will be successful.

In addition to the parliamentary rebellion against the headstrong policy of the ministerial leaders in regard to pending bills, the Government had a very serious difficulty to confront in dealing with the defiant postal and police employes, and all politicians agree that the case requires delicate handling. The wisdom of the action of Postmaster-General Raikes in reducing the wages of 50 postmen by five shillings a week and suspending 150 more for attending a meeting of the new union of postoffice employes is seriously questioned.

Lord Salisbury announced to the caucus that the Government would not abandon the Tithes Bill, the Licensing Bill or the Irish Land Purchase Bill. In order to cope with the business which is now blocking the proceedings of Parliament, bills which reach an advanced stage during one session would be resumed at the next session at the stage at which they had been left at the preceding session, subject to resolution of the House.

James Lowther, Robert William Handbury and others condemned such a course of procedure. They declared it would initiate a bad system in legislation. The matter was discussed for half an hour, when the caucus separated without adopting any formal resolution on the subject.

James Munro, Chief of the Metropolitan Police, has resigned in consequence of the quarrel between himself and the Government regarding the regulations adopted by the police on the occasion of the demonstration against the License Bill in Hyde Park Saturday last. Chief Wood of the Manchester force is mentioned for the vacancy.

Trying to Form a Cave.

LONDON, June 12.—Thirty Conservatives have revolted and are treating with the Liberal-Unionists with the object of forming a cave. They are discontented with Home Secretary Matthews' action relative to Chief of Police Monroe, believing it will have a bad influence on the elections.

Heard in the House.

LONDON, June 12.—In the House of Commons to-day Sir James Ferguson stated Portugal accepted in principle the arbitration on the Delagoa Bay railway question proposed by England and the United States.

Mr. Balfour declined to accede to Mr. Parnell's request for the appointment of a committee to inquire into the charge that the police of Tipperary and Cashell had used unnecessary violence in suppressing Nationalist meetings.

The Thiergarten Scandal.

BERLIN, June 12.—The trial of the Countess von Luetzout—charged with making her fashionable residence in the Thiergarten the scene of outrageous orgies, in which many members of the highest German nobility took part—is proceeding here behind closed doors.

The case was first made public through the arrest of the Countess for attempting to strangle a servant girl who threatened to disclose to the police what went on within the house.

Although the public are excluded from the court room, it is known that the Prince of Saxe-Altenberg, Count von Kotze, Frau Grohnwaldt, the singer, and many members of the nobility of the capital are among the witnesses who have been announced.

The Paper Was Right.

LONDON, June 12.—The trial of the libel suit brought by George Washington Butterfield against The Financial News for publishing articles declaring that a mining operation in America, in which the plaintiff was interested, was a wild and imprudent scheme, ended to-day. The Financial News submitted evidence to prove that the articles were justified and the jury found a verdict for the newspaper.

EVIDENTLY A BAD CROWD.

Five of a Black Lake Family in Jail—A Terrible Crime.

KINGSTON, June 12.—Some seven or eight months ago George Young, living near Black Lake, was convicted of larceny on the testimony of his step-father, one Petrie, and served a term of imprisonment in jail at Canton. As soon as he got out he decided to avenge himself on his step-father, and accordingly caused the arrest of the old man, and gave evidence which sent him up for larceny. This set the ball rolling and the entire family "lay" for each other, and it did not take long for five of them to place each other in jail, where they are now. Not content with this, one of the sisters who is at liberty charged her brother George, who had been sent up on another charge made by one of the family, with an unnatural crime, and the Grand Jury indicted him. To go into the nauseating details as evidenced by the witness is unnecessary. The crime is alleged to have been committed when Mrs. Petrie, the mother, was at a dance—she must be fifty. She left six children at home. George, who is a cripple, was sent up for fourteen years.

A Recount Ordered in Prince Edward.

PICTON, June 12.—To-day application was made to Judge Merrill for a recount in the Prince Edward election, and Tuesday, June 17, was the day fixed for the recount to take place.

Connaught Sails for Liverpool.

QUEBEC, June 12.—Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and staff sailed for Liverpool by the steamship Sardinian at 9 o'clock this morning. A guard of honor was in attendance and the royal departure was signalled by the firing of 19 guns.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Home Missions the Main Item of Business in Thursday's Proceedings.

OTTAWA, June 12.—After an hour's devotional exercises participated in by a number of the commissioners and the sustaining of the minutes of the opening sederunt, the only business that received attention this forenoon was the appointment of three committees—on the reception of ministers from other churches, the retirement of ministers making application in our own church and the treatment of students having in view the work of the ministry.

Neither was the afternoon session fruitful of work performed. The first half hour was spent over a motion proposed by Rev. D. J. Macdonnell of Toronto, that looked toward saving time on the opening evening of each assembly by not observing the formalities of roll calling. The motion, however, was not approved of, the assembly declaring by a large majority that in their opinion the roll call was an interesting and necessary part of the inaugural proceedings.

After the appointment of committees on the nomination of standing committees, on remits and loyal addresses, the assembly proceeded to the consideration of seven applications from ministers of other churches to be received into the Presbyterian Church of Canada. These applications with accompanying papers were placed in the hands of a competent committee, who will deal with them and furnish a report for endorsation to the assembly at an after sederunt.

The evening session was devoted to the consideration of home missions to the eastern section of the church, comprising the Maritime Provinces. Ninety-two workmen in this mission field have been employed and the expenditure in connection with the work amounts to $11,647.

The field for home missions under the direction of the Western Committee begins with the Province of Quebec and extends to the Pacific coast. The year ends with a balance on hand of $1707. The expenditure for the year was nearly $59,000. In this district are 276 mission fields with 689 preaching stations, these containing 20,945 Sabbath worshippers, 9,188 families and 11,517 communicants.

Closely allied to the home mission work is that of augmentation. By this scheme weaker congregations in the Maritime Provinces have been assisted to the extent of $9920 with a view to the making of the minister's income at least $750 and a free house. In the western section there are now 137 augmented congregations.

Since the institution of this fund in 1883, 100 congregations have been added to the augmented list, 216 have been removed and 176 have become self-sustaining. The contributions to the fund for the year are $26,430, although the year ends with a debt in this department of $653.

Brief addresses on the subject of home missions and augmentation were delivered by President Forrest and Rev. Mr. Smith on the eastern report and by Dr. Cochrane and Rev. D. J. Macdonnell on the western. A number of other speakers took part and the commissioners and auditors dispersed at 9½ o'clock in a drenching rain.

The Assembly accepted an invitation to attend a conversazione in Coligny College on Saturday evening beginning at 8 o'clock.

Niagara Synod Delegates to Winnipeg.

HAMILTON, June 12.—There was an animated discussion at the Niagara Synod this morning on the question of voting for delegates to the Winnipeg Convention re the consolidation of the Church of England in British North America. It was finally decided that each member vote for both clerical and lay delegates. Archdeacon Dixon of Guelph and J. J. Mason were elected after several ballots, Rev. Rural Dean Forneret and W. F. Burton alternates.

GALT'S GALA DAY.

The Carnival Opens Auspiciously—A Big Crowd in Attendance.

GALT, June 12.—The two days' summer carnival, band and firemen's tournament opened to-day under most favorable auspices. Every train brought in three or four extra coaches packed with excursionists and the streets have been alive with humanity. The town is elaborately decorated, ten massive and beautiful arches spanning the principal streets and the buildings profusely ornamented with flags and bunting, cedar boughs bringing out the gay hues in strong relief. The illuminations at night were gorgeous.

The story of the Toronto-Hamilton ball game, which drew an immense crowd, is told elsewhere.

In the first-class band competition Berlin took first, Barrie second and Woodstock third prizes.

The football match played in the park by electric light to-night between Berlin and Galt resulted in a tie, one goal each.

It is estimated that 10,000 people visited the park to-day and the prospects for to-morrow from advices received are that double that number will be on hand. Taken altogether the carnival promises to be a complete success, surpassing the expectations of the most enthusiastic.

DEMPSEY BACK IN CANADA.

The Boodle Alderman's Friends Could Not Furnish Bail.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Ex-Alderman Charles Dempsey of boodle fame, was unable to secure bail from his New York friends, it appears, and has returned to Canada without facing the District Attorney.

His friends here are greatly disappointed, as it was supposed when he came on from Canada there would be no trouble about arranging bail. The ex-alderman is reported to be at St. Catharines, Ont.

THE ST. CLAIR TUNNEL.

Construction Nearly Completed—A Double to Be Built.

PORT HURON, Mich., June 12.—Sir Joseph Hickson of the Grand Trunk Railway and staff have spent four days in this city inspecting the tunnel, which is now nearly completed. Before leaving this morning an official order was given for the construction of another tunnel alongside the present one, work to commence at once. The cost will be between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

The Foresters at Kingston.

KINGSTON, June 12.—At the session of the High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters to-day it was decided that a High Court should be created for Manitoba, Northwest Territories and British Columbia, and the Executive Committee was instructed to prepare a constitution and submit the same to the next annual meeting, when, if approved, a high court will be created afterward. A motion to increase the age limit from 45 to 50 years was voted down without much discussion. A constitution for the government of juvenile courts was adopted. The work of instituting the courts will be at once proceeded with.

A Giddy Old Girl.

SOUTHAMPTON, L.I., June 12.—Southampton town to-day celebrated 250th anniversary of its settlement. The streets were crowded with people, including a few Indians of the Shinnecock tribe which originally owned the land upon which the town stands.

THE TORONTO BUDGET.

WOMEN'S ENFRANCHISEMENT ASSOCIATION CONVENTION.

The Jury Fail to Agree in John Byron's Case—The Art Schools' Lists—Hamilton Leads the Procession in Medalists—The Last of the Strikes Settled.

TORONTO, June 12.—The convention of the Women's Enfranchisement Association of Canada commenced yesterday, and was attended by about 200 delegates.

The jury in the case of John Byron, accused of having stabbed John Wade to death at Mimico on March 22, failed to agree.

The unknown man killed in the G.T.R. yards, St. Thomas, Monday night, is now believed to be a member of the Builders' Laborers Union, who left Toronto during the strike. His hat, a black felt flexible stiff, has the name "G. & J. Rogers, 79 Yonge-street, Toronto," on the lining band and the crown, and his hat, overalls, tie and coat have marks of lime on them, indicating that he was a bricklayers' or masons' laborer. Deceased was 40 years of age, medium height, dark brown hair and mustache, brown flannel shirt, dark coat and vest, brown striped pants with striped overalls.

The last of the strikes is over, the settlement of the stonemasons' difficulty, which has been delayed for a few days, having been consummated yesterday through the intervention of President Davidson of the Board of Trade. The master builders offered the men 35 cents per hour for a term of two years and 36 cents per hour for the following three years. This the men declined to accept until yesterday, when, at a conference held in the council chamber of the Board of Trade, they reported their willingness to accept this offer and a five-year agreement was signed, each party acquiescing in a conference to be held four months prior to the termination of the agreement.

The theatre of the Normal School in St. James-square was thronged to the doors last evening on the occasion of the presentation of medals and the annual report of the standing of the various art schools, mechanics' institutes, etc., in the province. Hamilton led the van, carrying off five medals. Here is the list:

THE MEDALISTS.

Gold medal, advanced course — Annie Selina Wrenshall, Kingston Art School.

'VARSITY MEN ABROAD.

Mustard and Saunders, Two Toronto Grads, Made Fellows at Johns Hopkins.

BALTIMORE, June 12.—The commencement honors at Johns Hopkins were announced to-day. The high rank of Canadian scholarship was again evidenced in these appointments:

W. P. Mustard, B.A. of Toronto University, Fellow in Latin.

C. R. Saunders, B.A. of Toronto University, Fellow in Chemistry.

A. L. McKenzie, B.A. of Dalhousie College, Fellow in Physics.

Mr. J. Logie, a graduate of Toronto University in 1887, received the degree of Ph. D. Mr. Logie has been scholar, fellow and fellow by courtesy at Johns Hopkins during the past three years, and received his well-earned degree on account of the excellent thesis which he published on the phonology of the patois of Cachy, France.

He has received an appointment as head of the department of Romance Languages at Williams College, Mass.

This is another laurel for Toronto University.

ALVINSTON, June 12.—Arch. Ferguson, a farmer of the Township of Mosa, who lived three miles east of here, was run over and killed by a St. Clair branch train of the Michigan Central Railway this evening. He stood on the track watching the train approach and made no effort to save himself. It is thought that he was insane.

Dress the Hair

With Ayer's Hair Vigor. Its cleanliness, beneficial effects on the scalp, and lasting perfume commend it for universal toilet use. It keeps the hair soft and silken, preserves its color, prevents it from falling, and, if the hair has become weak or thin, promotes a new growth.

"To restore the original color of my hair, which had turned prematurely gray, I used Ayer's Hair Vigor with entire success. I cheerfully testify to the

Efficacy

of this preparation."—Mrs. P. H. Davidson, Alexandria, La.

"I was afflicted some three years with scalp disease. My hair was falling out and what remained turned gray. I was induced to try Ayer's Hair Vigor, and in a few weeks the disease in my scalp disappeared and my hair resumed its original color."—(Rev.) S. S. Sims, Pastor U. B. Church, St. Bernice, Ind.

"A few years ago I suffered the entire loss of my hair from the effects of tetter. I hoped that after a time nature would repair the loss, but I waited in vain. Many remedies were suggested, none, however, with such proof of merit as Ayer's Hair Vigor, and I began to use it. The result was all I could have desired. A growth of hair soon came out all over my head, and grew to be as soft and heavy as I ever had, and of a natural color, and firmly set."—J. H. Pratt, Spofford, Texas.

COLONIZATION ROADS.

One of the tricks adopted by Liberal politicians to deceive the people is to represent their opponents as being opposed to every institution or expenditure which they discuss. Thus if improvements in methods at the model farm are asked for, at once the cry is raised that the Conservatives are opposed to the farm; if amendments to the Separate school laws are mentioned, the cry goes forth that the Opposition is influenced by bigotry and intolerance; and if the expenditure on colonization roads is criticized, the cry is that the Conservatives are opposed to aiding the settlers in the new townships. These cries are all false, but the misrepresentations they contain have no doubt had effect with men who have not taken time to inform themselves on these matters.

The Conservatives in the Legislature have shown that they are friends of the settlers in the new townships, as, indeed, they are of all classes of the community. They forced the Government this year to give more aid to the poor schools, and they have tried to force the Government to give the people the full benefit of the appropriations for colonization roads, but so far they have failed and will probably not succeed until the people overcome the baneful influence of the gerrymander and the other similar methods used to keep the present Government in office.

It is in the interest of the Province that the new districts should be opened up for settlement and that the settlers should be aided wherever necessary. It is impossible for a few settlers to make roads such as should be constructed, and they should be aided, and the aid given will also have the effect of encouraging others to locate along the improved highways. But this work should be done in the most economical manner, in order that the settlers and the Province may receive the full benefit of the expenditure. As the expenditure is made at present the chief object in view is not the advantage of the settlers or the Province, but of the Government; the aim is not to do the most good with the appropriations, but to influence votes for the Government candidates. Promises of grants for sections are made to obtain votes, and employment on the work is given for the same purpose. It is a system of bribery with the money of the people and is a scandal and a disgrace. These may appear to be strong terms, but they are not a whit too strong to describe the state of affairs. The grants should be given as they are required without reference to whether the section voted for or against any candidate.

When this evil is pointed out those who call attention to it are at once charged with being enemies of the settlers. As we have said, that is false. The evil can and should be remedied without injuring anyone except the politicians who use the money of the people to assist them in their political schemes. The appropriations should be given to the municipal councils to expend in the same way as the municipal funds are expended. No interest would suffer, the settlers would be benefitted, the Province would gain, and a system of bribery would be abolished. But the present rulers of the Province, who do not hesitate to force Toronto by act of the Legislature to send one supporter of theirs to the House, refuse to remedy the evils connected with the expenditure of colonization road money, for while the methods that now prevail are injurious to the people and the country, they are of political advantage to the party in office.

Mr. Mowat's "increased majority" was like Mr. Blake's majority of one.

Hon. A. M. Ross retires into the comfortable position of clerk of the County Court of York. The questions remains whether Messrs. Drury and Gibson will take offices, or give offices to others to open constituencies for them.

One Liberal member saved his seat by voting against the Government last session on the school questions. Other Government candidates made promises in the same direction. Mr. Mowat's majority is less than it was and may not be more troublesome.

The Government organs speak of the "Meredith-McCarthy Crusade," but Mr. McCarthy spoke against Mr. Meredith's candidates. That is one way in which the Equal Rights Association made a mistake. Mr. Meredith's platform was one they should have been able to endorse, and by holding themselves aloof and refusing to take a part with the party that advocated principles they advocated, they assisted in the temporary defeat of those principles.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

FULL DAMAGES GIVEN.

A Case Under the New Workman's Compensation for Injuries Act.

Brantford, June 12.—The first case that has arisen under the new Workman's Compensation for Injuries Act was heard before Judge Jones and a jury. The case was that of Stephenson v. Walker, wherein Mrs. Stephenson, a widow residing in the village of Norwich, sued for $800 compensation for the death of her son, who was fatally injured in the defendant's mill. The son entered the employ of the defendant on Aug. 6 last, went to work at 7 o'clock in the morning, and an hour later was drawn into the machinery and was brought home mangled and torn so that he died the following day. The mother had no means of support, and had moved to Norwich trusting with her son's small pittance and a boarder or two to make a living. His death left her utterly destitute.

The plaintiff alleged that the young man was not sufficiently instructed in the methods of avoiding accident, and that the machinery was not properly guarded. Mr. Code, who had charge of the mill, gave young Stephenson very meagre instructions and turned him over to a 15-year-old lad named Kaiso, whom he was to assist in dusting the mill. The defence alleged proper and sufficient instructions and contributory negligence. Some 15 witnesses were called, including some expert millers, and the case occupied a whole day. A verdict was given for the plaintiff for the whole amount asked and full costs of suit.

The Flour Market Dead.

Minneapolis, June 12.—The past week, says The Northwestern Miller, has been an exceptionally dull one with the Minneapolis mills. The aggregate flour output was 59,612 barrels. It is not likely the output will be increased this week, but with the opening of the canal next Monday nearly every mill counts upon resuming work, though the flour market is in a dead condition. The export trade is very quiet, and quotations remain about the same as last week. The export shipments were 11,778 barrels, against 12,900 barrels the preceding week.

The Astor House Scorched.

New York, June 12.—A fire broke out in the building next to the Astor House at 6.25 this evening. At 7.20 the fire had caught on the southwest corner of the Astor House and at 7½ was burning fiercely. The fire was extinguished after it had done about $10,000 damage. Only about one dozen rooms on the top floor were ruined. A good deal of the damage was done by water. There was no panic among the guests. The damage to the property No. 12 Vesey-street is about $15,000.

Electricity Kills in Pennsylvania.

Morristown, Pa., June 12.—Joseph Corcoran aged 21, was instantly killed shortly after midnight while returning from work by stepping on a live electric wire blown down by the storm. The wire twisted around his body, four fingers were nearly burned from his left hand and his right arm was badly burned.

Another Mystery of the Falls.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., June 12.—When the fact that a man had jumped off Goat Island bridge became known on the street yesterday stories of another suicide were afloat. Many people state positively that they saw a body go over the brink at 1.10 in the afternoon and others state that they saw a body in the rapids a half-an-hour later.

LOOK OUT FOR THE ENGINE.

The T., H. & B. to Commence Construction Next Week.—The Weavers' Strike Ended.

Hamilton, June 12.—Active construction operations on the line of the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo Railway will be commenced the latter part of next week. The solicitors are securing options on the right of way and examining titles.

After six weeks' idleness the weavers are at their looms again to-day. The 44 days the strike lasted materially thinned the ranks of the 120 employes who struck, 30 having gone to the States.

Auto-harp Agent William McMillan was acquitted at the General Sessions to-day on a charge of obtaining $8 by false pretences from John Richardson. There are several indictments still pending.

The Crown having no evidence to corroborate the victim's statement in the case of William Maphern, charged with seducing his daughter, a verdict of not guilty was entered.

About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon Leslie Cox, the 7-year-old son of William Cox, butcher, was run over by a team of horses attached to a load of hay and probably fatally injured.

Constables Johnston and Hay were before the Police Commissioners to-day charged by Dairyman Tester with entering his place and helping themselves to a drink of milk apiece. The bibulous officers were allowed to go with a mild reprimand.

According to the report of the auditors to the County Council, Wentworth county has $914,117 over and above all its liabilities.

HALE EXONERATED.

Cowles Makes a Statement Practically Clearing His Brother-in-Law.

Montreal, June 12.—Judge Desnoyers devoted this morning to considering whether or not he should discharge from custody C. C. Hale, who is under arrest for shooting Eugene H. Cowles of Cleveland. He decided before doing so to make another attempt to have Cowles lay a charge, but he still refused to do so. Cowles, however, made a statement which practically clears Hale. In the course of his deposition he says: "I stated to Hale and my wife several times that anyone interfering to deprive me of my child would be shot by me if I did not get the protection of the court in time. The threats I made were against anyone who would try to deprive me of my child illegally. I cannot charge and will not accuse my brother-in-law with shooting me with intent to do me any harm. I believe that he was momentarily out of his mind, having been wrought up to that state by the sufferings of my wife and not that she suggested this to him, because I believe them both incapable of doing an evil act, and more especially of doing me any harm."

Parker Released and Re-arrested.

London, Ont. June 12.—J. W. Parker of Burlington, Kan., was released from jail to-day by order of Mr. Justice Rose. He was taken into custody again and held at the Police Station until the arrival of Chief Zewings from St. Thomas, where he will be taken and the extradition proceedings begun over again. It was a failure on the part of the prosecution to produce the original note forged that is supposed to have caused the first proceedings to miss fire.

Not a Man at the Funeral.

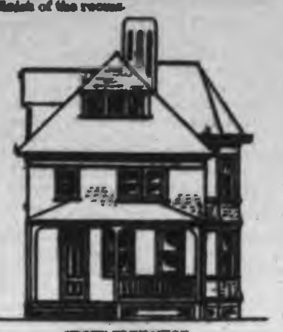
Mrs. Mary Ann Henderson died Tuesday morning. She had been confined to her bed more than twenty-one years. Not a man besides the clergyman was present at the house to assist in the last sad rites, and the ladies of the community were forced to place the coffin and act as pall-bearers. If it had been some wealthy person the attendance would have been large. The funeral services at the grave were conducted by Dr. Hundley, who took occasion then and afterwards to score the male residents of the community for the neglect of their duties to the dead. The ladies also are very justly indignant.—Milton (Fla.) Clarion.

ARCHITECTURAL ADVICE.

House for Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars.

This is, undoubtedly, the most economical arrangement of rooms that can be devised for a small dwelling. It is so planned that the entrance hall, parlor, dining room and kitchen are grouped in such a manner that one chimney is sufficient for the whole house. The staircase hall is of good size, and serves as a reception room, with a corner fireplace, in which is an open grate for burning coal.

The parlor is immediately adjoining the reception hall, at the front of the house, separated only by an archway hung with heavy portieres, which may be thrown back, making the parlor and reception hall, as it were, one room when desired. The dining room is immediately back of the parlor, separated from the latter likewise by portieres. Both parlor and dining room are provided with open grate and wood mantles in keeping with the finish of the rooms.



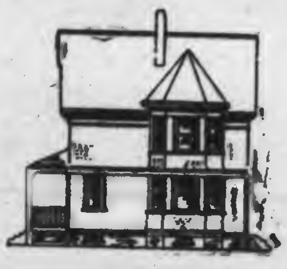
FRONT ELEVATION.

The kitchen is at the rear of the house adjoining the dining room. The passage from the kitchen to the dining room is through the pantry, which is placed in the extension at the rear of both, with suitable china closet and storerooms conveniently placed.

Entrance to the cellar is under the main stairs. The front of the house is protected by a wood veranda.

In the second story are three good sized chambers, with closets for each; a bathroom and one small bedroom, which can be used as a dressing room for the front chamber if desired. In the attic is one room finished, the balance is left for storage loft. The cellar extends under the entire building.

The foundation walls are of field stone laid in good lime and cement mortar. Chimney of hard brick; facings of hall fireplace and kitchen chimney breast of pressed brick; rubbed slate hearth for kitchen; glazed tile hearth for hall, parlor and dining room; tile facings for grates in parlor and dining-room. The side walls and ceilings throughout are hard finished on one coat of brown mortar and seasoned lath, with neat center pieces in the ceilings of main rooms. The veranda roof is sheathed with tongued and grooved spruce. All other roofs, side walls and gables of the building are sheathed with surfaced hemlock, the whole covered with water proof paper. The panels in first story bay window, side walls of second story and gables of main building and dormer windows, and all roofs except the veranda, are shingled. The lower story is clapboarded with six inch white pine beveled, siding laid 4½ inches to the weather.



SIDE ELEVATION.

Attic floor of spruce. Second story floor of white pine. First floor of yellow pine. All ⅞ inches thick, tongued and grooved and blind nailed. Veranda floor 1⅛ inches thick. Attic and second story rooms, with the exception of hall and bathroom, of white pine, painted two coats. The finish of bathroom and second story hall and all rooms on the first story is in North Carolina pine left natural color of the wood, with one coat of wood filler and two coats of varnish rubbed smooth. The doors of first story are of clear white pine, finished in the same manner. The attic and second story doors of white pine painted. The treads and risers of main stairs of yellow pine, rails, newels and balusters of oak, filled and varnished with three coats, rubbed smooth. Mantels to correspond with finish of rooms.

A Pair of them Fined.

Alfred Windover, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of having been disorderly on Wednesday night at the Police Court yesterday morning, appeared for trial at the court this morning. Constable McGinty gave evidence of the language the man had used and the Magistrate found him guilty and fined him two dollars or ten days. Windover said it was all a blank to him, as he was too drunk to know what he was doing. J. H. Moher, another drunk, met a similar fate and added two dollars to the exchequer.

A Warning to Others.

Cornelius Ryan, a carter, was charged at the Police Court this morning with having dumped night soil into Spaulding's Bay last night. The case was of some importance as it should serve as a warning to carters and others against dumping filth where it will be injurious to the public health. This morning Ryan pleaded not guilty to the charge. J. H. Moher, who was in the prisoners' dock for drunkenness, was called as a witness. He testified that he went down with Ryan and saw him deposit the contents of boxes he had on his cart in the bay. The Magistrate found the accused guilty and said he intended to stop this work if possible. He fined Ryan $10 or thirty days and said if another case came before him he would fine him $50. The carter was given three days in which to pay his fine.

PHYSICAL CULTURE EXEMPLIFIED.

The Pupils of the Institute Give a Successful and Pleasing Exhibition in Gymnastics, Marching and Singing.

The exhibition of physical exercises given by the pupils of the Collegiate Institute drew together a large crowd at the drill shed last evening. Fathers and mothers and friends gathered to see the display, manifesting a deep interest in the proceedings. The drill shed was poorly lighted and the want of seats an inconvenience, but the evening passed off pleasantly and successfully. Sergt.-Major Rundle, instructor at the Institute, directed the exercises, while Mr. Ketcham led the singing. Both sections of the pupils acquitted themselves very creditably. The variety of movement was well sustained and showed considerable proficiency. The marching and evolutions by the classes were performed with steadiness and accuracy, if anything the girls having the advantage in this respect. The "Wand" exercise by a class of girls was a pretty and effective feature of the programme and drew hearty applause from the audience, while the club swinging by girls was given with grace and smoothness and in accurate time. A class of the more advanced male pupils gave some exhibitions of horizontal bar and ring exercise displaying good nerve and activity. A bout or two at singlestick and a fencing exercise as well as a set-to with the gloves drew applause and cheers as the contestants vigorously whacked and thumped each other. An agreeable break in the programme was made by the chorus sung by the pupils of Mr. Ketcham's class and by the vocal solo of Miss Moyse and violin solo by Miss Yokome, the two latter given at disadvantage in such a large auditorium. On all sides were heard complimentary remarks in reference to the training afforded by Sergt.-Major Rundle and Mr. Ketcham in their departments and the system of introducing these exercises as a part of the school curriculum heartily commended. From the large number who took part it is hardly possible to give names and mention individual excellence, so the programme is given below as rendered:—

An Early Morning Blaze.

About four o'clock this morning a fire was discovered in the sheds in the rear of a rough-cast house on Stewart-st. just south of the Eastland terrace. The brigade were on the scene with promptness and succeeded in confining the flames almost entirely to the sheds where they originated. However, the house was slightly damaged, as also were the sheds of the neighboring house to the south which was owned by Mr. Bradburn. Mr. Rufus Stevenson owned the property that was destroyed, and estimates his loss at nearly $300, on which there was $100 insurance. It is thought the fire was the work of an incendiary.

Within Six Inches of Death.

A foreigner, who evidently hailed from the land of Bismarck, and who spoke English very poorly, had a remarkably narrow escape from an awful death under the wheels of a freight train at the G. T. R. yards to-day. It was just a few minutes before noon when the occurrence happened. The German was a stranger and had imbibed freely. Canadian whiskey had laid him low and in a moment of stupidity he had laid down on the track beneath a flat car and just a short distance from the wheels. A way freight was shunting in the yard when it backed up the train under which was the recumbent form of the sleeping German. One of the train men chanced to see the man just as the wheels began to move towards him. The cry that was raised instantly caused the driver to reverse his engine and the wheel of the truck came to a standstill not six inches from the stranger. He was pulled out and started up town.

Court of Revision.

The Court of Revision of the Town Council met last night to begin the consideration of the appeals against this year's assessment. Councillor Rutherford, chairman, presided, while Councillors E. H. D. Hall, Langford, Davidson and Moore were present. The greater part of the session was occupied in the consideration of the insurance companies. Messrs. W. A. Sims, General Manager of the London & Lancashire Fire Insurance Co., W. H. Hill, District Manager of the Sun Life, W. H. Cluxton and A. L. Davis addressed the Court regarding the matter. Mr. Sims said he had been speaking with the managers of several of the leading companies and his impression had been that the companies would be willing to be assessed on their net income after the local expenses, losses, etc., had been deducted. A resolution was passed asking the companies to forward declarations of their net profits in Peterborough last year. Mr. Sims will forward this resolution to the several companies. A few appeals against dog tax were dealt with and the Court adjourned for one week.

A DAY WITH THE YOEMEN.

THE ANNUAL UNION PICNIC OF THE FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

A Monster Gathering and a Grand Success—Nearly Three Thousand People at the Beautiful Island of Idyl Wild—A Day of Enjoyment and Fun, Unmarked by Accidents—The Peterborough Contingent and Their Trip—Some Speeches and Sports—Notes of the Trip.

An event, which has now become an annual one in the calendar of the farmers of this district, and which, it is quite safe to prophesy, will continue to be a successful reality in the future, took place yesterday: It was the annual union picnic of the Farmers' Institutes of East and West Peterborough, East and West Northumberland and Durham. The outing proved to be a monster one and from every point of view can be said to have been a grand success, the completeness of which was only shadowed by the disappointment which some felt at not hearing the speakers who were expected to address the gathering.

THE SAIL DOWN.

Last year the picnic ground was Jubilee Point, but this season the scene of the gathering was Idyl Wild, the beautiful resort on Rice Lake, situated just below Harwood. The Peterborough contingent was a large one. Shortly after eight o'clock the steamer Golden Eye with a palace barge attached left the wharf with about four hundred pleasure seekers on board. The town was well represented among the excursionists, especially the younger portion of the community. The sail down the river and out on the lake was a long one, but it was fully enjoyed. The day was an ideal one for the picnic. The light clouds which overcast the sky were just sufficiently heavy to shade the burning rays of the sun and thus allow the happy excursionists to sit in the fresh and balmy breeze and enjoy to the fullest possible extent the pleasures of a sail and the beauties of the scenery along the river route. Then the young people were not burdened with any monotony of programme. Mr. Butcher's orchestra was on board, and the entire trip down was enlivened with dancing, singing and music. At Hale's Bridge, Campbelltown and other places along the route more passengers were added to the human freight on the steamer and scow. The large crowd which filled both the vessels seemed heartily to enjoy the sail and no small word of commendation is due to Capt. Claire Calcutt and Capt. Dover for their obliging and skillful management.

Idyl Wild was reached a few minutes after one o'clock and a vast crowd of picnickers who had arrived from other points in advance were at the wharf of the island to welcome the Peterborough contingent. Foremost in the crowd was Commodore H. C. Calcutt who had gone down the night before to see that everything was in readiness for the reception of the picnickers. In point of numbers the outing was a better one than that of last year. There must have been fully two thousand five hundred people on the grounds when the Golden Eye had disembarked her cargo. The first boat to arrive at the grounds was the Sunbeam with the palace barge. She brought about three hundred people from Keene and vicinity. Next came the Pearl and scow from Harwood with some one hundred and fifty pleasure seekers. The Daisy next brought two hundred and fifty persons from Bewdley and the head of the lake, and was followed by the Beaver and two scows with nearly four hundred people from Hastings and that neighborhood. The Golden Eye and her barge added about five hundred more to this great congregation, while some two hundred were brought from the Alnwick shore at different times. The crowd was swollen to still larger proportions by another contingent numbering about four hundred who came over in small boats from the surrounding country. It was a magnificent gathering and a great day of enjoyment, sport and friendly intercourse for the farmers of the three counties.

SOME OF THE MEN PRESENT.

The directors of the different institutes were not all present, but the several ridings were well represented.

The West Peterborough Institute representatives on the joint committee who were present were Messrs. Dawson Kennedy, President of the Institute, Wm. Collins and John Stothart. The other representative farmers who were noticed among the crowd from this riding were Messrs. Robt. Vance, representative of this district on the Council of Agriculture and Arts; Wm. Rutherford, President of the Central Exhibition; Geo. Berry, of Cavan, Hugh Davidson, of Smith, John Lightfoot, of South Monaghan, J. G. Galvin, of Lakefield, and Jas. Davidson, of Smith.

East Peterborough was represented among others by the following:—Messrs. F. Birdsall, President of the Institute, Thos. Blezard, M.P.P., Wm. Miller, Jas. Moore, Reeve of Asphodel, Geo. Lancaster, H. and J. Fowlds, of Hastings, Jas. Moore, jr., Dr. Shaw, J. Miles and Robt. Jackson.

The West Northumberland Institute was represented by Messrs. Thos. Hoskins, President, Jas. Russell, Vice-President, John A. Sherwin, Treasurer, R. Cullis, Secretary, W. J. Westington, John Grosgeam and C. R. Malting.

From the East Northumberland institute, Mr. J. B. Ewing, Secretary, and R. Honey were present.

ON THE GROUNDS.

When the lunch baskets had been satisfactorily attacked, the crowds began to mingle and soon the beautiful and picturesque island was alive with happy merrymakers. While some sought the swings, others went to the dancing pavilions and tripped the light fantastic to the tuneful strains of the orchestra, and others strolled through the woods or sat on the grassy slopes and amused themselves by watching the thousands as they each sought to enjoy the outing according to their individual tastes or inclinations.

THE SPEECH MAKING.

As has been mentioned, the speakers who had been advertised failed to materialize for some unknown reasons. Mr. McMillan, Manitoba Emigration Agent; Hon. Mr. Drury, Minister of Agriculture, and Mr. R. W. Phipps, Commissioner of Forestry, had promised to be present but they all disappointed the committee. However, to fill the programme the stand was taken by the prominent members of the different institutes and short speeches were delivered. Mr. F. Birdsall, President of the East Peterborough Institute, opened the programme with a few appropriate remarks in which he spoke of the disappointment felt at the non-arrival of the speakers. He then introduced in turn Messrs. J. B. Ewing, Secretary of the East Northumberland Institute; Dawson Kennedy, President of the West Peterborough Institute; R. Cullis, Secretary of the West Northumberland organization; Thos. Blezard, M.P.P.; Wm. Macklin, of the township of Haldimand, and Alex. McLeod, of the township of Hamilton. The speeches were short and all partook of a somewhat similar strain. The speakers all expressed pleasure at the magnificent gathering of yeomanry which was before them and dwelt upon the necessity of the farmers uniting to obtain the legislation which was deemed necessary to give them their fair and just rights. The Institutes were eulogized as being beneficial and the farmers were all advised to join and obtain, by attending the meetings, the benefit of the addresses and experiments of the professors from the agricultural colleges and experimental farms. Mr. Blezard spoke in this strain and said as representative in the Legislature he would strive to bring in a bill that would give the farmers their fair and just rights in regard to milling and other interests.

A SHORT PROGRAMME OF SPORTS.

After the speeches the short time before the boat left was occupied in running off a short programme of sports. The events were all well contested and resulted in the following winning the prizes:—

STANDING JUMP—1st, A. Moore; 2nd, G. Hunter.

100 YARD RACE—1st, A. Moore; 2nd, A. Milburn.

RUNNING HOP, STEP AND JUMP—1st, W. J. Waite; 2nd, A. Milburn.

RUNNING LONG JUMP—1st, A. Milburn; 2nd, W. J. Waite.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

Shortly after four o'clock the Golden Eye and her palace barge were again boarded and the long homeward journey commenced. The music went on almost without ceasing and the dancers seemed never to tire, so that with plenty of singing the trip up the river was made enjoyable. The George-st. wharf was reached without any accident shortly before twelve o'clock and the weary crowd disembarked, well worn out but, nevertheless, pleased with the day's outing.

NOTES OF THE TRIP.

A man walked off the scow into the river just as the wharf was reached here. A wetting was the only lamentable consequence, as he was pulled out without difficulty.

The groves and sloping hills along the river banks looked grand in their new covering of verdure.

The yoemanry had a field day and the event is sure to be well patronized by them next year.

The sail was rather long, and Jubilee Point would have been more central and certainly more desirable for the Peterborough people, although Idyl Wild is a beautiful spot.

The members of the Committee from this riding were most attentive to the excursionists on the boat.

Mr. Jas. Coughlin was master of ceremonies on the palace barge.

BAY OF QUINTE CONFERENCE.

Victoria Theological Union—Action Regarding the Stationing Work—A Question of Privilege.

The annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte conference branch of the Theological Union of Victoria University was held at 8 o'clock p.m. in the King-st. Methodist church, Cobourg, on Monday night. Rev. J. C. Seymour presided. Upon the platform were Rev. O. Lambley and the president of the conference, Rev. William Burns. Rev. S. J. Shorey gave an interesting lecture on the subject of Modern Thought. It was a learned, comprehensive and suggestive lecture, showing the necessity of thought, the benefits of thought and its grand results. Rev. Dr. Badgley, Rev. Dr. Reynar and the president of the conference expressed their high appreciation of the lecture.

At Wednesday's session the committee to which was referred the question of privilege raised by Rev. Dr. Workman, of Victoria College, regarding the resolution of the Guelph Conference, presented the following resolutions:—

"Resolved, first, that this conference has heard with much pleasure the statement of Rev. Dr. Workman on the question of privilege raised by him and his representation of the opinion attributed to him in the resolution reported as passed by the Guelph conference.

Second. That this conference cannot help expressing deep regret that even with the best of motives an attempt should be made to pass judgement on one of its members by those to whom he is not responsible in the first instance without giving him any opportunity of a hearing, without the evidence essential to a well considered judgment, and in disregard of the discipline of our church, which provides a reasonable and rigorous course of procedure in such cases.

"Third. That after due and careful investigation by the constituted authorities of the church, and with all the knowledge of the case at present available, no grounds are found on which a charge of heresy could reasonably be brought against Dr. Workman, and no occasion to withdraw the confidence and esteem in which he has always been held and is still held by his brethren."

The Conference will meet next year at Napanee.

At the Barracks.

Capt. Cunningham, Salvation Army Evangelist, known as "Irish Bob," and Mrs. Cunningham will lead the meetings, Saturday, Sunday and Monday. On Thursday evening Major Spooner will also be present.

The Band Concert To-night.

The Fire Brigade band will give a concert to-night, rain or shine. Should the weather sufficiently clear up to dry the grass the concert will be given in the Court House Park, but should it be too wet the band will play in the drill shed.

Responsibility of Parents.

Would that parents generally were aware of the importance, and adequately understood the principles of properly taking care of young children. It is said by an eminent medical authority, that one half of the diseases of mature life have their origin in early years.

B. Disraeli, the great British statesman, once said, "We put too much faith in system, and look too little to men."

Mothers in the past, as well as those of to-day have erred in the feeding and nourishment of their children. Improper foods have been given which have caused more trouble and suffering than one can well imagine. Science has clearly demonstrated that very many of the old principles of feeding children in infancy have brought serious ills and consequences from which children have never fully recovered in after life. Old systems have been to rigidly adhered to, and the simple scientific methods often set aside.

The baby is perhaps troubled with colic, it may be fretful, peevish and cross; these are often treated as serious ills and medicines are administrated only to aggrevate the child's condition.

Good and correct reasoning would say, your child is not receiving proper food, attend to this and all will be well.

Mothers every day are being convinced of the error and fallacy of old time ideas, since they commenced the use of that scientific preparation, known as "Lactated Food."

Thousands of mothers living to-day feel that it has not only sustained their weak and helpless babies when nearing the grave, but it has also carried them onward and upward to a degree of strength and vigor and growth that has brought joy to the household. The most noted physicians in Britain and America have cheerfully given an opinion as to its very superior qualities over every other known food in use. They state without hesitation that it has no equal for weak digestion of young or old.

CHRISTIAN ALLIANCE.

Address by a New York Lady—Testimonies Regarding Healing.

Last night was the anniversary of the organization of the Peterborough branch of the Christian Alliance. The Alliance is a society that teaches three particular doctrines—Christ as a Saviour, His second coming, and as a physical Healer, or, as they express it, the "full gospel." There was a large attendance at the anniversary meeting in the Y. M. C. A. hall. Mr. John Carlisle conducted the opening exercises and Mr. J. C. Turnbull gave a Scripture reading.

Mrs. Schultz, of New York, then addressed the meeting. She dwelt upon the idea of a full gospel—they should not think only of divine healing, the second coming or any one thing, but of the full gospel. Reading from Haggai, she referred to the promise given there regarding the restoration of the Jews, and said they were called to a work of restoration, to restore the old-time religion. Their own hearts and bodies should first be restored, and separated from sin, the world and the devil. She then gave an interesting account of how she had been led to understand and believe the doctrine of divine healing and had been restored to health after suffering eleven years. She drew lessons from her experience and warned them against discouragement. She concluded with a brief reference to the Mission Training College and Orphanage in New York.

A number of testimonies were then given by persons in the audience, one young man stating that he had been healed of a disease seven weeks ago by obeying the command in the epistle of James regarding prayer and anointing. Another gentleman said he had been compelled to wear a mechanical appliance for many years and had been healed and was as free from the infirmity as if he had never had it. Several similar testimonies were given by others, and the meeting was closed with prayer.

Mrs. Schultz addresses a meeting in the same place this afternoon at 3 o'clock and again to-night at 8 o'clock. All are invited to attend.

A box of Ayer's Pills has saved many a fit of sickness. When a remedy does not happen to be within reach, people are liable to neglect slight ailments and, of course, if serious illness follows they have to suffer the consequences. "A stitch in time saves nine."

Epworth League.

The Onward, Upward Branch of the Epworth League will meet this evening in the school room of the Charlotte-st. Methodist church. A select programe will be rendered. Business of importance will be transacted. Subject for Bible study: "The Rich Man's Folly."—Luke xii., 13-21. A large attendance of the members is requested and an opportunity will be afforded for any who wish to become members of the League to do so.

The Volunteers Trip to Toronto.

Some misunderstanding seems to exist among the men of the 57th in regard to the programme for Dominion Day in Toronto, many imagining that it will be a day of weary marches and hard military duty. The programme will be about as follows: The train will leave here at 7.30 and arrive at the Union station at about 10 a.m. The starting point for the grand parade is close to the station and the 57th will at once form up. There will be a march to the Exhibition grounds, where, after the march past, the men will be dismissed from further military duty. The train will leave Parkdale station at eleven o'clock at night, after the fireworks at the grounds. Proper supplies could not possibly be obtained for two days or the Battalion would have remained over for the 2nd.

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, JUNE 13, 1890.

THE PRINCE'S FRIEND.

THE English in India are, as everybody knows, a small community settled in the midst of an overwhelming native population which does not love them. This circumstance, one might imagine, would create among them a feeling of common brotherhood and a disregard of social differences. A greater mistake could not be made. Among Anglo-Indians brotherly feeling is "conspicuous by its absence," and social divisions are incomparably deeper and more bitter with them than in the most worm-eaten of Western societies. The little community is split up into a dozen petty coteries and circles, which affect to look down on each other with a contempt only inferior to that with which they all regard the "niggers."

That was the state of affairs at Punkabrandy when Mr. Charles Oferproof arrived there. Leaving out the private soldiers and other "mean whites," there were about fifty Europeans in the city. These fifty were divided into half a score of classes—or rather castes—which barely recognized the existence of each other. First there were Col. Toddy and the officers of the white regiment, who formed the creme de la creme of Punkabrandy society; they just condescended to speak to the officers of the native regiments, the leading civil servants and the magistrates and barristers, each of whom in their turn formed a set by themselves, which regarded the others with jealousy, the officers of the white regiment with hatred, and the planters and merchants who formed the rest of the English community with contempt.

It was to this last class that Mr. Oferproof had the misfortune, as he himself regarded it, to belong. He had come to Punkabrandy as representative of the great firm of Messrs. Unter & Oferproof, wine and spirit merchants. The branch establishment at Punkabrandy, owing to the habits of the inhabitants, was in a peculiarly prosperous condition, and if Mr. Oferproof had been an ordinary trader, its affairs would have fully occupied his time and thoughts. But he was not an ordinary trader. Though far from neglectful of matters of business he had a soul that aspired after higher things. He thirsted for social success. When at home in England he had not been more active in seeking orders for wines and spirits than in cultivating the acquaintance of the more fashionable of the firm's patrons. And now, away in Punkabrandy, he was not more eager for the extension of the branch's business than he was for the privilege and pleasure, as he styled it, of mingling with the elite of Punkabrandy society. It is not wonderful, then, that he regarded his connection with an occupation which, though profitable pecuniarily, excluded him from the select circles of the station as a misfortune—and a big misfortune, too.

However, it is the mark of a great man to overcome bad luck, and that is what Mr. Oferproof resolved to do. He soon struck out a line of campaign by which he hoped before long to succeed in forcing his way into the best company in Punkabrandy. As has already been hinted, the European denizens of that town were convivial in their habits. All of them, and more especially Col. Toddy and the officers of the white regiment wanted also a good deal of credit. It was in these two circumstances that Mr. Oferproof recognized an instrument by means of which he could before long force open the gates of Punkabrandy society.

The previous representative of Messrs. Unter & Oferproof had been very averse to the credit system. Mr. Oferproof continued his predecessor's policy, but with a difference. He was very cautious in his dealings with the lawyers and merchants and civil servants, but the military were never denied. The officers of the navy force could have almost what they liked, and, as for Col. Toddy and the officers of the white regiment, no length or breadth or depth of credit was too much for them. The firm's finest wines and oldest spirits were at their command whether they happened to have money to pay for them or not. Consequently, before Mr. Oferproof was six months in Punkabrandy almost every man of them was over head and ears in his debt.

Mr. Oferproof felt that the time for action had arrived. He began operations by asking Capt. Fusilile of the Sepoys to a quiet little dinner. Now, the Captain would have liked to decline, but he could not afford to offend Mr. Oferproof, as he owed him some 4000 or 5000 rupees which he was not prepared just then to pay. So, after casting about for a time in vain to find an excuse for not accepting, he accepted. Mr. Oferproof had now his chance, and he made full use of it. After he had softened Capt. Fusilile's heart with a good dinner, and his head with good wine, he poured into his ear a long account of the various grand acquaintances he had in England. He talked familiarly of the Duchess of Doublechin, Lord William Mortband, Lord De Callar and the Hon. Frank Terrington (an acquaintance with whose characters and habits he had contrived to pick up from their butlers), in a way that amazed the gallant Captain, who, when at home on leave, found himself a very unimportant personage, indeed, and not considered worthy of touching the hem of the garments of such exalted beings as these. At first Capt. Fusilile thought his host was only "bluffing" him, but as he listened to the details of various long conversations which Mr. Oferproof professed to have had with these and other luminaries of the fashionable world, conviction began to be forced in upon his mind. This process was hastened and completed by a final coup on Mr. Oferproof's part. He actually produced a letter from her Grace of Doublechin herself, couched in the familiar strain her ladyship is known to affect, which, after ordering some wine, gave the wine merchant a "straight tip" as to the winner of the Oaks. When Capt. Fusilile left Mr. Oferproof's bungalow that night he was convinced that, whatever host might be in India, in England he was a much more fashionable person than himself.

Now, Mr. Oferproof was an astute individual, and he had not selected the gallant Captain as his first guest without a reason. The fact was, Capt. Fusilile was the gossip of Punkabrandy, and Mr. Oferproof knew that anything confided to him would soon be known to everybody in the station. He was not mistaken. Before a week was over his acquaintance with fashionable people at home, and especially his friendship with the Duchess of Doublechin—who was reverenced by the military both as a duchess and a horse owner—were the talk of every circle in Punkabrandy. Of course, some sneered at the revelation, and hinted that Mr. Oferproof had evolved it all out of the depths of his imagination, but the weight of opinion was against these cavillers, and this preponderance in his favor was increased when it became known that Mr. Oferproof had expressed extreme annoyance at Capt. Fusilile's want of discretion in repeating a private conversation.

From this moment the wine and spirit merchant's position was won; the friend of the Duchess of Doublechin was not a person to be neglected in Punkabrandy. Barristers and civil servants, who formerly barely recognized him, now became affable. Captains and majors of the native force were happy to dine with him. Even Col. Toddy and the officers of the Doltshire Regiment did not disdain to be civil towards him. And as for the other merchants and planters, they looked up to him as the social lion who conferred a reflected honor on all his class.

Mr. Oferproof had now obtained the object of his ambition; he had won a high position in Punkabrandy society. He had won it, however, by romancing, and to retain it he found it necessary to continue romancing. He had begun by professing an acquaintance with the Duchess of Doublechin; he had now to continue by expanding his acquaintance with the most illustrious of her friends. The Marquis of Haughtitone, Viscount and Viscountess Swerve, Lord Rupert Rathill and half a score of others were soon numbered among his supposed intimates. Nor did he stop there. Royalty itself was not outside his knowledge; but, as he modestly said in speaking of the princes of the blood, it would be presumptuous to call yourself their friend.

One night shortly after, his Royal Highness Prince Fitzedward arrived in India on his tour through that country; and Mr. Oferproof happened to be dining at the mess of the Doltshire Regiment. There was only one other guest—a Captain, the Hon. Charles Knowesly—an officer of the Guards, who, like his Royal Highness, was spending three or four months in traveling through India. During dinner the conversation turned upon the royal visit.

"Any chance of his coming here?" asked Mr. Oferproof. He wanted to know his ground before he ventured further.

"Not as far as I know," answered Col. Toddy, "and I suppose if he was coming, I should be informed of it."

"I'm sorry," said Mr. Oferproof, now feeling secure, "I should like to pay my respects to his Highness just for the sake of old times."

"You have met him, then?" inquired Capt. Knowesly.

"Oh, yes, often—at the Duchess of Doublechin's," answered Mr. Oferproof carelessly. "He and his father used often to be there. I have frequently been in the covers with them both."

"Indeed," said Capt. Knowesly, who seemed much interested. "May I ask in what years that was?"

"Well," said Mr. Oferproof, affecting to reflect, "I think it was in '87 and '88—no not '88. That year I met him at Lord Rupert Rathill's. Yes, it was in '86 and '87 that I met him at Doublechin House."

"Oferproof has met everybody, I think," sneered Capt. Pitcher. Capt. Pitcher was one of the few officers in Punkabrandy who did not believe in Mr. Oferproof's grand acquaintances. By a strange coincidence he was one of the few officers in Punkabrandy who were not in Mr. Oferproof's debt.

"Well, I have met his Royal Highness, at any rate," replied Mr. Oferproof, a little snappishly (that fellow Pitcher, as he used to say, always made him savage), "and if he only comes here, you'll see that he'll tell you so himself."

"No doubt, Mr. Oferproof," said Capt. Knowesly soothingly.

"I only wish he was coming," added Mr. Oferproof, "and for very little I'd run down to Calcutta, as I say, to pay him my respects. Indeed, I would do so, only I can't possibly leave Punkabrandy just at present; business affairs will keep me tied here for the next month at least."

After this declaration, Capt. Pitcher was silenced, if not convinced. But Mr. Oferproof was not content with such a victory. He carried the war into the enemy's country by relating—as was his wont when referring to any distinguished personage whom he claimed to know—various anecdotes about Prince Fitzedward. It so happened that he had picked up a number of these (authentic and otherwise) from the butlers of several of his customers at whose houses the Prince had visited, and now he retailed them as facts which fell under his own observation, or as stories told him by the noblemen and ladies in whose houses they purported to occur.

It was about a fortnight after this conversation that Mr. Oferproof happened to meet Col. Toddy out walking. The Colonel hailed the wine merchant lustily.

"Hi, Oferproof!" he cried, "I want to speak to you. You'll dine with us to-night, won't you? Now, don't say no."

"With pleasure, Colonel," replied Mr. Oferproof, surprised and gratified by this familiar and pressing invitation. "Any business?" he asked, after a pause, as a vague suspicion flitted across his mind that possibly he might be wanted not entirely for his own sake.

"No, not exactly that," replied the Colonel. "The fact is that I have just received word that his Royal Highness has altered his plans and is going to stop a night with us on his way to Lahore, and as you're the only man at the station who has ever met him, we want you to come and give us some tips as to his tastes, so that we may know how to entertain him. Now, be sure and come!" And before Mr. Oferproof could reply the gallant Colonel bustled off excitedly.

It is scarcely necessary to say that the wine merchant was startled and embarrassed, not to say dumfounded, by Col. Toddy's declaration. Of course he did not know the Prince; of course he had not met him at Lord Rupert Rathill's and shot with him in the Doublechin covers. Indeed, he had only twice in his life seen his Royal Highness—once riding in the park and once walking down Piccadilly. He had talked as he did simply because he felt sure that there was no chance of the Prince coming to Punkabrandy. Now, to his horror, he learned that his Royal Highness was just about to come, and all the fictions on which Mr. Oferproof's social success was founded would be laid bare to the gaze of a disgusted world.

If Mr. Oferproof had been an ordinary man he would have solved the difficulty by running away; and even he, at the first shock, thought whether he could not avoid exposure by being called away on business just at the time the Prince was to arrive at Punkabrandy. But a moment's reflection made him reject the idea. He himself had cut off such a retreat by declaring publicly that he could not possibly leave Punkabrandy. If, after such a statement, he did leave it at the present time, nobody could mistake his motive for doing so.

No, he must remain and brazen the matter out, be the result what it might. And, as he was a man of courage and resource, although the prospect seemed bad enough, he did not lose heart. He resolved to miss no opportunity of explaining the situation, which he determined to represent in this fashion: He had met the Prince several times, both at Doublechin House and at the Rathill Manor, but on every such occasion there was a large company; and though he, of course, well remembered that the Prince was there, it was highly probable that the Prince would not remember so insignificant a person as himself.

That night at the mess he began operations. He explained to Col. Toddy and the other officers, in great detail, all the tastes and weaknesses of their future royal guest. He told long stories about the Prince's annoyance at this neglect or that familiarity, and of his pleasure at this attention and that compliment. All the time he was talking he continually interrupted himself by saying, "Ah, yes! How well I remember him! I wonder if he will remember me half as well! Hardly likely, I suppose."

On the whole, the success of this first attempt at explanation was gratifying. All the military men save one seemed convinced that Mr. Oferproof had often met the Prince, and all, without exception, were prepared for the possibility of the Prince failing to remember this fact. The success, however, was not complete. As for about the tenth time he wondered if the Prince would remember him, Capt. Pitcher, who was a little advanced in liquor, volunteered a reply.

"I'm d—d sure he won't, Mr. Oferproof," he said.

Mr. Oferproof, however, took no notice of the interruption, and continued to tell his royal anecdotes, much to the edification of his hearers.

Time went on, and the most elaborate preparations were made by all classes for the reception of the Prince. Mr. Oferproof, with the courage which had been his salvation, had had himself elected spokesman of the deputation of merchants who, with the leading military men and officials of Punkabrandy, were to receive the royal traveler on his arrival, and he took his place on the platform that fatal morning with a coolness which, considering the circumstances, was simply amazing. He knew that every man around him was waiting to see if his Royal Highness now recognized him, and he knew that there was just about as much chance of his Royal Highness recognizing any coolie in the street as himself, and yet he stood there with a greater air of nonchalance than any other man on the platform.

At last the train rushed into the station. In another moment his Royal Highness was on the platform, being introduced to the various gentlemen deputed to receive him. Mr. Oferproof now, in the supreme moment, remained as cool as a cucumber.

At last his turn came.

"Mr. Oferproof, your highness," said Col. Tobby.

"What! Mr. Oferproof, is it you?" cried his Royal Highness affably. Then turning to the other gentlemen, he added, Mr. Oferproof and I are old friends."

Mr. Oferproof was dumbfounded. All his coolness disappeared at this unexpected turn of events. He stood gazing in speechless amazement at the young Prince, and wondered within himself if he had gone mad.

"Yes," his Royal Highness went on, "we used to meet at Doublechin House. Wasn't it in '86 and '87? I have often wondered where you had gone to."

"Yes, your Royal Highness," murmured the bewildered wine merchant, scarcely knowing what he said.

"And, I think, by the by, that the last time I saw you was at Lord Rupert Rathill's?"

"It was, your Royal Highness," answered Mr. Oferproof, attempting with all his might to pull himself together and appear collected.

"Ah, yes, I thought so. Delighted to meet you again, Mr. Mr.—Oferprowth."

"I thank your Royal Highness most deeply," replied Mr. Oferproof with a profound bow.

As the Prince left the platform, Mr. Oferproof recovered his presence of mind. Turning to Capt. Pitcher, who had been standing near regarding the scene with amazed and incredulous eyes, the wine merchant said, "Well, Captain, what do you say now? You see that his Royal Highness has, indeed, a right royal memory."

Mr. Oferproof's triumph was complete. From that day he was universally accepted as the fashionable dictator in Punkabrandy. Even the skeptical Capt. Pitcher bowed to this last and crowning proof of the reality of the wine merchant's smart connections in England.

But to Mr. Oferproof it was, of course, a mystery how the Prince came to recognize one whom he had never seen before. At last, however, he found the solution. It lay in the following letter, which reached him about a month after the Prince's visit to Punkabrandy:

[Private and Confidential.]

PUNKATIFFIN, January 20.—DEAR MR. OFERPROOF: I'm sure you'll pardon my troubling you about a matter of some importance to your friend Prince Fitzedward and me.

His Royal Highness, in returning from Lahore, intends to break his journey for a night at this city, and, as there are possibly some persons here whom he has met in England, but does not remember, I have been sent ahead—as I was at Punkabrandy—to discover them and acquaint his Highness with their names and, the occasions on which he met them, lest any forgetfulness on his part might cause annoyance. I have been here several days, and been unable to discover anything as to the merchant community. Finding that you have business connections here I write in the hope that you may be able to assist me. Do you know of any merchant here who has met his Royal Highness or has had any dealings with him in any way?

If you can give me a little information I shall feel eternally obliged. Very truly yours. CHARLES KNOWESLY.

Dry Goods News at

TURNBULL'S

Another week has brought us many bargains. The first one we will mention is in the Dress Goods Department. We have opened out new Silk-warp Henriettas in black and colors at 60c. and 75c. a yard. Never mind how or where we got them. Those who want fine silk-warp henriettas for the price of wool materials will now know where to go.

We are showing three special lines in Union Carpets at 40, 50 and 60c. a yard. Remember where you have heard of cheap carpets.

Those who have bought the 5½ and 7½ Check Chambrays have found out that what we said about them was true—that they wash beautifully—and they are now coming back for quantities. Remember these goods are selling at just half their value.

The Silk Taffeta and Lace Gloves we are selling at 25c. a pair are startlers.

Mothers, you should see our Heavy Ribbed Cotton Hose for boys. They will recommend themselves to your judgment for durability.

Ladies, do not buy black hose that stain when you can get perfectly stainless ones at Turnbull's.

The rush is on us now in our Tailoring Department and no wonder. Our stock of Tweeds and Worsteds are very choice. We propose and are repeatedly told that we do sell clothing made to order cheaper than any other house in Peterborough.

Our Millinery stock is constantly changing hands. If you have seen our stock of hats last week do not expect to find it the same this week, as we are always receiving new and desirable shapes and trimmings. As the season advances prices always decline in the wholesale millinery stocks, so look out for bargains at Turnbull's Millinery for the balance of the season.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES

THE MOVEMENT FOR AN AUTUMN SESSION HEADED OFF.

Dissident Liberals, After Much Opposition, Adopt a Resolution to Support Salisbury—Gen. Wolseley to Resign July 3—Steamed Round the World.

LONDON, June 13.—The Conservatives who were circulating a memorial in favor of an autumn session of Parliament have abandoned the movement, as Mr. Smith, the Government leader, threatened to resign if an autumn session was decided upon.

It is stated that if Mr. Smith resigns his seat in the cabinet he will probably be succeeded by Lord Hartington, and Sir Henry James will succeed Mr. Matthews as Home Secretary.

At a meeting of dissident Liberals to-day Lord Hartington said he was of opinion that the proposals made by Lord Salisbury looking to the forwarding of parliamentary business were the best means to meet the existing difficulties. He urged the dissident Liberals to give their undivided support to the Government. After much opposition a resolution was adopted declaring the dissident Liberals would support the Government.

The Pall Mall Gazette says it is probable if the resignation of Mr. Munro, Chief of the Metropolitan Police, is accepted, the superintendents and inspectors who keep the force together will resign within a month. A strike by the policemen is by no means impossible.

It is positively announced General Wolseley will resign July 31. Lord Wolseley's views as to the reorganization of the army are at variance with those of the Commander-in-Chief, he Duke of Cambridge, whose retirement he considers necessary before anything practical can be affected. The Queen stands by her cousin the Duke and refuses to hear of his withdrawal.

The White Star steamer Doric, trading between London and New Zealand, claims it has made the fastest voyage around the world. The total time the Doric steamed was 77 days 6 hours and 50 minutes. The distance was 26,000 miles. The engines worked continuously.

The steamer Irthington, from Baltimore, rescued the crew of the Swedish bark Lena, which was abandoned in mid-ocean May 29, with her bulwarks and everything movable about her decks gone, and leaking. The crew worked at the pumps incessantly for two days, when they became disabled.

Sandown Park Summer Meeting.

LONDON, June 13.—The first summer meeting of the Sandown Park Club opened to-day. The race for the Electric stakes, 2000 sovereigns, was won by De Rothschilds' Lactantius, Ginistrelli's Signorina second, Maple's Lightfoot third.

The Peace of Europe Insecure.

VIENNA, June 13.—At a meeting of the Budget Committee of the Austrian Delegations to-day, Field Marshal Bauer, Minister of War, stated that the peace of Europe was not secure and therefore a considerable increase in the army was necessary. The cost of such increase was from 80,000,000 to 100,000,000 florins.

Suicide in the Kaiserstadt.

VIENNA, June 13.—An epidemic of suicide prevails in this city. Six persons endeavored to take their lives yesterday. Three cases proved successful. A girl was found in the room of a hotel with an artery completely severed. Another young woman, whose brother is charged with manslaughter, threw herself into the Danube, but was rescued, while a third female succeeded in poisoning herself because her lover had left her. Two men shot themselves, one in the woods and the other in the great hall at the singers' festival, while a well-known barber cut his own throat in the presence of his customers.

WITH INTENT TO MURDER.

The Montreal Grand Jury Find a True Bill Against Hale for Shooting Cowles.

MONTREAL, June 13.—C. C. Hale of Cleveland, who shot his brother-in-law, Eugene H. Cowles, in St. Catherine-street last Sunday, was brought to the prisoner's box in the Court of Queen's Bench this afternoon. The grand jury then filed into the court room and returned a true bill against him for "shooting with intent to kill and murder."

Hale was called up by the clerk, had the indictment read to him and pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Mr. McGibbon, Q.C., who appeared for the prisoner, addressing the court said: "Under ordinary circumstances we would have been ready to have our trial at once; but Mr. Cowles, the chief witness for the prosecution, though progressing very favorably, is still confined to the hospital, and after consultation with the crown we have come to the conclusion that it will be in the interests of justice and of the accused to have this case adjourned until September."

Then Mr. McGibbon applied for bail. It was finally decided to take $4000 bail, $2000 to be furnished by Hale himself and $1000 by each of two local bondsmen.

37 Children in 28 Years.

RICHMOND, June 13.—A census enumerator here has found a colored woman named Martha Gray, who has had 37 children since 1862. She has given birth to triplets six times, to twins six times and to seven others singly. She is now living with her third husband and of the 37 children but one survives.

A Recount to Be Had in East Hastings.

BELLEVILLE, June 13.—A recount of the votes in East Hastings will be had at Cannifton on Tuesday next.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

A FRATERNAL METHODIST DELEGATION RECEIVED.

Young Men's Societies Sanctioned—A Perplexing Discussion—The Northwest Church and Manse Building Fund—Presbyterian Foreign Mission Work.

OTTAWA, June 13.—To-day's work in the Presbyterian General Assembly began with the examination of papers belonging to students applying through Presbyteries to be licensed. A committee was entrusted with the documents. Fourteen applications from ministers for leave to retire from the active duties of the ministry were placed in the hands of another committee to report upon.

An agreeable half hour was spent this forenoon when four members of the Methodist Conference addressed the court, bringing fraternal greeting to the Presbyterian Church. The Assembly rose to receive the delegates and the moderator in choice terms acknowledged the courtesies and bade the quartet carry away with them the kindly greetings of the Presbyterians.

By an overture supported by Rev. D. J. Macdonnell and Dr. Caven, the assembly sanctioned the formation of young men's societies in connection with congregations, with the aim of increasing missionary interest among the young men of the church and of swelling the finances in connection with home missions. The Home Mission Committee was entrusted with the perfecting of the scheme.

Even the General Assembly gets into trouble sometimes and the afternoon session was entered upon with a perplexing discussion, participated in by several members, on certain educational clauses relating to Manitoba that were charged with finding surreptitious entrance into the home mission report. After considerable crossfiring and explanation the questionable sentences were struck out.

Dr. Gregg of Toronto reported large sales of the Hymnal for the year, and out of the $1600 royalty accruing from these sales the aged and infirm ministers' fund, by order, became benefited to the extent of $1000.

By invitation from the moderator Rev. C. B. Pitblado, once a Canadian minister and now of the United States, was given a seat on the platform.

An appeal from Perth was handed to a select judicial committee and Mr. Grant, the returned missionary from Trinidad, had his name allowed on the roll of commissioners to the assembly.

The Church and Manse Building Fund of Manitoba and the Northwest found a warm advocate in Chief Justice Taylor, the chairman of its board of management. This fund was instituted in 1883, since which time 156 buildings now valued at $197,710 have been aided to the extent of $67,457. For the eight years preceding the establishment of this fund only 15 churches had been built. The year closes with a balance on the right side of $2896.

This evening was given to foreign missions. The Canadian Church conducts and supports mission work in Central India, Formosa and Honan in China, in Trinidad, in the New Hebrides and among the Northwest Indians. It is proposed to start operations among the Chinese and pagan Indians in British Columbia, also to open a mission among the Jews of Palestine with headquarters at Jerusalem.

The women's societies constitute an important factor in the workings of the Foreign Mission Committee. Since the organization of their first society in 1877 they have developed into no less than 25 Presbyterian societies, 176 mission bands and 427 auxiliaries. The first year's income was a little over $1000. This year closes with a revenue of over $31,000.

The Foreign Mission Committee disbursed last year over $82,700 and by present estimates the new year is likely to have an output of over $96,000.

The Bank-street Church was filled to-night. The addresses were sprightly, and special interest was given to the proceedings by the presence and addresses of several missionaries from the foreign field.

Not Ripe for Prohibition.

HAMILTON, June 13.—At the Niagara Synod to-day the report of the committee, in effect that the country is not yet ready for total prohibition, was adopted after an acrimonious discussion in which some delegates denounced hotelkeepers in strong terms, and others claimed that among that class were to be found some of the church's best and holiest men.

TEN THOUSAND DUPES.

Father Mollinger Makes no Charge but he Gets There Just the Same.

PITTSBURG, June 13.—At least 10,000 afflicted people from all parts of the country gathered at Father Mollinger's church in Allegheny City to-day to be healed and to take part in the celebration of St. Anthony's day. It was a curious assemblage of the lame, deaf, and blind drawn together by the reports of Father Mollinger's miraculous cures.

Last night 5000 afflicted persons camped about the church, sleeping on floors, doorsteps, porches and the ground. The services began at daybreak and were continued all day and until late this evening.

Thousands were unable to gain admission to the church and all day they stood in the hot sun awaiting their turn to be cured. Father Mollinger is a physician as well as a priest and does not claim any miraculous powers but is a firm believer in faith coupled with works. He charges nothing for his prescriptions, but few people left without giving from 25 cents to $5.

A SERVANT GIRL BARONESS.

The Sad Story of a Scotch Nobleman's Abused Wife.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 13.—Kathleen R. Bruce died in this city to-day. She was the wife of Edward Austin, baron of Aberdeen, Scotland. She had been maltreated by her husband until she ran away with her babe in her arms. She came to America, finding work in a private family in this city, where she was found by a reporter. After the publication of the story the girl went to Chicago with the family she was living with. Six weeks ago she returned to Indianapolis and was taken sick. She never recovered. She requested that her body be placed in a vault until her recreant husband in Scotland was notified.

U. S. Imposes Duty on Our Postal Cards.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Assistant Secretary Tichenor has advised the surveyor of customs at Albany that Canadian postal cards imported through the mails are dutiable at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem as "printed matter," and has instructed him to prevent a continuance of the practice under which these cards are admitted in 300 lots free of duty.

Galt's Great Success.

GALT, June 13.—The expectations of attendance at the carnival here to-day, notwithstanding threatening weather, have been more than realized. After paying all expenses, which amount to about $5,000, the surplus left in the hands of the promoters will not fall short of $2000.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Rev. Dr. McVicar's New Field—Conference and Synod Proceedings.

TORONTO, June 14.—When Rev. Dr. McVicar resigned the principalship at McMaster Hall it was understood he would retain a professorship in the theological department. He has since been offered and has accepted the position of Superintendent of the American Baptist Home Mission Society in the Southern States, and has resigned his position in connection with McMaster.

At the Methodist Conference yesterday Rev. Dr. Dewart moved a resolution moved by Dr. Douglas in the Montreal Conference in regard to the question of precedence of Roman Catholic ecclesiastics over those of other denominations. Rev. Dr. Douglas who was present made a strong and eloquent speech in its favor, and it was unanimously carried.

At the Anglican Synod an offer of $1000, made by an unknown gentleman a day or two ago, towards the endowment of a see on condition that four others gave a like amount, was withdrawn owing to the flatness with which the offer was received.

The Women's Enfranchisement Association elected these officers for the general association: President, Dr. Emily H. Stowe; vice-president, Mrs. Alma Parker; recording secretary, Mrs. S. A. Curzon; assistant recording secretary, Mrs. James Spence; corresponding secretary, Mrs. O'Connor; treasurer, Mrs. J. Scales.

Several more of the St. George cases were settled yesterday, the most important one being the Handford case at about $6000. Up to last evening out of 17 cases damages had been fixed in 13, amounting in all to about $25,000. It is understood that an arrangement will be made in the others before Tuesday next, when the assessment of the damages in the remaining four cases will be proceeded with unless the parties agree in the meantime.

The general question of the liability of the Grand Trunk Railway Company still remains open and subject to appeal, and the plaintiffs may have to go to England before the amounts settled on are paid.

The court will meet again on Tuesday morning.

The appointment of Hon. A. M. Ross to the clerkship of the County Court of York will be gazetted to-day. He was sworn in yesterday by His Honor Judge McDougall.

Dr. O. C. Edwards, Ottawa, is appointed associate coroner for the County of Carleton.

J. H. Cooper, West Toronto Junction, notary public.

Joint stock companies incorporated:

"The Coulthard-Scott Company of Oshawa (limited)," capital stock $40,000 in $100 shares. Promoters: Walter Coulthard, C. W. Scott, W. J. Hare, A. E. Coulthard, W. W. Coulthard, all of Oshawa. To manufacture agricultural implements.

"The Drumbo Chemical Light Company (limited)," capital stock $20,000, in $20 shares. Promoters: John Pollock, J. A. W. Parker, C. A. Muma, Josiah Cornish, M.D., of Drumbo; D. C. Maynard, Blenheim. To manufacture matches and fireworks.

"The Wentworth Gas and Oil Company (limited)," capital stock $45,000, in $50 shares. Promoters: Lewis Springer, Barton; R. R. Waddell, F. R. Waddell, J. V. Teetzel, J. N. Waddell, P. C. Brown, all of Hamilton. To acquire lands and sink wells and construct machinery thereon for obtaining natural gas and to lay down pipes for conveying the same to Hamilton and other places within the county of Wentworth for the purposes of fuel, heating, illuminating and all other purposes to which gas can be advantageously applied.

The notices in The Ontario Gazette still continue to be signed by "J. M. Gibson, Provincial Secretary."

THEIR TASK NEARLY COMPLETED.

The Senate Finance Committee About Through with the McKinley Bill.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Work by the Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee on the Tariff bill is drawing to a close. Completed schedules of the bill, except those of tobacco and sugar, have been given to the minority, and Senator Carlisle is now preparing the report of the minority to accompany the bill. It is said the majority will make no report in the shape of an argument in favor of the measure, confining itself to the statement of reasons for making the changes reported and the tables showing the relative specific duties in cases where ad valorem duties are laid in accordance with the resolution passed by the Senate.

NEW ORLEANS' BIG SWINDLE.

The Louisiana Lottery Bribes Legislators to Give It Longer Life.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 13.—The charge that the Louisiana lottery company is bribing members of the legislature to vote in favor of extending its charter has been brought before the grand jury of Baton Rouge, and Senator Foster and others have been called as witnesses. The senate committee appointed to consider the matter has as yet done nothing. A Democratic split is probable in Feliciana senatorial district on the lottery question. East Feliciana is against the lottery, and West Feliciana for it. The probabilities are that there will be a division in the Democratic convention and two Democratic candidates nominated.

The High Sec. Will Stay in Brantford.

KINGSTON, June 13.—At the High Court of Canadian Foresters to-day a discussion occurred respecting the removal of the high secretary's quarters from Brantford to Toronto. It was decided to leave the office in Brantford by a vote of 56 to 30. The officers were installed to-night and the court adjourned sine die.

To Boost the World's Fair.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 13.—Governor Fifer to-day issued a call for a special meeting of the Legislature, July 23, to submit to the electors of the state a proposition to so amend the state constitution as to permit Chicago to issue $5,000,000 in bonds in aid of the World's Fair.

RAN INTO A WASHOUT.

A FRIGHTFUL WRECK ON THE CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO ROAD.

Several Employes Killed—A Wrecking Train Runs Over a Colored Man—A Dozen Persons Drowned in the Raging Torrent—A Family Exterminated.

LOUISVILLE, June 13.—At Bull Creek, six miles above Maysville, last night two dark clouds met and burst. The creek jumped over its banks and swept away several dwellings and their frightened occupants. The stone culvert on the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway over Bull Creek was washed away into the river and about midnight, when the storm was at its height, the west bound freight train ran into the washout, making a fearful wreck. The engine and cars were piled one on top of another almost out of sight in the creek bottom.

Engineer C. C. Roadcap, Fireman Hensker and [illegible] were buried beneath the wreck and their bodies have not been recovered. Conductor Waste and Brakeman Love jumped from the last car and escaped.

The train was made up of 28 cars.

A fast wrecking train on the way to the scene this morning ran over Frank Scott, a colored employe, and killed him.

About a dozen persons living on the bank of Bull Creek are reported drowned. These bodies have been recovered:

John Ruggles, a well-known fisherman.

Lucy P. Ettler, a widow, and her two daughters, Betty and Julia, and two sons.

Several hundred people from Maysville have gone to the scene of the disaster.

THE PULSE OF TRADE.

An Unusually Favorable Outlook in the Business World.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's show that on the whole the distribution of general merchandise is of very large proportions, notwithstanding reports of only moderate activity in leading lines for weeks past from Boston, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Kansas City and other cities. The special activity noted at present is in dry goods, cottons and boots and shoes, except at Kansas City, where agricultural implements and groceries are relatively most active. There has been a slackening demand at San Francisco, but Chicago and St. Louis, Minneapolis and Duluth report a good demand for seasonable staples.

The great activity in general trade throughout the country more than counterbalances railway rate troubles in some sections, and as a result gross railway earnings for May increased 14.47 per cent. over May last year, which month showed a gain of 4.6 per cent. over May, 1888. Total earnings for May of 137 companies aggregated $33,496,848, an increase over last May of $4,233,897. The southwestern group, as before, ranks first with a gain of 23 per cent. For the five months the earnings of 134 roads aggregate $169,828,785, on a mileage of 78,134 miles, a gain of respectively 12.7 and 3.9 per cent. in these items.

Bank clearings at 51 cities for the six days ending June 13 are $1,205,163,274, a gain over the like week last year of 11 per cent. New York city's clearings, which constitute 63.5 per cent. of the grand total, exceed those for the like period last year by nearly 9 per cent.

Stock speculation at New York is very dull, with a tendency in prices to sag lower. Europe has sold stocks, and the professional element is slightly bearish on the slow progress of silver legislation and the unsettled railroad troubles. Provisions and cereals have nearly all declined within the week, the drop in wheat being about 3c, mainly on improved crop outlook and weaker cables. Hog products too are weak, lard being off 10 points. Live hogs and cattle are weaker at western markets, and dairy products, while firm, are selling at lower figures than a week ago.

Heavier sales of pig iron are reported east, west and south. A better feeling prevails in the south because of the rather unexpected influx of orders, and lowest quotations have been withdrawn, while a nominal advance of 25c per ton has been made on a few well-known brands. Anthracite coal, too, is firmer and tends upward, while copper is higher, with an active demand.

Exports of wheat (and flour as wheat), both coasts, equal 1,281,680 bushels this week, against 1,266,587 bushels in the like week last year, and 2,294,410 bushels last week. The total exported July 1, 1889, to date as specially telegraphed from leading ports to Bradstreet's, each week, is 101,-664,604 bushels against 82,169,000 bushels in the like portion of 1888-'89. Available stocks of wheat at 1000 points of accumulation east of the Rocky Mountains, as reported to Bradstreet's, declined only 288,000 bushels last week, against an average weekly prior to May of nearly 850 per cent. larger.

Business failures reported to Bradstreet's number 149 in the United States this week against 178 last week and 183 this week last year. Canada had 18 this week against 27 last week. The total number of failures in the United States Jan. 1 to date, is 5,091, against 5,440 in a like portion of 1889.

Dun-Wiman's Report.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Dun, Wiman & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade will say: Speculation has been neither large in volume nor enthusiastic in tone during the past week, but the legitimate business of the country continues unprecedented in volume for the season and highly encouraging in prospects. Although the treasury has taken in $2,860,000 more money than it has disbursed and foreign exchange, apparently because of sales of American securities, has advanced about 1 cent during the week, the current rate for money on call has declined from 5 to 4½ per cent. There has been quite a decline in exports from New York for two weeks past, the value having been 14 per cent. below that of the same weeks last year, while in imports here a moderate increase continues.

Crop prospects begin to rule all markets at this season and, these are distinctly improving. The Government report was more favorable than was expected, and in spite of extravagantly low estimates put forth by speculative statisticians, wheat has declined 1⅜c, oats 1c and corn ⅝c. Cotton prospects have much improved with favoring weather, and the most reliable authorities now reckon on the condition as satisfactory with a reported increase of 2.67 per cent. in acreage. The price has again declined an eighth for export. Coffee is unchanged, though indifference of buyers is admitted. Hogs, lard and pork have scarcely changed in price, and the rise of 2¼c in oil is purely speculative. A better demand for refined sugar is alleged as reason for an advance of ⅛c in price, but other reports indicate that dealers are buying freely at the high prices now asked. The general level of prices is but a shade higher than a week ago, and the prevailing tendency seems at present to be towards a lower range of quotations for a time.

A Philadelphia Tragedy.

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—This afternoon William Collins and Charles Donner were found lying on the floor of a cellar, both dead. Each was about 30 years old. Collins was shot through the right temple and Donner in the mouth. The police claim Collins first killed Donner and then shot himself. Two shots were heard in rapid succession.

The Tennis Tournament.

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—The tennis tournament for ladies' singles and doubles championship was concluded to-day. The principal events were the ladies' and mixed doubles, the former being won by the Misses Roosevelt and the latter by Miss Cahill and R. V. Beech.

Columbus Carmen Win.

COLUMBUS, June 13.—The strike of the street railway employes has been settled, the men getting a 12-hour day and an advance of 15 to 17 cents in wages.

It Was the Cat.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June 13.—This afternoon Albert Morgan, sentenced to one year's imprisonment and to receive twelve lashes, got the latter punishment at the jail. The cat was lightly laid on and although Morgan yelled from start to finish his back was not seriously injured.

Dress the Hair

With Ayer's Hair Vigor. Its cleanliness, beneficial effects on the scalp, and lasting perfume commend it for universal toilet use. It keeps the hair soft and silken, preserves its color, prevents it from falling, and, if the hair has become weak or thin, promotes a new growth.

"To restore the original color of my hair, which had turned prematurely gray, I used Ayer's Hair Vigor with entire success. I cheerfully testify to the

Efficacy

of this preparation."—Mrs. P. H. Davidson, Alexandria, La.

"I was afflicted some three years with scalp disease. My hair was falling out and what remained turned gray. I was induced to try Ayer's Hair Vigor, and in a few weeks the disease in my scalp disappeared and my hair resumed its original color."—(Rev.) S. S. Sims, Pastor U. B. Church, St. Bernice, Ind.

"A few years ago I suffered the entire loss of my hair from the effects of tetter. I hoped that after a time nature would repair the loss, but I waited in vain. Many remedies were suggested, none, however, with such proof of merit as Ayer's Hair Vigor, and I began to use it. The result was all I could have desired. A growth of hair soon came out all over my head, and grew to be as soft and heavy as I ever had, and of a natural color, and firmly set."—J. H. Pratt, Spofford, Texas.

THE SHIP RAILWAY.

One of the most remarkable undertakings now being carried out is thus referred to by the Toronto Empire:—People are apt to forget that one of the most notable and unique engineering enterprises undertaken in the present day is now in full process of construction in this very Dominion of Canada. The Chignecto ship railway scheme is being rapidly pushed forward, and in another year it is expected enormous ships will be transported across the isthmus, and the feasibility of a project which many competent engineers have devoted their engines to will, it is hoped, be confirmed.

The work has progressed well. The wide railroad is nearly completed already, and the basins at each end of the line are being constructed. Four engines of immense driving power have been ordered for the railway, and the rails and fastenings are at hand ready for laying. Thus there is every prospect of a speedy accomplishment of the work. The isthmus is well adapted for the construction of such a road, as the surface is fairly level and the excavation necessary not very difficult. The line is straight from end to end, and in length is seventeen miles, with a gradient of only about ten feet per mile. The roadbed will be forty to sixty feet wide, so that the largest ships may be accommodated, and there will be four lines of rails in two tracks. The vessels desiring to be carried across will enter the dock at either end and be lifted up to the level of the track and then transported by powerful engines in the ordinary way to the other side, when they will be let down to their native element again. The engineers at the head of this vast project are Sir John Fowler and Sir Benjamin Baker, of London, the engineers of the Forth bridge, whose names ought certainly to be a guarantee of perfect success.

There is something most extraordinary in the idea of immense ships being carted over the land as one sees a small boat sometimes lumbering along on top of an ordinary freight waggon, but modern science has made too many wonderful achievements in recent years to encourage the incredulous to doubt the Chignecto marine railway, which is indeed rapidly becoming an accomplished fact. A glance at the map will indicate the distance saved by taking this route, a long and tedious trip round Nova Scotia being avoided. As the enterprise is thus favored by eminent engineering authority it ought to be well patronized, and it is to be hoped that it will prove a financial success. About ten millions of tonnage is registered in ports in the Bay of Fundy and the Gulf of St. Lawrence, which, under ordinary circumstances, might be diverted to the ship railway. All Canadians will be glad to see the remarkable enterprise prosper, and justify the money expended upon it.

IT'S JUST THE THING.

A Scientific Discovery that Builds up the System, Strengthens the Nerves, Imparts Vigor and Strength.

EVERYBODY IS USING IT.

Nearly everyone now feels the need of more energy, strength and vitality. The indoor life of winter has filled the blood with impurities, weakened the nerves, and disordered the general health. The shattered nerves and weary brain, the weak stomach, the pimpled and sallow complexion, tired with lifeless feelings, and the general weak and debilitated condition, show most plainly that Paine's Celery Compound should and must be used. This medicine is a scientific discovery. It is not a sarsaparilla or a bitters. It is entirely vegetable, and yet it is the most powerful spring regulator ever known. Pure blood, strong nerves, clear heads and the glorious feeling of life and strength follows its use.

Paine's Celery Compound is a medicine that especially meets the needs of this age. People now-a-days live too fast and work too hard for their own good; they exhaust too quickly, grow old too fast, die too soon. The strain on the nerves, the pressure on the brain of winter's life has exhausted nerve force and vitality. There is only one medicine that can build up the nerve tissue and renew the brain force, and that medicine is Paine's Celery Compound. When you feel tired and weak with a lack of ambition or relish for work, you do yourself an injustice if you do not commence the use Paine's Celery Compound at once. While it is a place filled by no other medicine especially valuable at this season, and occupies in the treatment of spring sickness and debility, it is also the most wonderful modern discovery for the relief of all nervous disorders, weaknesses and complications. Neuralgia, nervous dyspepsia, sleeplessness, paralysis, headaches and other forms of nerve and brain disorder yield rapidly to its unequaled curative power. Almost everybody is using it, and it well merits its great popularity.

SAVED BY HER CHILD.

A Hamilton Mother's Attempt to Commit Suicide Thwarted.

HAMILTON, June 13.—What would have resulted in a tragedy was averted yesterday afternoon by the prompt action of 10-year-old Nellie McArthur. Nellie lives with her mother at No. 458 James-street north, in a two-story brick house, and in the bay window at the front is the sign "Private Boarding."

Last evening about 6½ the neighbors were startled by the screams of the little girl, and Mrs. Henderson, who lives next door, ran into the house. Upstairs she found Mrs. McArthur in a room greatly agitated, and the little girl held a six-shooter revolver, which she had just snatched from her mother, cocked and ready at the pull of the trigger to send a leaden pellet into the object aimed at. Mrs. McArthur was immediately taken care of and Dr. Woolverton summoned.

When questioned by the neighbors the little girl said that her mother had been sad all afternoon, and about 6 o'clock she said, "Well, Nellie, I think you will be able to get along better without me."

The little one did not understand, and soon after Mrs. McArthur went upstairs. Nellie felt that something was wrong, and followed her mother. When she got to the bedroom door her worst fears were realized. There was her mother, with the revolver in her hand and pointed at her breast. Quick as a flash the little girl sprang into the room, knocked the weapon from her mother's nervous hand and cried out for assistance.

Mrs. McArthur is a refined and educated woman and why she should attempt to take her own life is something the neighbors are at a loss to understand. They all describe her as a perfect lady and say her four little children are enough to make anyone wish to live. She has lived at No. 458 only a month. In confidence she told Mrs. Henderson that there was a time when she was not obliged to take boarders. Her husband, she said, was living somewhere, she did not know where, but she believed with another woman. She had been in good circumstances before her marriage and was a stranger to toiling and slaving to keep the wolf from the door. Since coming to No. 458 she had only two boarders and they both left without paying their board, leaving her considerably out on the transaction.

Left to her own sad thoughts yesterday afternoon, the poor woman got in a state of nervous excitement. Excited, agitated, she told her little girl that she would get along better without her, and was only prevented from taking her own life by the intervention of her daughter.

JUDGE LYNCH HOLDS COURT.

An 18-year-old Negro Boy the Victim—Shot Full of Holes.

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 13.—Elbert county furnishes another lynching. About three weeks ago George Penna, a negro boy about 18 years old, was arrested and lodged in jail in Elberton in default of $100 bond, to answer to the charge of criminal assault alleged to have been committed on W. S. Butler's 14-year-old daughter, who lives in the upper part of Elbert county. Penna was held in jail until last week, when John Hall, who lives in the same neighborhood, went to Elberton, signed Penna's bond and took the boy home with him. Hall, apprehensive of Penna's safety, made him stay in the upper story of his house.

About midnight last Thursday night, while Penna was fast asleep, a mob of about 25 masked men went to Hall's house, went up stairs, got Penna and took him away. No more was heard of him until last evening, when his body was found in the Broad river, 13 miles from Elberton, with a 40-pound rock tied around his neck and three bullet holes in his head. The body was brought to Elberton yesterday, and a coroner's jury was empanelled. The evidence developed the fact that Hall was at home, but complained of being sick and did not get up when the lynching party came. The verdict of the jury was that the deceased came to his death either by gunshot wounds or drowning at the hands of unknown parties.

THE TYPOS AT ATLANTA.

President Plank and Secretary McClevey Re-elected—Proposed Labor Congress.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 13.—The International Typographical Union, which has been in session here all the week, has nearly concluded its labors. E. T. Plank was re-elected president and W. S. McClevey secretary and treasurer. The other officers elected are: First vice-president, H. J. Loser, Nashville; second, J. Von Buettner, Galveston; third, P. J. Weldon, Chicago; organizers—First district, Edmund Beardsley, Brooklyn; second, G. Harry Stone, St. Louis; third, S. R. Freeman, Birmingham; fourth, Victor B. Williams, Chicago; fifth, James E. Reynolds, Ottawa, Ont.; sixth, John R. Winders, San Francisco; seventh, Michael G. Cummings, St. Paul. Delegates to the American Federation of Labor, Alex. J. Mullen, Minneapolis; Frank L. Rist, Cincinnati, leaving two to be elected. Last night the delegates were given a banquet.

It has been decided to have an International Typographical Congress at Chicago during the World's Fair in 1893 and the delegates to the Federation of Labor are instructed to push for an International Labor Congress at the same time.

W. B. Prescott, who represents No. 91 of Toronto, is a member of the most important committee, that on laws.

A CRATER ON BROADWAY.

Travel on Gotham's Chief Artery Completely Blocked by Sheets of Flame.

NEW YORK, June 13.—From 3 o'clock yesterday morning until 8 last night a sheet of flame, 20 feet high, was shooting into the air at the corner of Fulton-street and Broadway. A workman's torch had ignited a leaking gas main. Traffic in Broadway at that point was entirely suspended. The United States Electric Light Company lost $70,000 by the ruin of the insulation on their cables and the Brush Company $100,000. New Yorkers begin to realize that the city rests upon a volcano which may burst forth in a serious eruption at any moment.

MEN TO BEWARE OF.

A Chicago Business-man Has Collated Some Important Rules.

Samuel W. King, at the head of one of the largest legal collection concerns in the country, has met and seen every type of man. From his observations he has made the following deductions, had them printed, and hung in his office:

MEN TO BEWARE OF.

Beware of the man who "Swears by all the gods at once," or one at a time, for that matter.

Of the man who slaps you between the shoulders and calls you "old man." No amount of familiarity is any excuse for this.

Of the man who hyphenates his words with "er—a."

Of the man whose first salutation is, "What's the news?"

Of the man who asks you, when he has seen you speak to another, "Who's your friend?"

Of the man who asks you, "Where did you get it?"

Of the man who in leaving says, "See you later."

Of the man who pokes you in the ribs when he is talking.

Of the man who adjusts the lapel of your coat or rubs one sleeve, or both, when he is talking to you.

Of the man who talks to you on your train, or on a street-car, when he never saw you before, unless there is a public crisis. Victor Hugo says that such salutations show public anxiety, and are only excusable when there is public excitement.

Sensible fellow, that Hugo.

Of a man who occupies a whole table in the writing-room of a hotel.

Of the man who can't get out of a chair without kicking it from under him.

Of the man who drops into a drug-store to look up a name in the directory and hangs on to the book as if it were a new novel when he sees three or four others waiting to look up names.

Of the man who stands at the box-office of a theatre when there is a crowd back of him, talking about best seats and other topics.

The woman who will do this is no better. She isn't as good as a man.

Finally—beware of the man who comes but never goes, and of his companion picture, the man who starts to go but doesn't.—Chicago Tribune.

Replace Your Footwear.

Possibly your boots have been half worn out running around doing election work. Good! Now you will need new boots. Get them at Kidd's, The Shoe House. Grits, Tories and Equal Righters can all be well and cheaply shod. Kidd the shoe man boots all comers. d123tf

Four Years More a Member.

The verdict of the polls has been given. Mr. Stratton is a member for 4 years longer. The ballots were marked in his favor by a large majority just as they would have been for Hawley Bros. as the prompt, careful and successful tea merchants, who give a good article at a moderate price. Give Hawley's a trial. d123tf

Very Acceptable.

The Minden Echo says:—"The Sunday school of St. Paul's (Presbyterian church) Peterborough, have presented Brown's Station Sunday school with a handsome library, containing over 50 volumes, worth $16. This will be very acceptable, as the school has been recently started and promises to do well."

Gospel Temperance Meeting.

A Gospel temperance song service will be held in the Royal Templars Hall, Hunter-st., on Sunday afternoon at 4.15. Singing led by Miss Owens, and devotional exercises and scripture lesson by Mr. John Carlisle. Sheriff Hall will deliver an address. Mr. G. H. Howson chairman. All are welcome.

A Two Dollar Bath.

W. McIntyre and Geo. Billings were charged at the Police Court this morning with bathing in a public place. The young men it appears were swimming in the race at Auburn and as a stop must be put to this practice they were summoned before the magistrate. They pleaded guilty and were fined two dollars each. The money was paid.

Oddfellows Away.

Come all ye who desire to spend a day in the fresh and healthy atmosphere of one of the most beautiful summer resorts in this locality and go with the Oddfellows on Tuesday next to Jacob's Island. The arrangements for the comfort and accommodation for a large crowd are almost complete, while a very valuable lot of prizes for the sports and games has been secured. The day will be one of enjoyment, fun and friendly intercourse. Train leaves at 8.30 a.m. Tickets 30 and 60 cents.

Damages at Norwood.

The Norwood Register says:—The thunder storms of Wednesday and Thursday last were unusually severe. In Norwood and vicinity several places were struck with lightning. An unoccupied house on Pine-st., the property of Mr. Wm. O'Shea, and Mr. Abraham Waller's residence on Belmont-st. were both struck. The buildings sustained very little damage. Mr. William Clancy and Mr. Daniel Dwyer, of Asphodel, both suffered. The former had a horse killed and the latter a cow and a pig. In Dummer, a barn owned by Mr. Chas. McDonald, of Norwood, was struck and badly damaged. The crops, however, escaped serious injury, although the rain was unusually heavy.

Busy Mission Workers.

The young ladies of the Mission Band of the George-st. church had a busy day and evening yesterday. The vacant shop on George-st., just south of Mills' hat store, was transformed into a bazaar where articles of all description, fancy and plain, ornamental and useful, cheap and costly, were displayed in tasteful profusion. In the rear a refreshment counter was operated, where ice cream and tempting cakes were dispensed to large numbers of patrons. The young ladies in charge of the different counters were kept busy, and a goodly sum must have been realized for the good cause in which the ladies are exerting themselves. The sale was continued this afternoon and will be open again this evening.

A Freak of Lightning.

The Norwood Register has the following:—A strange freak of lightning occurred in Otonabee during one of the severe thunder storms which passed over Ontario last week. Mrs. Shaughnessy was putting her child to bed early one evening, and some clothing which she was holding in her hand was ignited by a vivid flash of lightning and began slowly to burn, though, strange to say, neither mother nor child felt the least shock.

Dominion Day Celebration at Port Hope.

This year's programme for the celebration of Dominion Day in Port Hope is the best ever presented by that town. It comprises Aquatic Sports, Athletic Sports, Grand Horse Races, Baseball Match and other sports during the day. In the evening there will be a Magnificent Display of Fireworks, Balloon Ascensions, &c. We would strongly advise our readers to make their arrangements to spend Dominion in Port Hope. The programme there is always fully carried out. Any information desired can be obtained by writing W. E. BRAMMER, Secretary of Committee. d130

Now

That the time for summer vacation is approaching is it not well to look about and see where you are going to spend it to the best advantage. It is human nature to want to spend it pleasantly and profitably. It has been said "a change is better than a rest" and therefore in making your plans had you not better become a student again and spend a month or two in the useful and beautiful penmanship and art. Excellent advantages are offered in the Peterborough Business College during the vacation at low rates. College hours during the cool of the day. For particulars address Principal Geo. S. Bean, B.A.

The New Carbons Exhibited.

Last night the quality of the electric light carbons made by the Brooks Manufacturing Company was exhibited in a building on Brock-st. The company makes three grades of carbons, suitable for currents of different strength. "The carbon used in this exhibition was for a strong current, ten ampiers, and was placed in an arc lamp connected with the street current of the electric light service. The light it gave was strong, clear and steady, and there was a pleasant absence of shadows and hissing. A large number who passed along the street to the band concert in the park viewed the test, which was satisfactory to all who saw it and showed the excellent quality of the carbons made by this company.

Divine Healing.

The Christian Alliance held two more successful and interesting meetings yesterday, one in the afternoon and another in the evening. Mrs. Shultz addressed both meetings. In the evening there was a large attendance. Mr. Wm. Wellbrook occupied the chair. Mrs. Shultz gave an address in which she dwelt principally upon the Alliance Orphanage and College in New York. These institutions are sustained wholly by trusting in the Lord, no money for their maintenance ever being solicited. Mrs. Hudson, a lady who has recently returned from California, gave testimony of having been healed by accepting the teachings of the Alliance. She had been a sufferer for fifteen years from chronic rheumatism. Mrs. Shultz left this morning on the early train for the west.

Personal.

Mr. A. McNeil has been elected a member of the Executive Committee of the High Court of Foresters.

Sir Joseph Hickson, General Manager of the Grand Trunk, is expected to pass through here to-night.

The Rev. E. Norman, of Toronto University, has taken charge of the Lakefield Baptist church, for the summer months.

Mr. James Martin, of the C.P.R., an old Peterborough resident, is in town renewing old acquaintances.

The Vancouver, B.C., News-Advertiser says:—"Mr. David Jamieson, for some time a compositor on the News-Advertiser, returned last night on the Premier to see his old friends in town. Mr. Jamieson is now located at Whatcom, and is manager of the Bellingham Bay Express." Mr. Jamieson is a graduate of the REVIEW office.

Mr. H. Strike, Principal of the Ashburnham Public school, who entered the Methodist ministry at the recent meeting of the Bay of Quinte Conference, has been appointed to Norland, a circuit near Coboconk. Mr. Strike will consequently resign his present position immediately and enter upon his ministerial duties.

DISTRICT DOTS.

Interesting Midland District Items Culled From Exchanges.

—At a meeting in Cobourg it was said that $1,200 would be required to prepare plans and profiles of the proposed C.N. & P. railway, and the interested municipalities were asked to furnish that amount.

—Hay's mill dam at Cobourg broke away on June 5th. Three times in three years Mr. Hay has suffered loss in this way.

—The great flood on Thursday and Friday, June 6th, swept away nearly every bridge in the counties of Durham and Ontario. It is said that the towns of Port Hope, Bowmanville and Oshawa have suffered damage to the extent of $10,000 each. There was also great destruction in the rural municipalities.

—An infant was placed on the doorstep of a resident of Millbrook one night last week and deserted by its mother.

—While Mr. John Bloxom, of Mount Pleasant, was unhitching his team one of the horses kicked him in the face, making several large cuts.

—A large lynx was treed by Mr. Burton Foster, of Manvers, and killed with a stone. It was exhibited at Millbrook.

—The house of Mrs. Wm. Long, of South Verulam, was struck by lightning last week. Little damage was done, but the fluid went through the room close to Mrs. Long, sr., who had a narrow escape.

—The Wilberforce cheese factory in Monmouth has passed into the hands of Mr. J. H. Anderson.

—The prospects of the Monmouth phosphate mine are said to be most promising. The strata is plainly defined, of considerable depth, and extends across six lots.

—A Lindsay butcher went into his refrigerator and the door closed behind him and fastened him in. His shouts brought assistance and he was released thoroughly chilled.

—While removing bananas from a bunch of that fruit Mr. Morton, of Lindsay, discovered a lively tarantula or southern spider. When despatched and viewed through a glass it was seen to have seven beast like eyes and an owlish looking head.

—It is said that the damage done to the roads in Cavan by the storm on June 4th and 5th amounts to $1,300. Fair's dam, north of Bethany, and Shield's dam at Mount Pleasant were carried away.

—At Janetville by the storm on election day two mill dams were broken, and Mr. John Burns' logs, lumber and a lot of shingle bolts were carried away with the flood. Forty feet of the church shed was undermined and toppled over.

—The Grand Trunk stock shipping yards at Oakwood have been enlarged and several platforms erected

—Rev. R. H. Rollins and Rev. W. B. Tucker, of Minden, were each presented with a purse of money by friends.

—Dominion Day will be celebrated in Minden by a programme of sports, balloon ascensions, band music, etc., and a display of fireworks.

—Mr. Geo. McKay, jr., had an arm broken by a kick from a playful colt in Minden on Tuesday.

—The trial of John Farrell, of Marmora, for aggravated assault was on Friday laid over until the January sessions at Belleville.

—In the Hastings County Council a grant of $50 was asked for a bridge over Mink Creek on the boundary line between Wollaston and Chandos, but it was refused.

W. C. T. U.

A special meeting of the W.C.T.U. will be held on Monday afternoon at half past three to make final arrangements for a tea to be given on Thursday evening next to the trustees and teachers of the town. The subject under discussion will be "Scientific Temperance Instruction."

Sentenced for Four Years.

Jas. Dickson, the burglar who is serving a two-year term in the Central Prison for burglaries in this vicinity, and who was taken to Belleville this week to be tried on several charges of burglary, pleaded guilty to the offences. He was sentenced to four years in the Kingston penitentiary. This term is begun at the expiration of the two years he is now serving.

The Dominion Day Picnic.

The great attraction for citizens, old and young, rich and poor, for Dominion Day should be the picnic of St. Peter's Cathedral congregation which is to be held at St. Leonard's. The beautiful grove will be a delightful place for a gathering and a good time may be anticipated. Sports, games and music will enliven the hours, while refreshments in abundance will be furnished by the ladies. The clergy of the district will also be well represented. Come and bring the family and enjoy the day. 1d130

Clever and Skilful.

The Ontario's account of a concert given in the Belleville opera house on Thursday night contains the following:—"Prof. Hanna was clever and skilful in his club swinging. His combinations in the silver club swinging were difficult but cleverly done. But the most difficult by far was reserved for the last, the illuminated club swinging. All the lights in the house was turned down until the place was in darkness when Mr. Hanna with illuminated clubs repeated some of his most difficult combinations." The Intelligencer says:—"The silver club swinging and the swinging of the illuminated clubs by Prof. Hanna, of Albert College, was done to perfection and was much appreciated."

New Highway to the Orient.

A few days ago we mentioned a fine map issued by the Canadian Pacific railway, and we have now to acknowledge the receipt of a large-sized pamphlet of forty-eight pages descriptive of "The New Highway to the Orient." After a brief historical reference, the reader is carried along from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and many interesting points are described, and the pen is assisted by numerous illustrations of Quebec and Ontario cities and of scenes in the west and in the Rocky Mountains. Much information is also given regarding the accommodation on the railway, and here again illustrations of the interior of the cars and of the C. P. R. steamers come to the assistance of the reader. The pamphlet is an interesting one as well as a good advertisement of this great railway.

The Jury Must Go.

The Young Men's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Church had a meeting last evening, at which the President, Mr. T. A. Hay, presided. A splendid debate formed the programme for the evening after business had been disposed of. The subject for the argumentary warfare was "Resolved that the jury system should be abolished." Mr. Ross championed the affirmative and was supported by Messrs. R. M Dennistoun, J. W. Bennett, F. D. Mackay, W. H. Hill and D. Davidson. The negative side of the question was led by Mr. Fife, with Messrs. R. R. Hall, F. Hall and McWilliams. The chairman was judge on the debate and gave his decision in favor of the affirmative. The subject for debate at the next meeting, which will be held in two weeks, will be, "Resolved that Negroes should not enjoy equal rights with the white man."

A MURDERER EXECUTED.

Henry Smith Hanged in London for Murdering His Wife.

By Telegraph to the Review.

LONDON, Ont., June 14.—Promptly at eight o'clock this morning Henry Smith, who so brutally murdered his wife on February 19th last, was conducted from his cell to the scaffold, supported by four Sheriff's deputies. A short prayer was said by one of the attending ministers, during which the executioner adjusted the black cap, and at 8.10 sharp the string was cut and Smith was launched into eternity. There were but twenty persons allowed within the court yard, but a crowd of boys on an adjacent shed viewed the scene with evident amusement.

Painless Extraction of Teeth by Using the Dental Vibrator.

There is only one Electric Vibrator in the Town and County of Peterborough and I am the exclusive owner of the right to use the same for the safe and wholly painless extraction of teeth, while any other form of using electricity for such a purpose, successfully, is actually and absolutely as useless as an attempt to subdue fire by adding oil. Patients who are anxious to avoid pain in tooth extraction should remember this, but those who wish to experiment with an ordinary, common every-day battery and its harsh, painful current, and find themselves completely deceived and disgusted with the result, should not condemn electricity but search for the Dental Vibrator the next time

I also have a new process for the construction of artificial teeth whereby the plate may be made as thin as ordinary writing paper, yet retaining all desirable qualities, namely, usefulness, beauty, comfort and durability.

Brevities.

—The cells were tenantless last night.

—There was a fair market this morning.

—The County Council opens here on Tuesday.

—The adjourned quarterly meeting of the Board of Trade is to be held on Monday evening.

—At the Campbellford Cheese Board this week Mr. Warrington secured the board of 340 boxes at 8 5-16.

—The fishing season opens to-morrow. Several fishermen went down the river yesterday to be on the grounds for the opening.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

DIED.

WAREHAM—On June 14th, SARAH, wife of Mr. William Wareham.

The funeral will leave the family residence, No 684 Water-st., on Monday, June 16th, inst., at 2 30 p.m., and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery.

LINDSAY LINES.

The Town Visited by Burglars—Freaks of Lightning.

A DAZED HORSE.—A horse owned by Mr. Geo. Bowman, Ops, received an overdose of electricity in one of the late storms and was dazed for a few days.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—In one of the storms of Thursday last a party took shelter at the house of Mr. Ferris on the Scugog. On returning to the river he was surprised to find his boat transformed into kindling wood. It had been struck by lightning.

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY.—A few nights since some one attempted to effect an entrance into the dwelling house of Mr. Wm. Hicks, on the Janetville road, just south of the town. The noise of a window being forced open attracted the attention and a loaded shot gun, accompanied by Mr. Hicks, caused the miscreant to make himself scarce before a bead could be drawn on him.

ROBBERY.—On Monday night or Tuesday morning last, the jewellery store of Mrs. Keeve, Kent Street, was robbed of about $200 worth of watches. It appears that on Monday night Mrs. Keeve, being indisposed, neglected to place in the safe, as is her usual custom, a number of watches which were displayed in a show case in the window, and sometime during the night they were stolen, the miscreant having removed a portion of a large light of glass in the side window, just inside the wire gate. There is no clue to the robber, but it is probable the property is somewhere in the town.—Watchman.

A Contradiction.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—Will you kindly allow me space in your valuable columns to contradict a statement which seems to be occupying a good deal of public attention during the last few days, viz., that a certain letter addressed to the Orangemen of Galway and Cavendish (and purporting to be signed by me as C. M.), requesting them to support Mr. J. R. Stratton, the then Reform candidate of the late Provincial election contest. I hereby contradict the same as I never wrote or signed the said letter, as the only letter written by me was addressed to Bro. Wm. Stewart, Burnt River, requesting the Orangemen of that locality to support the Equal Rights candidate and was delivered to him by Bro. J. A. Davidson and Mr. Merrick.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space,
I remain, dear sir,
Yours respectfully,
ALEX. HAMILTON,
C. M. West Peterborough.

P.S.—This letter would have appeared at an earlier date, but Mr. Carnegie preferred to wait until the present.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria!

The Daily Review.

SATURDAY, JUNE 14, 1890.

THE ACCIDENT.

WITHIN a few miles of its terminus the railroad passed through a valley, narrow, to be sure, but of great and unusual beauty. The sides and crests of the surrounding hills were dotted with the pretty cottages of suburban residents, but the country was not yet so closely settled as to have lost all picturesqueness, and, although the houses were neat, they were simple, and the lawns, though well kept, were still undisfigured by bronze or cast-iron statuary. The neighborhood had not yet reached that stage in its development where its new houses were built upon uninteresting plans furnished ready-made to rural carpenters by enterprising publishers. Nor had its occasional churchyard yet lost all sense of rest and peace. Simple gravestones there were, but no pretentious monuments. But even here death slyly took his victim unawares or stood forth to fight boldly for his own as he pleased.

It was here that many years before John Dorsey had made for himself a home, and it was here that he was now about to die.

There had been an accident. It was a very slight one, and its cause was almost ridiculous. John Dorsey, the conductor of the sleeping-car train, had been the only one hurt. He however, though fatally injured, suffered almost no pain and was entirely conscious of his surroundings and condition. He had indeed stated his belief that he was about to die long before the doctor had been able to ascertain the character of his injuries or to form any opinion of the probable result. His insistance upon this even annoyed the doctor.

"Dorsey," he said, "you must not speak so. You are too young to die, and we shall save you."

As soon as could be after the accident Dorsey had been carried to a neighboring house, and Dr. Irwin had been sent for by men on the train who had known of the intimate friendship which existed between the two. This friendship was of earlier date than Dorsey's connection with the railroad, and that seemed to Dorsey's fellow-employes to have begun almost ages before.

Although Dorsey had always been as frank and candid as a man well could be in reference to all his later life, in regard to his earlier past he was singularly reticent. Among his fellows there had always been considerable speculation as to what his youth had been. Some, who had known of his intimacy with Dr. Irwin, and of his ability to meet upon terms of personal equality the high officials of the road, and of their regard for him, believed that he had been an old college friend of the doctor's and that some accident of fate had made him a working railroad man while the doctor had secured his profession. Others, less charitable, or with an unhappier experience of the world, and puzzled by the reports which reached them of the repeated refusal of Dorsey to take other positions higher and more remunerative, believed that he must have committed some crime, and was therefore careful not to expose himself to too bright a light. As a matter of fact, he and the doctor had been classmates, but after their graduation they had lost sight of each other for a few years while Dr. Irwin pursued his studies in various foreign hospitals. Upon his return from abroad he had heard of the death of Dorsey's wife and child. He had looked Dorsey up and expostulated with him upon his selection of a vocation. But Dorsey was silent as to the reasons for his choice and quietly persistent in his determination not to change his work if he could help it.

But as frequently as he could Dorsey would visit the doctor and stay with him as much as possible, and their early friendship had grown and ripened.

"Tom," Dorsey said to the doctor almost upon his arrival, "I am glad they sent for you, but you cannot do any thing."

As time went on the doctor reluctantly began to believe that Dorsey was right—that his recovery was impossible.

Deeply as the doctor was grieved he was annoyed too to feel that his skill would be of no avail to his old friend.

"Why did you follow such an infernal business?" he asked impatiently.

"Don't, Tom," Dorsey replied. "Dont call it that."

"And why should you be the only one to be hurt?"

"Was I the only one?" Dorsey asked.

"Yes."

"That is strange, maybe," Dorsey said; and then his calmness, which had been so remarkable, deserted him, but only for a minute.

"What caused the accident?" he asked. "Do they know?"

"Yes," the doctor replied; and he told of the little land-slide which the engineer had seen almost in time, but not quite, and the engine had run into with barely enough force to jar the train its length. "We suppose," he added, "that you must have been shaken between two cars in some way."

"Will it hurt me to talk?" Dorsey asked.

"No," the doctor answered.

"And my brain is entirely clear?"

"Certainly," the doctor replied, wondering a little.

"Then let me tell you a great deal. I had a fondness always for all cars and trains. The earliest, the pleasantest recollection I have is of the noise of the coupling of cars as they were made into trains in the yards. No music was ever so sweet to me as that. I used to spend all the time I could watching the trains made up and going. No novel ever pleased me so. They made me go through college, you know. I have never regretted it, but then I wanted to be an engineer. That seemed the only place worth having.

"Then you went abroad and I married. I have always so regretted that you never knew Mary."

The doctor interrupted: "You must not tell me this if it will distress you."

"It does not. I want to tell you; I have so many times wanted to tell you about her, and all. It is easy to see her now as she used to sit sometimes with her head upon my knee and her big blue eyes looking in mine so trustfully. She had faith in me." And he paused a little.

"Of course," said the doctor, "and it was deserved, too."

"Yes, and it gladdens me so now to think it was. Matters, too, looked well for us then. Success seemed worth striving for. Mary was jealous a little of my love for the railroad. I always loved it, as I said. I was in business then, but our little house was close by the line. I could hear the trains go by all night if I happened to be awake. You can see the house now from the window yonder. Lift me up a little—so. Mary at first hated the railroad, but she grew used to the noise, and I think after a little she paid no attention to it. She furnished our house prettily, and we were very happy; but she would ask me to conquer my liking for the railroad. She feared that I could not be fit for anything else, my thoughts were so occupied with it, but I laughed gently at her and went on in the same way and with the same hopes. She never doubted my love, but she used to say that some time I would obey her slightest wish and follow her wherever she might lead. It may be there was a little complaint in her manner.

"When the baby was born a love of the railroad seemed to be born in her. She would as soon as she could clap her little hands at the sound of the engine whistle. As she grew older we called her Mary too—she would ask me in her baby way to come early to see the trains go. I needed no urging, and when I could I would. Out on the grass we would sit, and I would tell her of all the strange places we sometimes would go on the cars to see. Even then in fancy little Mary and I would go with the trains all over the world. It was rare sport to her."

Dorsey had spoken as rapidly as he could, but now he talked more slowly.

"One day I was ill at ease. Nothing that I had to do seemed worth while. I only wanted to be at home; I only wanted to feel them near me, and safe. But, try as I would it was late in the long afternoon before I could get away. It was warm, but as I hurried home a gentle breeze met me. It was a bright, beautiful day, just such a summer's day as this. It was so peaceful and the leaves so kissed one another in the light breeze that I was calmed and the feeling I had suffered from all day left me. I was glad that we lived in the country. I was glad to be alive at all. The sun was almost behind the western hills and all that side of that valley was in shadow, but on our side it was light and everything was rarely beautiful in the sunlight. The slanting rays made our house brilliant and glorious in its colors.

"As I neared home Mary came to the door, and I could see her welcoming smile. Then, shading her eyes with her hand, she looked over toward the railroad, and in a minute screamed and ran rapidly from the house. Alarmed and wondering, I ran after her. Down below on the track stood little Mary, her curls and all her pretty ribbons fluttering in the wind. Around the short curve came suddenly the fast express, and the child, as she saw the great engine bearing down upon her and heard the startling whistle, waved her little hat as though in greeting.

"Another minute and Mary would have been in time. Her dress caught in something or she stumbled, and was so delayed; but she recovered herself quickly, and hurrying on caught little Mary in her arms, and then—— It ought to be easy to tell it now."

For some little time Dorsey was silent. The doctor did not ask him to continue nor did he urge him to stop when Dorsey began again:

"For Mary it was over at once, but our child, held firmly in its dead mother's arms, lived a little while. I think she must have been hurt as I have been. She could speak, and when they brought her to me she put her little arms about my neck and said: "I am going with the cars now."

"It may seem strange to you," Dorsey went on shortly, "but the railroad had a greater fascination for me than ever. I staid about the cars and trains as I had in my boyhood. I almost feared they would order me away from the yard.

"My business went to nothing just then. Perhaps my neglect hurt it, but I think not. At all events I gave it up. Then I secured a place as brakeman without much trouble."

"Was that pleasant?" the doctor asked. It was easier to interrupt Dorsey now.

"Yes, to me," he answered, "but still I was glad when I was promoted, as I was through the various grades to be conductor."

"Has there been no chance for further promotion in all these years?"

"Oh, yes; but I have never wanted to leave my train. After a long while I applied for the place in the sleeping-cars."

For a while neither spoke. The doctor, keenly observant, thought that Dorsey had more to tell; but he waited patiently.

"Life has gone very evenly and smoothly with me since then until last night. Until last night," he repeated slowly.

"Well, what happened then?" the doctor asked as Dorsey paused.

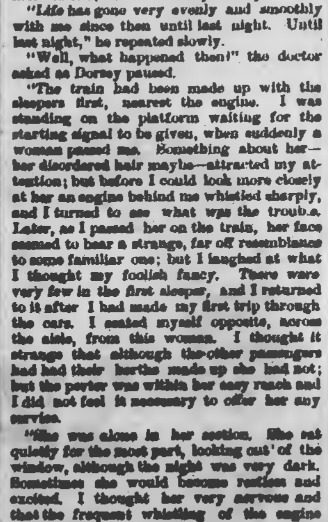
"The train had been made up with the sleepers first, nearest the engine. I was standing on the platform waiting for the starting signal to be given, when suddenly a woman passed me. Something about her—her disordered hair maybe—attracted my attention; but before I could look more closely at her an engine behind me whistled sharply, and I turned to see what was the trouble. Later, as I passed her on the train, her face seemed to bear a strange, far off resemblance to some familiar one; but I laughed at what I thought my foolish fancy. There were very few in the first sleeper, and I returned to it after I had made my first trip through the cars. I seated myself opposite, across the aisle, from this woman. I thought it strange that although the other passengers had had their berths made up she had not; but the porter was within her easy reach and I did not feel it necessary to offer her any service.

"She was alone in her section. She sat quietly for the most part, looking out of the window, although the night was very dark. Sometimes she would become restless and excited. I thought her very nervous and that the frequent whistling of the engine startled her. As I remember it now it seems to me that she became excited a little before the blowing of the whistle. After a while I closed my eyes, it may be I fell asleep—but I was recalled to myself by a very unusual and prolonged whistle of the engine. (Our engineer was determined, it seemed that none of us should sleep that night.) As I opened my eyes this strange woman came in from the front. Where she had been I do not know, but there was a bright and happy light in her eyes. Perhaps I should have spoken to her, but I was very tired and the temptation to rest there quietly was a very strong one.

"In a few minutes I surely fell asleep—I know I broke the rules, but it was for a minute only—I surely fell asleep, for I dreamed that dreadful day all over again. Once more I was rudely wakened by the engine's whistle. As I started up a cold wind blowing through the car met me, and there stood the strange woman holding the front door open, looking out into the night. Her hair had fallen loose as Mary's was that day. It was Mary. I hurried toward her.

"With a look of confidence, and a smile of welcome almost, she turned to beckon me on. She sprung up on the tender and laughed joyfully, and it even seemed to me she danced there. In another moment I would have held her in my arms. Then the shock came——"

As Dr. Irwin leaned over his old friend he smiled a little, but his eyes glistened strangely. Had the circumstances been otherwise it may be he would have been tempted to discuss the matter with Dorsey and to attempt to convince him that he had been misled by a simple hallucination. As it was he tried only to make him comfortable for the little time remaining to him.



Scaly Skin Diseases

Psoriasis 5 years, covering face, head and entire body with white scabs. Skin red, itchy and bleeding. Hair all gone. Spent hundreds of dollars. Pronounced incurable. Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

Cured by Cuticura

My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed; it then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head, and shoulders being the worst. The white scabs fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using two bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT and one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I thought the disease would leave a very deep scar, but the CUTICURA REMEDIES cured it without any scars. I cannot express with a pen what I suffered before using the CUTICURA REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recommend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight. I know of others who have received great benefit from their use.

Coughs, Colds, Croup,

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

Dry Goods News at

TURNBULL'S

Another week has brought us many bargains. The first one we will mention is in the Dress Goods Department. We have opened out new Silk-warp Henriettas in black and colors at 60c. and 75c. a yard. Never mind how or where we got them. Those who want fine silk-warp henriettas for the price of wool materials will now know where to go.

We are showing three special lines in Union Carpets at 40, 50 and 60c. a yard. Remember where you have heard of cheap carpets.

Those who have bought the 5½ and 7½ Check Chambrays have found out that what we said about them was true—that they wash beautifully—and they are now coming back for quantities. Remember these goods are selling at just half their value.

The Silk Taffeta and Lace Gloves we are selling at 25c. a pair are startlers.

Mothers, you should see our Heavy Ribbed Cotton Hose for boys. They will recommend themselves to your judgment for durability.

Ladies, do not buy black hose that stain when you can get perfectly stainless ones at Turnbull's.

The rush is on us now in our Tailoring Department and no wonder. Our stock of Tweeds and Worsteds are very choice. We propose and are repeatedly told that we do sell clothing made to order cheaper than any other house in Peterborough.

Our Millinery stock is constantly changing hands. If you have seen our stock of hats last week do not expect to find it the same this week, as we are always receiving new and desirable shapes and trimmings. As the season advances prices always decline in the wholesale millinery stocks, so look out for bargains at Turnbull's Millinery for the balance of the season.

HANGED WHILE IN A FAINT

A GHASTLY SCENE AT THE EXECUTION OF HENRY SMITH.

The Apparatus Works Smoothly and Death Results Instantaneously—The Murderer's Confession—Tragic Termination of an Illicit Amour.

LONDON, June 14.—At 8 o'clock this morning Henry Smith was hanged in the jail yard here. As he emerged from the prison he walked along in a dazed sort of way, apparently as little concerned as anyone in the small crowd that witnessed the execution. The scaffold was simply two uprights and a cross beam, the body of the murderer being jerked into the air by the release of a 350 pound weight.

The executioner wore no mask, and went about the preliminary work of getting the apparatus in proper shape smoking a short clay pipe. He removed his pipe on the appearance of the criminal, but re-lighted it as he lounged in the corridor of the jail at the close of his grim task. This, he said, was his 17th execution, and he aims to be to Ontario what Calcraft and Marwood were to England. The World asked him if he had any objection to giving his name, as he did not seek concealment, but he refused, though he practically admitted that he is a Toronto man.

On the arrival of Smith at the gallows, Rev. Mr. Hill, his spiritual adviser, read the following confession, which evidently was not written by Smith, though signed by him.

"MEN AND BRETHREN: It is with shame and confusion of face that I stand before you as a condemned criminal. I confess to you, as I have done to my spiritual advisers, that I was the cause of Lucy Jackson's death. I struck her just once with my fist. She fell on the stove, and I don't know whether it was the fall on the stove or the blow that caused her death. My heart's desire to God is that all men under whose observation my case may come will receive from God the sanctified use of my transgressions. Please pray for me. Before leaving this world I would say in all sincerity that I freely forgive all mankind for anything they may have said or done against me, and would say in all fairness that I have received the utmost kindness from the jail officials; a special debt of gratitude is due the sheriff for his forethought in appointing such able and good men to be with me since my conviction. It is due to them to say they have been to a great extent the means of my conversion to God. For as Christ shed his blood on the cross for the greatest sinner, I now have the assurance within myself that Christ died for me, even me. HENRY SMITH."

The recital of the Lord's prayer had to be stopped in order that some entanglement of the rope could be adjusted, and it was during this that Smith gave the only sign of tremor. He was seen to totter and a turnkey supported him. In all probability he had fainted, and had not recovered when a few seconds later he was jerked into the air. Not a muscle moved, and death must have been instantaneous, though the heart beat for about ten minutes afterwards.

Smith's crime was the murder of a woman whom everybody regarded as his wife, but who appears to have been a single woman, with whom he eloped from England thirty years ago. Smith had two sons and a wife in England and another son by the murdered woman, the latter now living in London.

A MYSTERIOUS TRUNK.

It Is Believed It Was Intended for Benwell's Body.

TONAWANDA, June 15.—A large trunk was recently found at the Erie depot in Tonawanda. It was checked to Birchall just before Benwell is supposed to have been murdered. The trunk has been at Tonawanda until a few days ago, when it was taken away by a stranger who presented a check for it. It is believed the trunk was designed to enclose Birchall's victim, and to be sent over Niagara Falls.

LOCKPORT, June 15.—Chief-of-Police Wells of Woodstock, Ont., has recently been in Lockport searching for evidence that might have a bearing upon the trial of Birchall, the Englishman now held at Woodstock for the murder of his associate, Benwell. The chief reports that an important witness, who has been thought to have disappeared, has been located and will testify at Birchall's trial in October.

The Kincardine & Teeswater Railway.

KINCARDINE, June 14.—The construction of the Kincardine & Teeswater Railway was formally inaugurated to-day by the turning of the first sod at Kincardine by Mayor Bacid in the presence of a large and representative assembly of citizens of the town and county.

A Big Wisconsin Fire.

DOMINION NEWS NOTES.

AN ALLEGED SKIN GAME OF POKER AT TORONTO.

Preferred Death to a Madhouse—The Robson Government Sustained in the British Columbia Elections—Strikers Fined for Intimidation.

TORONTO, June 16.—Patrick McPhillips, a young lawyer, on Saturday caused the arrest of Andy Henderson and Jack Fleming. Friday afternoon, McPhillips alleges, the three men met at Henderson's livery stable office in rear of 77 King-street west and played poker. By the aid of "stacked hands," "cold decks" and other devices known to the handy gambler, McPhillips alleges he was done out of $15 in money, his check for $350 and his diamond ring. The accused were released on $2000 bonds. They will be accused of obtaining money by fraud.

The delegation elected to the General Methodist Conference by the Toronto body has a considerable majority among its members in favor of the federation of Victoria College with the Provincial University.

The ratepayers will vote Saturday on the question of the city taking over the property and franchises of the Street Railway Company.

Ex-Chief James Ashfield of the Toronto Fire Department died yesterday, aged 82. He was a native of County Cavan, Ireland, and came to Toronto in 1831.

Francis Tone of Arthur Village, who was to have been placed in the insane asylum today, was found dead in a pool of water only 14 inches deep near the King-street subway yesterday.

ROBISON SUSTAINED.

The British Columbia Elections Result in A Government Majority.

VICTORIA, June 14.—The provincial elections resulted in the Government being sustained by a large majority. Victoria returned three Opposition and one Government representative, the latter being Turner, the Finance Minister. Two outlying districts on Vancouver Island are yet to be heard from, but the result will probably be ten Government supporters, two independent Government and four Oppositionists. The result on the mainland will probably be ten Government supporters, four Oppositionists and three independents. It is said the Government will have a majority of eight in the House. All the ministers were re-elected.

FOUND ON THE TRACK.

A 17-Year-old Lad Dragged to Death While Stealing a Ride.

LONDON, Ont., June 15.—Early this morning Grand Trunk Railway section men discovered the body of a boy about 17 years of age lying on the track near Wanbuno, a telegraph station 3 miles east of this city. Appearances indicate that he was stealing a ride on some night freight train, had lost his hold, been caught by some projection on the car from which he had been unable to free himself and was dragged for a considerable distance, his clothing and the flesh on the left side being completely worn away.

He is 5 ft. 6 in. in height, light brown hair tufted in front, light blue eyes, wore a black silk baseball cap and a dark suit of clothes specked with white. The only article found on his clothing was a child's rolling pin with one end broken off.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGES.

The Higher Educational Work of the Church in Canada.

OTTAWA, June 15.—The General Assembly sat for half a day only on Saturday, and the subject that engaged the attention of the court for the whole sederunt was the colleges belonging to the Church.

The Presbyterian Church in Canada sustains five colleges, the youngest being Manitoba College, Winnipeg. Coming eastward Ontario gives Knox College, Toronto, and Queen's at Kingston. The Province of Quebec has one of our colleges in Montreal, another—Morrin—in Quebec city. Then down by the sea is the Halifax Presbyterian College. These are doing good work, have well filled class rooms and are in many respects liberally endowed.

Knox College, Toronto, received sanction from the Assemby for the appointment of Rev. R. Y. Thompson as professor of apologetics and Old Testament literature, at a salary of $2500 per annum. According to the statement of the senate the attendance of students at Knox was 101. The college residence accommodates 76 and was entirely occupied. The total receipts to ordinary fund for the year are $16,620, to bursary fund $3542 and to endowment fund $88,121.

The trustees of Queen's College, Kingston, report that 415 students were registered last session, of whom 78 are looking forward to the ministry. Justice MacLennan of Toronto is chairman of the Board of Trustees. The ordinary revenue is given at about $40,000. The receipts for scholarships and essays amount to $4927, while the assets of the institution amount to $459,783.

A conversazione was held last evening at 8 o'clock in the halls of Coligny College, the ladies' institution situated here and belonging to the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Rev. Thomas Sedgewick, one of the ministers from Nova Scotia and brother to the Deputy Minister of Justice, occupied the Assembly pulpit this morning and Rev. Dr. Thompson of Sarnia in the evening. A communion service was held in Bank street Church in the afternoon.

The Assembly adjourned at 1 p.m. Saturday, to meet again at 9½ Monday morning.

Guilty of Intimidation.

HAMILTON, June 14.—At the General Sessions to-day William Carlisle, Robert Irwin, George Maxwell, Mary A. Kingsley and Elizabeth Wright were tried on the charge of intimidating Mrs. Ellen Tope with the intention of preventing her from working at the Ontario Cotton Mill. Mrs. Kingsley fainted during the trial and had to be taken home. In his charge to the jury the judge said that it seemed very clear that Irwin and Maxwell had followed Mrs. Tope with fish horns. He did not think there was much evidence against the other three defendants, except that they were in the crowd. After being out a short time the jury returned with a verdict of guilty against Maxwell and Irwin, the others being acquitted. The Crown not desiring to have the defendants severely punished, merely wishing the sentence to act as a warning, the judge fined the two guilty ones $5 each.

A Brutal Wife Murder.

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—Jeff Merser, negro gambler of Argentine, Kan., dragged his wife from the house of a friend last evening and upon her refusal to return to their home he fired four shots at her as she lay on the ground. The first shot broke her neck and the three others entered her body, each wound being sufficient to cause death. Merser escaped.

A $150,000 Fire at Omaha.

OMAHA, June 15.—The main building of the Carter Whitelead Works here was burned last night. Loss $150,000.

STARVING JAPANESE.

A Gloomy Outlook—War Fleets Ready to Sail for Corea.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15.—A correspondent of the Associated Press in Tokyo, Japan, writes June 1 as follows: The distress among thousands of the starving people of Tokyo and other large cities is being ameliorated to a great extent by the foreigners as well as by the Japanese noblemen. One nobleman is feeding 1000 people a day out of his own funds. The price of rice is higher than ever before both in Japan and Corea and this is probably only a foretaste of the suffering to follow. The outlook for the growing crops of rice is not good owing to heavy and continued rains.

There are many vague rumors afloat concerning the reported taking of Corea by the Russians. There is some trouble in Corea but the Government officials of Japan know nothing definite about it. All that is surely known is that all the British men-of-war are in the harbor with steam up and under orders to sail at a moment's notice. Several have already gone. The American naval force under Rear Admiral Belknap is also expecting orders to sail for Corea. An officer of the British ship Severn said he had seen dispatches and orders which would astound the foreigners in Japan.

THE HUNGRY CHEYENNES.

They are Making War the Cattle, not on the Settlers.

HELENA, Mont., June 14.—Governor Toole is in daily communication with his staff officers sent to investigate the alleged hostile acts or threats of the Cheyenne Indians. No advices have come to the Governor leading him to apprehend serious troubles. If the distant settlers have been worked into a scare the Cheyennes have by the movement of troops had a worse fright. No Indians have taken the warpath and no lives have been sacrificed. Cattle have been killed and this is all. One of Custer County's largest stock growers, Capt. Harmon, says there is nothing of danger in the situation. The general opinion is that if kept upon their reserve and properly rationed the Cheyennes will remain wholly peaceable.

Mercadier's Swimming Feat.

NEW YORK, June 15.—"Gen." Mercadier, the southern trick swimmer, to-day swam 2 miles with his arms strapped to his sides and two 3-pound dumbbells in his hands. Mercadier took the water at the Brooklyn navy yard and landed at pier 19, swimming the distance against the swift East River current in exactly 1 hour. He held a small American flag in his mouth and was accompanied by Steve Brodie in his rubber suit. The trip was the result of a wager. Next Sunday Mercadier will attempt the same distance with both his arms and legs tied.

To Make Typesetting Machines.

OTTAWA, June 14.—Letters patent have been issued incorporating the Dominion Typograph Company, limited, for the pupose of the manufacture of the machine known as the Rogers' typograph and the disposing and leasing of the same to publishers, printers and others in the Dominion. The capital is fixed at $1,000,000, and the incorporators include Joseph Taylor of Sandwich; William Hendrie and George M. Hendrie of Hamilton; William B. Moran, Michael Dee, journalist; Strathearn Hendrie, Cameron Currie, Alexander Arnold Boutelle, John Scrip Sweeney, journalist; George Gough Booth, journalist, of Detroit; John Davis, Inspector of inland revenue; Frederick Evans, George Moir Black, Michael Andrew McHugh, Gordon Leggat, James E. Connolly, Adam Walter Anderson and John W. Drake of Windsor.

The Mother is Prostrated.

CLEVELAND, June 14.—Mrs. Alice M. Cowles returned this evening from Montreal with her little girl, who was kidnapped by Eugene H. Cowles, the husband and father, nearly two weeks ago. Notwithstanding the recovery of the child, Mrs. Cowles is completely prostrated by the anxieties of the affair and the sorrow occasioned by the shooting and wounding of her husband by her brother, C. C. Hale. The brother was along, having been admitted to bail, together with several relatives and Judge J. E. Ingersoll, the family lawyer.

Ingersoll says that Hale was satisfied by Cowles' movement that he meant to shoot and so fired to save his sister's life.

Cowles will probably never push the criminal prosecution against Hale.

Nova Scotia News.

HALIFAX, June 15.—A Picton despatch says: After being out two days the jury have brought in a true bill against James McLeod for poisoning his wife.

The St. Julian Hotel was sold at auction to-day and bought in for the proprietors of the Halifax Hotel for $16,500.

The steamers Acadia and Stanley and the schooners LaCanadienne and Connaught will be put into commission next week to resume the fishing protection service along the Atlantic coast.

Drove Him Out With an Ax.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 14.—Yesterday Mrs. Mary Holland was arrested and taken before the United States Commissioner for refusing to answer a census enumerator and driving him out of her house with an ax. Mrs. Holland admitted the charge, said the enumerator insulted her by asking if her husband was a black, a homeless child, pauper, prisoner or a convict, and she would not stand that from any man. She was held for the grand jury.

ROYAL HOPES ABANDONED

THE COUNT OF PARIS' SPEECH EXCITES NO ENTHUSIASM.

Edison's French Rival—A Big Picture Sale—France Ready to Recognize the Brazilian Republic—London's Latest Lion—Stanley's American Tour.

PARIS, June 14.—The speech of the Count of Paris at Richmond Thursday evening praising the action of his son, the Duke of Orleans, in returning to France in spite of the decree of exile against the Orleans family and seeking to serve his time in the French army provokes no feeling here, not even in Government circles, neither has it aroused any enthusiasm among the Royalists. Some of the Royalist papers of the widest circulation and influence go so far as to say that for the present at least all hope of the re-establishment of the monarchy must be abandoned. The duty now incumbent upon the Royalist party, they urge, is to try and adapt itself to the republic, to increase its influence in politics and to gain control of the Government.

The Figaro has recently published several strong articles in which it urges this policy upon the Royalists, indeed the newspapers find in a speech delivered the other day by M. Constans, Minister of the Interior, a disposition to take a more favorable view of the tendencies of the Royalist party.

M. Burnal, the French electrician, has been presented to M. Jules Roche, Minister of Commerce. M. Roche declares that Burnal is a rival of Edison and that he is the real inventor of the telephone, having discovered and applied the principle twenty years in advance of either Edison or Bell. M. Roche has instructed Burnal to undertake the improvement of the extremely defective telephone service of Paris and the provinces.

The pictures owned by the late M. Crabbe, a Belgian Senator, which were sold in this city on Thursday, brought unprecedented prices. Morris K. Jessup and Cornelius Vanderbilt, representing the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art; Mr. Hutchinson, president of the Chicago Art Museum; William Whitney and a number of the most prominent American art dealers were either present or represented by agents. The French buyers outbid the Americans. Although the sale was the most important since the sale of the Secretan collection, scarcely a single canvas is going to America.

The vote in the Chamber of Deputies this week in favor of preserving the famous Machinery Hall of the late Exposition Building will probably prove final. This will leave three permanent buildings besides the Eiffel tower as memorials of the Exposition against one permanent building left after the Exposition of 1878—the Trocadeo.

The recent debate in the German Reichstag on the continued exaction of passports from travelers in Alsace-Lorraine shows that no relief from this vexatious annoyance to Americans can be expected. The severity of the rule enforced on the frontier has within the last year or two more than doubled the passport business of the American legation here. Americans who have for a long time been residents abroad and who are unable to swear to any fixed intention of returning home within a reasonable number of years continue to find difficulty in getting passports under the instructions issued by Mr. Bayard when Secretary of State, which are still in force.

William G. Whitney, ex-Secretary of the American Navy, and his wife left Paris to-day on their return to New York.

Henry Gardiner of Niantic, Conn., has been awarded the highest prize for figure drawing at the Ecole des Beaux Arts. This is the first time in the history of the school that an American has received this distinction.

The Brazilian Republic Recognized.

PARIS, June 14.—M. Ribot, Minister of Foreign Affairs, is about to declare the recognition by France of the Brazilian Provisional Government and has intimated to Senor Itajuba, the Brazilian representative, that President Carnot is ready to receive him.

The Brazilian Government has agreed to submit to arbitration the question of the frontier between French Guiana and Brazil, to relax the export duty on rubber and to exempt French subjects from the application of the decree that everyone who was in Brazilian territory on the day the republic was proclaimed should be regarded as a citizen of Brazil.

Portuguese Troops for Mozambique.

LISBON, June 15.—It is rumored that two regiments of infantry, a battery of artillery and 150 Marines will be sent to Mozambique.

Quilliman's advices say that the Governor and a committee of the inhabitants have decided to organize a colonial marine service and irregular forces for the Zambesi, also to suppress English coin and to adopt other measures to boycott the English. The British vice-consul was compelled to quit his residence and to take refuge at the Italian Consulate.

London's Latest Lion.

LONDON, June 14.—Miss Philippa Garrett Fawcett has been the lion of the week. Her victory in the mathematical tripos at Cambridge, in which she came out 300 marks above the senior wrangler, has been more discussed than any other single topic. Most of the published comments on this very brilliant performance were written by mere men, yet their praise is not stinted. Men of science find in it a new proof of the doctrine of heredity, both the father and mother of this young lady possessing exceptional mental qualities. Even society interests itself in such a phenomenon, and at Lord Hartington's garden party yesterday afternoon at Devonshire House, Miss Fawcett, who was present with her mother, was pointed out frequently and admiringly. The Prince and Princess of Wales and many other royalties were there, but it is not alleged that Miss Fawcett was presented to any of them.

Stanley's American Tour.

LONDON, June 14.—Major Pond has secured Mr. Stanley for a lecturing tour in America, beginning in New York early in November. Mr. Stanley has signed a contract for fifty lectures, a number which may be increased to a hundred. The sum paid him is understood to be the largest ever given for lecturing. Mrs. Stanley will accompany her husband.

Canon Liddon is still considering a proposal to go to America, but is not likely to accept.

A Blaze at Regina.

REGINA, N.W.T., June 15.—Fire started at 1 o'clock this morning in a mill in the west end of the town, which was burned to the ground together with a building owned by Mr. McGirr of the Indian Department, Ottawa, and three Canadian Pacific Railway box cars, which were loaded with stone.

Is Davis Innocent?

BELLEVILLE, June 14.—It is rumored that Thomas Lawrence, who committed suicide in Marmora last week, confessed that he shot William Emory, for whose murder Peter Davis is to be hanged next Friday. No credence is placed in the report here.

Dress the Hair

With Ayer's Hair Vigor. Its cleanliness, beneficial effects on the scalp, and lasting perfume commend it for universal toilet use. It keeps the hair soft and silken, preserves its color, prevents it from falling, and, if the hair has become weak or thin, promotes a new growth.

"To restore the original color of my hair, which had turned prematurely gray, I used Ayer's Hair Vigor with entire success. I cheerfully testify to the

Efficacy

of this preparation."—Mrs. P. H. Davidson, Alexandria, La.

"I was afflicted some three years with scalp disease. My hair was falling out and what remained turned gray. I was induced to try Ayer's Hair Vigor, and in a few weeks the disease in my scalp disappeared and my hair resumed its original color."—(Rev.) S. S. Sims, Pastor U. B. Church, St. Bernice, Ind.

"A few years ago I suffered the entire loss of my hair from the effects of [illegible]. I hoped that after a time nature would repair the loss, but I waited in vain. Many remedies were suggested, none, however, with such proof of merit as Ayer's Hair Vigor, and I began to use it. The result was all I could have desired. A growth of hair soon came out all over my head, and grew to be as soft and heavy as I ever had, and of a natural color, and firmly set."—J. H. Pratt, Spofford, Texas.

About a "Fence."

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—I own a house an lot on Water St and my fence is build on a line with my neibours fence & I thought the law ment me to do so. Mister Williams has build a nice house on the same street since I build mine and his fense is not on a line with his neibours. It seems Mister Williams build his house and forgot to make a kitchen and he made a kitchen after and put it in the yard on the north side and that made his yard so small he hadent room for his closeline which he had to put in front of his house. It didant look well there and showed the publick who done his washin so he had to fence of half his lot to hide the closeline and left his lawn smaller than he wanted it so he made a fence round his lawn 2 and ½ feet more in the street than it ought to be on two streets. Mister Williams was told by the council not to put the fence there, but he said that that show was his and he was goin to run it and I always thought his stoop look most like a platform of any I see everybody in the street has as much right to 2 and a ½ feet of the publick road as Mr. Williams and if they used the same principal he does Water street would be five feet shorter across than the law says in no time.

dear sir, I will not sign my own name to this letter as I am not a strong man and enclose my card wrote on a peace of paper with my adress the same so you will know who wrote it and if Mister Williams wants to horse whip anyone for objection to his taken what [illegible] hisen you will please send him to my house any time next week when my oldest son will be home. He is a dutyfull boy and will be quite willen to take a licken for his father in the cause of justice.

Proper Nourishment.

For the proper nourishment of the infantile and youthful body two different classes of nourishment are necessary—one called the plastic, or nitrogenous, the elements included in which are supposed to go directly to the formation of the tissues. The other class is called carbonaceous, or heat producers, and supplies the fuel for the respiratory process, and furnishes the heat of the body.

Proper infantile development is an important study, not only to the mother, but to the community as well.

Many infants where there is a partial or total lack of mother's milk are fed on cow's milk, which indeed contains very many of the elements necessary for infantile nourishment.

As an element of nourishment when taking the place of mother's milk, it is not always reliable,as all well know. Indeed the nearest approach to mother's milk is the milk of asses, having more sugar of milk in its composition.

Human skill has come to the aid of the young and weak who are often deprived of mother's milk, and where confidence cannot be placed in a regular pure diet of cow's milk, and has given to the world a food so well and favorably known at present, called "Lactated Food," which includes all the elements to build up the weak and irritated stomach,and to give strength and vitality to the infant.

It is pleasant to the taste of young and old where powers of digestion have failed. Mothers, your attention is specially called to "Lactated Food" as the healthiest and most invigorating for your weak children; it comes nearer in composition and effect to the normal human milk, than any other known food.

"Lactated Food" causes your baby to rest well, consequently it must grow. If your baby is fretful and peevish, it will make it happy and restful, plump and handsome, and it will rarely have a sick day.

*"Lactated Food" is certainly the physi*cian's favorite for children and invalids of all ages, and goes on increasing in popularity from year to year.

MURDER AT HAMILTON.

An Old Colored Man Killed by a Young Negro—Whisky's Work.

HAMILTON, June 15.—A terrible murder took place to-night at the house of an old colored man named Grimes, living some distance west of the confines of the city.

For some time past a negro named Zachariah Shields, about 19 years has been boarding with Grimes. This evening Shields returned to the house drunk and began assaulting Mrs. Hedges, who lived with old Grimes. He first demanded something to eat, and on being refused began throwing things out of the house. He became so abusive that Mrs. Hedges came into the city and got out a warrant for his arrest.

The next news heard was contained in a telephone message to the police about 9.45. that two young men had seen the dead body of old Grimes lying outside his house, and to all appearance he had been killed with an ax. The patrol wagon, with Sergeant Pinch and Detective Doyle, went to the scene of the tragedy, but the murderer had escaped into the bush. Chief McKinnon was at once advised of the state of affairs, and he went with a posse of policemen to search for the murderer.

Shields is said to be a cousin of Mrs. Hedges. He and the dead man had not been on speaking terms for some weeks and the murder was apparently caused by drunken spite.

Indian Humor—Vain Young Men in Society—American Beauty—Make Your Children Happy.

Indian Humor.

The Indian has a keen appreciation of humor, and is like a child in his mirthfulness. No orator can see the weak points in his adversary's armor or silence a foolish speaker more quickly.

Old Shah-bah-skong, the head chief of Mille Lac, brought all his warriors to defend Fort Ripley in 1862. The Secretary of the Interior and the Governor of Legislature of Minnesota promised these Indians that for this act of bravery they should have the special care of the government and never be removed. A few years later a special agent was sent from Washington to ask the Ojibways to cede their lands and to remove a country north of Leech Lake. The agent asked my help. I said: "I know that country. I have camped on it. It is the most worthless strip of land in Minnesota. The Indians are not fools. Don't attempt this folly. You will surely come to grief." He called the Indians in council and said: "My red brothers, your great father has heard how you have been wronged. He said, 'I will send them an honest man.' He looked in the north the south, the east and the west. When he saw me he said: 'This is the honest man whom I will send to my red children.' Brothers, look at me! The winds of fifty-five years have blown over my head and silvered it over with gray, and in all that time I have never done wrong to any man. As your friend, I ask you to sign this treaty."

Old Shah-bah-skong sprang to his feet and said: "My friend look at me! The winds of more than fifty winters have blown over my head and silvered it over with gray; but they have not blown my brains away."

The council was ended.

American Beauty.

Judgment of beauty by the profile—the simple outline—is regarded from an artist's standpoint as one of the severest tests. Some women are very handsome in profile and absolutely plain, in full face. The success of the profile depends upon the length of the features and the construction of the back of the head, while the full face depends mainly upon the width of the face in proportion to its length, the line of the brows and the proportions of the mouth. It it undeniable that the American profile is not of classical beauty, and it cannot generally compare with that found in the Latin races. The nose is apt to be either too retrousse or too long. Still despite this peculiarity, we have here more variety of type and more originality than are to be found anywhere else in the world.

To an artist the finest of all profiles is the Greek. The celebrated Psyche in the museum at Naples is one of the most perfect examples existing in Greek art. In some respects it is superior to the Venus de Milo or de Medici; it has more dignity and its chief characteristic is the continuation of one direct line from the forehead down the nose without a variation of the angle. The accent at the end of the nose is not a curve, but two planes that more nearly approximate angles. The curve would be indicative of the oriental race, which is not as highly bred as the Greek. In Greek sculpture the mouth is a little open. The best examples indicate the lips a little apart. The chin is heavy, as a rule, and the eye is rather deep set. I mention these points incidentally, as furnishing a hint how to judge profile by the highest artistic standard known to exist.

Make Children Happy.

Some one whose experience of life has been both wide and painful once said "Religion begins the wrong way. It says 'Be good and you will be happy.' I say make people happy and they will be good." So we too often proceed in the wrong way with your children. We preach and scold and punish to make them happy. Children are so easily pleased, but we too often make the mistake of giving that which is to them so little pleasure. More of mother's love, time and attention, and fewer tucks on the tiny garments, would make many a child happier.

Some one has said that we prick our fingers and blind our eyes over fancywork on which our male friends rest their heads and dream of something we are not; so for our children we stitch till our mind loses its brightness and our temper its sweetness, while they outgrow the clothing and us at the same time.

Again, some mothers put all their energies into "housekeeping." So neat they are that their is no rest in any corner, while the wee folks say with a sigh: "Mamma is too busy to talk to me."

If I were desirous of making children happy I should first have a "children's hour." It might, perhaps, be at the time Longfellow speaks of in his exquisite little poem:

"Betwixt the dark and daylight,
When the night is beginning to lower,
Comes a pause in the day's occupation
That is known as the children's hour."

That time should be, as far as possible, sacred from intrusion. They should have a romp, a game, a story, whatever they wish. I would save my best thoughts and best spirits for that time.

Worse Than the Girls.

A strange fad of the young men of the present day is darkening the eyebrows and the eyelashes. They imagine this process gives an expression of strength to the face which is otherwise lacking. The stuff used for the purpose comes in a tiny box, and is a black powder.

In the box is a little kid pencil, similar in form to the stump of a blender used by a crayon or pastelle artist. This tiny kid implement is dipped in the black powder and applied in a dexterous manner, first to trace the eyebrows darker and into the desired shape. After this the eyelashes are touched, and then a slight line is drawn under the eyes on the lower lid. At each corner is put the final touch, a little dash of the dark powder, which gives a languid look presumed to be captivating.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Five Thousand Lepers in New Caledonia.

It appears that leprosy is spreading in New Caledonia in a most alarming manner. Of forty thousand Kanakas no fewer than five thousand are described as suffering from the terrible disease. Till quite recently the public authorities had taken no measure to prevent it from spreading; but now two subordinate colonies have been created—one on Goat Island, in Dumbea Bay, and the other in Canala, at a spot known as the Pic des Morts. Every inhabitant recognized as a leper by the Medical Commission is to be confined in one of these leper colonies.

A new incandescent lamp has been introduced which is said to obviate discoloration. The carbon filaments are made from raw silk threads put through a careful process and capable of bearing high temperatures.

A DIPLOMATIC EVENT.

The Kaiser's Coming Visit to the Czar—A Reichstag Seat for Bismarck.

BERLIN, June 15.—The semi-official announcement that Chancellor von Caprivi will accompany Emperor William on his visit to the Czar converts the meeting of the sovereigns from an exchange of imperial courtesies into a diplomatic event. Herr von Schweinitz, the German Ambassador to Russia, arrived here from St. Petersburg to-day in connection with the interview, which has been fixed for Aug. 2. Emperor William, escorted by a squadron, sails from Kiel to Cronstadt and will remain with the Czar three days. Prior to the visit Signor Crispi, the Italian Premier, is expected to be here for a conference with Gen. von Caprivi. He will see Count Kalnoky, the Austro-Hungarian Premier, en route to Berlin.

These movements have a distinct relation to a renewal of the negotiations for a settlement of the Bulgarian question. This time the negotiations were initiated at St. Petersburg. The Russian Government persists in refusing to recognize Prince Ferdinand, but offers to recognize M. Stambouloff, the Bulgarian premier. The government, after the departure of Prince Ferdinand, will send a Russian commissioner to Sofia to offer the people as alternative candidates for the throne, the Duke of Leuchtenberg or Prince Karl, son of the King of Sweden. The Duke of Leuchtenberg, having married a Montenegrin princess, has less chance of acceptance by the European powers. Prince Karl is sure of the English Government's support.

After the election of a prince, the Stambouloff Ministry will be dissolved and replaced by a Stambouloff and Sekoff coalition. Mr. Stambouloff is ready to sacrifice Prince Ferdinand if his own position is assured as a result of the arrangement. The leading diplomats at Constantinople have been recalled. Herr Radowitz, the German ambassador; M. Nelidoff, Russia's representative and Sir W. A. White, the British diplomat, are to be replaced by ministers who will be on a more friendly footing. The leading tendency of the changes is rather favorable to a renewal of the Czar's influence in the Balkans, but as this would not restore anything approaching the former dominance of the Russians, Austria may be induced to accept a solution that will add to the security of the general peace.

Whatever may be the issues of the meeting at St. Petersburg, they will not involve a change of relations in the Dreibund. Signor Crispi goes to Friedrichsruhe after seeing Chancellor von Caprivi.

A deputation of Conservatives from the fourth district of Potsdam, which is now unrepresented in the Reichstag on account of the death of Herr Weddel Malchow, went to Friedrichsruhe yesterday to ask Prince Bismarck to accept the candidature. He promised to give the proposal his favorable consideration and this is taken to mean that he will stand.

What a Somerset (Pa.) County Man thinks of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Located at Buffalo, N.Y.

W. H. Miller, of Stoyestown, Pa., who has been suffering for nearly a quarter of a century from an affection of the Kidneys, resulting in the necessity for a surgical operation, after consulting and being treated by a number of our own doctors, as well as receiving the treatment and advice of some of the most eminent professional men of the land, finally became acquainted with the above institute, and their mode and and means of treatment. After due correspondence with the World's Dispensary Medical Association, the proprietors of the Invalids' Hotel, he was induced to visit said institution. On arriving there and after being fully acquainted with the abundant means they possess, he lost no time in making the necessary arrangements for the required treatment. After remaining for nearly four weeks at the Invalids' Hotel, where you receive the kindest and best treatment, and where patients are loth to leave,after recovery, he returned to his family and friends a cured and happy man.

In giving this to the public, Mr. Miller wishes to say that he owes the aforesaid Institute nothing but his best wishes. And the fact that his own success and great relief is due to similar testimonials from others who were successfully treated there for all manner of chronic diseases from every State and Territory of the Union Canada, Mexico, and South America. It is a marvel of success. He further says, should this fall to the notice of any sufferers from chronic disease, such as seem to baffle the skill of your own physician—but and above all give your own physician a fair and impartial trial, and all the available means offered, as Somerset county may justly feel proud of her medical men, who spare no means nor time in the treatment of all cases entrusted to their charge. And if they fail, in many cases, it will be an act of charity to point you to a place where a probable cure may be effected, which is the humble intent of the above communication. The above association is courteous, prompt and reliable.—Somerset (Pa.) Herald.

Died At Auburn, N.Y.

Mr. A. T. Williams, of Auburn, N.Y., died on Friday night, in the 74th year of his age. Deceased had been lying for the past seven weeks at the point of death, being stricken with paralysis.

A Mania for Wandering.

The children of the town seem to have a mania for losing themselves, for during the last few weeks half a dozen or more excited parents have reported their children as missing, but fortunately in all the cases the little ones were restored to their parents. Yesterday Mrs. Chas. Cresswold, of Murray-st., reported to the police that her two and a half year old child was missing. The child wandered away about noon and until nine o'clock all search was in vain. Naturally the parents were very anxious and excited. About nine o'clock their fears were allayed when the child was found at Mr. Clarke's on Albert-st.

Attempted Burglary.

Mr. F. Mason's residence, on Aylmer-st., was visited by burglars on Saturday night, but they, fortunately, were baulked in their nefarious work. Mr. Mason had returned home from his store at about eleven o'clock and a greyhound belonging to Mr. Alex. Robertson, dentist, followed him. At about twelve o'clock the dog began barking loudly, but for some time no attention was paid to it. At one o'clock, or a little after, Mr. Mason was retiring, when he heard a crashing noise, and other members of the family hearing it called to him. He hurriedly donned a portion of his clothes, but before he could do so the crash was followed by another. Lighting a lamp he hurried down stairs, and as he did so footsteps were heard going quickly towards Water-st. From the footmarks left it was plain that there were two men. One had entered the woodshed attached to the house through a window, and the other tried to jerk open the shutters on a window on the north side of the house, which made the noise heard by Mr. Mason. Both men made off, and afterwards they were heard giving signals to each other by whistling. The second man had apparently run through the lot to the railway, south of Argyle-st., and was signalling to his pard who had gone north. Mr. Mason remained up for a couple of hours longer, but the unwelcome visitors did not return. The greyhound having done the service of keeping the house awake until the danger was past was gone in the morning.

IN THE COUNCIL HALL.

Great Improvements Made in the County Council Chamber—An Addition to the Court House—Harmony, Elegance and Comfort.

The Legislative Chamber in the northwest corner of the Court House building, where for twenty years or more have assembled the representatives from the townships of the county of Peterborough to consider the business of the county and taken action thereon, has remained for these many years without alteration or improvement. However, when the county legislators assemble to-morrow to open the regular June session they will hardly be able to recognize one familiar feature in their Council Chamber. What was a rather dingy and ancient looking room has been transformed into an elegant, airy and handsomely furnished hall, which will compare very favorably with the Council Chamber of our city fathers.

The changes have been very complete and have wrought vast improvement in the appearance, comfort and convenience of the Council Chamber. In the first place an addition has been built to the northern wing of the Court House. This new addition is 20x40 feet, and is attached to the rear of the wing mentioned. Those who are familiar with the interior of the Court House will remember that the old Council Chamber was reached by a narrow stairway situated at the end of the northern corridor. These stairs have been removed and a large archway has been cut in the eastern wall, against which the new addition has been built. This archway leads to a well lighted lobby where a broad oaken stairway winds up to the next storey, landing in another commodious lobby. Opening off from this lobby to the left hand is a committee room of good size and tastefully papered and painted. Double swinging doors, with glass in the upper half, open from the lobby into the Council Chamber. The old hallway where the former staircase landed the visitor has been added to the chamber, thus increasing the width of the latter by about one-quarter. The old ceiling has been removed and a new one of beautifully finished pine has been put in its place. This new ceiling, which is laid out with artistic effect by heavy mouldings in panels, is about two feet higher than the old one and this increased height gives a most decided improved appearance to the chamber. A railing stretches across the room from east to west separating the county legislators from the spectators. The councillors will occupy the southern part of the room, while the spectators gallery is against the northern wall.

The interior of the hall has been finished with taste and will look remarkably well. The walls have been nicely papered, while the wainscoting and floor is of ash, finished in oil and varnish. Within the council bar the furnishings will be handsome and comfortable. The warden will be seated in a large easy chair of mahogany, upholstered in blue plush, and will be raised above the councillors on a dais, over which hangs a canopy. The desks of the councillors will be ranged around the Warden's throne in two rows, with the clerk's desk immediately in front. The desks of the councillors are ornamental as well as comfortable and convenient, while each of the Reeves will be seated in a cane-bottom tilting office chair and, no doubt, there will be many a complacent smile of satisfaction when the worthy township representatives drop into their comfortable seats and allow their memories to run back to the hard, straight-backed seats of the past. The desks and chairs, like the Warden's, are all handsomely finished in mahogany. A beautiful chandelier hanging from the centre of the ceiling will shed a brilliant light on the room for night sessions. In fact the interior of the chamber will present a most harmonious picture of comfort and elegance, while the oil finishing of the ceiling, wainscoting and floors will give a most substantial aspect.

Mr. Wm. Langford, contractor, has had charge of the changes and improvements and has done his work well.

The whole interior was not entirely finished on Saturday when the REVIEW made a visit, but by to-morrow when the Council opens the room will be ready for the reception of the councillors.

The Dominion Day Event.

On Dominion Day the big attraction here will be the annual picnic of the congregation of St. Peter's, which is to be held at St. Joseph's. Arrangements of a most complete character are being made to accommodate a large number, and amusements will be afforded for the multitude. In the shady grove you can enjoy a day's rest with your family at small expense. Refreshments will be served on the grounds. Remember this picnic and arrange to attend. d140

The Baptist Association.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Baptist Association will be held in the Baptist church, Norwood, on Wednesday and Thursday, June 18th and 19th. The evening sessions will be most interesting, as eminent men are expected from Toronto and other places to deliver addresses on Foreign and Home Mission Work. Also, the Ladies Home and Foreign Mission Circles of the same association will hold their annual meeting in the town hall, Norwood on Thursday 19th inst., at 2 p.m. Papers and addresses on mission work will be given by ladies from different places.

After the service at the Baptist church yesterday morning the following, among others, were appointed as delegates to the association:—Messrs. C. B. Routley, Wm. Aldridge, B. R. Matthews, S. Curtice, from the Murray-st. church; Miss Maggie Mann and Mr. J. R. Kidd from the South Ward Mission school and Mr. Ed. Elcombe for the Auburn Mission.

George Street Church Organ.

Very favorable comment was made by the congregation of George-st. Methodist church yesterday on the improvement to the organ resulting from some changes which have been made. As the organ was constructed by the builders the action was hard and arranged in such way that the valves of many pipes did not open freely. The trustees secured the services of a Mr. Spence, of Hamilton, an expert in the business, and during the last two weeks the changes have been effected. The old action, by which term is included the connections from the keyboard to the valves, has been taken out and materially shortened, with the result that the tone of the organ is much improved. The work was sufficiently advanced to allow of the instrument being used by Mr. Seward, the organist, for service on Sunday. The pipes will now be re-voiced and tuned, and when completed the improvement will be still more marked.

TALKING WITH SIR JOSEPH

THE MAYOR AND COUNCILLORS INTERVIEW THE GENERAL MANAGER.

Courteously and Cordially Received—Railway Matters Discussed with Encouraging Results—Gates to be Placed on the Crossings—Better Freight Rates Wanted.

A few minutes after eight on Saturday evening when the special train bearing on board Sir Joseph Hickson, of Montreal, General Manager of the Grand Trunk railway, and his staff, drew into the station here there was gathered on the station platform a group of Peterborough's prominent citizens, who were there for the purpose of seeking an interview with the titled railway magnate in reference to railway matters of material interest to the town and its future. This group consisted of Mayor Stevenson, M.P., Councillors E. H. D. Hall, Cahill, Langford, A. Hall, Moore, Kendry, Dawson, Winch, Kelly and Rutherford, Mr. J. H. Burnham, Secretary of the Board of Trade and the reporters. When the train had come to a stand-still Sir Joseph stepped off of the rear carriage and walking up the platform was met by Mayor Stevenson, whom he greeted most heartily. Being informed of the desire of the deputation for an interview, Sir Joseph invited the gentlemen into the inspector's office. Mayor Stevenson, when the deputation had gathered within, introduced each gentleman in turn to Sir Joseph, whose manner was most courteous and cordial. A few pleasantries having been exchanged the business of the occasion was proceeded with.

RAILWAY MATTERS.

First of all several matters in regard to the extension of our railway interests were laid before the head of the great railway corporation. Mayor Stevenson and Councillors Cahill, E. H. D. Hall, Moore and Kendry spoke on these matters, while Sir Joseph listened attentively and discussed them in a free, conversational way. These matters, which for the present are better kept private, having been considered for a short time Sir Joseph inquired if there were any other local matters which the town would like to bring under his notice.

THE RAILWAY GATES.

Mayor STEVENSON said there was, and in a few words urged the necessity which the Council felt there was for protection from accidents by having the railway place gates on the streets where the line crosses. The Mayor said that the Council had passed resolutions to the Railway Committee asking to have these gates placed on the streets, but the matter had never been pressed. Two of them they felt were necessary, one at the Charlotte-st. crossing and another at Brock-st.

Sir JOSEPH said that the railway company did not wish to kill any person, but in other places the city or town had borne part of the expense. It will cost the railway about $1,000 a year to keep a man at each of these gates day and night.

THE FREIGHT RATES.

In answer to another question from Sir Joseph as to whether there was any other matters of which they wished to speak, Councillor Moore said there was the matter of freights. He said Mr. A. Hall and others had spoken about this matter and were desirous, if possible, to secure better freight rates between here and Montreal. It was felt here that it was unfair that they should pay as much or more freight than the Toronto or London importers. This placed the Peterborough manufacturer at a disadvantage.

Mayor STEVENSON said Mr. Hamilton, Mr. Law and other large importers of heavy freight had complained that the high rates charged between here and Montreal placed them at a disadvantage with outside manufacturers and had a tendency to take the trade to Toronto or London.

Sir Joseph said this was a matter the detail of which he was not acquainted with, but he would look into it.

A POINTED QUESTION.

Councillor CAHILL inquired of Sir Joseph if there was any possibility of securing any of the railway workshops here if the town offered exemption or other advantages.

Sir JOSEPH said he knew of no shops that were to be moved nor of any new ones that were to be established.

DEALING WITH THEM ALL.

Sir JOSEPH then in a short speech gave his answer to the deputation's queries and requests. He said he was much pleased to meet the Councillors of Peterborough and wanted to say that to no gentleman did he and his company owe more in good-will than to Mayor Stevenson. He said he would indeed be ungrateful if he did not try to comply with any reasonable request that gentleman might make, and none of his requests, he knew, would be unreasonable. Sir Joseph then referred to the railway extension matters which had been first considered and gave the deputation much encouragement that their desire might soon be an accomplished fact. Regarding the gates on the streets, he did not wish them to go the Railway Committee about the matter but wanted the Councillors to consider how far they would meet the company and settle it amicably. The question of better freight rates was one he met in all parts, as one place felt they were not receiving as good rates as another. It was one of the most difficult questions a railway management had to settle. He promised to examine the matter upon his return to Montreal and see if anything required a change. He was glad that Peterborough had not much to complain of in railway matters.

THE GATE MATTER SETTLED.

Councillor KENDRY asked if it was usual for the town or city to pay any part of the cost of the railway gates on streets.

Sir JOSEPH said it depended upon circumstances, but in many cases the city had paid half the cost.

After a little informal talk in which it was calculated that the cost of keeping these gates with a man in attendance day and night would be about $1,000, Sir Joseph asked if the company put the two gates, one at Brock and the other at Charlotte-st. and kept a man on duty in day time, if the town would agree to put a man on at night if it was found necessary.

Mayor STEVENSON said that would be satisfactory.

It was pointed out that the traffic on the road was about over after the nine o'clock trains came in, so that a man would not be required at night.

It was therefore considered settled that the gates would be placed on the two streets and a man kept on duty from 7 a.m. until 9 p.m.

After a little pleasant chat, the members of the deputation shook hands with Sir Joseph and left, much pleased with their interview. Sir Joseph boarded his elegant special and in a few minutes was flying over the rails to Belleville.

THE CHILDREN'S DAY.

Special Services for the Little Ones of the Baptist Church—Remember the Sabbath Day.

Yesterday was "Children's Day" in the Murray-st. Baptist church. One Sunday in each year is given to the children and the services made especially appropriate and interesting for the young folk. This year the teachers and officers made a special effort and as a result the services yesterday proved to be of a very interesting character, the children apparently entering into the spirit of the occasion. They listened most attentively to the sermon in the morning and seemed to take an intelligent delight in the afternoon service. The church had been made unusually attractive by a profusion of beautiful flowers, which had been tastefully arranged around the pulpit and windows. The bright foliage and beautiful blossoms of the plants, with the varigated tints of the bouquets, lent a most cheerful and refreshing appearance to the interior of the edifice.

THE MORNING SERVICE.

At the morning service the centre pews were reserved for the children of the Sunday school, while the adults of the congregation occupied the side seats. The children mustered in the Sunday school room first, and at eleven o'clock entered the church in charge of their teachers. From the little tots of the infant class up to the eldest pupils in the school the best of attention was given and the most perfect order maintained. The hymns selected for the service were familiar ones to the children and as a result the little ones joined heartily in the singing.

THE SABBATH DAY.

The sermon delivered by Rev. P. Clifton Parker was a timely one, couched in language and simplicity of thought that made it intelligible and interesting to the juvenile portion of his audience. The rev. gentleman chose for his text the fourth commandment:—

"Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work, but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work, thou nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates, etc."—Exodus xx., 8-11.

Rev. Mr. Parker commenced by pointing out that there were only two commandments that commenced differently from the others. There were eight which began "Thou shalt," and he said they should remember the other two—one in which they were told of their duty to their parents, "Honor thy father and mother," and the other which he had chosen for his text. He told them they should remember these two on account of their difference from the others. After impressing this remembrance of the commandment upon them he went on to tell them to remember the day—the first day of the week—and also the special purpose for which it was to be remembered—to keep it holy. The rev. gentleman referred to the strict laws with which the Jews had surrounded the observance of the Sabbath and urged them all to remember the commandment and keep the Sabbath day, which was God's joy day, the flower patch of the home garden, the summer of the year. He closed with a word to the parents regarding their duty to the children.

THE AFTERNOON SESSION.

In the afternoon a special service was held in the church at which the children rendered a programme which had been prepared. Quite a number of parents were present and were greatly interested by the exercises. Dr. Scott, Superintendent of the Sunday school, had charge of the meeting, which open with the old familiar hymn "All hail the power of Jesus name." Then the Superintendent and school read the responsive reading, and the superintendent offered an opening prayer. After another hymn by the school, four little girls ascended the platform and in a most pleasing style recited a flower recitation. Flossy Hall, Adina Grundy, May Fitzgerald and Ina Mowry are the names of the four little ones and they acquitted themselves well. Next came the exercises by the infant class, under Miss Gilmour. The class first gave a recitation in chorus, then sang a short hymn and lastly Violet Billings, a bright little tot of only a few summers, recited a verse in most taking style. Lila Webber also gave a flower recitation very pleasantly, after which Rev. P. Clifton Parker made a brief address of a timely character on flowers. Another hymn by the school and a recitation entitled "The Sparrow" by master John Macdonald, were followed by a short address by Mr. E. Duff on birds. While the collection was being taken up the choir rendered the anthem "Consider the Lilies" in good voice, and after another responsive reading and prayer by Mr. Wm. Gillespie, the meeting closed with the benediction. The meeting was a very interesting one and the children are to be congratulated on the manner they acquitted themselves and the teachers can be commended for their successful training.

A Large Crowd.

There was an immense crowd at the sale of bankrupt stock of P.D. Doran's on Saturday. Many had to go away without being served. There must have been good bargains going. 2d140

Lime Light Lecture on the Teloogoo Missions

Rev. D. M. Mitchell, Ph. B., of Belleville will deliver a lecture on missionary work among the Teluguo's of India in the Baptist school room on Tuesday evening, June 17th. The lecture will be illustrated by lime light views of the missionaries, churches, converts, native preachers, and various characters, such as beggars, fakirs, etc., that the missionaries come in contact with. Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Collection will be taken at the close.

To-morrow's Picnic.

The picnic of the season is to be held to-morrow morning. It is to be held under the auspices of the Oddfellows, and is sure to be a success. Every arrangement that the committee could think of which would tend to add to the comfort and accommodation of the picnickers has been made. Hot water, tea and milk will be supplied free by the committee to all those on board. Refreshments will be partaken of on the grounds. A good programme of sports and games, for which valuable prizes are offered, will be run off during the afternoon. A couple of cars will be attached to the train for canoes, baskets, etc. Do not miss this picnic or you will regret it. Come and bring the children and enjoy a good day with the Oddfellows. The train leaves at 8.30 a.m. and will arrive back at about 8 o'clock in the evening. Tickets 30 and 60 cents. d140

THE WORK OF THE STORM.

Heavy Rains Cause Disastrous Floods in the Rock River Valley.

CHICAGO, June 14.—Specials from Rockford and Joliet, Ill., report the heaviest rainstorms ever known there as having visited both places last night. At Rockford the lower part of the city was inundated and many people were rendered homeless. The Illinois Central bridge, costing $10,000, was swept away.

A Freshet Feared.

DIXON, Ill., June 14.—Rain has fallen here continuously since yesterday noon. The Rock River is rapidly rising and great fears are felt that another freshet like that of 1881 will visit the city.

THE TROUBLE SUBSIDING.

St. George's Bay (Nfld.) People Renew the Payment of Customs Dues.

HALIFAX, June 15.—The steamer Harlaw arrived from St. George's Bay to-day. The trouble between the people of that place and the French has subsided, the embargo placed upon the Harlaw's freight on her outward trip was removed, the people agreed to pay the duty on the Newfoundland Government promising them protection and compensation for their losses and all the freight from Halifax for that place was landed.

The steamer proceeded as far north as Flower's Cove. The people there were in a terrible state. Last fall they were destitute and the Newfoundland Government promised to send them assistance. Halifax and Montreal had contributed a large quantity of provisions, but these were not forwarded in view of promised assistance from the Newfoundland authorities. But it was never sent and the people suffered terribly from destitution, being compelled to live off the dead bodies of old seals during a portion of the winter. There were no actual deaths from starvation. Captain Farquhar left them a quantity of provisions.

THE FIGHT WAXING HOT.

A Sunday Political Meeting in Ottawa County Winds Up in a Row.

OTTAWA, June 15.—Largely-attended political meetings were held at various points in Ottawa county to-day. The proceedings in Gatineau Point this forenoon proved lively. Mr. Rochon (Lib.) had called the meeting. Though Mr. Cormier, the Conservative candidate, attended he was not allowed to speak. This caused a row. One arrest was made. The meeting ended in disorder. Mr. Cormier's meeting at Hull this afternoon was largely attended. Mr. Rochon spoke. The sentiment of the meeting was about equally divided. di are now the question of the hour. We have this season secured a line in wool at a low figure, besides having a complete assortment of all other lines known to the trade.

WE SAY

For our own Woolen Underwear that it is a protective against the disorders incident to sudden changes of the weather; it is more comfortably cool in hot weather than the best qualities of COTTON, LINEN or SILK. No "OUTING" equipment is complete without it; it is indispensable to the patron of the shell the skiff the canoe, the sail and the paddle. Saturated with water or prespiration it is neither disagreeable nor dangerous, but may be left to dry on the body with comfort and safety.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

CURED BY HYPNOTISM.

THE REMARKABLE EFFECT OF THIS LATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

The Pain of Surgical Operations Lost Under the Hypnotic Trance—Hypnotism is now Recognized as a Necessary Part of the Study of Medicine.

The British Medical Journal prints a long account of proceedings the other day at the rooms of Messrs. Carter Brothers & Turner, dental surgeons, Leeds, where upward of sixty of the leading medical men and dentists of the district witnessed a series of surgical and dental operations performed under hypnotic influence induced by Dr. Milne Bramwell of Goole, Yorkshire, who is described as quite a master of the art of hypnotism as applied to medicine and surgery. The object of the meeting, says a local correspondent of our contemporary, was to show the power of hypnotism to produce absolute anaesthesia in very painful and severe operations.

A woman, aged 25, was hypnotized at a word by Dr. Bramwell. She was told she was to submit to three teeth being extracted, without pain, at the hands of Mr. Thomas Carter; and further, that she was to do anything that Mr. Carter asked her to do. This was perfectly successful. There was no expression of pain in the face, no cry, and when told to awake she said she had not the least pain in the gums, nor had she felt the operation. Dr. Bramwell then hypnotized her, and ordered her to leave the room and go up stairs to the waiting room. This she did as a complete somnambulist.

The next case was that of a servant girl, M. A. W., aged 19, on whom, under the hypnotic influence induced by Dr. Bramwell, Mr. Hewetson had a fortnight previously opened and scraped freely, without knowledge or pain, a large lachrymal abscess extending into the cheek. Furthermore, the dressing had been daily performed and the cavity freely syringed under hypnotic anaesthesia, "the healing suggestions" being daily given to the patient, to which Dr. Bramwell in a great measure attributes the very rapid healing, which took place in ten days—a remarkably short space of time in a girl by no means in a good state of health. She was put to sleep by the following letter from Dr. Bramwell addressed to Mr. Turner: "Burlington crescent, Goole, Yorks. Dear Mr. Turner—I send you a patient with enclosed order. When you give it her she will fall asleep at once and obey your commands. J. Milne Bramwell." Order: "Go to sleep at once, by order of Dr. Bramwell, and obey Mr. Turner's commands. J. Milne Bramwell." This experiment answered perfectly. Sleep was induced at once by reading the note, and so profound that, at the end of a lengthy operation, in which sixteen stumps were removed, she awoke smiling, and insisted that she had felt no pain, and, what was remarkable, there was no pain in her mouth. She was found after some time, when unobserved, reading the Graphic in the waiting room as if nothing had happened. During the whole time she did everything which Mr. Turner suggested, but it was observed that there was a diminished flow of saliva, and that the corneal reflexes were absent, the breathing more noisy than ordinarily, and the pulse slower.

Dr. Bramwell took occasion to explain that the next case, a boy aged 8, was a severe test, and would probably not succeed, partly because the patient was so young, and chiefly because he had not attempted to produce hypnotic anaesthesia earlier than two days before. He also explained that patients require training in this form of anaesthesia, the time of training or preparation varying with each individual. However, he was so far hypnotized that he allowed Mr. Mayo Robson to operate on the great toe, removing a bony growth and part of the first phalanx with no more than a few cries toward the close of the operation, and with the result that, when questioned afterward, he appeared to know very little of what had been done. It was necessary in his case for Dr. Bramwell to repeat the hypnotic suggestion. Dr. Bramwell remarked that he wished to show a case that was less likely to be perfectly successful than the others, so as to enable those present to see the difficult as well as the apparently easy, straightforward cases, "in fact" as he said, "to show his work in the rough." The next case was a girl of 15, highly sensitive, requiring the removal of enlarged tonsils. At the request of Dr. Bramwell, Mr. Hewetson was enabled in the hypnotic state to extract each tonsil with ease, the girl by suggestion of the hypnotiser, obeying the request of the operator, though in a state of personal anaesthesia. In the same way Mr. Hewetson removed a cyst, of the size of a young woman who was perfectly anaesthetized and breathing deeply, and who, on coming round by order, protested "that an operation had not been commenced." Mr. Turner then extracted two teeth from a man with equal success; after which Dr. Bramwell explained how his patient had been completely cured of drunkenness by hypnotic suggestion. To prove this to those present, and to show the interesting psychological results, the man was hypnotized, and in that state he was shown a glass of water: he was told by Dr. Bramwell it was "bad beer." He was then told to awake, and the glass of water offered him by Dr. Bramwell; he put it to his lips, and at once spat out the "offensive liquid." Other interesting phenomena were illustrated and explained by means of this patient, who was a hale strong working man.

Mr. T. S. Carter next extracted a very difficult impacted stump from a railway navvy as successfully as the previous case. Dr. Bramwell described how this man had been completely cured of very obstinate facial neuralgia by hypnotism, which had been produced by working in a wet cutting. On the third day of hypnotism the neuralgia had entirely disappeared (now some weeks ago), and had not returned. The man had obtained refreshing hypnotic sleep at nights, being put to sleep by his daughter through a note from Dr. Bramwell or by a telegram, both methods succeeding perfectly. At the conclusion of this most interesting and successful series of hypnotic experiments a vote of thanks to Dr. Bramwell was proposed. Mr. Pridgin Teal said: "I feel sure that the time has now come when we shall have to recognize hypnotism as a necessary part of our study." The vote was carried by acclamation.

NEW YORK'S JAPANESE COLONY.

The People from the Land of the Mikado Do Well in Gotham.

Over in Chambers street there is a rather dingy-looking office on the second floor of an old-fashioned building, which is too conservative to have an elevator in it.

If you climb the stairs and cast your eye upon one of the doors opening into the office in question you may see a notice on it setting forth that within is the Japanese Consulate. Most persons pass it by without paying any attention, for in the minds of a majority of New Yorkers the Japanese contingent in this city represents but little in point of numbers or in any other way. That is where the majority of New Yorkers are in error.

Should you happen to be in this Japanese Consulate on many occasions one thing will strike you very forcibly. No ragged person ever comes into it, unless, indeed, it be one of the race of peripatetic beggars who visit every down-town office. No one comes into this consulate wanting to be assisted in getting away from this land of the free and home of the brave because it has failed to provide him with a living. Probably there is no other consulate in this city of which the same can be said. Probably, too, there is no class of people in our heterogeneous population who are quite as prosperous, comparatively speaking, as the Japanese who are located here. And yet but little is known of them, for they have a wonderful faculty of attending to their own business, and doing it in an unobtrusive way.

For the last decade or so the number of Japanese in New York has been constantly increasing, and now the colony is a very good sized one. What is more, it is made up of men of more than moderate means.

Few races, not English speaking, have shown greater inclination to adopt American customs than have the Japanese who have located in this city. They dress and talk like Americans; they attend our theatres and mingle in our society, and in every way they seem to assimilate themselves with the conditions that surround them. Unlike the Chinese and other nationalities, they have not settled in any particular locality, but are scattered throughout this city and Brooklyn. Pleasant and satisfactory neighbors they make, too.

The New York Japanese have their club house, however. It is a good-sized dwelling on West Twenty-second street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues. Handsomely fitted up with both Japanese and American furniture it is, and as for treasures in bric-a-brac, this particular club house is way ahead of many swell American club houses. It goes without saying, almost, that there may be had such tea as can be had in no other club house or cafe in all New York. The club has a Japanese cook.

Its library is well filled with Japanese books and its reading room tables are freighted with Japanese newspapers. There are receptions on the anniversaries of the birthday of the Japanese Emperor and on such other occasions as may be decided upon. Nearly all the Japanese in this city belong to the club, and it is about as well managed an organization as there is in this city.

It is stated that there is not a Japanese pauper in New York, and that, as a matter of fact, there are very few who do not possess at least moderate means.—[New York Mail and Express.

How Cablegrams are Transmitted.

With the first long submarine cables great difficulties were encountered in sending through them a current of electricity of sufficient power to record the messages rapidly. The methods for overcoming these difficulties and in use at present are described as follows:

Keys, which, when depressed, transmit positive and negative currents, are employed at the sending station in connection with the regulation battery. The current of the battery does not pass directly into the cable, but into a condenser, which passes it into the submarine line. This greatly increases the force of the current used and serves to cut off interfering ground currents. The instrument first employed in receiving cablegrams was an reflecting galvanometer. Upon the magnet of this instrument is carried a small curved mirror. A lamp is placed before the mirror and behind a screen in which there is a vertical slit. Flashes of light moving across this slit as the needles moved from left to right, indicted to the trained eyes of the operator the letters in the message being transmitted. But this method of recording messages was found to tax the eyesight of the operator severely, a few years, work often rendering them almost if not totally blind. Recognizing the fact that there must be something wrong with such a system, inventors set about repairing the defect, which resulted in perfecting the syphon galvanometer, which has all but superseded all other receiving devices.

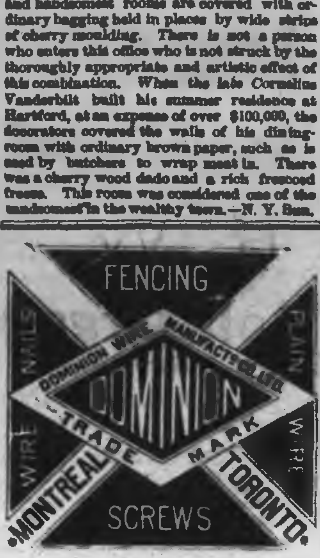
In the syphon receiver the movements of the needle are recorded by means of ink spurted from a fine tube. This tube is attached to a coil suspended between two fixed magnets, which swings to the right or left as the pulsations pass through it. The syphon galvanometer is a great improvement; is not hard on the eyes and enables the operator to receive much more rapidly than with the old flash receiver.—St. Louis Republic.

A Gorgeous Head.

An entirely new style of hair dressing is threatened. In Paris the frizzy bang has meekly subsided to give the Javanaise head-dress a chance. Fashion appears to have gone daft on those peculiar ornaments, and the great jewellers of the Rue de la Paix have been ordered to reset the diamonds of more than one grand dame after the pattern of those flat metal ornaments. At the opera a few weeks ago a dazzling light in Parisian society appeared with her hair dressed perfectly flat to her head, on one side, right above the ear, an ornament as large and as flat as an individual butter-plate, composed of diamonds and pearls, and medallions as large as an English penny, of the same gems, going round to the other ear, across the forehead just at the line of the hair. How those jewels were kept in place was a secret known only to madame's coiffeur and jeweller, but it was "Javanaise," and, therefore, a beautiful and distinguished innovation on the diamond star and butterfly ornamentations. Such is one of the results of the Paris exhibition, where the fashions of Java dancers were first introduced to Western imitators.—Boston Herald.

Novel Materials in Decoration.

It is curious what can be done in the way of interior decorations with homely materials by persons of artistic taste. There is a firm of architects in this city whose income is enormous and who have a very handsome suite of offices. The walls of their largest and handsomest rooms are covered with ordinary bagging held in place by wide strips of cherry moulding. There is not a person who enters this office who is not struck by the thoroughly appropriate and artistic effect of this combination. When the late Cornelius Vanderbilt built his summer residence at Hartford, at an expense of over $100,000, the decorators covered the walls of his dining-room with ordinary brown paper, such as is used by butchers to wrap meat in. There was a cherry wood dado and a rich frescoed frieze. This room was considered one of the handsomest in the wealthy town.—N. Y. Sun.



WOMEN WHO WHINE.

They Unconsciously Make Life an Intolerable Burden to Husbands.

If there is anything I am profoundly grateful for it is that I have not in my portion a woman who whines. If I had, I fear my name would some time be numbered with those who have mysteriously disappeared and have never been heard of again, for, with no small amount of good humor and the gift of being able to adapt myself to most of the circumstances of life, I cannot endure a whining woman. I know of one such woman, and her husband has my profound sympathy poor fellow! If it rains, his wife whines because the sun doesn't shine. If the sun shines she whines because it doesn't rain. If she is sick, she whines because she isn't well; and if she is well, she whines because she has so much to do. She has one of those fretful, droning voices peculiarly exasperating to most people—a voice that would drive some men to deeds of desperation.

She was at our house one day—whining, as usual: "The fruit season's all over with and I didn't get to can half I wanted to, and I feel so put out about it. I'm so rushed all the time I never get to do half I want to. Some days I just sit down and cry. My baby has a dreadful cold; seems to me he always has something or other. What a sight of trouble children are, anyhow; dear, dear! You're all through house cleaning, aren't you! And I've hardly begun. I don't know as I'll ever get it finished, I do hate it so! What a handsome new chair you have! I'd like one like it, but I don't see how we can get anything new this fall, Henry's business is so poor. I just worry over it all the time. There's nothing but fuss and worry in this world, anyhow; dear me, dear me!"

That is a specimen of how she goes on for hours at a time. That is what her husband comes home to at night. That is what he hears day in and day out at his table. That is what must ring in the poor fellow's ears all day long, depressing and disheartening him, and taking from him all the joy and gladness of life.

I read lately of a bank president who positively refused to have men in positions of trust in his bank whose home life was known to be unhappy. He regarded such men as peculiarly liable to temptation, and one cannot help thinking that he was correct in his estimate of the dangers surrounding such a man.

Now you need not tell me that the woman of whom I write cannot help whining, that it is a constitutional failing or a tendency against which she has no power to strive. I don't believe it. She is a perfectly healthy and robust woman, and she simply needs to brace up—to come to a realizing sense of what she owes to herself, her husband, her children and society in general;—Emma Dane.

Good, Pure Seed.

Deal only with respectable seedsmen whose reputation is at stake and who cannot afford to run any risks in the matter. Wherever and whenever possible also, ask for a guarantee, although in the case of such seedsmen as those described it would seem almost superfluous. Another thing; when seeds have to be mixed, buy them separately and do the mixing yourself. A London (Eng.) firm recently sold a great deal of red clover seed which they advertised would yield 98 per cent—a very high average. It failed, however, to yield half or even a tenth of that amount, and when submitted to expert analysis, the reason was obvious. It contained but 10 per cent. of red clover seed, the remainder being made up of rib grass and pounded stone, both dyed beautifully to resemble the real seed. This was a case of pure fraud, punishable by law. Fortunately Ontario is not infested with firms of the London sort to any great extent, but, nevertheless, buy your own seeds, get the guarantee if possible, and do your own mixing.

Dry Goods News at
TURNBULL'S

Another week has brought us many bargains. The first one we will mention is in the Dress Goods Department. We have opened out new Silk-warp Henriettas in black and colors at 60c. and 75c. a yard. Never mind how or where we got them. Those who want fine silk-warp henriettas for the price of wool materials will now know where to go.

We are showing three special lines in Union Carpets at 40, 50 and 60c. a yard. Remember where you have heard of cheap carpets.

Those who have bought the 5½ and 7½ Check Chambrays have found out that what we said about them was true—that they wash beautifully—and they are now coming back for quantities. Remember these goods are selling at just half their value.

The Silk Taffeta and Lace Gloves we are selling at 25c. a pair are startlers.

Mothers, you should see our Heavy Ribbed Cotton Hose for boys. They will recommend themselves to your judgment for durability.

Ladies, do not buy black hose that stain when you can get perfectly stainless ones at Turnbull's.

The rush is on us now in our Tailoring Department and no wonder. Our stock of Tweeds and Worsteds are very choice. We propose and are repeatedly told that we do sell clothing made to order cheaper than any other house in Peterborough.

Our Millinery stock is constantly changing hands. If you have seen our stock of hats last week do not expect to find it the same this week, as we are always receiving new and desirable shapes and trimmings. As the season advances prices always decline in the wholesale millinery stocks, so look out for bargains at Turnbull's Millinery for the balance of the season.

32 MINERS KILLED.

TERRIBLE DISASTER IN A PENNSYLVANIA MINE.

The Fatal Mistake of a Young Hero—Fruitless Attempts to Recover the Bodies—An Avalanche of Flame—Complete List of the Victims.

DUNBAR, Pa., June 16.—This morning at 11.10 a shivering roar shook the lowly miners' dwellings on Hill Farm in Fayette County near this place and affrighted hundreds of persons who knew too well the sound indicated another mine disaster. In a moment the fearful news had spread that the Hill Farm mines owned by Philadelphia parties had exploded. The low-browed hill from which the slope entered shook from mouth to pit and the scores of miners' houses lining the hill poured out frenzied inmates by the hundred. A rush was made to the mouth of the pit, but ingress was impossible, as smoke in dense volumes was issuing forth.

Fifty-two miners had gone to work this morning and were in the slope when the explosion occurred. Of these 52, 30 were in the left heading and 22 in the right heading. Those in the left heading got out all right. All the others were cut off and not one escaped. Their names are:

Jos. Brighner.
H. Barney.
Emanuel Maust.
George Courtney.
Peter Egan.
J. Bigley.
Bigley (child).
M. Cavener.
A. Cope.

At 7½ the gang turned in at the mines, the smaller gang drifting off to the left while the large, some 22 in number, drifted to the right and descended some 800 feet from the surface and at least a mile from the opening. These two drifts are connected, but the connection is from the main stem, some half mile from the entrance. The mine had been somewhat troubled with water and an air shaft had been drilled from the surface to the junction of the right and left shafts, where the water seemed most abundant.

As the miners branched off from this point they knew an air hole had been drilled there and that it had not yet been broken into the mine, but they did not know the shaft was to be broken into to-day. The shaft is a six inch hole. A miner named Kerwin had been left in the right drift near where that branch joined in the mine's exit and in the course of his labors broke into the perpendicular shaft. The moment this was broken into a flood of water rushed out and Kerwin and a man named Lundy standing by yelled out for some one to save the men in the mine in the right drift.

Young David Hayes, who had seen the affair, leaped forward at the call and turned down the left drift in a deluge of water toward his endangered comrades below. Just as he passed the air shaft that had been broken into the rush of waters had changed to the ugly roar of a flood, which blanched the cheeks of the men who stood behind and towards the light.

The flow of water had changed to a deadly volume of firedamp, and as young Hayes swung by, the flashing of the blazing light shed through the shaft from end to end. It seemed the daring youth carried an open burning miner's lamp in his hat and he had hardly taken a step beyond that roaring shaft when the spark ignited a reservoir of the deadly fire damp that had already accumulated and he sank a corpse 10 feet toward the men he had hoped to save and whom he certainly doomed.

At midnight the smoke and gas from the right shaft poured up the main exit in a broken column, and after trials almost beyond human endurance the rescuing party gave up all hopes of ever recovering the dead bodies from that entrance and turned their attention to the Ferguson mine, 1¼ miles away. The flames and smoke balk their every efforts.

The universal verdict of the old miners is that the entombed men were either killed outright by the explosion or later by suffocation.

TO MEET IN BOSTON IN '91.

The I. T. U. Adjourns—A Toronto Man on the Childs-Drexel Board.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 16.—The International Typographical Union convention has adjourned. The convention of 1891 will be held in Boston. G. B. W. Houston of Lynn, Mass., and Thomas P. White of New Orleans were elected delegates to the American Federation of Labor. These seven trustees were elected for the Childs-Drexel Home: James G. Woodward, Atlanta; Amos J. Cummings, New York; Will Lambert, Austin, Tex.; W. A. Amison, Nashville; John D. Vaughan, Denver; George W. Morgan and Bellingham Bay, Washington; William H. Parr, Toronto. The trustees organized with August Donath of Washington, president.

Among the laws passed was one prohibiting regular compositors from holding cases more than six days in any week. This was introduced by Miss Taylor, the lady delegate from Cincinnati.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

IRISH NIGHT IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Balfour Charged With Lying—Dark Threats of Bloodshed—An Indian Railway Subsidy—The Cholera's Approach—The Telegraph Congress' Perplexity.

LONDON, June 16.—In the House of Commons to-night Mr. Balfour, replying to Mr. Dillon, denied that the police charged upon and clubbed the people of New Tipperary for lighting bonfires to celebrate the marriage of William O'Brien. The police, he said, put out the bonfires because they formed an obstruction in the streets.

Messrs. Gill and Clancy, Nationalists, questioned Mr. Balfour regarding the Government's system of "shadowing" persons in Ireland. They wanted to know how shadowing could prevent boycotting.

Mr. Balfour replied that no one was shadowed unless he was known to be engaged in intimidation. The Government would promise to reduce the system only on the condition that the Parnellites promised to induce the persons shadowed to abstain from intimidation. (Cheers from the government members.)

Mr. Dillon: "If after this brutal, abominable outrage there is bloodshed it will be upon your heads."

Mr. Parnell asked Mr. Balfour to adopt the English presumption that every person accused is innocent until proven to be guilty. (Cheers.)

Mr. Balfour: "Will Mr. Parnell undertake that these people shall not repeat their crime?"

This question brought out loud Parnellite cries of "What crime?" and a tremendous uproar on the Parnellite side of the House.

Mr. Dillon began an excited speech. He denounced Mr. Balfour and demanded an apology for the use of the word "crime."

A stormy scene ensued, in which Mr. Gill accused Mr. Balfour of lying, and Mr. Gladstone challenged him to prove his assertion that the Liberals resorted to the practice of shadowing.

Mr. Balfour substituted the words: "Intimidation and boycotting" for "crime."

Finally the Speaker appealed to the House and the matter was dropped.

All Well Lost for Love.

VIENNA, June 16.—The Archduchess Valerie to-day publicly renounced all claims to the throne of Austria in order that she might marry the man of her choice. The ceremony took place in the Imperial Council Chamber. It was an affecting as well as an impressive scene. The Archduchess, having made her formal declaration, which was duly attached and proclaimed, turned to the Emperor and members of the Imperial family and said a loving husband would make a true woman happier than a thousand thrones. The Emperor took his daughter in his arms and all present were deeply touched.

The German Army Bill.

BERLIN, June 16.—In the Reichstag Committee on the Army Bill to-day Herr Rickert's motion to determine the peace effective annually was rejected, 19 to 9. Rickert's motion to reduce the term of service two years was also rejected, 18 to 10. The first paragraph of the bill was adopted in its original form 17 to 11. The remaining paragraphs were agreed to and the entire bill was passed, 10 to 12.

Is It Cholera?

MADRID, June 16.—The Governor of Valencia is suffering from choleraic diarrhoea.

The Government announced in the senate to-day that it had not been proved that the disease now prevailing at Puebla de Rugat is Asiatic cholera and there was no cause for alarm. It was further stated that the Board of Health had sent a deputation to Valencia and had taken sanitary measures to prevent the spread of the disease.

Gov.-Gen. H. M. Stanley.

BRUSSELS, June 16.—Henry M. Stanley has been tendered and has accepted the Governor-Generalship of the Congo Free State. He will not enter upon his duties until the beginning of 1891, unless he should be called upon to assume them earlier by King Leopold.

Navarro's Mary.

LONDON, June 16.—Only eight persons besides the contracting parties and the officiating clergyman and his attendants will be present at the marriage of Mary Anderson to Mr. Navarro in the Suburban church tomorrow. There will be no bridesmaids. The bride and groom will spend their honeymoon in Venice.

A Big Skip.

NEW YORK, June 17.—The World estimates that fully 10,000 families were skipped by the enumerators in taking the census of this city.

Raising Rocks for Rossa.

NEW YORK, June 15.—O'Donovan Rossa's friends desire to raise enough money to send him back to the Old Country and to place him above want for the remainder of his life. Rossa was banished by the British Government for 20 years. His term of banishment will soon expire. A meeting of Irishmen, who have the above fund in view, was held here to-day. It is claimed the fund is assured.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Proposed Mission to the Jews—Aged and Infirm Ministers' Fund.

OTTAWA, June 16.—The General Assembly began the work of the second week this morning at 9½ o'clock. The rest of Saturday afternoon and of Sunday had a refreshing effect upon the members. The conversazione on Saturday evening in Coligny College was in every sense a success and the Sunday services in the Bank-street Church were largely attended.

The first matter that was brought before the court at this morning's session was an appeal case from Perth bearing upon the situation of a location for a new church. The Assembly, after considering all matters relating to the appeal, decided it would be inadvisable just at present to grant permission to the petitioning congregation to remove to a new site for the location of the proposed new church.

A long discussion was held over a proposal to establish a mission to the Jews in Palestine. A sum of $6000 is now in the hands of the church for such a mission. It was moved by Mr. Mortimer Clark of Toronto, seconded by Principal MacVicar of Montreal,

"That a mission to the Jews be established, that Palestine be the field and that Jerusalem be the headquarters; also that all matters relating to organization be placed in charge of a special committee of the Assembly."

Principal Grant, seconded by President Forrest, moved:

"That the General Assembly expresses gratification at the success which has attended the inquiries prosecuted by the Foreign Missions Committee, and its special thanks to Mr. Mortimer Clark; instructs the Foreign Missions Committee to appoint a sub-committee to prosecute inquiry further and especially to ascertain whether it would be desirable to co-operate with the Free Church Mission in Tiberias for a time and whether there are promising candidates for such a mission, and to report to the next General Assembly."

An amendment to the amendment to send the whole matter down to the Presbyteries to report upon was voted down by a large majority, and ultimately Principal Grant's amendment was carried over the original motion of Mr. Mortimer Clark by a majority of 114 to 98 and became the judgment of the court.

On an invitation from Kingston the General Assembly decided to meet next year in the Limestone City and within St. Andrew's Church there on the second Wednesday of June.

The Aged and Infirm Ministers' Fund is divided into the Eastern and Western sections. In the maritime section the receipts are $3004. Out of the fund 16 aged ministers have been paid $3274. In the western section the receipts, amounting to $15,844, were made up of congregational collections and donations, ministers' rates, interest, investments and proceeds from the hymnal committee. The endowment part of the fund amounts to $11,366. Sixty-seven annuitants participated in the fund during the year. An effort is being made to raise the endowment to $200,000. In the event of this sum being raised within two years Sir Donald A. Smith promises toward the fund $20,000. During the year Mrs. Clark of Quebec left to the fund $4000 and Mrs. Nicol of Peterboro $20,000.

At the evening session the Bank-street Church was filled from platform to door. After routine preliminaries the matter of French evangelization was brought before the house in an elaborate report, covering the year's work, presented by Principal MacVicar of Montreal. All-in-all this has been a prosperous year in this department. The funds, $51,245, against $44,913 the previous year, are higher than those of any year in the history of the work.

One of the features in the year's record is the purchase of Coligny College, a ladies' college where young women may receive a competent training in French, English, music, &c., at moderate rates, at a cost of $20,000. The Pointe aux Trembles school, the girls' school, the Colportage de Parliament, etc., are doing efficient service.

A new workman in the person of Rev. J. Taylor was appointed secretary at a salary of $1600, charged with the direction of the work generally and instructed to present the claims of the board to the church. Rev. Dr. Parsons and Dr. Burns spoke upon the report in cordial advocacy of the work generally.

The temperance question came up next. Rev. D. Stiles Fraser, Convener of the Temperance Committee, presented to the Assembly the results of the responses that had come to enquiries sent down to congregations and presbyteries. On the subject of "Temperance" there is as a rule some clever speechifying. In the Supreme Court of the Presbyterian Church there are a number of intemperate temperance men and another portion that might be called "broad" on this question.

The committee brought in a number of recommendations, some of which were called in question. As the hour of adjournment arrived some of the members were just beginning to warm up to the issue. Their ardor was restrained for the time being.

A Quebec Quake.

CUSHING, Que., June 16.—An earthquake shock was felt here at 7¼ this morning. It apparently moved from east to west.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Lively Time in the Methodist Conference—A Newspaper Sensation.

TORONTO, June 17.—The Toronto Methodist Conference had a lively time to-day over a remark of Mr. Joseph Tait, M.L.A., at Saturday's meeting of laymen, to the effect that no denomination was burdened with priestcraft so much as the Methodist. After a long and hot discussion it was finally decided that the remark was made in a Pickwickian sense and was mere obiter dicta. A resolution of cordial sympathy with and confidence in the ministry was passed and the conference settled down quietly to routine.

At 5 o'clock this evening Willie Osborne aged 12, living with his parents at No. 8 Drummond-place, was playing with some companions on the boom of logs west of the Northern elevator when he missed his footing, fell into the water and was drowned.

A general slashing of the municipal estimates has brought the rate down to 14¼ mills.

Within the past four days the city, and more particularly the West End, has been flooded with bogus silver quarters. They bear date 1880 and are almost perfect in weight and make.

There is a genuine sensation in newspaperdom over the announcement made this morning that Editor Edward Farrer has closed his connection with The Mail and on July 1 will become chief editorial writer on The Globe. It is asserted that Sir Richard Cartwright closed the transaction.

A Youthful Hamilton Tough.

HAMILTON, June 16.—On a charge of stabbing James Durand in the back the Police Magistrate this morning committed 15-year-old Edward Gallagher for trial. The quarrel arose in a King-street hotel.

SIR TERENCE SCORED.

GOVERNOR O'BRIEN'S RECALL VIGOROUSLY DEMANDED.

A St. Johns Paper Charges the Queen's Representative With Being a Bitter and Unscrupulous Partisan—How the Bait Law Is Evaded.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 16.—The Herald demands the recall of Governor O'Brien. It says: Sir Terence O'Brien has not the capacity to understand the difficulties of our position, the heart to sympathize with the distress of the people he is called to govern, or the courage to advocate their claims in that quarter where alone they can be redressed; but worse than all that he has incurred the vehement suspicion of being a violent partisan of a political party. Even before the general elections he took no pains to conceal the dislike he felt to his constitutional advisers, during the elections he displayed a most indiscreet interest in the fortunes of the opponents of the government then in power. Every one knows, too, how before Sir Robert Thorburn's resignation he was accustomed to consult with Sir William Whiteway upon matters of state and to take his opinion in defiance of that given by his Executive Council. It is equally notorious that he suppressed from his Executive all knowledge of important despatches which he had received from the Colonial Office and held them over for the consideration of the new Council.

So bitter and unscrupulous a partisan was he that his late advisers unanimously signed a formal protest against him and forwarded it to the Colonial Office. Sir Terence O'Brien would make a bad Governor of Newfoundland, even in the piping times of peace, but in this season of trouble and danger his presence amongst us imperils not only the freedom and prosperity of the colony but the honor and dominion of Britain herself.

We complain of him because he has invariably sacrificed the permanent interests of Newfoundland to the immediate and temporary necessities of Imperial policy. We complain of him because he has permitted himself to become a pliant instrument in the hands of the leader of a political faction in the country, but our most serious grievance against him is that he has condoned the most outrageous acts of foreign aggression upon our soil and territory.

At this critical juncture the unaccredited agent of France has approached far too near the ear of His Excellency for the safety of this colony or the maintenance of British supremacy over it.

Evading the Bait Law.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 16.—Many ingenious shifts and devices have been invented to evade the provisions of the bait act, but the cleverest of them all is the following: A Newfoundland vessel procures a license in one of our ports to carry cargo herring to Boston. She takes her load on board but under false pretence of stress of weather she deviates from her course and calls at St. Pierre. As soon as she arrives there she is attached under process of the French court for an alleged debt to a St. Pierre trader. Of course this debt is purely fictitious. Under order of the court the cargo of herring is sold in St. Pierre at public auction and a large price is realized. The ship is released from the attachment, the captain pockets the spoils and the laws of Newfoundland are successfully evaded. This trick has been performed several times. It is a serious matter when the process of a foreign court of justice is availed of to evade the positive enactments of a British legislature.

SMITH KNOCKS OUT DALY.

The Winner to Be Pitted Against Godfrey or Kilrain—A Game Fighter.

BUFFALO, June 16.—Ed. Smith of Denver and Jim Daly of Philadelphia fought to-night in the Arlington Athletic Club for a purse of $1500, and the club bet William Muldoon, Smith's trainer, $500 on the outside that Daly would win. A party of 20, including Muldoon, Dick Roche, Al Smith, Billy Maloy, Jimmy Wakely and Phil Lynch were present from New York City.

Smith knocked out Daly in six rounds. Daly was outclassed from the start. The winner will probably be pitted against Godfrey, the colored fighter of Boston, or Jake Kilrain. That matter rests in this way. The Puritan Athletic Club of Long Island City stands ready to offer a purse of $3000 for a go between the winner at Buffalo and Godfrey.

First round—Smith led and Daly tried for the wind but didn't reach. After good in-fighting Smith got the best of it and scored a push down before the round closed.

Second round—This was give and take. Smith struck the harder blows and seemed to have Daly at his mercy. He planted a right hander on Daly's mug that dazzled him.

Third round—It was clearly apparent that Daly was overmatched. Daly clinched to avoid punishment. He was knocked down and lay several moments before his seconds could get him on his feet again.

Fourth round—Smith forced Daly at the outset into his corner and into his chair, where he sat powerless. Then Smith let him get up and walk to centre, so that he could knock him down. He repeated this before Daly was fairly on his feet. Cries of "foul" were heard and the referee warned Smith. Smith scored a third knock-down and would have got another if Daly had got up in time.

Fifth round—Smith sent Daly to ground five times.

Sixth round—Daly was again knocked and pushed down until the close of the round. Smith struck more blows which were alleged to be foul.

Seventh round—Daly was knocked down repeatedly and finally on a clinch, when Smith refused to break away at the referee's order, Daly's seconds tried to claim the fight on a foul for their man, but the referee disallowed it, and Daly failing to come to centre gave the fight and purse to Smith.

Time 26 minutes.

Ed Smith's name is familiar to the followers of the prize ring in the east, for the reason that he, to all practical purposes, once stopped George La Blanche, the "Marine," in short order at Denver. Still little or nothing is known of the young man. He was born in England 24 years ago, stands 5 feet 10½ inches high, and when in condition weighs 175 pounds. He is probably as plucky and game a fighter as any man who ever stepped into the ring. Nobody is more enthusiastic over his ability as a pugilist than the man who directs his training, William Muldoon.

JUDGE'S LAKE.

The Discovery Made by Arkell's Explorers in the Northwest Territories.

NEW YORK, June 16.—W. J. Arkell received to-day from the Alaska exploring party a despatch to the effect that they have discovered a lake which they have named Lake Arkell, and which lies in the British Northwest Territory, about longitude 136 degrees 30 minutes west, latitude 60 degrees 30 minutes north. The extent of the lake is not known, but the Indians say it is many miles long and many wide.

Dress the Hair

With Ayer's Hair Vigor. Its cleanliness, beneficial effects on the scalp, and lasting perfume commend it for universal toilet use. It keeps the hair soft and silken, preserves its color, prevents it from falling, and, if the hair has become weak or thin, promotes a new growth.

"To restore the original color of my hair, which had turned prematurely gray, I used Ayer's Hair Vigor with entire success. I cheerfully testify to the

Efficacy

of this preparation."—Mrs. P. H. Davidson, Alexandria, La.

"I was afflicted some three years with scalp disease. My hair was falling out and what remained turned gray. I was induced to try Ayer's Hair Vigor, and in a few weeks the disease in my scalp disappeared and my hair resumed its original color."—(Rev.) S. S. Sims, Pastor U. B. Church, St. Bernice, Ind.

"A few years ago I suffered the entire loss of my hair from the effects of tetter. I hoped that after a time nature would repair the loss, but I waited in vain. Many remedies were suggested, none, however, with such proof of merit as Ayer's Hair Vigor, and I began to use it. The result was all I could have desired. A growth of hair soon came out all over my head, and grew to be as soft and heavy as I ever had, and of a natural color, and firmly set."—J. H. Pratt, Spofford, Texas.

PRINCIPLES WILL LIVE.

It is sincerely to be hoped that never again will an Ontario election contest be cumbered with such a narrow, mean and contemptible catch-cry as that adopted by the Meredithites at the recent provincial election.—Goderich Signal.

Mr. Meredith advocated during the contest reforms that he had advocated on the floor of the House. The Signal may consider it mean and even contemptible to propose the legislation that Mr. Meredith proposed, but the policy the Opposition leader advocated was right, and being right will yet succeed. There was no catch-cry raised by Mr. Meredith. His policy was formulated in the Legislature in the interest of the Province, and unless the Mowat Government meets the demands made and, as he has done in other matters, adopts the principles and passes the legislation he has opposed, both in the House and on the hustings the same principles will continue to be advocated by the Mereditites until they are adopted. Mr. Meredith believed that the amendments to the school laws he proposed embodied correct principles, and the fact that the Government secured, with the aid of its gerrymander and other unfair means, a diminished majority, cannot alter his or any other person's conviction that those principles should prevail. The ballot for Public and Separate school elections must come. The ballot has been found advantageous in municipal elections, and has been endorsed by all parties for municipal and Parliamentary elections. It should be extended to school elections, for the interests of education are of as great importance as the interests attended to by municipal councils. The law regarding the ratepayers right of choice as to the support of the Public schools must also be made clear and the Public schools must remain the national schools of Ontario. These and other matters have not been finally settled by the recent elections. While the Government continues its past and present system of special legislation, of forcing upon the country a fraudulent ballot system, of partisan manipulation of the license laws, of abuse of its patronage power, of curtailing the privileges and revenue of the municipalities—in a word, so long as it acts as it has in the past and refuses to remedy palpable evils, the Opposition will continue to advocate the necessary reforms. The Signal should not delude itself into imagining that the Government will be given license to continue its evil methods without active opposition.

THERE is considerable speculation as to what members of the Government party will get Messrs. Gibson and Drury's vacant shoes. When Hon. Mr. Hardy was here, before the election, he referred to Mr. Stratton as one of the "risen men" in the House. If his eulogy of West Peterborough's representative was sincere, and not merely clap-trap to influence votes, he should use his influence to obtain one of the vacant portfolios for Mr. Stratton. To use the latter gentleman's familiar phrase of four years ago, the Government might "give the boy a chance."

AT the meeting of the Synod of Niagara of the Church of England, Mr. J. H. Land, of Hamilton, said that "the last Provincial Secretary, Hon. J. M. Gibson, had admitted to him that the license law of Ontario was practically a dead letter in regard to Sunday selling." And Mr. Gibson, who made this admission, was the head of the department entrusted with the duty of enforcing that very law. Perhaps Mr. Gibson, like Mr. Manning when administering the Scott Act, was afraid that "a more rigid enforcement of the law would be highly injurious to the Mowat Government."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

APSLEY AFFAIRS.

A Colt Killed By Lightning—The Election—Personal Notes.

Correspondence of the Review.

THE CAMPAIGN.—The great struggle is over. The forenoon of June 5th was glorious as regards the weather and a large vote was expected, but in the afternoon rain fell in torrents and probably was the reason for such a small general vote. Mr. Blezard carried this municipality by 86 of a majority out of a total vote of 212 polled.

COLT KILLED.—Mr. Lafayette Reid, of South Burleigh, had a fine yearling colt killed by lightning during the thunderstorm of June 5th.

PERSONALS.—We are pleased to notice that in the reports of the various Courts of Revision Mr. G. W. Coones is among the few assessors having no appeals made against his work....We extend our congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. T. G. SHIELD'S CAPTURED.

Ignorant of Grimes' Death When Taken into Custody—An Inquest Begun.

HAMILTON, June 16.—At daybreak this morning Zachariah Shields, who is suspected of being responsible for old Joseph Grimes' death, was captured. He was rowing in the marsh and when he saw the policeman he put on a spurt and gave them a race. Before he had gone very far he was overtaken. The police handcuffed him, a proceeding to which Shields objected, and they put him into their boat and rowed him to Bastien's. The prisoner was silent, but he was surprised when he was informed that Grimes was dead. At that time he did not deny that he struck the old man. He kept quiet and let the constables do all the talking.

It appears that Shields rowed away in the boat after he left the house. In his drunken condition he was not capable of rowing to the boat-house, so he fell asleep and slept peacefully until daybreak, ignorant that he would be arrested for killing Grimes. He was on his way to Bastien's to return the boat when he was arrested.

The police took Shields to No. 3 police station. He was ushered into court with the other prisoners this morning, but refused to associate with them, preferring to sit alone on the second bench. He is a sharp and rather good-looking young negro, between 19 and 20 years of age. He is very black and when he huddled himself into a corner of the dock, which was rather dark, all that could be seen were his flashing eyes. He was cool and when the other cases were being tried he sat with his hands in his pockets and appeared to be interested in the proceedings. Chief McKinnon informed him that Grimes was dead, and Shields pretended that he had not heard the news until then. He told the chief that he did not strike Grimes after he threw him on the floor in the presence of Mrs. Hedges. There was a charge on the docket against Shields for assaulting Mrs. Hedges, but it was on a much more serious charge that he was remanded.

When the other cases were finished Chief McKinnon said: "There is a charge against Zachariah Shields on the docket for assaulting Mrs. Hedges. At present I want to hold him on a charge of murder."

Police Magistrate Cahill (addressing the prisoner): "Do you understand?"

Shields did not say a word.

Chief McKinnon: "There will be an inquest at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The charge that will be brought against you will depend upon the result of the inquest."

Shields was then removed to the jail, and will remain there until after the inquest.

This morning the body of the deceased was taken from Mrs. Hedges' house to the morgue at the city hospital. Until an autopsy is held it will be impossible to determine the exact cause of Grimes' death, as there are no marks of violence on the body sufficient to cause death. Shields may have strangled him when they were struggling, or it may be that the old man had heart disease and died from the excitement.

This afternoon the coroner's jury, after viewing the body, adjourned until to-morrow night at 8 o'clock.

WHAT IS GOING ON IN MONTREAL.

The New 3¼ Per Cent. Loan Floated at 83—Attempted Suicide.

MONTREAL, June 16.—The new Montreal loan has been floated in London at 83 at 3¼ per cent. The amount is $6,000,000. The loan of two years ago was effected at 93½.

R. P. Wood attempted to commit suicide to-day by swallowing a quantity of oxalic acid. He is still alive, but no hopes are entertained of his recovery. He has been drinking heavily of late.

Brady, Laird, Leslie and Ashton, the four notorious characters accused of robbing F. A. Walton, the Dallas (Tex.) embezzler, of $6000 early in the year, will be tried on the charge of conspiring to commit larceny.

FELL UNDER A STREET CAR.

A London Painter Misses His Footing and is Instantly Killed.

LONDON, Ont., June 16.—While jumping on a moving street car at the corner of Carling and Richmond-streets at 6½ to-night, a painter named E. Fielden missed his footing and fell under the car. The front wheels passed over his body, killing him instantly.

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

Leading Features of the Grain and Produce Markets at Home and Abroad.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Buffalo reports: Sales of cheese were: Cloverfield, 1925 boxes at 8⅝c; Marshfield, 1900 boxes at 8⅝c; Springville, 1160 boxes at 8⅝c. Total 4935 boxes.

Utica reports: The cheese market was very dull until just before the close, when buyers commenced bidding lively and business was brisk. Reports from New York were of an encouraging character, and apparently demand for good cheese is increasing. The ruling price is estimated at 8⅝c, an advance of ⅛c over last week. The extreme price quoted is 8⅝c. It was rumored that at least two of the leading factories obtained 8¾c. Transactions totalled 164 lots, 15,061 boxes. Transactions for same date in 1889 were 28,505, ruling price 8⅝c.

Little Falls reports: There has been a stronger market and a better feeling prevails among sellers and buyers. Transactions: 2 lots 8c, 69 lots 8½c, 18 lots 8¼c, 17 lots 8⅝c, 17 lots on commission; total 8808 boxes.

Farm dairies—Sales 1156 boxes at 8c to 8⅝c, bulk at 8½c.

Butter—25 packages of creamery butter sold at 15c, and 3 packages of dairy at 13c to 16c.

Lost His Chance.—"The man's a brute. He threatened to put a head on me." "And you let the opportunity slip! You foolish boy."—New York Sun.

An Awkward Break.—"Well, I called on Miss Bobbett last night and broke the ice." "How unfortunate when ice is so hard to replace."—New York Herald.

Needless Alarm.—Sentry—"Stop! Who goes there?" Country Woman (with a large basket)—"You needn't be afraid. I shan't hurt you."—Bilder-Kalender.

Chestnuts.—"Don't you think that Miss Debut, dancing with the colonel there, is simply cherubic." Major Portly (drily).—"Yes, in respect to costume."—Burlington Free Press.

PURELY PERSONAL.

Grace Greenwood is described as a woman with large features and very dark hair, which she combs down over her ears in an old fashioned way.

Sarah Bernhardt expects to make enough money out of her autobiography to build a little rock play house with a crypt under the stage for her remains.

Congressman Butterworth is tall and stout, with white hair and close cropped whiskers. He is a man of amiable manners, and his blue eyes shine with good humor.

Edward Bellamy, author of "Looking Backward," says that he has not made the fortune out of his book which the newspapers have credited him with making.

Miss Alice McGee has been admitted to the bar at Warren, Pa. She is only 21 years old, and passed a better examination than any of the young men who were candidates.

Princess Victoria, a sister of the young emperor of Germany, has decided to pass her life in single blessedness, and will set up an establishment of her own in London.

Prince Bismarck has decided to make Friedrichsruhe his future home in preference to his other estates, and has ordered houses to be erected near the palace for his clerks and assistants.

One of the jolliest of the members of the United States senate is Senator Wolcott, of Colorado. He is short, thick set and broad of beam. His fund of humor is well nigh inexhaustible.

Mayor Job Male, of Plainfield, N. J., who is eighty years old, has an umbrella that he has carried for thirty-five years. It has been re-covered four times, though never lost or mislaid once.

The opinion of the general public, as opposed to the few critics of W. D. Howell's works, is shown by the enormous sales of his books. His income is said to be very nearly $25,000 a year.

Zola is one of the most extravagant of men, and notwithstanding his princely income he is comparatively poor. The greater part of his fortune has been spent on his estate in Meudon, with its castle, park and pavilions.

Speaker Reed wears a black derby hat and in cold weather a thin overcoat. He is described as "lumbering along like an old sailor, arms swinging at his side, and his legs slightly bowed." He has a reddish mustache, so small that it is invisible at a short distance.

Emperor William has some respect for America. For the occasion of the entry of the American riflemen into Berlin he gave orders that the Stars and Stripes should be saluted with 101 guns when the palace was reached, and that a company of the Imperial Guards should form an escort of honor to the flag.

The Emperor Napoleon very rarely wrote a letter by his own hand, and those few which do exist are mostly in Italian. He usually dictated to a secretary at such a rapid rate that the amanuensis had to fill up gaps from memory, and it is a funny fact that most of his love letters to Josephine were thus dictated.

The number of farewell dinners given to Toole, the very popular English comedian, in London, was remarkable. The actresses, being denied admission to the dinner given him by his professional brothers, organized one for themselves, and carried it out with great magnificence, Mr. Toole being the only man present. Ellen Terry presided.

Hall Caine, who wrote "The Deemster," the book from which the play "Ben-my-Chree" was dramatized, is a young man who lives in a pleasant cottage near Bexley in Kent, England; the house is full of Rossetti relics; the most interesting of the novelist's possessions is a curious old lantern which was carried by Eugene Aram on the fatal night.

The New York Mercury to Be Seized When and Where Found in Canada.

OTTAWA, June 16.—The seizure of The New York Mercury on Saturday was the result of an order issued from the Customs Department reading: "Seize when and where found in Canada." The paper arrived in Ottawa early on Friday afternoon before the order had been certified. As a consequence the paper was distributed throughout the city, but in the future the paper will not be allowed to enter the Customs at any point in Canada.

The Halifax-Bermuda Cable.

HALIFAX, June 16.—The steamer Westmeath, which is to lay the cable between Halifax and Bermuda, arrived here this morning from the latter place. The bottom along the route which the cable is to be laid was sounded and found very smooth and even. The steamer will commence laying in a week's time and it is expected the cable will be in working order by July 1.

CHEAP, COOL COMFORT!

Summer Bulletin.

WE DEFY OLD SOL TO DO HIS HOTTEST.

The elections are over. Now for business. We've did a rousing trade during May, and swept competition to the wall. Our gigantic stock, marvellous buying, splendid selling and unparalelled value has carried our constituency. GOUGH BROS. are the representatives of the biggest, the best, the peoples Clothing Emporium.

Hot weather is coming as sure as fate, rent or taxes. Then be prepared. Shed your winter clothes and don a summer suit. Select one from our special line of BRITISH COLUMBIA STOCK, bought at a big sacrifice and selling at prices that knock competition into smithereens.

WORKERS AND THINKERS

Look, Read and Ponder Well.

The desire of all buyers of Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, is to procure Goods of the best quality, providing the price suits the pocket. Gough Bros. has made this possible to persons of the most limited means. Energy and enterprise has been the motive spirit of our business—with this spirit we have defied hard times—thus inspired, we have inaugurated and enlarged and extended our trade until it has outgrown our widest expectations.

We again promise you more and better value for your money than you have ever yet had. Our stock has been well and cheaply bought expressly for our own trade, and those who have visited us during the last two months will admit that we have fully redeemed the pledge when promising the Cheapest Goods ever sold in the town of Peterborough.

Our Stock is fully assorted, and we have not confined the bargains to a few leading lines, relying on the rest to reimburse the loss, but have everything proportionately low. In a word we are determined to surpass every former effort, and make the Gough Bros. Bargains instruments of pleasure.

In Boots and Shoes we lead the Country. In Hats and Caps we beat all Competition.

Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Collection will be taken at the close.

Complimentary Excursion.

Commodore Calcutt has invited the members of the County Council, the Town Council and the Board of Trade to go upon an excursion to Rice Lake on Thursday, June 19th. The Golden Eye leaves the wharf at 8 a m. It is needless to say that the Commodore,s kindness will be thoroughly appreciated and taken advantage of. On this trip the members of the County Council and of the town corporations will have a grand opportunity of seeing the point where a bridge might be built, or a ferry established, at Ross's to the benefit of many parties interested. This would also afford an opportunity for conversing on the matter.

Going to England.

The celebration of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Salvation Army takes place in the Crystal Palace, London, Eng., early in August. The Salvationists of Canada will be well represented. The following will sail for the old land on July 26: Commissioner Adams; Major Spooner, of Peterborough; Major Margetts, Toronto; Major Baugh, Kingston; Major Philpott, London; Staff-Capt. McIntyre, Chatham; Staff-Capt. Sharp, Woodstock; Staff-Capt. Bolton, Halifax; Staff-Capt. Marshall, Toronto, formerly of Peterborough; Staff-Capt. Simcoe, Halifax; Major Calhoun, Newfoundland; Staff-Capt. Plant, Toronto; Staff-Capt. Walton, Toronto; Staff-Capt. Sweetman, Toronto; Ensigns Wiggins and Archibald, Toronto. The tailoring department of the army, which is under the management of Staff-Capt. Walton, is hard at work making new uniforms for these officers and they will present a very creditable appearance among the soldiers of Great Britain. The anniversary celebration is an international affair and promises to be a very interesting event. The Canadian delegates intend visiting and addressing meetings in Scotland and Ireland before returning.

THE LAKES AND THE FISHES.

The Fishing Season Opened at the Lakes—Everything Looking Well.

The fishing parties that went up to Stony Lake to open the fishing season yesterday returned here this morning and report a most enjoyable outing. Fortune favored the majority of the anglers and as a result several fine 'lunge were brought back. Among those who were up for the day were Messrs. Ben. Shortly, Wm. Lech, Jno. McClelland, Jos. McClelland, G. Lech, D. Breese, Geo. Scofield, C. H. Allison and J. G. Hall. The fishing is reported good, although the water is said to be pretty high. Bass were caught in abundance, while the maskinonge were biting freely. Messrs. Jos. and John McClelland pulled in two very fine 'lunge, and the Messrs. Lech succeeded in landing three smaller ones. Messrs. Shortly and Allison are jubilant over two ten-pounders which they enticed from their watery retreats. On the whole luck was with the fishermen and the outing was greatly enjoyed. A party of three, consisting of Rev. Mr. Parker, and Messrs. T. Fitzgerald and H. Winch, went to Youngs' Point yesterday and are credited with a catch of 32 fine bass.

At the lakes everything is said to be in its prime beauty. The cottages are beginning to be occupied, there being quite a number of Americans already at their summer retreats. Several new houses are being erected, among these being one for Mr. D. Moore, another for Mr. Bennett, of Monaghan, and another for Mr. Best. The Americans are erecting a large lodge near Boschink. It is a large building and will probably be the scene of many a happy gathering. The fever for the lakes is now setting in and before many days the town will begin to unload itself on the islands of Stony Lake. The mosquitoes are reported to be very healthy just at present, and are conducting a very effective warfare on the fisherman.

Fish stories are numerous and will continue to increase in number as the season progresses. One of the fishermen had a catch of bass nicely stored away for safekeeping, but upon visiting his spoil in the morning, the beauties were gone and no one knew where. A mink had visited the scene and appropriated the whole catch. There was sorrow, well tempered with indignation.

Off For the Day.

The Oddfellows picnic left on a special train for Jacob's Island at 8.30 this morning. There was a large crowd on board, five coaches being crowded. From the evident preparations that had been made for a good time and the happy feeling that was manifested, it is safe to say, that the excursionists will have a big day at the island.

Approaching Examinations.

The number of candidates who will write for certificates in Peterborough at the approaching July examinations is 57. Of these 36 have been in attendance at the Collegiate Institute. The number recommended for the examinations by the master of the Institute is 19. The terminal examinations in the First and Second Forms of the Collegiate Institute begin on Monday.

Getting Their Reward.

The gang of five burglars who were arrested at Cardinal, near Brockville, and upon whom was found a large quantity of the jewellery that was stolen from Paterson's store at Lakefield, came up before Judge McDonald at Brockville on Saturday. They all pleaded guilty and Thomas Connors, Geo. Woods, John Colter and Dan Warner each got six years in the penitentiary, and Wm. Young five years and six months. They may also have to face a charge here before this sentence has been served.

No Public Nuisance Countenanced.

Con. Ryan and F. Dessautelle were before the Magistrate this morning charged with dumping night soil into Spaulding's bay. The offence was alleged to have been committed on Monday night, 9th inst. Both the men pleaded not guilty to the charge, but witnesses were called which established the charge. Ryan went into the box for the defence and, while he admitted that he and Dessautelle were at the bay on the night in question, yet he said they dumped their loads on Mr. Beavis' lot with that gentleman's permission. The Magistrate in giving judgment said it did not make any difference whether they got permission to dump the filth on a person's lot or not, they had no right to make a public nuisance which endangered the health of the people. He referred to the danger of spreading the gems of an epidemic by this careless disposal of dirt and told the men they were guilty of a criminal offence. He intended to stop such work and fined them $10 and costs ($4.70). He also remarked that if the Town Council did its duty they would appoint a public scavenger who would be responsible for all this work.

Giants Among Canoes.

To those who are accustomed to the graceful lines and shapely model of the well-known Canadian canoes such as are turned out of the Ontario Canoe Co.'s factory in Ashburnham, there is something irresistably ludricuous in the appearance of a craft of the canoe genus, just completed in the company's shops. It isn't that the boat is not a comely and ship shape thing, but it is so broad and plump, and so deep and a general air of corpulence over all, that one laughs at the look of the queer craft. For the purpose intended it is the proper thing, and presently the Inspector for the Hudson's Bay Company will take the boat and set out on a long journey of nearly 5,000 miles, visiting the posts and agencies of the company and finishing his trip just about where the territory of the Dominion chops off and becomes Alaska. The boat was built to order and the dimensions are: length 29 ft. beam 4 ft. 6 in., depth 3 ft. Four paddlers will propel it, helped by a pair of oars and sail. The centre of the boat is fitted with a comfortable easy seat and covered by a canopy. It is said, that the route gone over includes many portages, some of them five miles and over in length. The boat will be shipped to Winnipeg along with three others of nearly the same dimensions and which will be used in carrying stores and furs. Nearly completed in the shops is a big war canoe for the Valois Canoe Club, of Montreal. The big canoe is 30 ft. long and of ample breath, while the bow and stern are turned up in a fashion that gives a true nautical style to the craft. The big canoes will be on exhibition at the shops for a few days.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL

THE MIDSUMMER MEETING OF THE COUNTY LEGISLATORS.

The Address of the Warden on the Opening of the Council—Referred to a Special Committee.

The County Council opened in the County Council Chamber at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Mr. Casement, Reeve of Lakefield, the Warden, in the chair.

The members present, in addition to the Warden, were:—Messrs. Moore, Fitzpatrick, Brown, Wright, Elmhirst, Kidd, Crowe, Moloney, Moher, O'Connor, Forster, Stewart, Anderson, Sanderson, Middleton, Burnham, Pearce, Wilson and Shaw.

THE WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

The WARDEN addressed the Council as follows:—

GENTLEMEN,—In meeting you at this session I am glad to be able to congratulate you on the favorable circumstances under which we meet and of the bright prospects of a bountiful harvest.

During the recess I have had some verbal communication with the Warden of the County of Victoria, when he requested that I should call the Road and Bridge Committee together to discuss boundry buildings generally with a special committee from the Council of the County of Victoria. This I did not deem advisable to do, for the reason that this Council at the January, 1889, session decided (clause 8 R. & B. com. rep.) "That until the Council of the County of Victoria offer to pay one half the whole cost of the necessary repairs to the Pigeon creek bridge, and undertake the future maintenance thereof, this Council would take no action."

Since last session the new iron and steel bridge at Burleigh has been completed and now but awaits the construction of the approaches to make it one of the finest bridges in the county. Repairs of a small character have been made to other bridges which will be fully brought to your notice in the County Engineer's report.

Considerable inconvenience has at times arisen from the want of sufficient accommodation for the use of the several courts, and parties attending the same, especially so when the time for holding any of the superior courts happened at the same time as the Division Courts were held. Your committee appointed to consider the matter and to make necessary improvements have completed their work. Proper accommodation for the holding of the Division Court in the Council Chamber has now been provided, so that in the future court may be held in the Council Chamber instead of the Court room, and in this way a great economy in the matter of fuel will be effected. I am sure that you will agree with me that the improvements will add to your comfort and convenience in the discharge of your duties to the county as well as those having business at the courts.

The insurance on the Court house and additions expired last month. I instructed the Treasurer to renew the same, the amount on the Court house and additions being $18,500 and on fixtures $2,500. In view of the recent additions it will be your duty to consider whether this amount is sufficient.

The debentures issued under by-law No. 365 for $10,000 mature this month. In consequence it may be necessary to increase the borrowing powers given to the Warden and Treasurer under the by-law.

The county valuators appointed at the June session of last year have completed the work of valuing the county. I need scarcely add that the work has been well and carefully done. Their report will be laid before you.

Among the important business that will be laid before you for consideration will be the estimates, and to decide upon the amount to be raised for the current year's expenditure.

Other matters will come before you and I am sure they will receive the consideration their nature and importance require.

A SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

Mr. PEARSE moved, seconded by Mr. BURNHAM,—That Messrs. Sanderson, Moloney, Kidd, Stewart, Brown, Burnham and the mover be a committee on the Warden's address.—Carried.

AN INVITATION.

A communication was read from Mr. H. Calcutt inviting the Council to take a trip on the Golden Eye to Rice Lake on Thursday.

An expression of opinion showed that the members, if they could find time, would rather visit the new Burleigh bridge or the ferry at Gannon's Narrows.

On motion of Mr. BURNHAM, seconded by Mr. KIDD, a resolution was adopted thanking Mr. Calcutt for his kind invitation, but declining to accept it.

The Council adjourned until ten o'clock on Wednesday morning.

Are your made miserable by Indigestion, Consumption, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Yellow skin? Shiloh's Vitalizer is a positive cure. For Sale by Geo. A. Schofield, Druggist, Peterborough.

AN ODE OF THANKS.

Respectfully addressed to Mr. John Elder, of San Francisco, for sending to me a beautiful white silk pocket handkerchief, as a memento of old friendship:—

John, you must think I have grown young again,
With raven locks, red cheeks, conceited, vain,
Sly, amourous, loving, with a winning art,
To captivate some lovely girl's heart,
In youthful style, in shining broadcloth dressed,
With the white corner hanging from the breast,
With her out walking, or sit in the room,
To take her young fancy, touched it with perfume;
Thoughts of such pleasures must have prompted thee
To send this white silk handkerchief to me.
If you had known the strife it would create
You would have thrown it in your parlor grate.
Don't be surprised when I the cause explain,
Jealousy, my friend, has turned my good wife's brain;
I can't persuade her on my bended knees
But the young girls will smarm 'round me like bees
If I display it out of doors. Oh, dear!
To San Francisco you her voice may hear;
Or if a girl at it does give a glance
Her hand and temper rises both at once;
She stamps and scolds, she holds it up to view,
I have to watch, or she would paint me blue,
And if I use it—makes her ten times worse,
She threatens me with sueing for a divorce!

In one short week, how marvelous is the change,
Peace, joy, delight reigns tranquil and serene;
In my breast pocket she does it arrange
So that its beauty may be plainly seen,
She folds it nicely, sprinkles it with scent,
With smiling face she geers me with her chat,
Saying, "Now you look as stylish as a gent,
But for your life don't blow your nose on that.
Here is another you must not expose,
But when the drops rise and begins to flow,
Use always this one, when you wipe your nose,
And keep John Elder's hanging for a show."

Well you deserve my highest theme of praise,
Accept my thanks; as I your present view
It cheers me, in the evening of my days,
To know I have an old-tried friend like you.
My friend, I prize it as a gem of gold,
'Tis not its value makes me hold it dear,
But every time as I its crimps unfold
Reveals your love, reflects your image clear.
I will preserve its shining beauty bright
Until Scots meet for social mirth and glee,
And I will show them on St. Andrew's night
The handsome present which you sent to me.

PUBLIC PARKS.

Suggestions re Mrs. Nicholls' Bequest—A Large Park and Small Ones.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—The magnificent bequest of the late Mrs. Nicholls for the purchase of parks for the town is eliciting much interest in the citizens as to the parks. Where are they to be? How many, how large?

Many suggestions are being made, but at this early day it is impossible to surmise what action will be taken by the trustees appointed to deal with the matter. Some say, let us have a grand park, large, picturesque and beautifully situated; a park which in a hundred years from now will be a glorious heritage of the people of the then noble city of Peterborough, with probably two hundred thousand inhabitants. By that time every horse-power on the Otonabee will be utilized; electric cars will be running on both sides of the river to Lakefield, which will then be the north ward of the city. Such a park may be had within one and a half or two miles of the heart of the city. That now appears a great distance, but then it will be right in the city. Yes, by all means let us have a grand park, which, planted now, in fifty or one hundred years hence, will be the pride of the people.

But, you ask, where can such a park be had? Anywhere—north, south, east or west. What do you think of the Dixon property on the bluff across the river, with the Burnham property (now occupied by Curtis), and the Ludgate property, and 100 acres of the Armour hill farm? How does that strike you? Wouldn't Armour's hill, feathered to the top with fine trees be a grand background for the city? Burnham's point is mentioned. Yes, it is a very pretty little lot of ground. What a pity Mr. Burnham had not planted it 20 years ago. If planted it would have sold itself. At present it is rather desolate, but it is capable of being made a pretty place. Then again the property owned by James W. Fitzgerald, with Block B and part of Mrs. Margaret Dixon's farm extending back to Barnardo Avenue, would make a charming park. Or the James Campbell farm with Mr. Cox's land on the west end—this is a splendid property and would make a good park. The present fair ground, too, is mentioned. It is not a very romantic place but might be useful for horse trotting. No, there is not any difficulty in securing plenty of land suitable for parks, but there can be only one grand one.

The entire 200 acres, composing the Armour farm, could be got for $30,000. A few years ago the Parnell farm was sold at $100 an acre. This was a fine property and should have been secured before it was cut up into small lots. This fact is evident—a big park within a reasonable distance can be secured now for a reasonable sum. Every year removes the chances—put the available land further away and to a higher figure. And so we say, "What thou doest, do quickly." But many say, let us have a number of small parks close at hand, where women, children, nurse girls and infirm people may stray and loiter and take in the rest, the beauty and the fresh air. All right the suggestion is good. A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush. So we think a number of little parks close at hand are better than one great park far away. But can't we have both? Small ones for every day and for all—a large one which in time will become a two hundred acre forest. What is a mile or two? The street cars will land us there in a few minutes. Why, High Park is seven miles from the centre of Toronto. We can have two hundred acres the farthest point of which would not be a mile from the town limit. Mrs. Dixon's quarry lot and the adjoining Chamberlain farm could probably be bought for $100 an acre all round. There is a splendid wood on the Chamberlain farm. Unfortunately Mrs. Dixon cut all her hardwood off, but there is a babbling brook and some pines.

We have no doubt but the trustees will carefully consider this matter and devise a scheme which long after they are gone will be told of them to their credit.

Yours, &c.,

A NERVOUS PASSENGER.

Nearly Lost His Life Getting Used to the Railroad.

The backwood sections of the country contain many people who never saw a railroad track, never heard the piercing shriek of the locomotive whistle, and never travelled faster than a few miles an hour. To these the first railroad journey is an experience never to be forgotten.

A conductor on the C. P. R. tells this interesting story. When the train stopped at one of the stations an old man got on His actions showed that he knew nothing about railroad travelling. The starting of the train frightened him so that his hair fairly stood on end. When the whistle blew his cheeks turned pale, and any sudden noise seemed to shrink him up with fear.

His ignorance and nervousness nearly cost him his life, for when the name of the station where he wanted to stop was called out, he rushed to the door and would have jumped from the moving train had not the brakeman held him back. It is odd how this old man's actions remind one of certain people prominent in the business and social life of this city. They are so terribly nervous that the slightest noise frightens them. They have frightful fears of future evil. They are not used to this and do not understand it, and unless some kind hand leads them to safety, the result will be loss of health or reason.

Let a friendly word guide you, if your nerves are weak, to the use of Paine's Celery Compound. This is the friend that will save you from illness; it will give you balmy sleep, good digestion, rich blood, elastic step, and cheerfulness. Fair skin, rosy cheeks, and buoyant spirits will return. At this season of the year its special invigorating powers are needed by almost every one. It will put you in such vigorous health that spring disease which is so alarmingly prevalent, will not affect you.

It is strange how little a thing will change the whole course of a person's life.

Let us hope that this article, which shows how terrible results may be surely averted, will lead you to treat aright the first symptoms of nervousness, and thus prevent its fearful outcome.

Strawberries are now grown that are surprisingly large. Mr. W. Elvins, a fruit grower of Hammonton, N.J., picked one that measured eight inches in circumference, the berry being somewhat flat. A box, taken from a row, allowed only thirty berries to fill it. This is due to selection of an excellent variety and the liberal use of fertilizers, with the bestowal of good cultivation. The market is never overstocked with berries of that kind. Intelligent management gives success.

It is more laborious to cut up the stalks and straw intended for the manure heaps than to throw them in the barnyard. But the labor bestowed in that manner will be more than compensated for by the thorough decomposition of the matter in the manure heap, and the greater facility with which the contents of the heap may be handled when the period arrives for handling and spreading the manure on the land. When farmers make it a point to have all manure in the finest possible condition they will save labor and secure larger crops.

W. F. Massey gives his experience in the use of nitrate of soda on strawberries as follows: "In the spring of 1889 I top-dressed an old bed in its fifth year of cropping with 300 pounds per acre. I had intended to plow it up the previous summer, but other matters prevented; and the bed was in an exhausted condition and rather foul with clover and sorrel. The effect was amazing, for this bed for an acre and a quarter, from which I expected hardly anything, gave me 7000 quarts of berries. Variety, Crescent with fertilizing rows of Wilson, Sharpless and others. The crop was nearly as large as the best the plot had ever made. This was on moist bottom land naturally fertile."

FOR THE BOYS IN RED.

The Soldiers of the 57th to be Placed on Their Mettle.

As the meeting of the 57th Battalion with the crack corps of the Province, under the critical eyes of the thousands of people who will be in Toronto on the 1st of July, will be a test beyond anything that our men have yet gone through, it is very important that they should improve to the utmost the short time yet at their disposal. At next Tuesday evening's drill it is proposed to make, as far as possible, a thorough trial of the fitness of the Battalion to stand this ordeal, and at the same to have a little friendly competition between the several companies. For this purpose one or two of the officers, with the Colonel, will carefully watch how each company performs each movement, whether on the street or in the field, taking note of all errors made and giving points according to the degree or precision shown by each company. Points will also be given for attendance—the absence of a non-commissioned officer counting heavily against his company—and for soldierly deportment, any talking in the ranks, or looking about while at attention, or other objectionable habits being particularly put down. On returning to the drill shed the Colonel will carefully inspect each company, in accordance with the order already issued, and will expect to see every man's arms and accoutrements perfectly clean, leggings properly on, everything in fact in applepie order. Points will be given for this as well. The result will then be declared, showing which Company gains the greatest number of points, and the relative standing of each of the others and the different movements will be criticised, errors pointed out, &c. Each member of the different companies will therefore see how important it is that he should be on hand with everything neat and clean, and that from the moment of coming on parade to the dismissal of the Battalion, he should do everything in his power to prevent any points being counted against his company.

In order to have as much as possible the advantage of daylight, every man should be on hand at 7.30 sharp when the companies will fall in. A quarter of an hour will be allowed for the usual roll call, proving and inspecting companies, &c., and the battalion should be ready to move out at a quarter to 8. In case of rainy weather two or three companies at a time will go through the battalion movements as far as possible. The drill will be short and sharp and the battalion will return to the drill shed at 9.

The Treatment of Persons Overcome With Gas—Coloured Photographs—New Mechanical Inventions—Electricity as a Safe Illuminant—Stilts With Wheels—To Clean Sponges.

In regard to the treatment of persons overcome with gas several suggestions were made by different speakers at the recent meeting of the American Gaslight Association at Toronto. The most practical were those quoted on the authority of a prominent physician:

1. Take the man at once into the fresh air. Don't crowd around him.

2. Keep him on his back. Don't raise his head or turn him on his side.

3. Loosen his clothing at his neck.

4. Give a little brandy and water, not more than four tablespoonful of brandy. Give the ammonia mixture (one part in all aromatic ammonia to sixteen parts water) in small quantities at short intervals, a teaspoonful every two or three minutes.

5. Slap the face and chest with the wet end of a towel.

6. Apply warmth and friction if the body or limbs are cold.

7. If the breathing is feeble or irregular artificial respiration should be used, and kept up until there is no doubt that it can no longer be of use.

8. Administer oxygen.

CHEAPENING OCEAN FREIGHTS.

It has been computed, as an illustration of the great cheapening of ocean freights which has taken place in recent years, that half a sheet of note paper will develop sufficient power, when burned in connection with the triple expansion engine, to carry a ton a mile in an Atlantic steamer.

A SIMPLE STORAGE BATTERY.

The following directions for making a simple storage battery are due to the Journal of the Telegraph. Get two half-round porous cups and a round glass jar large enough for the two porous cups to stand in upright. Get two plates of sheet lead one-sixteenth of an inch thick, wide enough to fit the half-round side of the porous cups and deep enough to come an inch or so above the top edge of the cups and jar. Solder a stout copper wire or a screw post to each lead plate at the top. Place the lead plates in the cups, and fill the cups nearly full with a paste made of red lead mixed with a solution of sulphate of soda thin enough to run like a cement. The glass jar containing the two cups should be filled to within half an inch of top of the cups with sulphuric acid and water—about one part of acid to eight of water. The plates should be marked, so that, in charging, the currents may be sent in the right direction. The cell may be charged by attaching it to a series of a dozen sulphate of copper cells for twenty-four hours, or from a dynamo. A wooden cover may be fitted to the glass jar, and evaporation of the fluid should be replenished by adding water. Two or more cells of this battery will work small motors, lamps and induction coils, and if thoroughly charged will retain a large volume of electricity for a considerable time. After being once well charged, four to six cells of sulphate of copper battery will recharge it.

STILTS WITH WHEELS.

An Englishman has invented what he claims is a practical application of the idea of stilts with wheels. The wheels are fastened to the feet, as stilts are, and each acts as a sort of independent bicycle. They go very fast when one has learned to walk on them.

NATURAL COLORS IN A PHOTOGRAPH.

An English photographer claims to have obtained a photograph in which the natural colors were reproduced when the exposure was made, by accident, just at the moment when there came a blinding flash of lightning. He says that a friend of his once got a colored plate under similar circumstances, and believes that electricity has to do with photographing colors.

TO CLEANSE A SPONGE.

When a sponge has become slippery and disagreeable to the touch the following simple method will be found very efficacious in cleansing it: Put a piece of common soda, about the size of an egg, into a quart of boiling water; allow it to stand until just brisk warm, by which time the soda will be entirely dissolved, then put in the sponge; let it remain for half an hour, then squeeze it thoroughly, extracting as much of the slimy substance as possible. Repeat the process, using clean water prepared as above until the sponge feels soft and pleasant to the touch.

A NEW MECHANICAL MANURE.

M. Ville, a professor of chemistry in Paris, states that he has discovered a new chemical manure—intense and almost miraculous in its effects on the vine. It consists of a mixture of phosphate of lime, carbonate of potash and sulphate of lime, which, if placed around vine-growths, will enable them to defy the onslaughts of the phylloxera.

A MUSICAL GAS MACHINE.

A musical gas machine, called the pyrophone, had been brought out in England. Its compass is three octaves, and it has a keyboard and is played in the same manner as an organ. It has thirty-seven glass tubes, in which a like set of gas jets burn. These jets, placed in a circle, contract and expand. When the small burners separate the sound is produced, when they close together the sound ceases. The tone depends on the number of burners and the size of the tubes in which they burn, so that by a careful arrangement and selection all the notes of the musical scale may be produced in several octaves. Some of the glass tubes in which the jets burn are nearly eleven feet long.

NO PATENT COWCATCHER.

It is said that the common cowcatcher attachments to locomotives is about the only article of universal use that has never been patented. Its inventor was D. B. Davies, of Columbus, who found his model in the plow. Red lights on the rear of trains, it is further said, were adopted at the suggestion of the late Mrs. Swisshelm, after a railway accident in which she had a narrow escape.

ELECTRICITY AS A SAFE ILLUMINANT.

It would be impossible to conceive of better testimony to the pre-eminence of electricity as a safe illuminant than is furnished by the experience of the Boston Manufacturers' Mutual Insurance Company, says the Roller Mill. A circular recently issued by Edward Atkinson, President, states that since April, 1882, a period of eight years, the company has received no notice of any fire in any of its risks that could be attributed to electricity. Previous to 1882 the company received notice of twenty-three fires of electrical origin among the sixty-one mills which had then been lighted by electricity, and investigation disclosed conditions directly due to poor material, want of proper insulation and faulty installation. With the framing and enforcing of strict rules for the construction and putting up of electrical apparatus these fires ceased. Electricity is now used for illuminating or as a motive power in over 600 risks which are carried by the factory mutual companies.

It is clearly shown by these facts, first, that electricity improperly applied may be quite as dangerous as any other agency for furnishing light or power; and, second, that electricity properly applied is so safe and controllable as to be an ideal servant of man. We, therefore, urge upon millers, continues our contemporary, the necessity of exercising great care, not only in the selection, but also in the installation of their electrical equipments. The rapid extension of electric lighting has drawn into the field many self-styled electrical engineers, who, by cheap apparatus and slip-shod work, are able to put in plants at lower cost than would be possible for any reputable electricians. These cheap engineers will ultimately prove dear, at any price, for their work will be imperfect, short-lived and unsafe. Having decided upon lighting his mill by electricity the miller should contract with some house or party of known experience and unquestionable integrity. Such a course will cost more at the outset, but in the long run it will be found to be the most economical.

TIME AND CAPITAL IN A SILK DRESS.

The Chicago Times says that to produce sufficient silk to make a dress requires more time and capital than most people would imagine. If we take one and a quarter pounds as the weight of pure silk required, this would be equal to two pounds of raw silk. To produce two pounds of raw silk would require the entire silk obtained from 7000 to 8000 worms, allowing a percentage for death by disease and other casualties. It may be interesting to state that these young worms when newly hatched would scarcely weigh one-quarter of an ounce; yet, in the course of their life, which only lasts thirty to thirty-five days, they will consume about 300 to 400 pounds of leaves, and increase in weight about 900 times. Consumers of silk will not wonder at its high value when they consider that to raise two pounds of raw silk so much time and money are required. Besides the original cost of the eggs or young worms they require feeding at regular intervals daily with mulberry leaves, and consume the above weight of leaves during their lives. This is a large item of expense if the cultivator does not grow and gather his own leaves, but is compelled to purchase them.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Reliable Receipts For Making Dainty Dishes.

STRAWBERRIES.—When served as a first course at breakfast is better to have them unhulled, and to eat with the fingers, dipping each berry into powdered sugar.

Cold boiled salsify, celeriac, Jerusalem artichokes and cauliflower and preserved artichoke bottoms all make delicious salads, and may all be served with or without beet-root and hard boiled eggs. Beet-root and raw celery, beet-root and boiled and sliced Spanish onion, carefully boiled small dried white haricot beans, lentils, Brussels sprouts, etc., are also excellent in salads.—London Queen.

LOG CABIN CAKE.—Beat one rounding tablespoonful of butter, a half-pint of sugar and the yolks of two eggs together until light, then add a half-cup of milk, and one and a half cups of sifted flour lightly measured. Beat well and then stir in a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder and the well-beaten whites of the two eggs. Flavor with lemon or vanilla, and bake in a moderate oven about thirty minutes.—Table Talk.

FOR A GOOD CHICKEN CURRY cut up a pair of tender spring chickens into two inch squares. Parboil them twenty minutes in just enough water to cover them. Take up the pieces of chicken, drain them, and dredge them with flour and lay them aside. Fry an onion and one clove of garlic in four tablespoonfuls of butter, remove them and fry the chicken in it. Skim the parboil-water, and strain it through a fine strainer in which half a cocoanut has been grated. Add this liquor to the chicken and one tablespoonful of the best curry powder. Stew the curry gently for half an hour, and add a tablespoonful of fine cocoanut and serve hot. Sweet mango is the East India chutney most frequently served with a curry in England.—New York Tribune.

FRUIT PUNCH.—Put two tablespoonfuls of dry gelatine into a cup and cover it with four tablespoonfuls of cold water, and stand it aside for a half-hour. Put one pound and a quarter of granulated sugar in one quart of water; add the grated yellow rind of one orange, and boil five minutes. Add the gelatine; strain; add a half-pint of strawberry juice, the juice of two lemons and one orange stand aside to cool. When cold turn into a freezer and freeze. Do not stir rapidly, but slowly and steadily, until the mixture is frozen. Serve in punch glasses. Later in the season grape juice, raspberry juice or currant juice can be substituted for the strawberry. A mixture of lemon, orange and pineapple juices also makes a delightful punch.—Table Talk.

For tomato salads the fruit is used raw. The ripe, round, smooth, rosy-red tomatoes should be chosen, and a pretty effect may be gained by having a centre of the golden colored fruit. The tomatoes should be cut into slices half an inch thick, then freed from the seeds and juice, which should be mixed in with the dressing, for which I have already given the recipe, with the addition of a teaspoonful of fresh lemon thyme, chopped very fine, another of chopped capers, and a fairly liberal addition of powdered sugar. Tomato salad is the only one beside the fruit salads of melon orange, etc., which needs the addition of more than a pinch of sugar; but it is wonderful how lavish a spoonful it will stand. The addition of claret is important, and so is the thorough rubbing with garlic of the dish in which it is mixed; but the great point is to prepare the salad some hours before it is needed, so that the flavors may be thoroughly amalgamated. It looks much better served in a soup plate or shallow glass dish than in a bowl.

Those who know say that the famous East Indian soup, Mulligatawny, is better made with a rabbit than with anything else, but it is more frequently made with a firm and plump fowl. Begin by slicing up six small onions; fry them brown in butter. Cut up the lean and fat parts of two small slices of ham, fry it out in the soup pot and add the fowl or rabbit; cut in pieces and let the meat brown in the pot with the ham till it is slightly colored. Add the fried onions and a clove of garlic, and finally two quarts of rich brown stock. Simmer the whole till the meat is tender. Rub two tablespoonfuls of English curry powder to a paste with a little stock, and add it to the soup, with an ounce of almonds, powdered to a paste, and a little grated cocoanut if you wish. Strain the soup. Take up the pieces of meat, turn them into shape, and put them back into the tureen. Squeeze over the soup a few drops of lemon juice and serve as hot as possible. It should always be accompanied by a dish of boiled rice. English housekeepers serve an East India mango pickle with this soup.—New York Tribune.

They Know What It Is

Few tears of sympathy will be shed over the disaster to a private railroad car in Kentucky. It was filled with railroad officials, and it is a good thing to give them a dose of their own medicine once in a while. If a car containing three or four railroad officials was run on every train, accidents would decrease 50 per cent in a month.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in packets, by grocers, labelled thus:

Dry Goods News at
TURNBULL'S

Another week has brought us many bargains. The first one we will mention is in the Dress Goods Department. We have opened out new Silk-warp Henriettas in black and colors at 60c. and 75c. a yard. Never mind how or where we got them. Those who want fine silk-warp henriettas for the price of wool materials will now know where to go.

We are showing three special lines in Union Carpets at 40, 50 and 60c. a yard. Remember where you have heard of cheap carpets.

Those who have bought the 5½ and 7½ Check Chambrays have found out that what we said about them was true—that they wash beautifully—and they are now coming back for quantities. Remember these goods are selling at just half their value.

The Silk Taffeta and Lace Gloves we are selling at 25c. a pair are startlers.

Mothers, you should see our Heavy Ribbed Cotton Hose for boys. They will recommend themselves to your judgment for durability.

Ladies, do not buy black hose that stain when you can get perfectly stainless ones at Turnbull's.

The rush is on us now in our Tailoring Department and no wonder. Our stock of Tweeds and Worsteds are very choice. We propose and are repeatedly told that we do sell clothing made to order cheaper than any other house in Peterborough.

Our Millinery stock is constantly changing hands. If you have seen our stock of hats last week do not expect to find it the same this week, as we are always receiving new and desirable shapes and trimmings. As the season advances prices always decline in the wholesale millinery stocks, so look out for bargains at Turnbull's Millinery for the balance of the season.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

MARRIAGE WITH A DECEASED WIFE'S SISTER.

A Breezy Discussion—Foreign Missions Funds to be Looked After by a Paid Agent—The Brantford Ladies' College—Delegates From Other Churches.

OTTAWA, June 18.—Yesterday forenoon the Presbyterian General Assembly was unexpectedly drawn into a discussion on the subject of marriage with the sister of a deceased wife. A committee appointed by the Assembly to examine and report upon an application of a Mr. Charbonnell to be received into the Presbytery was brought before the House. Mr. Charbonnell is an aged man married to the sister of his deceased wife, and in this way the name and reference paved the way for the discussion of the other subject.

One contention was that the action of the last Assembly had laid the subject to rest for all time. Another contention was that no such final conclusion was arrived at. After a prolonged and at times breezy discussion the matter in hand was remitted to the committee, in order that after further examination they may come before the Assembly with a finding more definitely worded than was that brought in yesterday morning.

The Assembly also had a lively discussion upon the proposal from the Foreign Mission Committee to appoint a paid agent to devote his whole time to the work of the Foreign Missions of the Canadian Church. One motion proposed was that the Foreign Missions Committee should prepare a careful statement of the reasons for such an appointment as that proposed and send this statement down for consideration to presbyteries to report upon to next Assembly. This, however, was defeated by a vote of 70 to 96, and the proposal for the appointment of the new official was endorsed. The committee are to correspond with a view to the choice of a person for the new office as soon as possible.

The condition and prospects of the Brantford Ladies' College were reported to the assembly by Dr. Cochrane, governor of the institution. This institution is one of the most prosperous of the ladies' colleges in the Dominion of Canada. Increasing attractions to this institution for the daughters of Presbyterian parents are presented this year.

A delightful hour of the day's proceedings was given to the reception of the delegates from other churches; Rev. Mr. Greenfield from Stornaway, representing the Free Church of Scotland, Rev. Dr. Walters from the Reformed Church of the United States, Dr. Talbot T. Chambers of New York, a member of the executive, and Rev. Dr. Matthews of London, Eng., general secretary of the Pan-Presbyterian Council. These four delegates were heard as they conveyed fraternal greetings from the various churches and organizations they represent to the Presbyterian Church in Canada. These greetings were suitably recognized by the Assembly and the Moderator asked the visitors to return to their homes bearing kindly greetings from Canadian Presbyterians.

The next Pan-Presbyterian Council, composed of delegates from the 80 branches of Presbyterianism in North America, South America, Europe and Asia, will be held in Toronto in September, 1892.

Last evening the General Assembly declined to appoint a Sunday School secretary, and unfavorably dealt with proposed alterations in the numerical representation of presbyteries to the General Assembly as well as certain changes in the operations of the aged and infirm ministers' fund.

The very large audience that congregated in the Assembly church were interested in two subjects—Sabbath observance and Sabbath schools. Dr. Armstrong introduced the former topic and Mr. Fotheringham of St. John the other. Suitable resolutions on both these subjects were passed by the Assembly.

MRS. ANDREW'S RECANTS.

The Charge of Murder Against Dr. Tripp of Ingersoll Falls Through.

WOODSTOCK, June 17.—Dr. Tripp of Ingersoll appeared at the Police Court again this morning on the charge of having poisoned his mother. The information was laid by Detective B. B. Allen of London, on information contained in a deposition made before a Woodstock lawyer by Mrs. Andrews, who for a time kept house for the doctor.

Mrs. Andrews was the only witness to-day. She denied point blank the charges made in the deposition bearing her name. She denied that the doctor had ever abused his mother, she denied that the doctor had ever prescribed for his mother, she denied in fact every statement of importance made in her remarkable deposition. She admitted having signed the deposition, but claimed that she did not know what it meant.

Mrs. Andrews having gone back on all she had said before, or is credited with having said, there was nothing left for the magistrate to do but dismiss the case.

The U. S. Silver Bill Passed.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The Senate has passed the silver bill much changed in detail, 42 to 25.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—What will the House do with the Senate's silver bill, is the question most frequently asked. Opinions differ as to whether or not the House would concur in the Senate amendments. There is a sentiment even among friends of the bill as it passed the Senate that it will get into Conference and that out of Conference will be evolved a bill providing for the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces of silver monthly, the certificates issued in payment thereof to be legal tender and not redeemable in bullion. Such a measure it is generally believed would receive the President's sanction.

THE QUEBEC ELECTIONS.

MERCIER SUSTAINED BY AN INCREASED MAJORITY.

The Government Will Have About 25 Votes to Spare in the Next Assembly—One Minister and the Opposition Leader Defeated.

MONTREAL, June 17.—Mr. Mercier has been sustained by an increased majority. His majority in the new Assembly may be placed with confidence at 25.

One Minister, Hon. Mr. Turcotte, has been defeated in Three Rivers by the mayor of that city, but on the other hand the leader of the Opposition, Hon. L. O. Taillon, who left a sure seat in Montcalm to contest Jacques Cartier against Hon. Arthur Boyer, was defeated by over 100. These are the only surprises of the elections, though each side has made unexpected gains.

The counties which have changed hands are:

CON. GAINS.	GOV'T GAINS.
Bagot.	Arthabaska.
Beauharnois.	Bonaventure.
Champlain.	Bellechasse.
Hochelaga.	Drummond.
Kamouraska.	Lake St. John.
L'Assomption.	Matane.
Maskinonge.	Montreal (2 seats.)
Montreal (one seat.)	Montmorency.
Richmond.	Quebec County.
Three Rivers.	Rimouski.
—Total 10.	Temiscouata.
	Terrebonne (probably)
	Vaudreuil.
	—Total 14.

Nine members were returned by acclamation on nomination day, of whom seven are followers of Mr. Mercier and two are Conservatives. In St. Maurice Heroux (Min.) resigned before polling day, leaving the seat to the former Opposition member. In Vercheres, where there were two Nationalists candidates, Geoffrion retired, allowing the former member to retain his seat. The eleven seats filled without a contest are:

[Names of new members in Roman, members of the last Assembly in Italics, members of the Executive Council in SMALL CAPS.

This gives the Government 45 and the Opposition 23 seats, including Terrebonne, which is in doubt, assuring Mercier 23 of a majority. There are three elections yet to take place: Chicoutimi and Saguenay, Gaspe and Lake St. John. Nationalists are sure to be returned in two of these, and there is a chance that Mr. Flynn, the Conservative deputy leader, may be defeated in Gaspe.

The Finance Minister of the Opposition, as Mr. Desjardins was called, is beaten in Montmorency by Charles Langelier, who resigned his seat in the Commons in order to run against him. He will now be taken into the Cabinet.

RAILROADS TIED UP.

Switchmen on Strike at Cleveland—Other Labor Troubles.

CLEVELAND, O., June 17.—Every railroad in Cleveland is "tied up" on account of the switchmen's strike and the wheels of passenger and mail trains are the only ones turning to-day. Six hundred men are out of employment.

NEW YORK, June 17.—The disaffection in the ranks of labor is on the increase here. The cloak makers' lock-out it is asserted is only the beginning of a general strike which in magnitude will eclipse anything of the kind as yet known in the city.

Fatal Explosion.

NORFOLK, Va., June 18.—The steam pipe of the tug Lightning exploded at Newport News yesterday. Capt. Darby and the fireman, name unknown, were killed and the engineer fatally scalded.

A Cloud Burst in York State.

ROCHESTER, June 18.—A cloud burst at Palmyra caused considerable damage yesterday afternoon. Seven inches of rain fall in 15 minutes.

The Recount Elects Sprague.

PICTON, June 17.—The Prince Edward election recount took place here to-day before Judge Merrill and resulted in giving Sprague (Lib.) eight majority.

THE WORLD OF SPORT.

Salvator Wins the Suburban—Results on Many Diamonds.

NEW YORK, June 17.—The seventh suburban handicap was run at Sheepshead Bay to-day in the presence of a crowd estimated at 35,000 to 40,000 people. There was a good track, and the nine starters were all in first-class shape. The best time ever made for a mile and a quarter is credited to Kingston, who covered the distance in 2.08¼. The winner's time to-day, 2.06 4-5, is a fraction slower, but the race itself was one of the most gallant fights ever witnessed, and the great crowd watched the struggle with almost painful interest. Cassius had not been esteemed very highly as a probable winner, but there was a report got abroad that a trial gallop had resulted in phenomenal speed and there was no lack of backing, although Tenny's performances this season and Salvator's great trial record kept them well to the front in the estimation of bettors.

THE SUBURBAN, a handicap sweepstakes of $100 ea., h.f., and only $25 if decl., by Feb. 20. The Association to add the amount necessary to make the value of the race $10,000. The second to receive $2000 and the third $1000 out of the money so added. Weights to be announced Feb. 1. Winners, after publication of weights, of a race of $1000 4 lbs. extra; of 2 of $1000, or of one of $2000 5 lbs. extra; of 3 of $1000, or of 2 of $2000, or of one of $5000, 12 lbs. ex. In the case of horses handicapped at 115 lbs. or over, these penalties shall apply to the extent of one-half, and in the case of one of those handicapped at 122 lbs. or over, to the extent of one-quarter only. Sixty-eight subs; 6 decl. 1 void. 1¼ miles.

Post Betting: Straight Salvator 8 to 5, Cassius 10 to 1, Tenny 8 to 5, Raceland 4 to 1, Strideaway 50 to 1, Prince Royal 25 to 1, Longstreet 25 to 1, Montague 40 to 1, Firenzi 10 to 1.

The Race: Cassius took the lead at the start with the others bunched and kept increasing the advantage until well into the home stretch with Salvator three lengths behind in second place. When a mile and an eighth had been run still Cassius led; but Salvator had crept up inch by inch and a desperate race was made in the last furlong. The three leaders on the last hundred yards were: Cassius in front by a little more than a neck; Salvator 2d, a length ahead of Tenny. All were whipping desperately. Then a little way back Tenny was making a great effort but could not come up. Cassius was still in the front a few feet from the wire, but Murphy picked Salvator up at the last jump and put him in front by a head at the wire. Tenny was a good length behind Cassius and Strideaway, in fourth place, was 4 or 5 lengths behind Tenny, with Raceland next, Firenzi 6th.

International Baseball Dilemma.

DETROIT, June 17.—A special meeting of the International League was held here to-day. There were present President Mills, President McConnell, Toronto; President Hobbs and Director Reed, London; Manager Bacon, Grand Rapids, Director Pettypiece, Saginaw. The meeting was called to ratify the admission of Grand Rapids which was done. Manistee and Port Huron were invited to send delegates but neglected to do so. Hamilton voted by telegraph and stated that their club had been transferred to Montreal and also advocated Sunday games. Bacon declared that Grand Rapids would withdraw if Sunday games were prevented. Saginaw also favors Sunday ball.

A general idea prevails in Hamilton that the club there has shifted to Montreal, being thus forced through lack of patronage.

Windsor Casualties.

WINDSOR, June 17.—James Louson was drowned last night while bathing in the Michigan Central slip.

Samuel Anthony of Bothwell, employed on the steam barge Owen, had both feet cut off to-day by the stern line coiling around his ankles and tightening as the boat listed away from the dock.

Urged to Veto the Pool Bill.

TRENTON, N.J., June 17.—A delegation of over 140 prominent citizens waited on Gov. Abbott this afternoon and urged him to veto the bill legalizing pool selling.

A Watched Witness.

LOCKPORT, N.Y., June 17.—George Hayes, the principal witness against Burchell, accused of killing young Benwell, who was reported to have been killed a short time ago, has been found and the authorities have him under surveillance.

Atlantic Yacht Club Regatta.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The annual regatta of the Atlantic Yacht Club was held yesterday and proved the most exciting ever held by the club. The winners in their respective classes follow: Class 2, Shamrock; class 6, Minerva; class 7, Hypatia; class 8, Kathleen; class 9, Frolic; class 10, Bijou (all sloops). The schooner class did not start.

Ready For the Regatta.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 18.—The Harvard University and freshman crews arrived here yesterday, and the Yale freshmen will reach here to-day, followed later in the week by two crews each from Cornell and the University of Pennsylvania.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

THE INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENT AS TO AFRICA.

Critical Condition of the Duchess of Fife—Servia Excited Over the Coming Manœuvres of the Austrian Troops—Salisbury's Working Majority.

LONDON, June 18.—Lord Salisbury's dispatch to the British Ambassador at Berlin containing the agreement with Germany declares Germany's claim that where one power occupies the coast another may not without consent occupy unclaimed regions in the rear cannot be allowed in cases where the country is already occupied by Englishmen; but where there are no English settlements England has no title to advance against the German claims. It is understood that under the agreement Germany cedes Witu, the islands of Manda and Patti and Somali, comprising a coast line of over 200 miles, to England, so that except the Congo State there will be no competitor with British influence between the first degree south latitude and the borders of Egypt along the whole country lying south and west of the Italian protectorate. Germany consents that England shall assume an exclusive protection over the Sultan of Zanzibar. England will assist Germany to obtain the cession of the German coast line hitherto rented from the Sultan on payment of an equitable indemnity. England, considering Heligoland useless since she lost Hanover, will cede it to Germany.

Salisbury Still Strong.

LONDON, June 18.—In the House of Commons Mr. Labouchere, the whole Opposition supporting, moved to adjourn in order to consider the "serious state of public affairs which the Government's mismanagement has caused." Mr. Parnell and others spoke in favor of the resolution. The motion was rejected, 253 to 181.

The Duchess of Fife.

LONDON, June 18.—The Duchess of Fife daughter of the Prince of Wales, while attending a coach meet caught a severe cold which resulted in premature confinement. She was delivered of a still-born male child at Sheen House Monday. Her condition is critical, but the doctors speak hopefully of her recovery.

Austria and Servia.

BELGRADE, June 18.—The news that the Austrian Government intends to hold great military manœuvres at Slankamen, near the frontier, from September 20 to 30, has caused a sensation here. No manœuvres have hitherto been held in that district. The Servian customs authorities have withdrawn from the Austrian officials the right to witness the declaration of Austrian goods in the custom house.

Egypt to Send Cotton to America.

ALEXANDRIA, June 18.—A movement is on foot to export Egyptian cotton to Massachusetts and an agent is already en route to make necessary arrangements. The promoters of the scheme think the cost of transporting cotton from the Southern States is so great that they will be able to send the Egyptian product to the United States at a profit.

THE DUNBAR DISASTER.

Apathy Settles Down Upon the People at the Pit Mouth.

DUNBAR, Pa., June 18.—Apathy has settled down upon the people at the burning pit mouth. At 2 o'clock p.m. the Hill farm pit showed but a wreath of smoke as if the fire within was burning feebly. From that time, however, the smoke grew gradually thicker and heavier until at 9 p.m. it was belching forth from the mouth like a torrent, ten times blacker than Monday. There is no effort being made at the Hill farm mine to offer relief as the heat and smoke from the pit mouth is now unbearable and it is expected to break into a flame at any moment when the shops and small buildings surrounding will go at once. All efforts at rescue are now being made at the Mahoning mine alone, as the Ferguson is full of smoke.

A DOSE OF PARIS GREEN.

Attempted Suicide at Waterdown—Looking for the Betrayer—Boring for Gas.

HAMILTON, June 18.—James Roland, who lives at Waterdown, became despondent on account of ill-health, and took a dose of Paris green yesterday afternoon. Last winter Roland had a severe attack of la grippe, and never entirely recovered from it. After taking the poison Roland walked to the other end of the village, and lay down under a tree, where he was found in great agony a couple of hours afterwards. He was carried home, and a stomach pump used. Roland was much better to-day, and it is likely he will recover. He is an unmarried man, and has lived in Waterdown about a year.

Elizabeth Atkinson of East Flamboro is in the city looking for Charles Moss of Dundas, who she claims seduced her. Her mind has been deranged by her trouble.

It is likely that the Wentworth gas and oil company will start boring for natural gas in a couple of days.

Interesting Items By Wire.

The Duke of Clarence (Prince Albert Victor) will take his seat in the House of Lords next week.

Lieutenant Coutinho has gone to the Shire district at the head of 1500 well armed men to attack the Makololos.

Sir Percy Anderson, the British representative in the East African negotiations, arrived in Berlin Monday. England is likely to get all she asks in Ngamiland.

The viceroy of Kwang Tung, in spite of British protest, proposes to double certain duties on cotton and opium.

It is rumored in Lisbon that troops are hastening from Mozambique to Angola to repel an alleged English invasion.

The Hamburger Nachrichten declares the outlined African agreement is a fatal mistake, that everything is conceded to England.

The American and Dutch delegates to the Anti-Slavery Conference persist in opposing the proposed import duties in the Congo States.

The North German Gazette thinks the coming African agreement is not likely to please everybody, either in Germany or England.

The London Chronicle advises English traders to have patience and trust to the Americans' own objections to the new tariff bill for its repeal.

The Times thinks Lord Salisbury has chosen the least evil in allowing Germany to extend her African possessions to the Congo and South-west Uganda.

The National Gazette says all apprehension in the African matter is removed and Lord Salisbury has met the German claims in a spirit of perfect fairness.

M. Roche, French Minister of Commerce, in opening the Council of Commerce said France from 1892 would have the fixing of the tariffs in her own hands.

The Spanish Government has ordered that a cordon of troops be placed around all the districts in the province of Valencia that are infected with cholera. Seven new cases of the disease have occurred at Puebla de Rugat.

Mary Anderson and Antonio Navarro were quietly married as per program in the Roman Catholic Chapel of St. Mary's in Hampstead.

Sunday Ball Must Go.

ROCHESTER, June 18.—Among the indictments handed up by the grand jury were true bills against the members of the Rochester and Athletic Baseball Clubs of the American Association for Sabbath breaking in having played a scheduled match game of ball at Windsor Beach on Sunday June 8.

The Old Doctors

Drew blood; modern doctors cleanse it; hence the increased demand for Alteratives. It is now well known that most diseases are not due to over-abundance, but to impurity of the Blood; and it is equally well attested that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied simple remedies for a while, thinking the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. We sought medical advice, and were told that an alterative medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being above all others, we used it with marvelous results. The sore healed and health and strength rapidly returned." — J. J. Armstrong, Weimar, Texas.

"I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an admirable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it, and it does the work every time." — E. L. Pater, M. D., Manhattan, Kansas.

"We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla here for over thirty years and always recommend it when asked to name the best blood-purifier." — W. T. McLean, Druggist, Augusta, Ohio.

AN EXAMPLE.

On the day of the last election a voter was asked to give his vote against the Government nominee. He replied that he did not intend to vote; that politically he was opposed to the Mowat Government, but he did not believe it would be to his business interest to vote at that election. "But," said the canvasser, "you will vote by ballot." "Oh, I know that," replied the voter, "but a numbered ballot is of little use when you mark it against the powers that be."

This is only a specimen of the manner in which the numbered ballot system works to the advantage of the Government. When voters who have no licenses depending upon the Government commissioners, who do not expect office or employment from the Government, are thus influenced by the knowledge that their votes can be traced, how great must be the influence of this system upon those who are depending upon the Government or their officials for favors or employment. There is no necessity for this system of balloting. In the municipal elections the ballot—and a ballot ordered by the Ontario Legislature—is secret, and there is no reason why it should not be secret in Provincial elections. The present system is worse than open voting, for with the old system of open voting all parties had equal knowledge of what took place at the polls.

The only reason the vicious system of numbered ballots is retained for Provincial elections is that it gives the Government's friends a better opportunity to coerce and corrupt electors.

A LIBERAL paper gives currency to the rumor that Mr. Mowat will resign and enter the House of Commons to lead the party there in conjunction with Mr. Laurier. The rumor is an altogether improbable one. Mr. Mowat would cut a poor figure in Ottawa. Mr. G. W. Ross was once there, but he was so greatly overshadowed that he was little heard of, except when he stepped in to save Mr. Mackenzie embarrassment on temperance questions. Mr. Mowat is shrewd enough not to give up his present little job to enter the lists with the giants of the Dominion administration.

WHEN, very shortly, Mr. John Cameron retires from the position of General Manager and Chief Editor of the Globe, the business oversight of the establishment will be in the hands of Mr. C. W. Taylor as Business Manager; the position of Editor-in-Chief will be filled by Mr. J. S. Willison, at present sub-Editor, and Mr. Edward Farrer will join the staff of the Globe on the 1st of July as principal editorial writer. —Toronto Globe.

Mr. Farrer, who now joins the Globe, has for years been the chief editorial writer on the Mail. As the Mail has been an adept at changing its principles, he may soon adapt himself to his new surroundings, but while the Globe by this accession may infuse more ability into its editorial columns it will scarcely gain in the respect of the community. Mr. Willison, who becomes editor-in-chief of the Globe, is a young man with energy and ability whom newspaper men generally will congratulate on his advancement.

Some Questions.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—I notice in your daily issue of 14th June (kindly forwarded to me by a friend) a letter from Mr. A. Hamilton, Nassau Mills, with regard to rumors or assertions that he had signed a certain letter the tendency of which was to induce the Orangemen to follow his example and vote against Mr. Carnegie, the now defeated candidate for West Peterborough.

It appears to me that his denial is not as full and explicit as is necessary to cause the electors to believe that the said rumor was wholly unfounded. It seems to me that it would strengthen public confidence in the depth and breadth of Mr. Hamilton's denial if he would squarely answer the following questions, viz.:—1st. Was he aware that a letter, purporting to be signed by himself, Mr. R. Waram and Wm. Moore, was in circulation by Mr. Stratton? 2nd. If the letter was not signed by him will he state that his signature was a forgery? 3rd. Did he affix his signature to a blank sheet leaving it an open matter for someone else to write the letter? 4th. When he found the letter in circulation did he take steps to place himself right by denouncing its use?

These questions, I think, are pertinent, and if honestly answered, will do far more to disabuse the public mind of a wrong (if it is one) than the very non-committal (to use the mildest term) letter in REVIEW of the 14th.

Yours truly,

ANOTHER ONTARIO FLOOD.

Heavy Losses at Bowmanville—A Severe Storm at Guelph.

BOWMANVILLE, June 17.—This part of the Province was visited again to-day by a violent thunderstorm with a heavy downpour of rain, causing another devastating flood quite equal in extent to the one that worked such tremendous havoc with the milldams and bridges on June 5. The storm was most severe a few miles to the north of this town and lasted from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. About 6 o'clock telegrams were sent to the mill owners here to prepare for another big flood, stating that the rainfall to-day had been larger than on June 5, and that all the repairs that had been made since the last flood had been washed away. About 7 o'clock the rush of mighty waters was heard and the dams at Elliot's mill, Hampton, the electric light works and Vanstone's roller mill, Bowmanville, and the bridges on this stream were again washed away. Large gangs of men have been employed repairing the former breaks, and to-night the destruction is far worse than before. Our citizens turned out en masse to-night to view the mighty foaming torrent bearing down debris of every description. The breach in King-street west, over which an iron bridge is to be erected, has been widened by several feet by the washing away of the deep road bed. Mr. J. C. Vanstone's loss before was close on $3000, and fully $1000 has been sustained to-day.

GUELPH, June 17.—A terrific thunderstorm passed over the city about half-past nine this morning, and continued for about twenty minutes. The thunder shook buildings and rattled the windows in some houses till the glass was cracked. The residence of ex-Ald. Coffee fared the worst. When the storm was at its height Mrs. Coffee went to shut the front door. She had it half shut when lightning entered the doorway, drawing the nails out of the jointing, making a large hole in the partition between the hall way and the parlor, blacking the walls and filling the room with smoke, entered the dining and drawing rooms and made its exit through the solid stone wall in the rear, passing into the ground at the back kitchen, where some boards were splintered. Mrs. Coffee was stunned, but soon recovered and was assisted to the second story, where fortunately the majority of the family were at the time. There is scarcely a whole pane of glass in the large residence, and the floors of the rooms after the shock were actually carpeted with window glass and broken glassware. The loss will amount to about $200 or over. Several other places were slightly touched, and two or three individuals received shocks. During the storm rain fell in torrents, flooding the streets and doing considerable damage in cellars.

The Grimes Inquest.

HAMILTON, June 18.—The inquest upon the death of the old colored man, James Grimes, was continued last night before Coroner Philip at No. 3 Police Station. Dr. Olmstead, who, with Dr. Crosthwaite, made the post mortem examination, testified that deceased's heart was exceedingly enlarged, being fully three times larger than normal size. The lower lip was gouged away, as though eaten with rats. There were no indications of any wounds on the body. He considered the heart was dangerous under excitement or extra exertion. He could not give a definite opinion of the cause of death. Putting the result of the examination with the story of the fatal quarrel already told, he judged that heart failure was the cause of death. Mrs. Hodges, Mrs. Catherine Jenkins, Florence Small, a young girl, John Honeyest, Andrew Hemstock and Constable Cameron gave evidence corroborating the story that has already been published. After the jury had deliberated until midnight they decided to adjourn until Friday night.

Davis Will Be Dropped.

BELLEVILLE, June 18.—Active preparations are now being made for the execution of Peter Davis, which will take place on Friday morning. Jailer Appleby went to Picton yesterday to secure the services of the carpenters who constructed the gallows on which Tennant and Lander suffered death for the murder of Peter Lazier. It will be erected at once. It will be located near the entrance to the corridor, into which the doomed man will step for the last time. Sheriff Hope has decided on the drop. He says that his experience has been that this is the most expeditious and surest method of death by hanging. He is decidedly opposed to the jerk. He has made every precaution against bungling and Davis will no doubt be launched into eternity without pain in less than 48 hours.

Manitoba University Lands.

WINNIPEG, June 18.—At a meeting of the University Lands Committee yesterday F. C. Wade presented the report of the sub-committee, showing that 114,000 out of about 150,000 acres of land granted to the university by the Dominion Government as part of the better terms in 1885 have been selected by the sub-committee since September last. These lands will constitute a valuable endowment to the university, and with this assistance it is confidently hoped that it will be possible to constitute a thoroughly organized teaching university in the province. Up to September, 1889, none of the lands had been selected. If the lands had been selected in 1885, immediately after being granted, the endowment would undoubtedly have been much more valuable.

The Big Leary Raft En Route.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June 17.—The big Leary raft described in your New York despatch last week was towed out of the harbor this morning by the two tugs sent here for that purpose. The timber in the raft is worth $150,000.

MELONS FOR FARMERS.

Points on Preparing the Hills and Cultivation.

But very few melons are grown by farmers owing to the fact that the melon thrives best on a warm, sandy soil, but melons can be grown on nearly all farms with good management, though they may not equal those grown in more favored localities. The melon prefers a dry warm soil, light loam being sometimes suitable as well as a sandy soil, the point to observe being to avoid too much dampness and to secure as much warmth in the soil as possible. If they can be given a good start when young they will not be injured by the ground being shaded later on. The best varieties are those that originate in the South, but as they require more time to mature in this section than the tried varieties the old reliable mountain sweet and icing kind will probably give better satisfaction. Of the cantaloupes the best flavored, most uniform in quality and of thrifty habit is the emerald gem, which is of medium size.

PREPARING THE HILLS.

It has frequently been noticed that when volunteer water-melons come up in the sweet-potato rows they seldom fail to bear well, and this has induced some growers to plant them in rows instead of hills, under the belief that the roots of the melon find more plant food by extending both ways in the row; but on heavy soils the safer method is to plant in hills, which should be done without delay. The custom of making the hills about a foot in diameter has led to failure. Those who grow melons on heavy soil first look to the drainage. A hole is dug and filled with chips or stones, and then a large shovelful of well-rotted manure is placed on the hole (which is filled up), and a hill four feet in diameter made, with plenty of manure well-worked into the soil, the centre of the hills being ten feet apart each way.

CULTIVATION.

Six seeds are planted, the plants being thinned out to one or two when up. A handful of a mixture of one part superphosphate and three parts of wood ashes is then scattered around the plants, worked into the soil and the hills kept loose until the plants begin to run, when the cultivation is only given in front of the vines, and never in among them near the roots, as they should be disturbed as little as possible. On light, sandy soils melons are grown with but little difficulty, hence the method here suggested is for those who desire to produce them on heavier soils, they preferring a rather dry season to much rain.

CHEAP, COOL COMFORT!

Summer Bulletin.

WE DEFY OLD SOL TO DO HIS HOTTEST.

The elections are over. Now for business. We've did a rousing trade during May, and swept competition to the wall. Our gigantic stock, marvellous buying, splendid selling and unparalelled value has carried our constituency. GOUGH BROS. are the representatives of the biggest, the best, the peoples Clothing Emporium.

Hot weather is coming as sure as fate, rent or taxes. Then be prepared. Shed your winter clothes and don a summer suit. Select one from our special line of BRITISH COLUMBIA STOCK, bought at a big sacrifice and selling at prices that knock competition into smithereens.

WORKERS AND THINKERS

Look, Read and Ponder Well.

The desire of all buyers of Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, is to procure Goods of the best quality, providing the price suits the pocket. Gough Bros. has made this possible to persons of the most limited means. Energy and enterprise has been the motive spirit of our business—with this spirit we have defied hard times—thus inspired, we have inaugurated and enlarged and extended our trade until it has outgrown our widest expectations.

We again promise you more and better "value" for your money than you have ever yet had. Our stock has been well and cheaply bought expressly for our own trade, and those who have visited us during the last two months will admit that we have fully redeemed the pledge when promising the Cheapest Goods ever sold in the town of Peterborough.

Our Stock is fully assorted, and we have not confined the bargains to a few leading lines, relying on the rest to reimburse the loss, but have everything proportionately low. In a word we are determined to surpass every former effort, and make the Gough Bros. Bargains instruments of pleasure.

In Boots and Shoes we lead the Country. In Hats and Caps we beat all Competition.

A Lecture of Unusual Interest.

Rev. D. M. Millel, of Belleville, delivered a lecture on the missionary work among the Telugus, of India, to a fair audience in the Murray-st. Baptist church last evening. The lecture was illustrated by lime light views of the missionaries, some of the churches, converts, native preachers, representative characters such as fakirs, beggars, etc., that are to be met in the daily life of the missionary. The lecture was one of unusual interest and delighted the audience. At the close a vote of thanks, moved by Rev. P. Clifton Parker, was cordially tendered the lecturer.

Sunday Liquor Selling.

There were three liquor cases called at the Police Court this morning. James Brault, who was proprietor of the Montreal House until a few weeks ago, was charged with selling liquor on Sunday last. Mr. Larocque appeared when this case was called and stated that he had purchased the Montreal house. A doubt existed as to whether the license had been formally transferred and the case was enlarged until Monday morning. Mr. J. Carew was also charged with having sold liquor on Sunday, May 18th. He pleaded not guilty as did Mr. W. Kenneally who was charged with a similar offence on Sunday, 15th June. Both of these cases were enlarged until Monday on account of the absence of important witnesses.

HIS SERVICES RECOGNIZED.

A Handsome P. Z's. Jewel Presented to V. Ex. Comp. R. A. Morrow.

A very interesting and pleasing event occurred at the regular convocation of Corinthian R. A. Chapter, No. 36, G.R.C., held on Tuesday evening, when the companions showed their appreciation of the zealous and untiring efforts of V. Ex. Comp. R. A. Morrow in promoting the welfare of the order by presenting him with a handsome P. Z's. jewel. Ex. Comp. Chas. Cameron made the presentation, and in a neat address complimented the recipient on the success which had attended him during his term of office. V. Ex. Comp. Morrow, who was taken entirely by surprise, made a suitable reply, thanking the companions for the handsome present. The jewel is of gold and consists of a triangle on a circle, surmounted by a crown, beneath which is a representation of the rays of the sun. The five points of the crown each contain a stone, the centre one being a diamond and on either side two rubies. The jewel is hung from a gold bar —with pin attached—by a ribbon, with an intervening bar between. On the reverse side of the jewel is the following inscription:—"Presented to V. Ex. Comp. R. A. Morrow, P. Z., by Corinthian R. A. Chapter No. 36, G.R.C., Peterborough, June 17th, 1890. It was obtained from Messrs. Clarke & Gibson and is a handsome piece of workmanship. At the conclusion of the work a pleasant half hour was spent at refreshments.

Rt. Ex. Comp. R. Winch, of Cobourg, who was present, complimented the Corinthian Chapter on the manner in which the work was done.

Oddfellows of the District.

The District Committee of the I.O.O.F. of this district will meet this evening in Otonabee lodge room, for the purpose of selecting a District Deputy Grand Master for the ensuing term and of transacting other business of importance to the Order. Bro. Dr. Pettigrew, D.D.G.M., will preside.

Their Annual Picnic.

Go to it and enjoy yourself. To what? To the annual picnic of St. Peter's Cathedral, which is to be held on Dominion Day in the beautiful shady grove at St. Joseph's. All the wants of the multitude will be provided for and a good day's fun ensured. Come yourself and bring the children. It will be a healthy outing and will cost little. Refreshments in abundance will be provided. 1d142

Killed by Lightning.

A horse belonging to Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald, second line of Smith, was killed by lightning during the storm yesterday afternoon. The neck of the dead animal was burned and the hair singed by the fluid. Mr. Joseph Rosborough was within ten yards of the spot with a team, and he and the horses he was driving were stunned by the lightning, but fortunately escaped without injury.

County Council Notes.

The Councillors were hard at work in committee to-day.

When the Council opened yesterday the Warden's desk was adorned with a beautiful large bouquet form the garden of Mr. John Burnham, Q. C., Reeve of Ashburnham.

The members of the Council drew lots for seats on assembling yesterday, owing to the seats having been all re-arranged in the improved chamber.

The new chamber, for the improvements have made it a new room, met with the approval of the members, though the work had not been entirely completed. It is creditable to Mr. J. B. Pearce, the chairman of the special committee, Mr. J. E. Belcher, C. E., County Engineer, who was the architect of the improvements, and Contractor Langford.

To strengthen the hair, thicken the growth, stop it blanching and falling out, and where it is gray to restore the youthful color, use Hall's Hair Renewer.

The Boys in Red.

The 57th Battalion paraded at the drill shed last evening for battalion drill, but the turn out was nothing like it should have been considering the near approach of Dominion Day and the trip to Toronto. The Battalion, under Lieut.-Col. J. Z. Rogers, marched to the P. A. A. A. grounds in Ashburnham, where a number of battalion movements were practiced. Owing to the muddy streets and other reasons the company competition on attendance, drill, appearance, etc., was not scored, but will take place on Thursday night. After the drill Col. Rogers addressed the men, asking every man to turn out to drill regularly between now and the 1st of July and to pay every attention to his uniform and equipments. There will be another parade on Thursday night and a church parade on Sunday next.

The Late Elections.

At the meeting of the District Orange Lodge at Nassau last night the following resolution was adopted:—

"That this District L. O. Lodge, of West Peterborough, approves of the resolutions passed by L. O. Lodges number 49, 80, 178 and 457, and by the Royal Black Knights of Ireland in respect of Equal Rights and printed in pamphlet form and distributed during the late election contest in Peterborough, as being the principles which all true Protestants (and especially Orangemen) should hold.

"That we regret the very uncertain position occupied by W. Bros. Alex. Hamilton, C. M., R. Waram, P. C. M., and F. J. Moore, D. C. M., in the late contest for the Legislative Assembly between Mr. J. R. Stratton, a candidate in the interest of the Mowat Government, and Mr. John Carnegie, a candidate in the interest of Protestantism, Equal Rights and of the principles upheld by our Order.

"And the members of this District Lodge now in session wish at this their first opportunity to thank Mr. John Carnegie and Mr. A. R. Kidd for the manly stand taken by them in the interest of Protestantism and of principles which should be dear to the hearts of all true Protestants and express their belief in their ultimate success.

"That the Secretary send copies of this resolution to Messrs. Carnegie and Kidd, and to the REVIEW, Examiner and Times for publication."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Shiloh's Cure will immediately relieve Croupe Whooping Cough and Bronchitis. For sale by Geo. A Schofield, Druggist, Peterborough.

TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE.

FIVE MEN PLUNGE TO AN AWFUL DEATH.

An Engine with Six Men on Board Dashes Through a Bridge—Five of the Men Killed —Disastrous Washouts on the C. P. R.— Delay to Traffic.

A disastrous washout and shocking fatality occurred on the Canadian Pacific railway last night By the first over one thousand feet of the line was washed away or rendered unfit for traffic, and by the latter five men were dashed into eternity without a moment's warning. The scene of the catastrophe is between Locust Hill, formerly known as Green River, and Clairmont stations.

The rain which passed over Peterborough yesterday afternoon was only a slight shower of the storm which swept along the country a little to our west. Between the two stations named it is said that there was a regular cloudburst, which flooded the country and caused the little brooks and creeks to swell to torrents. At Myrtle the deluge was also heavy and the track was badly damaged, but between Locust Hill and Claremont it is said nearly one thousand feet of track was washed away.

The washout was of course reported to Toronto and a light engine with five persons on board started out from the city to investigate the extent of the damage and make preparations for repairs. This engine was the one which pulls the local between Havelock and Toronto and was driven by John Atton, who is well known here and lives in Toronto. The fireman's name was Oliver, while the other three on the ill-fated engine were Mr. John Walmiss, jr., Assistant Bridge Superintendent, of Toronto, and two section men named Jerimiah Moriarity and Lobb. At Locust Hill a man by the name o, Islington, an hotel keeper, also boarded the engine. The engine with its six passengers was running along at a good rate of speed when it struck a bridge which spans a creek almost four miles from Locust Hill.

No damage was apprehended, but the iron monster had only got about half way over the bridge when, without a second's warning, the structure gave way and the engine, tender and its human freight plunged down into the angry, swollen waters of the creek beneath. The engine and tender doubled together, so that the men in the cab were buried beneath the two heavy weights. The Locust Hill hotel man was standing outside, so that when the engine went through he was thrown away free of the wreck and alone escaped with his life. The five railroad men were buried beneath the engine and were drowned by the waters of the creek, if not instantly crushed to death.

Word of the accident was soon carried to the station and sent over the wires along the line. A construction train went up from Havelock and another came down from Toronto, and work was commenced to repair the washouts, while another gang of men were detailed to rescue the bodies of the five victims of the fatality. At about six o'clock this morning the body of Walmiss was found a short distance down the river, but up to nearly noon to-day three of the other bodies were still beneath the engine.

The bridge which gave way was supported on a stone archway, and the water had so worked upon this mason work that it became weakened and partly washed away. When the engine struck it the weight was too much for its weakened foundation and it gave way with the terrible results related.

The accident interferred with the traffic on the line, no trains getting through last night. To-day the passengers were transferred from the down train to the 5.50 and 11.45 trains which went up last night. These arrived here shortly after one o'clock to-day.

There is a blocade of freight on the line, which, coming so soon after the recent washouts, will be very disastrous for the railway. It is expected that the line will be repaired to day.

THE ODDFELLOWS' OUTING.

A Pleasant Day at St. Jacob's Island—A Programme of Games.

The Oddfellows picnic, which was held yesterday at Jacob's Island, was a successful and enjoyable outing. Over two hundred happy pleasure seekers left here in the morning on the train for Chemong. There the steamer and palace barge "Beaubocage" were boarded and the sail to the picturesque and beautiful resort in Pigeon Lake was commenced. The island was reached at about 11.30, when no time was lost in preparing to satisfy the cravings of the appetites which the fresh breeze of the sail had encouraged. The committee under whose management the picnic had been arranged had milk, coffee and hot water ready for the pic nickers and no delay was caused on account of the liquid refreshments. The island looked beautiful and the excursionists enjoyed the shade of the leafy oaks as they banquetted in true picnic fashion. Music was furnished for the trip both ways, so that the monotony of the sail was pleasingly enlivened by several selections.

THE PRIZE WINNERS.

In the afternoon a good programme of sports was run off. The events and prize winners were as follows:—

BOYS RACE—1st Albert Wills, picnic views

The prize, a high chair, which was offered for the best looking baby on the boat, was won by the infant child of Mrs. Walter Hooper.

The next event was the tug of war between teams taken from the two lodges. Peterborough Lodge was represented by Bro. J. Craig, Geo. Minorgan, J. Mein, H. Davidson, J. Turner, J. Howden and S. Clegg. Otonabee Lodge had for its strong men Bros. F. Miller, S. Ray, J. McGill, D. Yarnold, Thos. Irwin, J. W. Doxsee and C. Huffman. The men of Peterborough Lodge proved the stronger and won the test. The prize was a three-storey cake.

A team of seven men from the Fire Brigade pulled a team of eight Oddfellows. The latter proved the superiors on the rope.

100 YARD RACE—1st, A. Moore, Daily Examiner for one year; 2nd, J. Howden, hat.

GIRLS' RACE—1st, Lillie Minorgan, pair of vases; 2nd, Bella Menzies, plush frame.
